Thousands May Switch Professions

JOB HOPE BLEAK FOR NEW TEACHERS

By WALT MURRAY
Staff Writer

Thousands of newly trained Southland teachers face increasingly bleak job prospects this year and many may switch to other professions.

Their plight is caused by complex factors ranging from school district budget cuts to a glut of teachers in certain fields to competition with teachers trained in other states.

And the declining number of job openings may well continue into the 1970s, according to college placement directors, who help graduating teacher-trainees land their first jobs.

"This is definitely the worst year we've had at Cal-State Long Beach," says Ed Babbush, director of placement and career planning there.

"So far, we've placed about 10 per cent of our secondary education graduates," Babbush says. "In most years we've placed 50 to 60 per cent by now."

Job prospects aren't quite as grim for new elementary teachers," he says,"But things are much slower than normal."

Babbush and other Southland placement officials — who worry that many of the best teachers will leave the field when they can't find jobs — list many reasons for declining job opportunities:

— Failure of tax override elections in several districts which urgently needed more funds to hire more teachers and increase services.

— Actual cutbacks in teaching positions in several financially-strapped school districts. Few teachers are being layed off — they're being transferred out of special areas into vacancies opened by retirement. This means far fewer openings for new teachers.

— A glut of teachers in areas such as high school

Fair Enough

Q. I would like to enter some of my English crewel embroidery in the Los Angeles County Fair. Can you tell me when and how I can do this? Mrs. P.A.S., Long Beach.

A. You can enter your needlework in the domestic arts section of the Los Angeles County Fair, and an entry blank will be sent to you. Entry blanks and explanatory rule books for fair contestants will be available in about a week by writing the Los Angeles County Fair, P.O. Box 2250, Pomona, Calif. 91766. Each one of the more than 15 fair sections has a separate deadline entry date, so persons asking for entry blanks must say what they want to enter. The fair will be held at the Pomona Fair Grounds Sept. 12-28. The Orange County Fair will be held at the fairground at 88 Fair Drive, Costa Mesa, Calif. 92626, July 15-20. Persons wishing to enter exhibits there may write for entry blanks and other information.

Gun Law

Q. I'm in no shape to protect myself or my wife should we be attacked on the street. I thought I'd buy a .22 caliber revolver, and want to know if I can legally carry it on my person without a permit. H. O. E., Long Beach.

A. Carrying a concealed gun has, for years, been against the law but, until a year ago, it was not illegal to carry an unconcealed gun. That is now changed, however, under a state law pushed by Gov. Ronald Reagan which makes a permit generally necessary for anyone to legally carry any firearm on his person whether it be concealed or not. The law was proposed after a group of armed Black Panthers walked into the State Capitol on May 2, 1967. The law permits private citizens to carry guns in their cars or on their persons only if going to or from a shooting range, a hunting trip or on a long trip. Even then, the gun must be broken down, and ammunition cannot be close to it. Officer Bill Meyer of the Long Beach Police Department said permits are issued by the department if "just cause and reason" is shown. For example, a store owner taking his money to the bank would probably be allowed to have a permit, but carrying a gun on the streets for "protection," except in unusual circumstances, is not considered reason enough, Meyer said.

Leg to Stand On

Q. My father-in-law just passed away and left a wooden leg, the above the knee type, in very good condition. Since the leg cost around $700, my wife and I would like to donate it to someone who could use it. We don't want it to go to an organization that would turn around and sell it for a profit. Can you help us find out how to give it to a needy person? M.D., Long Beach.

Nixon Would OK Secret Pact for Mutual Troop Pullback

President Nixon would accept a secret agreement with Hanoi on mutual troop withdrawal from South Vietnam provided it contained tight safeguards against violations, White House sources said Saturday.

In reporting what they termed progress in Paris and Vietnam, these sources left open this approach as an alternative to a formally announced agreement for mutual withdrawal of forces. However they also:

Said they do not know whether North Vietnam's leaders are ready yet to accept the existence of South Vietnam as an independent country, a condition they described as necessary for serious negotiations at Paris.

Declined to predict the war would be over in a year, or to specify when U.S. forces might be withdrawn from South Vietnam as a result of increased Saigon ability to take over more of the fighting. Nixon has set no deadline or master plan for a troop pullout, they indicated.

Defense Secretary Melvin Laird said in Warrenton, Pa., Saturday that a cutback in the 541,000 U.S. troops in Vietnam could begin if any one of three basic conditions are met. They are:

1. Agreement on mutual withdrawal of U.S. and North Vietnamese forces.

2. Sufficient improvement of South Vietnamese troops so they can take over a major burden of the fighting.

3. Substantial reduction in the level of Viet Cong and North Vietnamese activity in the South.

The White House sources additionally gave newsmen these administration views on two other outstanding issues:

The White House is confident the Senate will okay Nixon's plan to go ahead with the Safeguard anti-ballistic missile system.

In the forthcoming strategic arms troop talks with the Soviets, Nixon would not accept a disarmament deal putting the United States in a position of nuclear inferiority. The assumption underlying these discussions would be one of parity between the two super powers.

The portion of the ABM system protecting Minuteman intercontinental missiles against possible Soviet attack will be negotiable in the U.S.-Soviet talks. The portion designed against the Red Chinese threat will not be a bargaining item — and the Soviets too may want to

Professors Score Nixon on Disorder

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)—Representatives of more than 90,000 college and university professors attacked the Nixon Administration's stand on campus disorders Saturday, saying the hard-line policy outlined by Atty. Gen. John Mitchell was "a direct threat to academic freedom and autonomy."

In a strongly worded resolution, about 800 delegates to the 55th annual American Association of University Professors (AAUP) convention here termed Mitchell's law-day speech in Detroit "provocative" and said the attorney general used "indiscriminate" and "dangerous" language in attacking campus militants.

The professors ignored a last-minute appeal from the Justice Department by telegram and telephone to delay passing the resolution until the Administration could provide delegates with "an authoritative text" of Mitchell's speech. The Administration implied press reports of language used in the speech were inaccurate.

MITCHELL WARNED the Justice Department will begin prosecuting "violence-prone militants" to "the fullest extent" under provisions of the 1964 Civil Rights act.

The resolution also charged Mitchell with referring to campus militants as "ideological criminals" and "new barbarians."

"Such statements assert a policy which is a direct threat to academic freedom and autonomy," the AAUP resolution said.

The association also voiced "grave concern" over the spread of campus violence and voted to "unreservedly condemn any forcible interference with teaching, learning and research."

But it said any attempts to quell student disorder should be left to school administrators and faculty, adding "the current crisis can only be compounded by vengeful reprisals" by federal and state governments.

The association said militant demonstrations often are the result of "deep and sometimes profoundly moral, discontents arising out of social injustice, public policy and in some cases out of inefficiency, irresponsibility and unresponsiveness within the institutions themselves."

Angered Driver Rams Street Dance

AUSTIN (UPI) — A teen-age Negro student, apparently angered by 300 hippie street dancers who pounded and hopped on his car, was charged Saturday with plowing the vehicle twice into the crowd, scattering bodies along a road near the University of Texas.

"He only got about seven people on the first pass, but when he backed up he got 'em right and left," said Mike Darley, 19, of Austin, one of the 33 persons reported injured.

The driver of the car, Robinson Henry Parsons Jr., 19, a student from Houston, was charged early Saturday with aggravated assault with a motor vehicle. He was released on $1,000 bond. A passenger in the car was not charged.

Youths in the Friday night street party said Parsons appeared angered and scared when several youths pounded on his car and jumped on its trunk when it first came down the street.

One witness said when the car was about three blocks away the driver turned around and sped directly at the crowd with his headlights off.

"I was crossing the street when I saw him coming," said Darley. "My first impression was that he was going to slow down. But he didn't. He speeded up.

"I was slammed into the bumper. I grabbed on, trying not to get run over. I held on and was carried for 40 yards, afraid to let go, because I knew he would get me."

Six youths with broken ankles remained hospitalized in fair to satisfactory condition Saturday. Hospital officials reported another 27 were treated and released.

A rock and roll band was playing so loudly when the car smashed into the street dancers, many in the crowd never knew what happened, witnesses said, until a policeman ran to the microphone and pleaded for blood donors.

Murder is commonplace in Southern California; it happens every day.

Most of the hundreds of murders committed each year are solved, and details of the crime forgotten before the killer comes to justice.

The rest are forgotten by the time the next year's bloody crop is reaped.

But, on rare occasions, murder explodes out of the commonplace and burns into the mind to clutch with a grim fascination undiminished by years in the dusty archives of death.

None fits this category better than the unsolved murder of a raven-haired beauty who left a Linden Avenue hotel in Long Beach 22 years ago to go to Los Angeles for marriage and a new life.

She got to Los Angeles — she didn't get married, she didn't find a new life. She found death — a hideous death emblazoned in sensation-packed national headlines.

Today, the Los Angeles Police Department files on the case fill four drawers — most voluminous in crime history.

The files are tagged "Elizabeth Short."

But to the world, the girl will always be known as The Black Dahlia.

The name, so appropriate for the black haired party girl with a penchant for sheer black clothing to show off her curvaceous body, came about through a chance remark by another woman — possibly in envy.

Nixon Flips at Kentucky Derby as 'Majestic Prince' Romps In

LOUISVILLE, Ky (AP) — President Nixon became the first chief executive to attend the Kentucky Derby Saturday—and even picked the winner—as Majestic Prince captured the 9th running of the famed racing classic.

"He won, he won," Nixon said as the unbeaten favorite flashed across the finish line.

Earlier, as he made his way through a cheering, pressing crowd to Gov. Louie B. Nunn's finish-line box, Nixon encountered Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., and told him: "Majestic Prince. Put it on that. The California Horse."

* * * *

AND THE CHIEF executive told Sens. Mike Mansfield and Everett M. Dirksen and their wives: "Majestic Prince. He's going to win."

The President and Mrs. Nixon did not, so far as could be determined, bet on the race, but the two senatorial wives did, putting money on both Majestic Prince and second choice Top Knight.

Actually, Majestic Prince was born in Kentucky, but he won most of his races in California. The only California-born horse in the race, Fleet Allied, was an outsider who finished well back.

Like many of the 100,000 race fans who jammed famed Churchill Downs, Nixon had trouble seeing much of the race. As the horses went to the far turn, he turned around to Mansfield and shrugged his shoulders. But his interest quickly came back as the horses headed for the finish line directly in front of his box.

* * * *

AT AN EARLIER stop in South Carolina where he visited elder statesman James S. Byrnes, Nixon received an enthusiastic reception. And after spending some time in an upstairs VIP room, he deliberately took a long way back to the box so he could shake more hands and see more people.

Upon arrival at Standiford Field here, the Nixons were greeted by Gov. Nunn and a crowd of several hundred. Mrs. Nunn gave a bouquet of red roses, symbol of the Derby, to Mrs. Nixon, who was brightly clad in a yellow and white two-piece suit.

"I don't follow the horses," Nixon admitted during the South Carolina stop. "I'd better study it carefully before I make my decision." But, he repeated that he favored "the California horse."

Earlier, on the flight from Washington, The President greeted Rep. Gene Snyder, R-Ky., with the question: "Have you got any hot tips?"

Snyder handed Nixon a copy of the sports page from the morning newspaper.

Local Republicans had done their best to give the President a warm welcome, and they succeeded. Along his 10-mile motorcade route and around the two-story white brick Byrnes house a campaign-like atsmosphere prevailed. Critical signs were few and far between.

Jeer Sex Education Advocate

United Republicans Reaffirm Stand Against Program

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — The Volunteer United Republicans of California Saturday heard sex education in the schools described as a way to assure a child becomes a "fine decent human being" and condemned as causing "psychological venereal disease."

Delegates to UROC's 1969 state convention responded with moans and jeers to Dr. Ralph G. Eckert, a counselor at Long Beach State College, who favors liberalization of sex education.

Dr. Melvin Anchell, a Beverly Hills physician and author, won cheers and applause with his denunciation of sex education as unnecessarily detailed and drawn-out by the schools.

Anchell said he could teach all the mechanics of reproduction a child needs to know in 15 minutes but that Anaheim schools now devote "150 hours to this fetish."

THE EDUCATOR and physician debated sex education for more than an hour at a standing-room-only luncheon session of UROC's convention. The audience was dominated by middle-aged women.

The 9,000-member volunteer Republican group has condemned sex education course in the public schools and is expected to restate its opposition during the weekend convention.

Eckert reminded the delegates that the state board of education recently endorsed morally oriented sex education courses from kindergarten through high school.

The crowd jeered when Eckert said the Anaheim course that was criticized by Anchell actually devoted only six hours in six years to the mechanical aspects of sex. He said most of the course time is spent discussing "human relations."

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., will participate May 24 in a nationwide ham radio hookup between servicemen in Vietnam and their families in the United States.

An estimated 1,000 calls originating from military amateur radio system stations in Vietnam will be transmitted to ham operators attending a convention at Indianapolis.

Calls will be relayed by telephone to any point in the United States and families will pay only for the cost of a collect call from Indianapolis.

Goldwater, a ham radio enthusiast, will set up many of the calls and speak to convention delegates that evening.

NO DAY OFF

Dr. William F. McFadden worked as usual in his dental office in Middleport, N.Y., Saturday because "there are school children and others who can't always come in during the week." He almost overlooked the fact that it was his 91st birthday. McFadden works a full five days a week, as well as Saturday mornings. He says he has no plans for retirement.

FATEFUL DAY

A young man on the way home from his bachelor party was killed in an auto crash early Saturday — the day he was to be married. Highway patrolmen said Gerard Paul Lang, 22, of Napa died at a hospital shortly after his car went out for control and crashed off State Highway 29.

STATE VISIT

Queen Elizabeth II will pay a state visit to Austria this week and, in the language of show business, she'll be following a tough act.

The last British monarch to visit Austria was Elizabeth's great-grandfather, Edward VII, who astonished the country by persuading Austrian Emperor Franz Josef to take the first and only ride of his life in the then newfangled horseless carriage.

Queen Elizabeth, accompanied by her husband, Prince Philip, and daughter, Princess Anne, 18, making her first official visit abroad, will see, among other things, the former Hapsburg Imperial Palace, now the seat of the president and Schoenbrunn Castle.

TRUMAN 85

"I wish they would forget about my birthdays," Harry S. Truman once said. "They only make me a year older."

The nation's 33rd president will be 85 Thursday, and it promises to be a quiet, family day at the white-frame Truman home in suburban Independence, Mo.

Although reported in good health, Truman rarely makes public appearances these days and plans to make no exceptions for his birthday anniversary.

"He's feeling fine," said Bess Truman, who is nine months younger than her husband and keeps a close eye on his activities.

Nixon Flips at Kentucky Derby as 'Majestic Prince' Romps In

LOUISVILLE, Ky (AP) — President Nixon became the first chief executive to attend the Kentucky Derby Saturday—and even picked the winner—as Majestic Prince captured the 9th running of the famed racing classic.

"He won, he won," Nixon said as the unbeaten favorite flashed across the finish line.

Earlier, as he made his way through a cheering, pressing crowd to Gov. Louie B. Nunn's finish-line box, Nixon encountered Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., and told him: "Majestic Prince. Put it on that. The California Horse."

* * * *

AND THE CHIEF executive told Sens. Mike Mansfield and Everett M. Dirksen and their wives: "Majestic Prince. He's going to win."

The President and Mrs. Nixon did not, so far as could be determined, bet on the race, but the two senatorial wives did, putting money on both Majestic Prince and second choice Top Knight.

Actually, Majestic Prince was born in Kentucky, but he won most of his races in California. The only California-born horse in the race, Fleet Allied, was an outsider who finished well back.

Like many of the 100,000 race fans who jammed famed Churchill Downs, Nixon had trouble seeing much of the race. As the horses went to the far turn, he turned around to Mansfield and shrugged his shoulders. But his interest quickly came back as the horses headed for the finish line directly in front of his box.

* * * *

AT AN EARLIER stop in South Carolina where he visited elder statesman James S. Byrnes, Nixon received an enthusiastic reception. And after spending some time in an upstairs VIP room, he deliberately took a long way back to the box so he could shake more hands and see more people.

Upon arrival at Standiford Field here, the Nixons were greeted by Gov. Nunn and a crowd of several hundred. Mrs. Nunn gave a bouquet of red roses, symbol of the Derby, to Mrs. Nixon, who was brightly clad in a yellow and white two-piece suit.

"I don't follow the horses," Nixon admitted during the South Carolina stop. "I'd better study it carefully before I make my decision." But, he repeated that he favored "the California horse."

Earlier, on the flight from Washington, The President greeted Rep. Gene Snyder, R-Ky., with the question: "Have you got any hot tips?"

Snyder handed Nixon a copy of the sports page from the morning newspaper.

Local Republicans had done their best to give the President a warm welcome, and they succeeded. Along his 10-mile motorcade route and around the two-story white brick Byrnes house a campaign-like atsmophere prevailed. Critical signs were few and far between.

Jeer Sex Education Advocate

United Republicans Reaffirm Stand Against Program

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — The Volunteer United Republicans of California Saturday heard sex education in the schools described as a way to assure a child becomes a "fine decent human being" and condemned as causing "psychological venereal disease."

Delegates to UROC's 1969 state convention responded with moans and jeers to Dr. Ralph G. Eckert, a counselor at Long Beach State College, who favors liberalization of sex education.

Dr. Melvin Anchell, a Beverly Hills physician and author, won cheers and applause with his denunciation of sex education as unnecessarily detailed and drawn-out by the schools.

Anchell said he could teach all the mechanics of reproduction a child needs to know in 15 minutes but that Anaheim schools now devote "150 hours to this fetish."

THE EDUCATOR and physician debated sex education for more than an hour at a standing-room-only luncheon session of UROC's convention. The audience was dominated by middle-aged women.

The 9,000-member volunteer Republican group has condemned sex education course in the public schools and is expected to restate its opposition during the weekend convention.

Eckert reminded the delegates that the state board of education recently endorsed morally oriented sex education courses from kindergarten through high school.

The crowd jeered when Eckert said the Anaheim course that was criticized by Anchell actually devoted only six hours in six years to the mechanical aspects of sex. He said most of the course time is spent discussing "human relations."

Humanitarian Moslem President of India Dies

Combined News Services

President Zakir Husain, who founded colleges and wrote books for India's youth, died of a heart attack Saturday after one of his personal tours of the poverty pockets he wanted eliminated. He was 72.

The predominantly Hindu nation went into mourning for its first Moslem president, merchants closing their shops and government installations lowering their flags to half staff.

Husain had completed a particularly strenuous tour of eastern India, one of the impoverished areas from which he drew strength in pushing for educational and social reforms.

All India radio interrupted its regular programming at midmorning to announce Husain's death, 10 days before he was to have celebrated the completion of the first two years of a five-year term as president.

Vice president V. V. Giri assumed the presidency until elections, within six months, to select a man to complete Husain's term.

DESTROYER HAROLD E. HOLT HEADS OUT
Named for Former Australian Prime Minister

U.S. Destroyer Named For Aussie Leader

By BUCK LANIER
Military Editor

Two thousand cheered as the Harold E. Holt, first Navy ship named after a contemporary foreign leader, was launched Saturday at Todd Shipyards, San Pedro.

In colorful ceremonies beneath sunny skies Dame Zara Bate christened America's newest destroyer escort, named for her late husband, Australia's former Prime Minister Harold E. Holt.

Australia's Counsul General and Mrs. H. Neil Truscott of San Francisco and Australian Naval Attache Commodore and Mrs. Bruce H. Loxton were the top down under officials present.

Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., principal speaker, said Prime Minister Holt "typified the strong alliance which has bound our two countries together for so long."

Holt was a staunch friend of America, Sen. Murphy said, who understood the Vetnam situation better than many Americans and will long be remembered for his dedication to peace, justice and freedom.

"If some Americans, because of contrived confusion, perceived the issues in Vietnam dimly, Harold Holt suffered from no such astigmatism," Murphy declared.

An accomplished swimmer and skindiver, Holt died on Dec. 17, 1967, while swimming at sea near Melbourne. His widow later married Jeffrey Bate, a member of parliament, with her Saturday.

The 4,000 - ton ship, sixth of a seven-ship contract held by Todd, San Pedro, is designed especially for locating and destroying enemy submarines.

Big J Due at Pier E on Monday

Families Renew Homecoming Plans for Crew

Families and friends of 1,635 men aboard the battleship USS New Jersey today are renewing plans for homecoming — interrupted last month by North Korea's downing of a Navy reconnaissance plane.

Big J will moor Monday at 10 a.m. at the Naval Station's Pier E and the day has been set aside for families and friends only.

The ship will not be open to the public until a later date, the Navy said Saturday.

"If you want to see the ship coming in, Pierpoint Landing on Pier A is a great vantage point," the spokesman said.

Big J failed to keep an April 19 arrival date when she was turned around 3½ days out of Long Beach and dispatched back to the Western Pacific.

Rear Adm. Lloyd R. Vasey, Flotilla 7 boss, has dispatched this message to the ship:

"As you return to Long Beach on the completion of a most successful deployment I wish to extend to each of you my personal congratulations for a job exceptionally well done.

"As a unit you have shown outstanding initiative and responsiveness. Individually you have displayed exemplary skill and dedication while providing accurate and timely gunfire support to U.S. and Allied troops ashore in South Vietnam.

"Free World objectives in Southeast Asia have been enhanced greatly by your outstanding support.

"Welcome home."

A MARK TWAIN HAPPENING

Buena Park Frog Jumps Its Way to Calaveras County

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

Jumping a frog isn't easy. Sometimes it decides not to jump at all. Or it goes sideways. Or backwards.

Some three dozen competitors in a jumping frog contest discovered Saturday that there are a lot of jumps between Buena Park and the world-famed Calaveras County Jumping Frog Contest.

The Buena Park extravaganza was a prelude to the Calaveras County classic immortalized by Mark Twain. It was staged at Bellis Park, and it drew competitors of all ages — with all sizes of frogs.

Some of the jumpers acted as though they had buckshot in their bellies — just as happened when gamblers "salted" a frog in the first contest more than 100 years ago.

But a beauty owned by Carl Okerlund, 9, of 6772 San Pasqual Circle, earned a trip to the Calaveras County classic. Carl's frog jumped 8 feet 11 inches, and Carl and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Okerlund, will get an expense-paid trip from the Buena Park Junior Chamber of Commerce.

It was the only top prize of the day, but trophies went to other winners.

Macario Rincon, 13, of 7434 Comanche Drive, won the teen-age division; his frog jumped 9 feet 7 inches, to take the distance record.

Mayor Dale Kroesen of Los Alamitos won the "mayor's trophy," defended this year by Mayor Jessie Davis of Buena Park, and Mrs. Betty Eikeland won the adult division.

Woman Slain, Hunt Boyfriend

An Anaheim woman was stabbed to death Saturday while neighborhood children played happily outside her home, Anaheim police said.

Police began an immediate hunt for the woman's boyfriend.

Police said Mrs. Jeannette Carolina Engstrom, 28, of 2555 Lullaby Lane, apparently was killed instantly when her assailant plunged a large butcher knife into her heart in the bathroom of her home.

Being sought is Bruce Paul Wade, 39, of 28268 W. Rome Ave., Anaheim, described as the woman's boyfriend.

Police said Wade argued with Mrs. Engstrom. They said, too, that he called the victim's sister, and then fled. The sister called police at 2:30 p.m. Saturday.

Wade fled in a 1965 black Chevrolet Caprice, according to Anaheim Police Lt. Dale Wilcox.

DESTROYER HAROLD E. HOLT HEADS OUT
-Named for Former Australian Prime Minister

U.S. Destroyer Named For Aussie Leader

By BUCK LANIER
Military Editor

Two thousand cheered as the Harold E. Holt, first Navy ship named after a contemporary foreign leader, was launched Saturday at Todd Shipyards, San Pedro.

In colorful ceremonies beneath sunny skies Dame Zara Bate christened America's newest destroyer escort, named for her late husband, Australia's former Prime Minister Harold E. Holt.

Australia's Counsul General and Mrs. H. Neil Truscott of San Francisco and Australian Naval Attache Commodore and Mrs. Bruce H. Loxton were the top down under officials present.

Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., principal speaker, said Prime Minister Holt "typified the strong alliance which has bound our two countries together for so long."

Holt was a staunch friend of America, Sen. Murphy said, who understood the Vetnam situation better than many Americans and will long be remembered for his dedication to peace, justice and freedom.

"If some Americans, because of contrived confusion, perceived the issues in Vietnam dimly, Harold Holt suffered from no such astigmatism," Murphy declared.

An accomplished swimmer and skindiver, Holt died on Dec. 17, 1967, while swimming at sea near Melbourne. His widow later married Jeffrey Bate, a member of parliament, with her Saturday.

The 4,000 - ton ship, sixth of a seven-ship contract held by Todd, San Pedro, is designed especially for locating and destroying enemy submarines.

Big J Due at Pier E on Monday

Families Renew Homecoming Plans for Crew

Families and friends of 1,635 men aboard the battleship USS New Jersey today are renewing plans for homecoming — interrupted last month by North Korea's downing of a Navy reconnaissance plane.

Big J will moor Monday at 10 a.m. at the Naval Station's Pier E and the day has been set aside for families and friends only.

The ship will not be open to the public until a later date, the Navy said Saturday.

"If you want to see the ship coming in, Pierpoint Landing on Pier A is a great vantage point," the spokesman said.

Big J failed to keep an April 19 arrival date when she was turned around 3½ days out of Long Beach and dispatched back to the Western Pacific.

Rear Adm. Lloyd R. Vasey, Flotilla 7 boss, has dispatched this message to the ship:

"As you return to Long Beach on the completion of a most successful deployment I wish to extend to each of you my personal congratulations for a job exceptionally well done.

"As a unit you have shown outstanding initiative and responsiveness. Individually you have displayed exemplary skill and dedication while providing accurate and timely gunfire support to U.S. and Allied troops ashore in South Vietnam.

"Free World objectives in Southeast Asia have been enhanced greatly by your outstanding support.

"Welcome home."

A MARK TWAIN HAPPENING

Buena Park Frog Jumps Its Way to Calaveras County

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

Jumping a frog isn't easy. Sometimes it decides not to jump at all. Or it goes sideways. Or backwards.

Some three dozen competitors in a jumping frog contest discovered Saturday that there are a lot of jumps between Buena Park and the world-famed Calaveras County Jumping Frog Contest.

The Buena Park extravaganza was a prelude to the Calaveras County classic immortalized by Mark Twain. It was staged at Bellis Park, and it drew competitors of all ages — with all sizes of frogs.

Some of the jumpers acted as though they had buckshot in their bellies — just as happened when gamblers "salted" a frog in the first contest more than 100 years ago.

But a beauty owned by Carl Okerlund, 9, of 6772 San Pasqual Circle, earned a trip to the Calaveras County classic. Carl's frog jumped 8 feet 11 inches, and Carl and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Okerlund, will get an expense-paid trip from the Buena Park Junior Chamber of Commerce.

It was the only top prize of the day, but trophies went to other winners.

Macario Rincon, 13, of 7434 Comanche Drive, won the teen-age division; his frog jumped 9 feet 7 inches, to take the distance record.

Mayor Dale Kroesen of Los Alamitos won the "mayor's trophy." defended this year by Mayor Jessie Davis of Buena Park, and Mrs. Betty Eikeland won the adult division.

Woman Slain, Hunt Boyfriend

An Anaheim woman was stabbed to death Saturday while neigbhorhood children played happily outside her home, Anaheim police said.

Police began an immediate hunt for the woman's boyfriend.

Police said Mrs. Jeannette Carolina Engstrom, 28, of 2555 Lullaby Lane, apparently was killed instantly when her assailant plunged a large butcher knife into her heart in the bathroom of her home.

Being sought is Bruce Paul Wade, 39, of 28268 W. Rome Ave., Anaheim, described as the woman's boyfriend.

Police said Wade argued with Mrs. Engstrom. They said, too, that he called the victim's sister, and then fled. The sister called police at 2:30 p.m. Saturday.

and junior high school social studies, English and foreign languages.

— New teachers recruited from out of state by some districts. This cuts into job opportunities for newly-trained teachers graduating from Southland campuses.

— In some districts, teachers already employed seem to be making fewer job changes this year.

Babbush said the "teacher Shortage" — much publicized in recent years — has been leveling off for the past two or three years.

"College teacher training programs are going to have to adjust in the 1970s to concentrate more on quality and less on quantity," he says.

Meanwhile, he fears, schoolchildren are going to be shortchanged — they'll get fewer younger teachers, who they can relate to better, and some of the best qualified new teachers may enter other professions.

Babbush and placement directors from other Southland colleges agree that teacher hiring has slumped in almost all local school districts.

* * * *

THE LONG BEACH Unified School District is hiring more than most, Babbush says, but even here one class period is being eliminated in junior high schools.

This will result in considerable monetary savings, Babbush says, but means the district will hire about 120 fewer teachers.

Long Beach school spokesmen also cite a lower teacher turnover rate and a dip in student population.

Los Angeles was planning to hire more than 3,100 new teachers, but now that a school tax measure has failed, school officials say hiring will probably be greatly reduced.

"Many of the districts we work with have no junior high or high school jobs open at all," Babbush says. "Some have even canceled their campus interviews."

* * * *

DEMAND IS STILL great for secondary teachersi in fields such as industrial arts, math and science.

And, Babbush says, job scarcity just doesn't exist for new teachers who are Mexican-American or black.

"Many districts are conducting a special hunt for them."

The outlook for new junior college teachers has been grim for years and remains grim, Babbush says. "Junior colleges can afford to be very selective and often require teaching experience or progress towards a doctorate in addition to a credential."

Jobs are available for new teachers who want to go to rural areas or out of state, Babbush says. But few do.

This is particularly true of women whose husbands have jobs in the Southland.

* * * *

"THE GIRLS have the hardest time," Babbush says. "Men usually have an easier time finding other jobs."

But the draft works a special problem for male teachers — some districts won't hire them if they're draftable and once they're hired there's no guarantee they won't be drafted.

"It's going to be a long summer helping these teachers find jobs," Babbush said. "Conditions could change, but it doesn't look good now."

'ROTC Will Cut Draft,' Says Laird

WARRENTON, Va. (UPI) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said Saturday that college students who agitate against ROTC and military recruiting on campuses are only extending the life of the draft.

"If we are going to move toward an all-volunteer armed forces and less reliance on the draft, we must have recruiting and military training on the campuses and throughout the civilian community," he told a news conference.

"Those who are so vehement against recruiting and training on the campuses can't have it both ways," he said. "This is an inconsistence that has bothered me very much."

Laird was asked if he thought it would become necessary to make college training of future officers mandatory. "I don't think that will be necessary," he said.

Four More Slain by 'Death Squad'

SAO PAULO, Brazil (UPI — Four more bullet riddled victims of Sao Paulo's Death Squad have been found near the small village of Itapecerica da Serra.

Police tentatively identified them as underworld characters with criminal records.

This brings to 43 the number of known victims of the Sao Paulo organization believed composed of off-duty policemen and former soldiers. Police officials deny any knowledge of the group's composition and attributed the killings to gangland rivalry.

School Vandalism Costs Hit $200 Million Yearly

ASSOCIATED PRESS

The cost of vandalism in the nation's school systems is increasing sharply, with total annual losses now estimated up to $200 million.

An Associated Press survey shows that malicious destruction — ranging from arson to window breaking — increased in several major cities between 1967 and 1968, sometimes by 25 or 30 per cent. Estimates for the current school year indicate still more increases.

Window breakage alone in New York City cost $1.2 million last year—$200,000 more than in 1967 and almost one-fourth of the city's estimated $5 million total loss to vandalism in 1968.

In Philadelphia, the nation's largest city, losses from "schoolboy mischief" were set at $1 million, up from an estimated $750,000 in 1967. Washington, D.C., estimated $400,000 in losses last year, up from $250,000. Milwaukee, Wis., estimated $335,000, up from $214,000.

There was no indication whether the figures included damages done by rampaging pupils during campus rebellions. But several schools have reported dissident pupils destroying property while trying to disrupt schools.

One such incident, in New York City, resulted in $4,500 in damages when 200 pupils rampaged through a building, breaking chairs and tables.

To stop it all, officials are turning to more expensive police devices. They are manning the hallways with electronic sensors, hiring private detectives, staffing the school at night.

The National Education Association estimates this is costing up to $200 million annually. Broken down by cities, the bill for 1968 destruction cost taxpayers in Newark, N.J., $3.34 for each pupil. In Buston the cost was $2.30 a pupil; in Cleveland, $2.26, and in Los Angeles, 68 cents.

Sierra Club President Quits Under Pressure

New York Times Service

SAN FRANCISCO — David Brower, controversial executive director of the Sierra Club, the nation's most militant conservation group, resigned under pressure Saturday and announced he was forming a new national organization to push conservation causes primarily "on the legislative level."

The spearhead of such recent successful efforts as campaigns against more Grand Canyon dams and in favor of a National Redwoods Park ended his 16-year stewardship of the organiazation at its annual directors' meeting.

The move followed the decisive defeat last month, in nationwide balloting among the club's 78,000 members, of a Brower-led slate of candidates for vacancies on the 15-member board of directors.

The athletic, gray-haired executive, 54, had irked a board majority and many conservative members by his aggressive, free-handed leadership of the organization from its erstwhile role as a parochial hiking group into a large-scale campaign of publishing, advertising and politicking for conservation.

His position remained to be filled later in the two-day directors' meeting being held here.

Directors elected as club president for the next two years Phillip Berry, 32, an Oakland lawyer who was the nominee of the board's dominant conservative bloc.

CIVIL RIGHTS LEADER'S VIEW

Don't Give In to Blacks—Rustin

By BRIAN SULLIVAN

NEW YORK (AP)— Bayard Rustin, long-time Negro civil rights leader, says colleges are taking a cheap way out by agreeing to Negro students' demands for black studies programs.

Instead, he says, colleges need to develop massive — but expensive — remedial projects to improve the scholastic level of Negro students and to enable them to make their academic way.

In a question-and-answer session with a reporter on Negro unrest on the campus, Rustin deplored violent protests and said it was humiliating to see college administrators and faculty submitting to Negroes with guns.

* * * *

THEY WOULDN'T submit to "Ku Klux Klansmen coming on campus with guns," he said, and suggested this indicated the college officials didn't really consider Negroes equal to whites.

"They say, well, it's only Negroes behaving that way. They wouldn't tolerate this from white students," he said.

Rustin, who organized the March on Washington in 1963 and now is executive director of the A. Philip Randolph Institute, said Negroes had made substantial gains in educational opportunities.

"It is therefore all the more tragic that instead of taking advantage of the opportunity for learning, they are reducing the situation to a series of courses that cannot really prepare them for the kind of life they have to live."

The interview ranged over a spectrum of Rustin's views on campus problems, Negro militancy, and faculty reactions and concessions.

The questions and answers:

Q. How do you view the efforts to establish separate black studies departments?

A. I am very much opposed to separation under any circumstances and I'm also opposed to black studies. And I believe it is a grievous mistake that there has not been the study of Negro culture history, but I'm opposed to it as black studies, because I believe there should be the integration of Negro contributions into the American historical forces, into the economic forces, and into other forces. For example, I don't think you should study the American Revolution without studying Crispus Attucks.

But in this country, to try to separate the black experience from the American experience, is ridiculous.

Q. Do you think that the college militants, black or white, have a valid protest?

A. I think there are valid reasons for protesting. I think administrations have been insensitive to the needs of college students. I think that in a society where we have war, racism and poverty, young people are justified in protesting. But, I'm not interested in protest that is going to strengthen rightist forces in this country. Nor am I interested in infantile leftism.

That's to say protest that is so outlandish that instead of causing the society to move forward, it, in fact, causes the society to move in the opposite direction. Now, my criticism is not of protest per se, my criticism is of particular types of protest. I could name a few — first of all I'm very much opposed to the use of violence as a means of protest — the appearance of youngsters on campuses carrying guns and attempting to get decisions while holding guns at the heads of the administrators is first of all very bad for the students. Because they are being systematically taught in college that social change takes place at the point of a gun. This is not true. And they're going to be very much disabused.

Second, it is humiliating to me to see college professors and presidents so filled with guilt and so masochistic as to submit while they would not submit to Ku Klux Klanists coming on the campus with guns. Why do they submit to Negroes? Because they really do not believe as yet that Negroes are equal. They say, "Well, that's only Negroes behaving that way." They wouldn't tolerate this from white students.

Secondly, I'm against what I call putschism, brown shirtism. Any time 20 or 30 people seize buildings, which must be used by thousands of people, they're being putschists. In addition, they're being elitist, that is to say, they think they have the right to make the decisions for thousands of people where no vote has been taken. Who are they that they should do this? So I say violence, elitism, putschism have no place in social protest in this nation and certainly not on the campus.

Q. What kind of demonstration would you lead on a campus in a protest you consider justified?

A. I believe people have the right to withdraw. They have the right to go on strike, but not to interfere with other people. They have the right to refuse to go to classes, they have the right to carry on any form of nonviolent protest.

Q. Do you think Negroes have made significant gains in the past few years, within the education system?

A. I think there have been a number of important gains. The U.S. government expects that by 1975 there will be 400,000 Negro college students. The fact is in 1969 there are over 400,000. We are way ahead of schedule — largely because of the education bill which President Johnson introduced and Congress passed. There are many many campuses where only three or four years ago Negro students did not have an opportunity to attend. Now they have been offered scholarships, or special cases have been made to encourage Negro students to come on campus.

It is therefore all the more tragic that, instead of taking advantage of the opportunity for learning, they are reducing the situation to a series of courses that cannot really prepare them for the kind of life which they have to live when they get out of college. Now here again I'm all for studying in an integrated manner. Just as I'm for integrating whatever contributions Jews and Irish and Italians made into our whole history, I'm for integrating the contributions of blacks. However in the long run, what one has to come out of college with, is a degree which prepares one to do something significant in the society. We need doctors, we need lawyers, we need people with degrees in economics and sociology and a myriad number of things. People ought to use their time in college really to specialize and to be able to make a contribution.

Q. There were reports that black students at Cornell armed themselves from fear of an imminent attack by some white students. You mentioned psychological stress that the ghetto student is under when he is dropped into an Ivy League school. How are you going to resolve this?

A. That is a police matter or, better still, a matter for the university to take care of. If the university cannot take care of it, then it's a police matter. I think there's been brutality to Negroes for centuries. We have been able to mount a concern about brutality to Negroes precisely because people were fairly convinced that Negroes were not engaged in aggressive violence. It's going to be increasingly difficult now when people see pictures of young Negroes carrying guns for us to get attention called to that degree of brutality which is still left in our society. People will get the notion that Negroes are engaged in aggressive violence and, therefore, that the brutality may be justified. So I think these people are doing us a grave disservice with these guns. And I simply do not believe that there are organized groups of white college students on campus, at this point, which are prepared to attack Negro students with violence and guns. If Negro students continue to carry guns, that may very well happen later.

Q. How are we going to resolve this, given the feelings of the black militants?

A. The college administrations will have to be honest with themselves, and first of all, believe that Negroes are equal to other people and treat them accordingly. If Negroes and any other students engage in this kind of behavior, something must be done to prevent it.

And I think the college administration needs to stop playing young Negroes cheap. Now everybody knows that the ghetto schools and high schools are basically inferior. Efforts to get more youngsters into college and through college is a good idea, but it must not be done in a cheap way.

Now, it's very inexpensive to give in to the demands of Negro students for black studies. But it's also ineffective. What colleges should be doing is spending hundreds of thousands of dollars for remedial work, bringing the students' mathematics up, bringing their reading rate up, bringing their ability to write a decent sentence to the fore, developing their thinking processes through courses which are useful. But of course this will require a much larger teaching staff, many more hours of teaching.

Let me put it another way. There is no Italian history of the United States. There's no Jewish history, there's no black history, there is American history and whatever role Jews, Italians and blacks have played in it ought to be written as it occurs and integrated into the whole picture. Therefore, you have American history. The problem is we have not yet had American history, because blacks have been excluded. You don't deal with that problem of American history by doing the opposite thing now.

Q. What do you think of Harvard allowing Negro students to have a voice in selecting teachers for the Afro-American studies department?

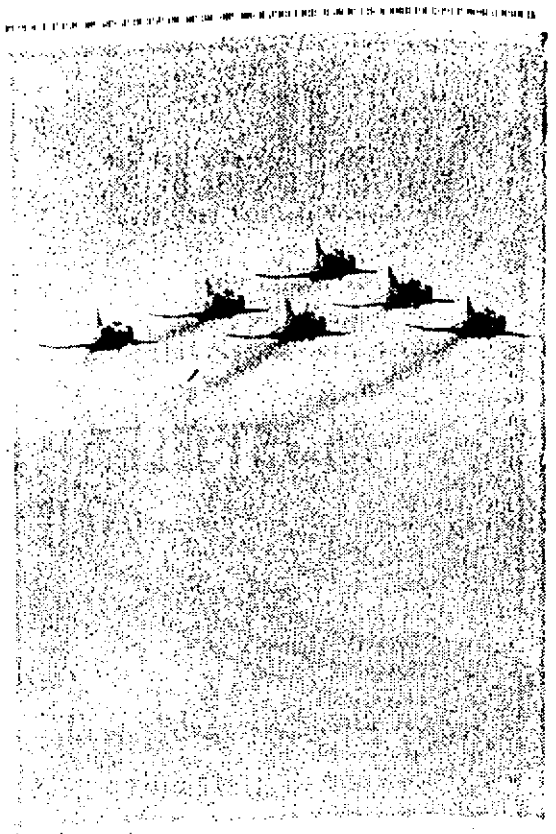

A. I am all for students being consulted on all courses given at the university; I am not for students having the right to hire and fire teachers. Furthermore, why would Harvard give this right to black students for black courses, but not to a total student body, for the hiring and firing of professors?

Q. Can you answer that question?

A. I think it's a form of not caring, of a reverse racism. They are saying, "Okay, We face a problem where Negro students are churning things up on the campus. We don't give a damn about them, really, so if they want to take courses which are fairly useless let's give them the courses."

Q. In summary, what's the root of the campus problems?

A. One of the problems is that young Negroes are facing the shock of integration. They have been partially integrated, but there is a distance in their minds between what they aspire to be and what the conditions they have lived under makes it now possible for them to be. The conflict between this aspiration and ability creates many internal confusions. Therefore one is often tempted, instead of fighting that conflict through, to revert to one's self, to look inward . . . So that if I set up courses myself I'll set them up so I can pass them. And that, you see, is what I mean when I say there should be lots of money and energy spent in helping the young Negro over that psychological barrier. There's only one way to do that. That is to give him enough tutoring, enough remedial work so that when he does finish college, he will finish on a par with all other student.

Roman Aqueduct Again Runs Dry

ROME (AP) — Once again most of Rome was waterless Saturday because of trouble in its main aqueduct. Hundreds of thousands of Romans woke up to find merely a trickle of water flowing from taps.

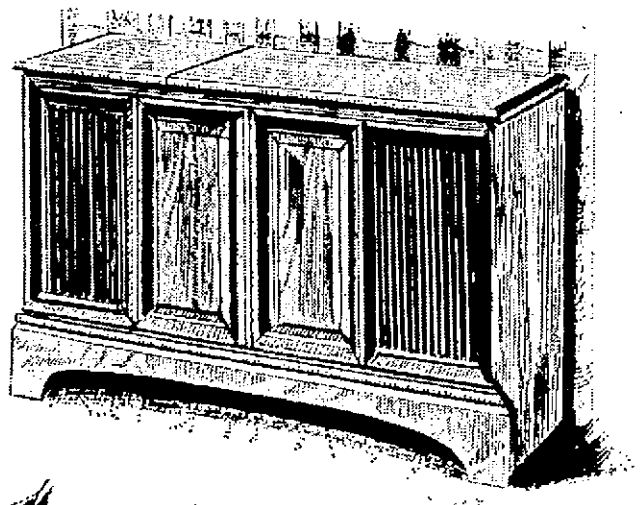

The new water shortage came 10 days after half of Rome was left dry because of work carried out by the municipal aqueduct agency to improve the supply system. Today's trouble was caused by a failure in the valve system at the Peschiera aqueduct north of Rome, the agency said.

CIVIL RIGHTS LEADER'S VIEW

Don't Give In to Blacks—Rustin

By BRIAN SULLIVAN

NEW YORK (AP)— Bayard Rustin, long-time Negro civil rights leader, says colleges are taking a cheap way out by agreeing to Negro students' demands for black studies programs.

Instead, he says, colleges need to develop massive — but expensive — remedial projects to improve the scholastic level of Negro students and to enable them to make their academic way.

In a question-and-answer session with a reporter on Negro unrest on the campus, Rustin deplored violent protests and said it was humiliating to see college administrators and faculty submitting to Negroes with guns.

* * * *

THEY WOULDN'T submit to "Ku Klux Klansmen coming on campus with guns," he said, and suggested this indicated the college officials didn't really consider Negroes equal to whites.

"They say, well, it's only Negroes behaving that way. They wouldn't tolerate this from white students," he said.

Rustin, who organized the March on Washington in 1963 and now is executive director of the A. Philip Randolph Institute, said Negroes had made substantial gains in educational opportunities.

"It is therefore all the more tragic that instead of taking advantage of the opportunity for learning, they are reducing the situation to a series of courses that cannot really prepare them for the kind of life they have to live."

The interview ranged over a spectrum of Rustin's views on campus problems, Negro militancy, and faculty reactions and concessions.

The questions and answers:

Q. How do you view the efforts to establish separate black studies departments?

A. I am very much opposed to separation under any circumstances and I'm also opposed to black studies. And I believe it is a grievous mistake that there has not been the study of Negro culture history, but I'm opposed to it as black studies, because I believe there should be the integration of Negro contributions into the American historical forces, into the economic forces, and into other forces. For example, I don't think you should study the American Revolution without studying Crispus Attucks.

But in this country, to try to separate the black experience from the American experience, is ridiculous.

Q. Do you think that the college militants, black or white, have a valid protest?

A. I think there are valid reasons for protesting. I think administrations have been insensitive to the needs of college students. I think that in a society where we have war, racism and poverty, young people are justified in protesting. But, I'm not interested in protest that is going to strengthen rightist forces in this country. Nor am I interested in infantile leftism.

That's to say protest that is so outlandish that instead of causing the society to move forward, it, in fact, causes the society to move in the opposite direction. Now, my criticism is not of protest per se, my criticism is of particular types of protest. I could name a few — first of all I'm very much opposed to the use of violence as a means of protest — the appearance of youngsters on campuses carrying guns and attempting to get decisions while holding guns at the heads of the administrators is first of all very bad for the students. Because they are being systematically taught in college that social change takes place at the point of a gun. This is not true. And they're going to be very much disabused.

Second, it is humiliating to me to see college professors and presidents so filled with guilt and so masochistic as to submit while they would not submit to Ku Klux Klanists coming on the campus with guns. Why do they submit to Negroes? Because they really do not believe as yet that Negroes are equal. They say, "Well, that's only Negroes behaving that way." They wouldn't tolerate this from white students.

Secondly, I'm against what I call putschism, brown shirtism. Any time 20 or 30 people seize buildings, which must be used by thousands of people, they're being putschists. In addition, they're being elitist, that is to say, they think they have the right to make the decisions for thousands of people where no vote has been taken. Who are they that they should do this? So I say violence, elitism, putschism have no place in social protest in this nation and certainly not on the campus.

Q. What kind of demonstration would you lead on a campus in a protest you consider justified?

A. I believe people have the right to withdraw. They have the right to go on strike, but not to interfere with other people. They have the right to refuse to go to classes, they have the right to carry on any form of nonviolent protest.

Q. Do you think Negroes have made significant gains in the past few years, within the education system?

A. I think there have been a number of important gains. The U.S. government expects that by 1975 there will be 400,000 Negro college students. The fact is in 1969 there are over 400,000. She explained that normally a limb designed for one person cannot be used by another, because of the way the socket fits on the stump. However, parts of the limb could be used, so that the cost of a complete limb would not be as high for the amputee. She promised to try to find a needy amputee for you.

Pueblo of Long Beach?

Q. I've been looking into the history of California missions, and would like to know if Long Beach was ever a Spanish pueblo under the jurisdiction of a particular mission. R. H., Long Beach.

A. The land upon which Long Beach now stands was once under the control of Mission San Gabriel Archangel, fourth of the 21 missions built along the El Camino Real. The mission was founded Sept. 8, 1771 on the present site of San Gabriel Boulevard and Lincoln Avenue but was moved to its present site in San Gabriel in 1776. The mission claimed the rolling grasslands studded with cottonwoods and willows extending from San Gabriel south to the sea, but the claim was one of religious territory, not legal ownership. The land was marked out as the mission's "spiritual conquest." Although the early days of the mission were unsettled by a military-clerical dispute, Mission San Gabriel attained its highest prosperity about 1810. But by 1846 the mission's authority had depleted to the point where the last Mexican governor of California sold its lands and the buildings went into disrepair. The buildings were not restored until after the American take-over of the land. There was no settlement big enough to be a pueblo in Spanish California days in the area now occupied by Long Beach.

Gas Tank Blast Kills 4 in Crash

WALNUT CREEK (UPI) — Four San Jose residents were killed Saturday when the gas tank of the car in which they were riding exploded in a rear-end collision.

Three other persons were seriously burned and the driver of the second car involved was also hospitalized.

Contra Costa sheriff's deputies identified the dead as Mrs. Jo Ann Ferreira, 22, San Jose; Shelly Ferreira, 3; Charles Staten, and Tony Lynn Perry, 19.

Jackson Sees OK for Missile System

NEWPORT NEWS (AP) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., a staunch advocate of military preparedness, forecast Saturday the safeguard antiballistic missile system eventually will be accepted by Congress.

Jackson was here for the christening of the American Mail. The 605-foot super cargo liner is the last of five $81 million merchant vessels built at Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co. for American Mail Lines, Ltd.

County Health Unit Seeks Funds for Control of TB

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The County Health Department has requested $279,779 for tuberculosis control in a new budget submitted to the Board of Supervisors.

According to county health officer Dr. Gerald A. Heidbreder, "We asked for additional funds because there are 1,300 new active TB cases in the county, and in addition some 800 TB patients already confined. All of these cases are hospitalized."

Dr. Heidbreder said besides those hospitalized, there are nearly 5,400 high risk TB cases which could be treated with pills in outpatient clinics.

The health officer said that if the 5,400 high risk individuals are not treated, at least 60 of those cases will progress into contagious tuberculosis.

He added that additional funds to increase present staff and supplies would avert a resurgence of tuberculosis.

Although the early days of the mission were unsettled by a military-clerical dispute, Mission San Gabriel attained its highest prosperity about 1810. But by 1846 the mission's authority had depleted to the point where the last Mexican governor of California sold its lands and the buildings went into disrepair. The buildings were not restored until after the American take-over of the land. There was no settlement big enough to be a pueblo in Spanish California days in the area now occupied by Long Beach.

Gas Tank Blast Kills 4 in Crash

WALNUT CREEK (UPI) — Four San Jose residents were killed Saturday when the gas tank of the car in which they were riding exploded in a rear-end collision.

Three other persons were seriously burned and the driver of the second car involved was also hospitalized.

Contra Costa sheriff's deputies identified the dead as Mrs. Jo Ann Ferreira, 22, San Jose; Shelly Ferreira, 3; Charles Staten, and Tony Lynn Perry, 19.

Jackson Sees OK for Missile System

NEWPORT NEWS (AP) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., a staunch advocate of military preparedness, forecast Saturday the safeguard antiballistic missile system eventually will be accepted by Congress.

Jackson was here for the christening of the American Mail. The 605-foot super cargo liner is the last of five $81 million merchant vessels built at Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co. for American Mail Lines, Ltd.

County Health Unit Seeks Funds for Control of TB

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The County Health Department has requested $279,779 for tuberculosis control in a new budget submitted to the Board of Supervisors.

According to county health officer Dr. Gerald A. Heidbreder, "We asked for additional funds because there are 1,300 new active TB cases in the county, and in addition some 800 TB patients already confined. All of these cases are hospitalized."

Dr. Heidbreder said besides those hospitalized, there are nearly 5,400 high risk TB cases which could be treated with pills in outpatient clinics.

The health officer said that if the 5,400 high risk individuals are not treated, at least 60 of those cases will progress into contagious tuberculosis.

He added that additional funds to increase present staff and supplies would avert a resurgence of tuberculosis.

After 30 Days, Bullets, Quake, Sign Sitter Returns to Earth

By BILL HOMER
Staff Writer

Acey Jane, who for 30 days braved bullets, an earthquake and other elements while perched atop a 58-foot-high ballroom sign in Norwalk, descended to earth Saturday and was greeted by cheering youngsters, two bands and the mayor of the city.

"I went up on the sign because it was there: it was a challenge," the 24-year-old Floridan said of his month-long stint on top of the Golden West Ballroom sign at 12400 Studebaker Road.

"But I'll never do it again," said Acey, grinning like a recently-returned astronaut.

The former apprentice newspaper pressman scurried down a rope exactly 30 days and a couple of hours after making his ascent to the sign in a boom crane carriage provided by electrical sign firm, Heath and Company.

If fate had guided Acey's adventure just a little differently, he wouldn't have been around to receive his hero's welcome.

A rifleman took a shot at Acey's sign early Friday from a tavern parking lot a half-block south of the ballroom.

The shot narrowly missed the rugged sign-sitter, who brought down a shaving from a 7-millimeter rifle slug Saturday.

* * * *

DETECTIVES at the Norwalk Sheriff's Station said Roy Duane Gipson, 28, of Artesia, was arrested outside the Tip Toe Inn at about 2:30 a.m. Friday and booked on suspicion of assault with intent to commit murder.

A foreign-model, 7-millimeter rifle was seized upon Gipson's capture, detectives said.

Gipson was being held at the sheriff's Los Angeles central jail pending preliminary hearing into the assault charge, detectives reported.

"I don't know whether he was shooting at me or at the sign," Acey told the Independent, Press-Telegram upon his "return" to earth Saturday.

* * * *

BUT I DO know that people who do things like that make it rough on folks who like to do legitimate target shooting or hunting."

Word of Acey's impending descent spread like wildfire among neighborhood youngsters early Saturday.

By 1 p.m. it seemed like a couple of million boys and girls were on hand, but the actual number was more like 150.

They arrived by every means possible — on foot, in cars, on bicycles, on unicycles — and were dressed in every style imaginable.

Such garments as "Sock It To Me" tee shirts and derby hats were seen as the youngsters cheered their local "Pied Piper" prior to his rope descent.

Norwalk Mayor Pete Fogerty was on hand to welcome Acey back to the ground.

* * * *

"WHAT'S THE first thing you're going to do when you get down?," the mayor asked Acey before the would-be deep sea diver made his gymnastically-styled landing.

"I'm going to take a shower," replied Acey, who seemed a little dizzy and wobbly when he landed.

"Just think what a nice thing it would be if we could have more of this," Mayor Fogerty said of Acey's sign-fest.

"I'm in favor of a return to goldfish swallowing on our campuses and an end to window smashing," he said.

Harry Barnes, of Rockview Milk Farms, Downey, thinks Acey is "good people."

* * * *

"I WENT UP on the sign one day and chatted with him for a while," Barnes said. "He's a real nice guy."

Daniel Holthaus Fastens Newspaper to a Drop Line From Acey on Top of Sign

Barnes had delivered four quarts of milk, four pints of orange juice and 2½ pints of yogurt (preferably strawberry or cherry) to Acey each day.

And Acey kept up with events by reading the Independent, Press-Telegram after securing a subscription from carrier-boy Daniel Holthaus, 12, a Lakeside Junior High School student.

During his last day aboard the revolving sign, Acey was entertained by the "Curt Hespe and the Corporation" band, which will be on hand at the ballroom tonight for a "Welcome Back to Earth, Acey" dance.

BUT FOUR neighborhood boys upstaged the Corporation for a time at Acey's Saturday re-entry celebration. They turned their loudspeakers to "real loud" and held their own rock music concert. The second group is known as "The Infected Light."

Olen Thibedeau, who owns the Golden West, smiled broadly in the company of a Norwalk Boosters Club delegation as Acey got to the ground.

"Welcome back," greeted Thibedeau, who later said he is seeking a shapely female to duplicate Acey's feat once the weather gets warmer.

* * * *

ONCE ON the ground, Acey led his fans to the ballroom's doorway. He had survived sunshine and rain, last Monday's earthquake ("I didn't even know we'd had one until someone told me about it'), and a rifle attack.

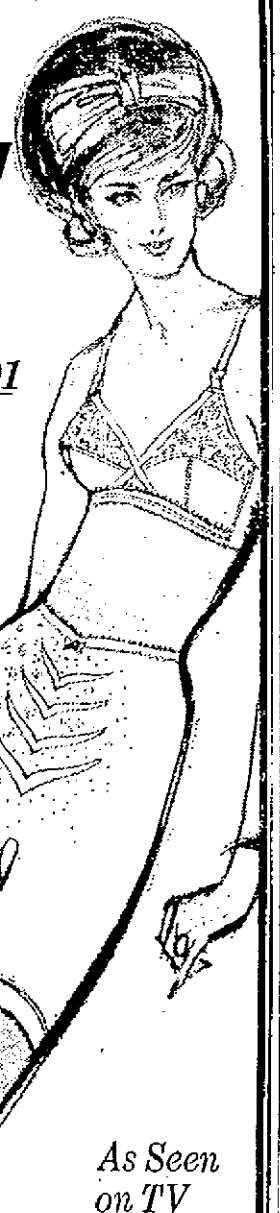

"I think I'll stick around Norwalk for a while," Acey said. "I've made a lot of friends since coming here two months ago."

"I am going to get a job and pay my way through diving school. Then, who knows where I'll wind up next."

"Day after day—alone on the sign—the man with the neon grin. He's spending all of his time whirling above the ballroom while the dancers they twirl down below . . ." (From "The Fool on the Sign," by Curt Hespe and the Corporation).

THE BLACK DAHLIA

Murder Unsolved After 22 Years

hotel where Elizabeth (Betty) Short was living. She came into the store that day in January, 1947, while Long Beach Police Sgt. Edward C. Boynton was finishing his lunch and morning newspaper.

She started a prattling conversation with him about "the gruesome stuff they publish in newspapers nowadays."

A few minutes later, as Boynton was folding his paper to leave, the girl spotted someone across the store she knew and dashed over to talk.

Boynton recalls that people — especially men — turned to look as the girl, wearing a tight-fitting black skirt and a sheer blouse, passed.

People — especially men — always turned to look when Betty Short went by.

"Pretty as a flower!" a man seated at the counter murmured in awe.

A middle aged woman near him, who greeted the girl somewhat curtly by name as she entered the store, nodded.

* * * *

"A BLACK DAHLIA," she said. "That's the flower for that one."

The incident, Boynton remembers, took place only a short time before Elizabeth Short moved out of her hotel to join and marry her "right man" — who, unknown to her, had departed for the East Coast where he was being separated from the service.

On the morning of Jan. 15, 1947, a woman and her five-year-old daughter were on their way to a grocery store in a section of Los Angeles now known as Crenshaw Center. The little girl, chanting hop-skip rhymes, capered off the sidewalk and a short way into a vacant lot overgrown with weeds.

* * * *

SHE STOPPED suddenly, pointed, and said: "Look mommy — what's that?"

Her mother looked in frozen terror for a moment, then screamed. She grabbed her daughter and ran for a telephone.

It was a woman's nude body — severed expertly at the waist.

Slashes and stabs had made a thing of horror out of both sections of the body. But worst of all was the face.

Death leered at the world in a grisly caricature of mirth from two slashes ripped from each side of the mouth to the ear.

The Black Dahlia was no longer beautiful.

Autopsy surgeons later supplied more to the bizarre picture. The knife slashes around the breasts and other parts of the body had been made over a period of two, perhaps three days of slow torture before death.

Rope burns on the wrists and ankles indicated the victim had been spread-eagled during the agony.

There were other more heinous mutilations.

* * * *

AFTER DEATH finally released the woman from torture, the killer drained the blood from the body, scrubbed it and shampooed the hair.

In the hectic days that followed, more than 50 detectives and at least that many newspapermen worked frantically to trace the girl's movements between the time she left Long Beach and the hour her mutilated body was found in the vacant southwest Los Angeles lot. She was still Elizabeth Short, identified by fingerprints taken when she was picked up as a juvenile bar-frequenter.

A Los Angeles reporter, sent here to check on Long Beach angles in the case, emerged from a police captain's office just as two officers in the hall were scanning newspaper stories and pictures on the slaying.

"This is the girl Boynton says they call 'The Black Dahlia' down around the hotel where she lived here," one of them was saying.

ELIZABETH SHORT
Unforgotten Case

B.L. (Bevo) Means dashed back into the captain's office, grabbed the phone, and called his desk at the old Los Angeles Herald-Express.

* * * *

"HEY, DOWN here they call this babe 'The Black Dahlia,' he told his city editor.

Unknown to Means, a dozen other reporters from various area papers were just entering the door he left open when he ran in.

"They scattered for phones like buckshot from a sawed-off twelve-gauge," Means ruefully said later.

And The Black Dahlia Murder Case was born.

Ten days after the body was found, a Los Angeles newspaper that had been headlining the story daily received a string-wrapped carton anonymously through the mail. It contained Elizabeth Short's purse, her Social Security card, her birth certificate and an address book — all apparently mailed by a coolly arrogant killer.

The address book contained about 200 names. Almost all were men.

* * * *

THERE WAS never a shortage of leads or suspects in the case of The Black Dahlia. Besides those turned up through slow and painstaking work on the address book, a total of 41 persons came forward and "confessed" the murder.

But each hot lead turned cold after thorough investigation, and each "confession" fell apart under close scrutiny. And the strange thing about it was that so many of the leads and even a few of the "confessions" looked good at first.

One man, an Army corporal, told authorities at Fort Dix he "felt sure" he committed the murder while in Los Angeles just before reporting in at Dix — but he was mentally blacked out for days before and after the killing, he said.

He said he had known Elizabeth Short for five years and had frequent dates with her.

The captain in charge of criminal investigation at the Post said bloodstains found on the soldier's uniform were the same type as that of the slain girl. An identification mark on the right hip of the Black Dahlia, described by the corporal, was verified by Los Angeles police.

"I am definitely convinced that this man is the murderer," the captain said.

But Los Angeles officers, after exhaustive check, were just as convinced the soldier couldn't have done it.

* * * *

ANOTHER confessor told police in New York City he and "a red-haired sailor named James" killed the girl, and he cut her in half.

Police here said he had "puzzling knowledge of the case," but still, he couldn't have been implicated.

Still another man told Denver police he was with Miss Short and "a red-haired sailor named Jack," in Los Angeles on Jan. 14, early in the evening. Later, he said, "Jack" came to his hotel with his

"A BLACK DAHLIA," she said. "That's the flower for that one."

The incident, Boynton remembers, took place only a short time before Elizabeth Short moved out of her hotel to join and marry her "right man" — who, unknown to her, had departed for the East Coast where he was being separated from the service.

On the morning of Jan. 15, 1947, a woman and her five-year-old daughter were on their way to a grocery store in a section of Los Angeles now known as Crenshaw Center. The little girl, chanting hop-skip rhymes, capered off the sidewalk and a short way into a vacant lot overgrown with weeds.

* * * *

SHE STOPPED suddenly, pointed, and said: "Look mommy — what's that?"

Her mother looked in frozen terror for a moment, then screamed. She grabbed her daughter and ran for a telephone.

It was a woman's nude body — severed expertly at the waist.

Slashes and stabs had made a thing of horror out of both sections of the body. But worst of all was the face.

Death leered at the world in a grisly caricature of mirth from two slashes ripped from each side of the mouth to the ear.

The Black Dahlia was no longer beautiful.

Autopsy surgeons later supplied more to the bizarre picture. The knife slashes around the breasts and other parts of the body had been made over a period of two, perhaps three days of slow torture before death.

Rope burns on the wrists and ankles indicated the victim had been spread-eagled during the agony.

There were other more heinous mutilations.

* * * *

AFTER DEATH finally released the woman from torture, the killer drained the blood from the body, scrubbed it and shampooed the hair.

In the hectic days that followed, more than 50 detectives and at least that many newspapermen worked frantically to trace the girl's movements between the time she left Long Beach and the hour her mutilated body was found in the vacant southwest Los Angeles lot. She was still Elizabeth Short, identified by fingerprints taken when she was picked up as a juvenile bar-frequenter.

A Los Angeles reporter, sent here to check on Long Beach angles in the case, emerged from a police captain's office just as two officers in the hall were scanning newspaper stories and pictures on the slaying.

"This is the girl Boynton says they call 'The Black Dahlia' down around the hotel where she lived here," one of them was saying.

ELIZABETH SHORT
Unforgotten Case

B.L. (Bevo) Means dashed back into the captain's office, grabbed the phone, and called his desk at the old Los Angeles Herald-Express.

* * * *

"HEY, DOWN here they call this babe 'The Black Dahlia,' he told his city editor.

Unknown to Means, a dozen other reporters from various area papers were just entering the door he left open when he ran in.

"They scattered for phones like buckshot from a sawed-off twelve-gauge," Means ruefully said later.

And The Black Dahlia Murder Case was born.

Ten days after the body was found, a Los Angeles newspaper that had been headlining the story daily received a string-wrapped carton anonymously through the mail. It contained Elizabeth Short's purse, her Social Security card, her birth certificate and an address book — all apparently mailed by a coolly arrogant killer.

The address book contained about 200 names. Almost all were men.

* * * *

THERE WAS never a shortage of leads or suspects in the case of The Black Dahlia. Besides those turned up through slow and painstaking work on the address book, a total of 41 persons came forward and "confessed" the murder.

But each hot lead turned cold after thorough investigation, and each "confession" fell apart under close scrutiny. And the strange thing about it was that so many of the leads and even a few of the "confessions" looked good at first.

One man, an Army corporal, told authorities at Fort Dix he "felt sure" he committed the murder while in Los Angeles just before reporting in at Dix — but he was mentally blacked out for days before and after the killing, he said.

He said he had known Elizabeth Short for five years and had frequent dates with her.

The captain in charge of criminal investigation at the Post said bloodstains found on the soldier's uniform were the same type as that of the slain girl. An identification mark on the right hip of the Black Dahlia, described by the corporal, was verified by Los Angeles police.

"I am definitely convinced that this man is the murderer," the captain said.

But Los Angeles officers, after exhaustive check, were just as convinced the soldier couldn't have done it.

* * * *

ANOTHER confessor told police in New York City he and "a red-haired sailor named James" killed the girl, and he cut her in half.

Police here said he had "puzzling knowledge of the case," but still, he couldn't have been implicated.

Still another man told Denver police he was with Miss Short and "a red-haired sailor named Jack," in Los Angeles on Jan. 14, early in the evening. Later, he said, "Jack" came to his hotel with his uniform "a mess of blood" and said he was "in a jam."

The man in Denver said he loaned the sailor a suit and helped him dispose of the uniform.

But this one didn't prove out, either.

In their own investigation, police uncovered many leads that indicated a solution was imminent.

One of the best suspects, for a while, was a red-haired Huntington Park salesman who finally admitted being at a motel in San Diego with The Black Dahlia and driving her back to Los Angeles Jan. 10, five days before the body was found.

But he was cleared through the combined results of a lie detector test and a shockproof alibi given him by his wife — somewhat unwillingly — after she learned of the motel episode.

* * * *

THAT'S THE WAY each lead went. One officer declared in frustration he was convinced "that either 15 men killed Elizabeth Short all at once, or nobody killed her at all."

Another, similarly frustrated, said:

"If I ever meet a guy who says he never met or never heard of The Black Dahlia, I'm going to make the pinch right there — and I'll probably have the right man."

Then the rumors started. Some of them were ugly, involving an alleged "payoff" to Los Angeles authorities.

In one version it was by underworld sources connected with vice traffic in Hollywood and the Sunset Strip, both areas in the orbit of Elizabeth Short in her party-girl role.

In another version it was by an influential private citizen or citizens, law-abiding but indiscreet, who wanted no further investigation that might link them with The Black Dahlia in any way.

These went further than the rumor stage when a veteran Los Angeles police detective, L. K. Waggoner, went before a county grand jury and charged he was "suddenly taken off the case" without explanation when working on the Long Beach angle "and on the verge" of vital discoveries.

"This case could have been solved if we had been allowed to carry on our investigation . . . We were making remarkable progress," he declared.

* * * *

IN THE END, however, the grand jury decided it could find no evidence of "payoff," or even of any deliberate foot-dragging in the case.

If black was the color of the Dahlia, was red the color of the killer?

An engrossing common factor — "the red-haired man" — runs through many grotesque angles in the case.

The red-haired Huntington Park salesman was a hot suspect partly because a Railway Express clerk at Union Station identified him as the red-haired man accompanying Miss Short when he saw her at the station a few days before the body was found.

The salesman denied this and the lie detector bore him out, but the clerk apparently did see a red-haired man.

The man who confessed in New York described "a red-haired sailor named James" as his companion in the killing.

The man who went to police in Denver — who had no prior contact with the man in New York — named "a red-haired sailor named Jack."

* * * *

WAGGONER, in his testimony before the grand jury, bluntly named a man he said he believed to be either guilty or involved — and that man was described as "sandy, reddish-haired."

But red-haired men are plentiful, and this lead — if it is a lead — wouldn't be apt to roll up any more mileage than all past ones.

That's the way the case stands after 22 years. But it is not closed.

Murder cases are never closed until solved; like income tax violation, there's no statute of limitation.

The murderer of The Black Dahlia, red-haired or not, may be alive today. He — or she — may be living in Long Beach, living a quiet and respectable life, a life above suspicion.

But it can't be a life above fear, because the files won't close.

And he — or she — must live with the knowledge that the very next rap at the door may be a call to the accounting which will finally close the books on the Case of The Black Dahlia.

keep an ABM defense against Peking. But multiheaded offensive missiles will be negotiable.

The administration's stem-to-stern nuclear arms review will be finished soon and presented to the National Security Council.

Nixon will decide on the U.S. positions for the bargaining with the Soviets. Then Washington will consult with the Western allies and simultaneously work out with Moscow the time and procedures for the talks expected to start by early summer.

FRANCE AFTER DE GAULLE:—The administration has made a study of the French outlook following president Charles de Gaulle's stepdown. The situation is relatively fluid, but most think former Premier Georges Pompidou, a longtime De Gaulle disciple, will succeed the old general.

In any event Nixon's trip to Europe established a base for close and friendly relations with France and the United States is prepared to continue this way with whatever new government emerges in Paris.

On Vietnam, the White House sources went into more detail than before on what was portrayed as Nixon's firm intent — despite calls for U.S. troop withdrawals — to stick to a carefully planned strategy of initiatives for a peace guaranteeing no less than South Vietnam's freedom.

They said U.S. negotiators can be reasonably open-minded about whether a mutual U.S.-North Vietnamese force withdrawal could be staged through an undercover arrangement, such as the understanding preceding President Lyndon B. Johnson's bomb-halt order last fall, or through a publicly announced accord.

But any agreement must be explicit, with sufficient guarantees to assure against violations, they said. They indicated other countries interested in Vietnam also would be involved in such a settlement.

* * * *

SIMILAR conditions were set forth by Johnson's secretary of state, Dean Rusk. The Nixon administration sources did not refer to this but did say the agreement must not leave room for debate afterward as to whether there was an understanding. Such a debate occurred after the enemy flouted Johnson's bomb-halt terms.

The White House picture of some progress at Paris talks was outlined this way:

No progress can be claimed in straight-out negotiating. However, Hanoi uses indirect, elliptical tactics in which each move is preceded by ambiguous probes.

Hippies Buy Land in New Mexico

By JOY COOK

TAOS, N.M. (UPI) — Hundreds of flower children, turned off by big city life, are becoming the largest group of new land owners in the mountain towns and villages of northern New Mexico.

The newcomers, numbering between 500 and 1,000, live in abandoned adobe houses or teepees and ride the dusty roads in gaudily decorated buses. And they buy land.

Mrs. Virginia Anderson, a realtor with the northern New Mexico Real Estate Exchange in Taos, said they have purchased about $500,000 worth of land, mostly farm land in outlying regions.

* * * *

ANOTHER realtor said, "we don't sell to them. We don't rent to them." But added they have made large purchases from other realtors.

The influx of the new residents with a different mode of life has created a strong impact on the remote villages. Many in towns like Truchas and Taos, where the tourist trade is a strong part of the economy, resent the newcomers.

The Taos Chamber of Commerce, prominent merchants and dozens of others have insisted they provide a disruptive influence on their communities, "corrupting the children" and eroding the economy.

"I hate the hippies," Ben Barela of Dixon said. "They run around here naked. They have no respect for the children. That is what I hate. They smoke marijuana, they break into the old houses to live. We don't want them here."

"We have worked hard to build up our communities and we don't want those hippies coming in and tearing them down by disregarding our laws," a Taos realtor said.

* * * *

IN SOME of the smaller villages, however, the flower children have received a friendlier welcome.

"These people want to live peacefully, to become self-supporting, raise the food they need for themselves, open some small shops," Mrs. Anderson said. "They are pastoral people. They don't want trouble. They plan to stay around here because of the climate and the isolation."

A greater conflict arises between the newcomers and the older, more sedate Spanish-American families who have lived in the northern counties for generations, struggling to retain their land.

The older families are trapped by poverty and find it difficult to even participate in such programs as food stamps because of the initial expense.

Into this community came the new breed of youth, with their loosely woven communal life, a liberal outlook on sex and drugs and their disdain for material possessions.

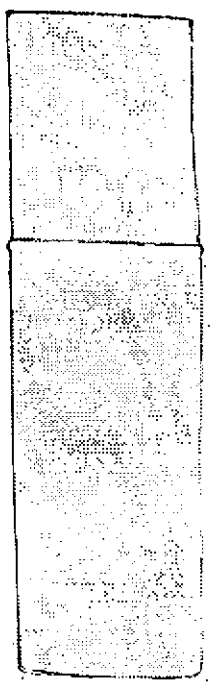

* * * *

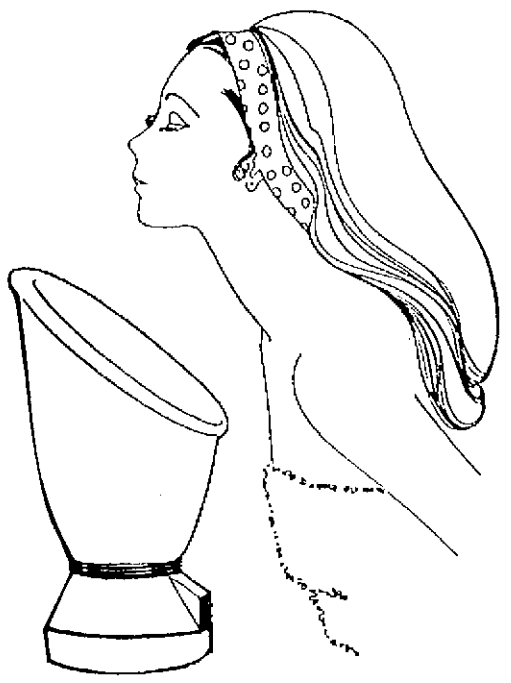

THEY CHOOSE TO live in poverty, yet they obviously have cash resources — cash for purchase of land, cash for thousands of dollars in bail bonds and cash for more than 100 communal groups to participate easily in the food stamp program.

But the newcomers say they are here to stay.

"We just want to get away from the cities," said Denise Lassau, a member of a communal group of about 15 men, women and children farming two acres of land near Dixon. "If you've ever lived in smog in California or been crushed by people in New York, you know why we're here. It's beautiful.

CITIES BID FOR GRAND SHOWCASE IN NATION'S BICENTENNIAL FETE

From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — The nation's 200th anniversary is still seven years away, but at least three cities have already put in their bid for the grand showcase.

The American Revolution Bicentennial Commission, which opened its office just four months ago, already has letters of intent from Boston, Philadelphia and Washington, said the commission.

An international exposition is planned. It could be patterned after Disneyland, or the Montreal World's Fair.

Boston and Philadelphia, which already have started the search for financial backing, are planning world's fair-type facilities.

And Washington planners are contemplating a "City Reborn" approach.

The commission said that it will ask other cities, which might be similarly interested, for ideas on how the 200th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence can be observed in a grand scale.

So far, there are no federal funds for activities such as expositions, which could cost in the vicinity of $4 billion.

But the commission, created by Congress in 1966, is already in business. It has an office at 811 Vermont Ave., Washington, and a staff of two, Richard W. Barrett and Lynn Carroll.

The commission's chairman is Carlisle H. Humelsine, president of Colonial Williamsburg. Members are appointed by the President, the president of the Senate and by the speaker of the House.

Carroll said that since the office was opened Jan. 1, several cities, states, communities and organizations have shown their interest.

Ten states, for instance already have bicentennial commissions. And at least four cities — New Orleans, St. Augustine, Tampa and Gary — have sent inquiries.

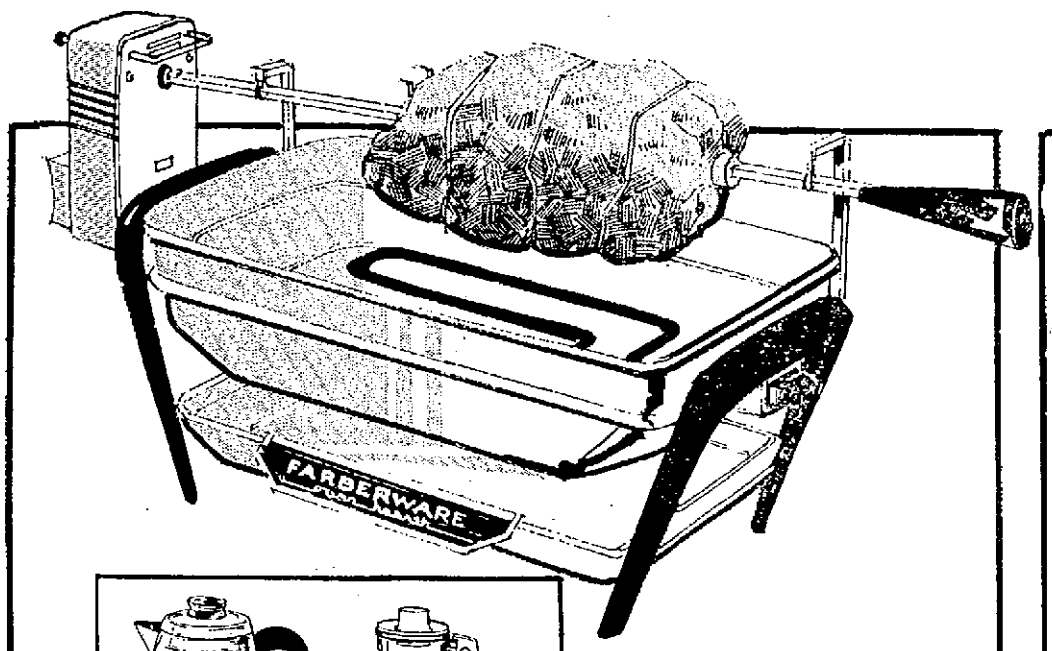

The commission at this point is seeking ideas fromm organizations and individuals. Later, it will formulate, for presentation to Congress and the President, a master plan.

CITIES BID FOR GRAND SHOWCASE IN NATION'S BICENTENNIAL FETE

From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — The nation's 200th anniversary is still seven years away, but at least three cities have already put in their bid for the grand showcase.

The American Revolution Bicentennial Commission, which opened its office just four months ago, already has letters of intent from Boston, Philadelphia and Washington, said the commission.

An international exposition is planned. It could be patterned after Disneyland, or the Montreal World's Fair.

DESPITE RUMORS

Group to Reelect Murphy Insists He Will Run Again

WASHINGTON — A powerful, broad-based campaign organization is quietly being built for the reelection next year of Sen. George Murphy, it was learned Saturday.

The scope of the organization strongly tends to discredit persistent reports that the California Republican will not seek a second term.

Without fanfare, Murphy has appointed a campaign chairman, San Marino attorney Robert Meyer, who in turn is enlisting party activists of varied philosophy to the senator's banner.

Meyer, 45, and long a toiler for GOP causes, says the senator's campaign warchest already is well into six figures and promises to grow under a 50 man interim finance committee.

* * * *

MEMBERS of this committee include men of such diverse viewpoints as Leonard Firestone, Holmes Tuttle, Taft Schreiber, Henry Salvatori and Asa V. Call, all businessmen long prominent in party affairs.

Although most of the organization thus far has centered in Southern California, Meyer said that Arch Munson, a San Francisco GOP leader, has agreed to serve as Bay Area chairman.

Meyer has called a meeting Saturday of all Republican county chairman to begin organizing at the grass roots for Murphy.

Other organizational leaders appointed thus far include Mrs. Margaret Brock of Los Angeles, head of the women's finance section, and Los Angeles banker Robert Volk, head of a young executives' unit.

* * * *

THE CAMPAIGN'S first full-time paid staffer is Mrs. Lena Washington of Los Angeles, who is operating from a desk in Meyer's office. She was executive secretary of the State Republican Committee when Murphy was its chairman in 1954.

"We are cranking up a thorough, well organized, vigorous campaign for the senator," said Meyer. "He'll have broad financial and volunteer backing."

The organization already is planning well ahead, he indicated, with groundwork well laid for a large fund raising affair for Murphy at the Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles on Oct. 15. Later functions are more tentatively slated for San Diego, Fresno and San Francisco.

Meyer scoffed at rumors that the organization really is a shadow campaign for another candidate, particularly HEW secretary Robert Finch, who would like to be a Senator.

* * * *

"MURPHY is healthy and doing something he loves," said Meyer. "Finch himself said he believes it when Murphy said he's going to run again."

"Sure, there are some of us who've been close to Finch, and obviously I'm one," said Meyer, who was on the steering committee of Finch's 1966 campaign for the lieutenant-governorship.

But he pointed out that there are a number of other, more conservative, members of the organization who could be expected to bolt should it suddenly become a vehicle for Finch.

"The last thing he, Finch would do is something Machiavellian like that. "It's just not in his character," declared Meyer, recalling that Finch was chairman of Murphy's 1964 campaign.

* * * *

RUMORS that Murphy would stand aside for Finch also tend to be discounted by these other factors:

— A source close to Gov. Ronald Reagan has said that "under no circumstances" would the governor appoint Finch should Murphy stand down, since Finch-Reagan coolness has become glacial over the past six months.

— William Stover, a long-time friend of Finch but an architect of the senator's 1964 victory and other key staffers have chosen to stay with Murphy despite opportunities for posts in the Nixon Administration.

— After "making do" without a press secretary for nearly a year, Murphy four months ago hired Charles Keely, a young, bright California newspaperman, for the job.

The Senator, appearing in vigorous health except for the hoarseness left by a throat cancer operation 2½ years ago, has been deeply involved in planning for the campaign and has stepped up his schedule of appearances in the state.

Liner Tries to Repair Fire Damage

PANAMA CITY (UPI) — Repairmen tried Saturday to fix the generators aboard the French passenger liner Tahitien. The vessel, hit by fire Friday, lay idle 600 miles southwest of the Canal Zone.

The flames damaged the engine room, the boiler room and passenger quarters on the port side. Passengers who could not be accommodated in other cabins spent the night on deck.

A French sister ship, the Marquisen, will take the Tahitien in tow Monday and return to Balboa if the shipboard repairs are not successful.

GOV. ROCKEFELLER
Latin American Envoy

Rockefeller Ready for Latin Tour

Goal to Unify Inter-American Diplomatic Ties

New York Times Service

NEW YORK — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller announced Saturday his mission to Latin America for President Nixon will begin next Sunday in Mexico City.

The Mexican capital will be the starting point for the first of four trips that will take Rockefeller to all the American Republics except Cuba in a span of seven weeks.

Rockefeller said when the mission is completed in early July, he would deliver a report to the President containing recommendations on policy based on his consultations with public and private leaders in 23 countries.

* * * *

CONSULTATIONS will be on "the development of common goals and joint programs of action which will strengthen Western Hemisphere unity and accelerate the pace of economic and social development," Rockefeller said.

The governor's trips come at a moment when leaders of Latin America's 250 million people are uncertain and somewhat apprehensive over the Nixon Administration's undefined plans for inter-American cooperation, which were expanded greatly during this decade by President John Kennedy's Alliance for Progress.

Nixon has described the record of the Alliance as "disconcerting" because, despite substantial increases in U.S. aid, the region's economic growth rate in relation to rapid population increases has been lower than it was during the 1950's.

* * * *

ROCKEFELLER said he had no program to propose and would make no promises of commitments on behalf of Nixon. "We want to hear the Latin Americans' views and ideas," the governor said.

The longest stay in any country for Rockefeller will be three days in Brazil. The schedule for the four trips is:

May 11-19. Mexico, Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Panama. During this trip, a meeting with the five Central American foreign ministers is scheduled to be held in Tegucigalpa, the Honduran capital.

May 27-June 4. Colombia, Ecuador, Peru, Bolivia, Trinidad and Tobago.

June 16-25. Brazil, Paraguay, Uruguay, Argentina and Chile.

Intruding Mouse Gets Self Potted

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE (UPI) — Police prowling through the attic of a house in search of narcotics reported Saturday they found a potted mouse.

Officers said the rodent apparently had eaten into a bag of seeds believed to be marijuana.

The mouse lay on his back, his eyes glassy, oblivious to the humans. His only response was to wiggle his feet when his stomach was tickled.

L. B. Fines, Bonds Top $1.7 Million

Long before banks open, two Long Beach police officers are busy banking the police department's day's proceeds.

During 1968 the two men, Clifton D. Sherwood and James H. Johnson, handled a total of $403,210 in cash and bail bonds worth $1,321,600.

Johnson and Sherwood report for duty at 6:30 a.m. and get the money and bonds from the safe in the booking sergeant's office.

The days "take" is then compared to the receipts issued to those who have bailed out prisoners arrested during the previous 24 hours.

While they are busy balancing the books, two other court liason officers, Warren D. Trogden and Jack D. Holbert, are preparing the paper work necessary to secure complaints against those arrested.

After Sherwood and Johnson have balanced the books, they then check with the jail and take the prisoners who are scheduled to appear in court. This they do via the jail elevator and a tunnel connecting the police station to a jail elevator in the court building. The prisoners are never seen by the public.

The money and bail bonds are deposited in the accounting office in the County Building.

Forfeited bail and money received by police to pay fines of those who are found guilty, are ultimately divided by the city, county and state treasuries.

During court sessions, the court liason men keep tab on the prisoners and record the disposition of their charges. They then march the prisoners back to the police station.

Those who have paid their fines in court or who are found innocent are then released. The others returned to their cells.

During 1968 the court liason men handled over 7,200 prisoners and $1,724,810 in cash or bonds — without a mistake.

Leon A. Panetta: The Young Man in HEW's Hot Spot

By BAXTER OMOHUNDRO
From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Leon E. Panetta has a quick, hearty laugh that doesn't seem to go with his current role in life: The young man on HEW's hot spot.

Panetta's sense of humor has served him well during his past month's shakedown as director of the Health, Education and Welfare Department's office of civil rights.

Arriving late for an appointment at his office, he explains he walked nearly two miles from Capitol Hill after a table-thumping session with the staff of a Southern congressman.

"I needed that walk to work off the effects," Panetta chuckles as he settles into a chair. The office is Spartan; its main aesthetic adornment is a photograph of a weather-beaten privy that is the only sanitary accomodation at a rural Negro school.

ACTUALLY, explains Panetta, most of the heat he has been getting on the racial integration of schools — the chief mission of his office — has been coming more from Northerners than from Southerners.

This is symptomatic of the fact that Panetta's assumption of the job came at a time when HEW is beginning to tackle the problem of defacto segregation in the North as well as continuing to fight de jure segregation in the South.

"The Northerners now are where the Southerners were 10 years ago, calling up and demanding 'what the hell' when we move against a school district," Panetta explains.

The 30-year-old California lawyer says this reflects a widespread belief that the 1964 civil rights act was directed solely at the South. This feeling grew because enforcement has been directed southward, where desegregation created by local laws is comparatively easy to prove.

"But the law doesn't say this," contends Panetta. "It applies equally to segregation created by changes in attendance zones or teacher assignments, for example."

Northern desegregation has moved foreward more recently, in part, because of the more extensive investigation needed to prove defacto desegregation. Often it involves a close study of attendance zone changes for a decade or more.

dale, Mich., the first northern district cited for a cut-off of federal funds, HEW claims that the school system built a school in the black area of the community for the primary purpose of avoiding integrated schools in the surrounding white neighborhoods.

Both north and south, Panetta and his staff contend with practical as well as legal problems.

For example, in a district that's 80 per cent black, an absolute pairing could result in a ratio of 7 or 8 Negro students to each white student. The probable result would be formation of white private schools that would impose an added financial burden upon everyone without solving the problem.

Increasing desegregation activity in the north has, for Panetta, compounded a problem created by Southern expectations that the Nixon administration would relax the integration guidelines promulgated by the last administration.

Panetta, who reports directly to HEW Secretary Robert Finch, is firm in maintaining the integrity of the guidelines. The waiting room outside his office has a generous supply of a 24-page booklet explaining them.

Panetta says that he and Finch studied the guidelines and concluded that they must remain as they are unless subject to change by new legislation or court rulings. To change them would risk a losing court action against the department, Panetta believes.

HE IS CONVINCED that the guidelines are grossly misunderstood by Southerners and many northern conservatives, including Republicans high in congress and close to the president, who don't grasp that they are merely implementations of the law.

Panetta fondly recalls a politician who called on him to raise hob about the guidelines. Panetta finally referred him to the booklet in the anteroom. The complainer popped back in minutes later to comment in amazement: "Why, there's nothing wrong in that little book."

The problems of school desegration have been harmed by what Panetta calls "naivete" in other departments. Those expecting a relaxation of the school guidelines were encouraged when the Defense Department awarded contracts to southern looming mills accused of discriminatory hiring practices.

"They didn't realize the overall effect of that action," Panetta declares.

PANETTA SAYS he took the job only after Finch guaranteed that he would have a direct line of communication to the secretary. Predecessors had to go through assistant secretaries. Panetta therefore wears a second hat as a special assistant to Finch, the capacity in which he was hired nearly four months ago.

This gives Panetta much more weight in dealing with desegregation problems and, as Finch's lightning rod, relieves the Secretary of considerable pressure for his time.

The March 28 decision to appoint Panetta to the post, and as a direct extension of Finch, was hastened by a flap over a memorandum reportedly authored by HEW's conservative general counsel designate, Robert Mardian of Pasadena, Calif.

The Mardian memorandum was purported to advocate a relaxation of the guidelines. Stories on it suggested that it might become HEW policy, whereas Panetta said it merely was one of a number of memoranda requested by Finch on the subject.

Raised on the quiet Monterey Peninsula and educated at the serene University of Santa Clara, Panetta recalls that he had no sharp awareness of the civil rights problem until he served as an Army officer in the South.

His active interest was generated three years ago when he became an aide to Sen. Thomas Kuchel, R-Calif., and was assigned to handle civil rights casework and legislation. He joined HEW was defeated and left the Senate last year.

In announcing his appointment, Finch described Panetta as a man with a commitment to "strong, fair and rational enforcement" of civil rights laws.

Panetta doesn't deny this description of his dedication, but he's fully aware of its practical consequences:

"My pants are made of asbestos since I took this job."

Psychiatrist Analyzes Infamous Killer

BOSTON STRANGLER: WHY HE DID IT

(Editor's Note: Excerpted from "Casebook of a Crime Psychiatrist" by Dr. James A. Brussel, this is the first of five installments to "The Boston Strangler." Passages from the book, quoted almost verbatim, were used in defense testimony in the Sirhan case.)

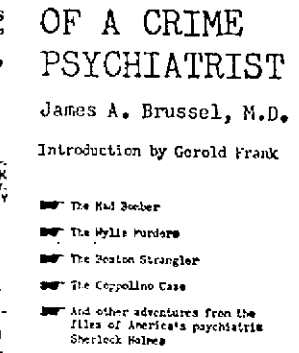

Reprinted with the permission of Bernard Geis Associates from CASEBOOK OF A CRIME PSYCHIATRIST by Dr. James A. Brussel. Copyright 1968 by James A. Brussel.

By J. A. BRUSSEL, M.D.

On June 14, 1962, 55-year-old Mrs. Anna Slesers was found dead in her apartment in a shabby Back Bay area of Boston. She had been hit on the head with a blunt instrument and strangled with the cord from her housecoat. The cord had been knotted tightly, then arranged with obvious care to look like a little-girl bow. Mrs. Slesers was lying on her back in the living room. She was wearing only a housecoat. It was carefully folded away from her body. She was carefully positioned in such a way, so that she was grotesquely exposed. There were bruises and other evidence that she had been sexually manipulated. Curiously, her facial expression was serene. The little apartment had apparently been ransacked in a peculiarly neat way.

Two weeks later, Mrs. Nina Nichols, a 68-year-old widow and retired hospital physiotherapist, was found dead in her apartment. She had been strangled with her stockings and manipulated with some instrument. Her apartment had been less neatly searched than had Anna Slesers'.

Two days after that, the body of Mrs. Helen Blake, 65, a retired nurse, was found in her apartment.

COVER of widely sold casebook from which passages were taken and used in Sirhan murder trial.

She had died on the same day as Nina Nichols. She had been strangled with a stocking, and a brassiere had been tied around her neck loosely and looped into a meticulously designed bow. Her face was peaceful. Her apartment, too, had been searched but not robbed.

It now seemed likely to the police that one man had committed all three murders.

In quick succession two more elderly women were added to the list. One was Mrs. Ida Irga, 75, evidently strangled by hand and left with a pillowcase tied neatly around her neck. The fifth was Jane Sullivan, a nurse in her middle sixties, strangled with her own stockings. The last two women, like the first three, were found in grotesquely exposed position. The apartments had been searched, but nothing valuable was missing.

These five women were all killed within a space of two months, between mid-June and Mid-August, 1962. Then the killings stopped.

The Boston Advertiser published an appeal: "Come to us for help . . . You don't want to kill again . . ."

But if the Boston Strangler read this appeal, he didn't respond. Suddenly, in early December, a new and equally shocking murder took place, this time the victim was not an elderly woman but a girl of twenty: Sophie Clark, a Negro student. She was found in a Back Bay apartment she shared with two other girls, strangled with her stockings. She was nude except for an open housecoat. She lay in the same position as the others. Her killer had attempted to have intercourse with her. The apartment had been searched.

* * * *

NOW INVESTIGATORS split into two camps with opposing theories about Sophie Clark's death. One group held that Sophie was the Boston Strangler's sixth victim. The other group held that this new murder was the work of an entirely different man.

And, while the theories were being discussed, the Second Strangler (as some had begun calling him) added new atrocities to his list. On December 13, 1962, another career girl, 23-year-old Patricia Bissette, was found strangled with her stockings in her Back Bay apartment. A blouse was looped around her neck and tied in a bow. Her face was tranquil, as though she were peacefully sleeping.

Next came Beverly Samans, 23, found dead in her apartment in Cambridge. Beverly had been killed by stabbing. Stockings, lace, bordered handkerchiefs, and a gay scarf had been arranged in an imaginative pattern about her neck. When the medical examiner removed these decorations, he found several lethally deep stab wounds in her throat. There were also about a dozen shallower stabs in one breast, and there were bite marks on the other breast, the abdomen and the thighs. Beverly's body was arranged in the undignified posture that police had come to associate with both Stranglers, if indeed there were two.

The fourth victim on the "Second Strangler's" list was a blond, strikingly attractive divorcee, Mrs. Evelyn Corbin. Her manner of death was much like all others, but in her case the sexual assault seemed especially wild and violent.

On November 23, 1963 he killed another career girl in her twenties, Joann Graff. She was found in her apartment strangled with stockings, gagged with underwear, decorated with bows and covered with bite marks.

On January 4, 1964, the Second Strangler performed his sixth murder. It was by all odds the wildest, most depraved crime he had ever perpetrated.

The victim was 19-year-old Mary Sullivan. Her two apartment roommates found her propped up on a bed, strangled with a stocking. Gaily colored scarves were tied in bows around her neck, hiding the stocking. In other respects this crime was the most ghastly yet.

This was the terrible story John Bottomly told at that first meeting of our Medical - Psychiatric Committee.

* * * *

"I THINK WE'RE dealing with one man," I said. "The apparent differences in M.O., I believe, results from changes that have been going on in this man. Over the two-year period during which he has been committing these murders, he has gone through a series of upheavals — or, to put it another way, a single progressive upheaval. What has happened to him, in two words, is instant maturity. In this two-year period, he has suddenly grown, psychosexually, from infancy to puberty to manhood. This came about, of course, in the most horrible way possible. He had to commit these murders to achieve this growth. It was the only way he knew to solve his problems, find himself sexually, and become a grown man among men."

"Consider the steady change in the type of sexual assault." The first five victims, the older women, had been a type of sexual molestation that might be expected of a small boy. A small boy covets his mother's love, is curious about her body and, by association, the bodies of women in general. Given the opportunity and a powerful enough urge, he would poke at a woman's genitalia with his fingers or an instrument. He would not perform coitus. He wouldn't know how — and, even if he thought he did, the attempt would be a failure.

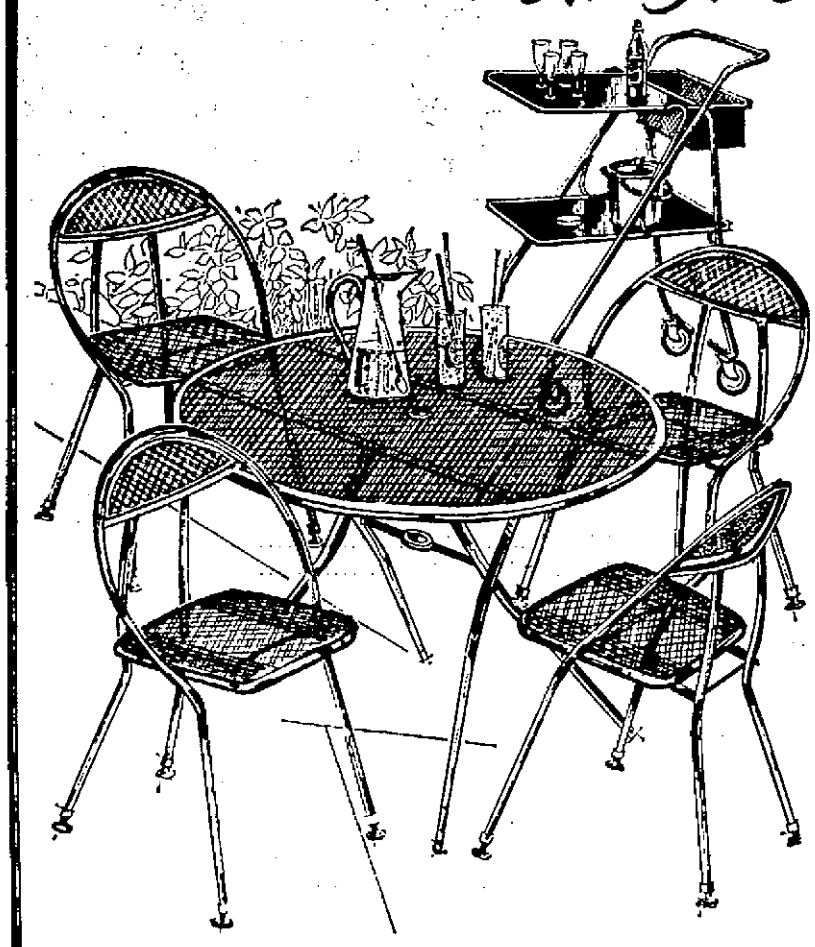

The Stangler's action with the older women, were precisely those of a small boy. The fact that these were older women seemed to lend credence to the idea. In these five unfortunate victims, the Strangler had seen his mother. He was angry with her wanted to punish her for something she had done or not done. Blindly angry, he punished five surrogate mothers. Then, still seeking love, he performed an infantile version of the adult sex act. Finally, he searched each surrogate mother's apartment for exactly the same reason he poked at the body: a vague, inarticulate, but powerful desire for intimate knowledge, a wish to share secrets with the loved mother.

"By killing and manipulating five older women, he discharged his anger at his mother and also satisfied his small boy's

Psychiatrist Analyzes Infamous Killer

BOSTON STRANGLER: WHY HE DID IT

(Editor's Note: Excerpted from "Casebook of a Crime Psychiatrist" by Dr. James A. Brussel, this is the first of five installments to "The Boston Strangler." Passages from the book, quoted almost verbatim, were used in defense testimony in the Sirhan case.)

By J. A. BRUSSEL, M.D.

On June 14, 1962, 55-year-old Mrs. Anna Slesers was found dead in her apartment in a shabby Back Bay area of Boston. She had been hit on the head with a blunt instrument and strangled with the cord from her housecoat. The cord had been knotted tightly, then arranged with obvious care to look like a little-girl bow. Mrs. Slesers was lying on her back in the living room. She was wearing only a housecoat. It was carefully folded away from her body. She was carefully positioned in such a way, so that she was grotesquely exposed. There were bruises and other evidence that she had been sexually manipulated. Curiously, her facial expression was serene. The little apartment had apparently been ransacked in a peculiarly neat way.

Two weeks later, Mrs. Nina Nichols, a 68-year-old widow and retired hospital physiotherapist, was found dead in her apartment. She had been strangled with her stockings and manipulated with some instrument. Her apartment had been less neatly searched than had Anna Slesers'.

Two days after that, the body of Mrs. Helen Blake, 65, a retired nurse, was found in her apartment.

Psychiatrist Analyzes Infamous Boston Strangler

curiosity about her. In this way, he got over his infantile hangup over his mother. Then, after a four-month hiatus, he turned his attention to younger women and girls. He was now in a state resembling puberty. He attempted intercourse with his new victims. It was not a full, adult kind of intercourse, but a half-potent, immature kind. The victims, were almost certainly unconscious or dead at the time.

Both his sexual desire and his desire to punish grew stronger, less inhibited, as he went from one victims to the next. The first of his young victims, Sophie Clark, was simply strangled, and possibly raped. The next several had bite marks on their bodies. The third, fourth and fifth had underwear stuffed into their mouths — not to gag them, for there was no indication they had been conscious and struggling at the time, but rather as an added indignity. The last one, Mary Sullivan, was subjected to the final and complete indignity. The Strangler had said, symbolically, I throw my sex in your face.

He's a schizophrenic, paranoid type. A person of this type is most likely to have an "athletic habitus." This man has muscular power. He strangles his victims so powerfully that they apparently black out instantly.

"One question I ask myself is: how does this man slip in and out of apartment buildings without being noticed? He's what people describe as an 'average man.' He's a fader-into-the-background. Add this to the fact that he's a very cautious man — never leaves fingerprints or any other clues — and you get a picture of a neat, clean, tidy individual.

This man is obsessed by his relationship to the opposite sex; he wants women to be attracted to him instead of rejecting him. I see him as a man who tends his hair lovingly. He probably has a mane of hair the average girl would envy."

"One more thing," I said, "I don't think he'll be caught by ordinary detection."

"Meaning what, doctor?"

"He'll be found eventually, but this will happen because he has voluntarily told his story. You see . . . you see, I think he has finished."

"Finished?"

"Yes. He's been seeking two things: to grow up sexually, and to avenge himself for his mother's rejection of him or whatever caused his hangup. I believe he has succeeded on both counts."

I think Mary Sullivan may turn out to be his last victim. I think he has, in a way, "cured" himself of his overtly sexual difficulties — though not of his other emotional problems. From now on, he'll get his sexual satisfaction from conscious women, in a more or less normal fashion.

* * * *

OVER THE NEXT several months, through the summer and fall of 1964, the people and police of Boston waited anxiously for another strangling. There were no more.

Meanwhile, the police were busy with the usual daily parade of petty criminals. One offender who caused a lot of trouble in and around Boston that summer and fall was an apparently insatiable sex-seeker who came to be called the Green Man. The name came from his manner of dress: green coveralls, green sunglasses, sometimes green work gloves. Over a period of a few months, more than a hundred women complained to the police about him. He would come to the door of an apartment or suburban house, claim to be a meter reader or repairman, and be invited inside. His clean-cut look and engaging, boyish grin put women at ease. But, once inside, if it turned out that the woman was alone, he would pull out a knife and force her to submit to a long, lascivious ritual.

In November that year, a young Cambridge housewife who was victimized by the Green Man kept her wits about her and studied his face with care as he bent over her. She described him to a police sketch artist. The sketched face was compared to photographs of known sex offenders. Several photographs resembled the sketch, and the housewife was asked to look at these. She picked one out instantly. This, she said, was positively the face of the Green Man.

It was the face of one Albert DeSalvo, a man in his early thirties. Back in 1961, DeSalvo had been arrested in Cambridge for a less serious sexual odyssey. Throughout 1960 and 1961 he had been posing as a scout for a modeling agency. He would call on college girls and young women, identify himself, and ask permission to take their measurements. Many were gullible enough to submit. He would measure them from bust to ankles, feel their calves and thighs, mumble about bone structure. Then he would go away, never to be heard from again, and the women would gradually realize that they'd been had. The Measuring Man, as he was called, was caught in 1961 and served slightly less than a year in jail. Psychiatrists diagnosed him as a sociopath or psychopath.

He was released in the spring of 1962.

This same pathetic figure, it now turned out, was the Green Man of 1964. DeSalvo was married and lived with his wife in the nearby suburban town of Malden. A sergeant telephoned DeSalvo at this home and asked if he'd mind coming to the police station the following day to answer some questions.

"About what?" asked DeSalvo.

"Just come down here."

"No! I want to know what it's about."

"It's about assaults on some women," said the sergeant.

DeSalvo then said a strange thing: "Thank God! I've been stopped!"

Albert DeSalvo, the Measuring Man, the Green Man, ended at Bridgewater State Hospital and, every now and then, he dropped peculiar hints to other inmates odd remarks suggesting that he was somebody more important than the Green Man.

Sometime in late 1965, John Bottomly became very much interested in this once obscure inmate at Bridgewater. He was fascinated by DeSalvo's resemblance to my projected image of the Strangler.

DeSalvo was married — which I had considered unlikely for the Strangler. But on other points he was my image in the flesh.

In Febuary, 1966, John Bottomly phoned me at my office in New York.

"You said there was only one Strangler," said Bottomly, "and you told us what kind of man he'd be, and you told us how he'd be caught.

"I guess I did," I said.

"Well," said Bottomly, "we've got your man."

I didn't know that I was soon to meet Albert DeSalvo in person.

NEXT: The Boston Strangler is identified.

China Film Blasts Russ 'New Czars'

HONG KONG (UPI) — The film was called "Anti-China Atrocities of the New Czars" and it was Peking's latest propaganda slap at the Russians over their recent border dispute.

A 63-minute movie, it opened Saturday in six Communist-owned theaters in Hong Kong and one in Macao.

Tributes to Chinese Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung introduce the movie. Then a narrator announces that "before Nikita Khrushchev came to power, the Chinese and Russian people were very friendly and there were no border disputes."

Then he told how more than one million square miles of Chinese territory East of the Ussuri River were seized by Czarist Russia in the 1850s.

Shot on location along the disputed river border, the film also showed Soviet gunboats, tanks, armored cars, helicopters and soldiers "intruding into Chinese territory to carry out provocations" this March.

It termed the March 2 fighting on the frozen Damansky Island in the Ussuri as "a serious armed clash," then ended with a major anti-Soviet demonstration interspersed with portraits of Mao.

Inspector Falls, Dies Under Scraper

NEWHALL (UPI) — Richard Hotchkiss, 61, was crushed to death when he lost his footing and fell under the wheels of an industrial scraper traveling at about 2 miles per hour at a dam project site here.

The Highway Patrol said Hatchkiss, an inspector for the Department of Water Resources, was checking the grade on a fill project when the accident occurred Friday.

Salons Declare War on Germs

WASHINGTNN (UPI) — Two Democratic congressmen will hold a news conference Tuesday at which they say they will offer evidence that some automatic washing machines contaminate the clothes they are supposed to clean.

Also contributing to the alleged bacteria contamination, say the lawmakers, are cold water laundry detergents which their manufacturers claim "germ-proof" clothes.

Reps. John Dingell, Mich., and James C. Corman, Calif., said in a statement:

"The press conference will deal with the contamination by pathogens and other bacteria of clothing laundered in conventional automatic washing machines. This has been found by the United States Department of Agriculture to result in the spread of bacterial infection."

* * * *

DINGELL AND CORMAN blamed the problem on "faulty design of washing machines" and the advertising claims by the cold water detergent manufacturers.

At the news conference, the congressmen said, they will show photographic blowups of bacterial growths, diagrams of washing machine design and examples of deceptive advertising.

They also will comment on "the gravity of the situation and announce steps they are taking to bring about corrective action and draw public attention to the problem.

Dingell is chairman and Corman is a member of a House small business subcommittee on regulatory agencies. They indicated the subcommittee would pursue the matter.

curiosity about her. In this way, he got over his infantile hangup over his mother. Then, after a four-month hiatus, he turned his attention to younger women and girls. He was now in a state resembling puberty. He attempted intercourse with his new victims. It was not a full, adult kind of intercourse, but a half-potent, immature kind. The victims, were almost certainly unconscious or dead at the time.

Both his sexual desire and his desire to punish grew stronger, less inhibited, as he went from one victimis to the next. The first of his young victims, Sophie Clark, was simply strangled, and possibly raped. The next several had bite marks on their bodies. The third, fourth and fifth had underwear stuffed into their mouths -- not to gag them, for there was no indication they had been conscious and struggling at the time, but rather as an added indignity. The last one, Mary Sullivan, was subjected to the final and complete indignity. The Strangler had said, symbolically, I throw my sex in your face.

He's a schizophrenic, paranoid type. A person of this type is most likely to have an "athletic habitus." This man has muscular power. He strangles his victims so powerfully that they apparently black out instantly.

"One question I ask myself is: how does this man slip in and out of apartment buildings without being noticed? He's what people describe as an 'average man.' He's a fader-into-the-background. Add this to the fact that he's a very cautious man — never leaves fingerprints or any other clues — and you get a picture of a neat, clean, tidy individual.

This man is obsessed by his relationship to the opposite sex; he wants women to be attracted to him instead of rejecting him. I see him as a man who tends his hair lovingly. He probably has a mane of hair the average girl would envy."

"One more thing," I said, "I don't think he'll be caught by ordinary detection."

"Meaning what, doctor?"

"He'll be found eventually, but this will happen because he has voluntarily told his story. You see . . . you see, I think he has finished."

"Finished?"

"Yes. He's been seeking two things: to grow up sexually, and to avenge himself for his mother's rejection of him or whatever caused his hangup. I believe he has succeeded on both counts."

I think Mary Sullivan may turn out to be his last victim. I think he has, in a way, "cured" himself of his overtly sexual difficulties — though not of his other emotional problems. From now on, he'll get his sexual satisfaction from conscious women, in a more or less normal fashion.

* * * *

OVER THE NEXT several months, through the summer and fall of 1964, the people and police of Boston waited anxiously for another strangling. There were no more.

Meanwhile, the police were busy with the usual daily parade of petty criminals. One offender who caused a lot of trouble in and around Boston that summer and fall was an apparently insatiable sex-seeker who came to be called the Green Man. The name came from his manner of dress: green coveralls, green sunglasses, sometimes green work gloves. Over a period of a few months, more than a hundred women complained to the police about him. He would come to the door of an apartment or suburban house, claim to be a meter reader or repairman, and be invited inside. His clean-cut look and engaging, boyish grin put women at ease. But, once inside, if it turned out that the woman was alone, he would pull out a knife and force her to submit to a long, lascivious ritual.

In November that year, a young Cambridge housewife who was victimized by the Green Man kept her wits about her and studied his face with care as he bent over her. She described him to a police sketch artist. The sketched face was compared to photographs of known sex offenders. Several photographs resembled the sketch, and the housewife was asked to look at these. She picked one out instantly. This, she said, was positively the face of the Green Man.

It was the face of one Albert DeSalvo, a man in his early thirties. Back in 1961, DeSalvo had been arrested in Cambridge for a less serious sexual odyssey. Throughout 1960 and 1961 he had been posing as a scout for a modeling agency. He would call on college girls and young women, identify himself, and ask permission to take their measurements. Many were gullible enough to submit. He would measure them from bust to ankles, feel their calves and thighs, mumble about bone structure. Then he would go away, never to be heard from again, and the women would gradually realize that they'd been had. The Measuring Man, as he was called, was caught in 1961 and served slightly less than a year in jail. Psychiatrists diagnosed him as a sociopath or psychopath.

He was released in the spring of 1962.

This same pathetic figure, it now turned out, was the Green Man of 1964. DeSalvo was married and lived with his wife in the nearby suburban town of Malden. A sergeant telephoned DeSalvo at this home and asked if he'd mind coming to the police station the following day to answer some questions.

"About what?" asked DeSalvo.

"Just come down here."

"No! I want to know what it's about."

"It's about assaults on some women," said the sergeant.

DeSalvo then said a strange thing: "Thank God! I've been stopped!"

Albert DeSalvo, the Measuring Man, the Green Man, ended at Bridgewater State Hospital and, every now and then, he dropped peculiar hints to other inmates odd remarks suggesting that he was somebody more important than the Green Man.

Sometime in late 1965, John Bottomly became very much interested in this once obscure inmate at Bridgewater. He was fascinated by DeSalvo's resemblance to my projected image of the Strangler.

DeSalvo was married — which I had considered unlikely for the Strangler. But on other points he was my image in the flesh.

In Febuary, 1966, John Bottomly phoned me at my office in New York.

"You said there was only one Strangler," said Bottomly, "and you told us what kind of man he'd be, and you told us how he'd be caught.

"I guess I did," I said.

"Well," said Bottomly, "we've got your man."

I didn't know that I was soon to meet Albert DeSalvo in person.

NEXT: The Boston Strangler is identified.

China Film Blasts Russ 'New Czars'

HONG KONG (UPI) — The film was called "Anti-China Atrocities of the New Czars" and it was Peking's latest propaganda slap at the Russians over their recent border dispute.

A 63-minute movie, it opened Saturday in six Communist-owned theaters in Hong Kong and one in Macao.

Tributes to Chinese Party Chairman Mao Tse-tung introduce the movie. Then a narrator announces that "before Nikita Khrushchev came to power, the Chinese and Russian people were very friendly and there were no border disputes."

Then he told how more than one million square miles of Chinese territory East of the Ussuri River were seized by Czarist Russia in the 1850s.

Shot on location along the disputed river border, the film also showed Soviet gunboats, tanks, armored cars, helicopters and soldiers "intruding into Chinese territory to carry out provocations" this March.

It termed the March 2 fighting on the frozen Damansky Island in the Ussuri as "a serious armed clash," then ended with a major anti-Soviet demonstration interspersed with portraits of Mao.

Inspector Falls, Dies Under Scraper

NEWHALL (UPI) — Richard Hotchkiss, 61, was crushed to death when he lost his footing and fell under the wheels of an industrial scraper traveling at about 2 miles per hour at a dam project site here.

The Highway Patrol said Hatchkiss, an inspector for the Department of Water Resources, was checking the grade on a fill project when the accident occurred Friday.

Salons Declare War on Germs

WASHINGTNN (UPI) — Two Democratic congressmen will hold a news conference Tuesday at which they say they will offer evidence that some automatic washing machines contaminate the clothes they are supposed to clean.

Also contributing to the alleged bacteria contamination, say the lawmakers, are cold water laundry detergents which their manufacturers claim "germ-proof" clothes.

Reps. John Dingell, Mich., and James C. Corman, Calif., said in a statement:

"The press conference will deal with the contamination by pathogens and other bacteria of clothing laundered in conventional automatic washing machines. This has been found by the United States Department of Agriculture to result in the spread of bacterial infection."

* * * *

DINGELL AND CORMAN blamed the problem on "faulty design of washing machines" and the advertising claims by the cold water detergent manufacturers.

At the news conference, the congressmen said, they will show photographic blowups of bacterial growths, diagrams of washing machine design and examples of deceptive advertising.

They also will comment on "the gravity of the situation and announce steps they are taking to bring about corrective action and draw public attention to the problem.

Dingell is chairman and Corman is a member of a House small business subcommittee on regulatory agencies. They indicated the subcommittee would pursue the matter.

Texan Is U.S. Mother of Year

College Founder Known as 'Mom' to Many Students

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Evelyn LeTourneau, 68, who founded a college in Texas but never finished her sophomore year in high school, Saturday was named U.S. Mother of the Year.

The white-haired mother of five broke into tears when she was selected over 51 other contestants from the 50 states, Puerto Rico and the District of Columbia.

Mrs. LeTourneau, wife of industrialist-inventor Robert LeTourneau, has lived in Longview, Tex., since 1946, the same year she established the LeTourneau Institute of Technology. The 735-student school is now called LeTourneau Christian College.

OFFICIALS OF the 34-year-old contest said Mrs. LeTourneau was chosen as U.S. Mother because she was a mother not only to her children, but to youngsters at the Winona Bible Camp in Indiana, which she founded in 1938, at seven boys ranches she started across the country, and at the college, where until 1961 she lived on campus with her husband and was affectionately called "mom" by the students.

Three of her sons—Richard, 44; Roy, 40, and Ted, 37—live in Longview. The youngest son Ben, 35, attends Texas A&M. Her only daughter, Louise Dick, 49, is a housewife in Moline, Ill.

The Mother of the Year said she had taught her children to make their own decisions. Once when her daughter Louise wanted a nickle to go to a movie she told her: "Yes, if you think that's what the Lord wants you to do."

The daughter decided against going and, according to her mother, "hasn't seen a show to this day." She added that none of her sons smokes or drinks.

As a college student, Tom Hesketh can wear cut-off jeans, hangy shirt, shoulder-length hair on his head and chin and probably ribbons in both if he felt like it.

But as Tom Hesketh, Millikan High School student president, he can not wear any of the above.

Yet Tom Hesketh is the same person. He just happens to go to both campuses and as he points out — "for the same purpose — to learn." He can not understand where dress rules like shirt-tucking and chin-shaving further the educational process.

* * * *

NEITHER can a lot of other students.

"In fact," says Hesketh, pointing to his perfect 4.0 grade average from Long Beach City College, "I think sloppiness and good grades must go together."

He and a group of his classmates now are engaged in a steamy battle with school officials to gain a one-month moratorium on dress regulations at Millikan.

The students say they presented their proposal two months ago "to the system" and all they've gotten is a run-around.

* * * *

IN A RECENT open letter — an action taken by Hesketh to ward off a demonstration by impatient students — he accused high school principal Clarence Wood of trying "to prolong and sabotage the moratorium project."

The original agreement, says Hesketh, called for gathering student opinions (a poll indicated the proposal had an overwhelming 95 per cent backing); presentations before the Principal's Advisory Board and Neil Philips, director of high schools (mission accomplished); and finally a meeting with the Board of Education. Students agreed that if the channels were followed, they would adhere to the board's decision.

"We thought we could work in good faith with the administration of our school, and we kept our part of the bargain. The constant changes, misinterpretations and secrecy lead us to the conclusion that Mr. Wood has deliberately tried to prolong and sabotage the project," Hesketh claims.

* * * *

MEANWHILE Wood maintains that the proposal is right where it should be, according to the original schedule, and that's on Philips' desk. Both men deny the issue has been detoured.

They point out that the district-wide dress code is constructed — for the most part — by students.

"Students really outvote the administration 3-1 and there certainly has been considerable latitude. Boys can wear bermudas to school now, certain length sideburns and mustaches," Wood says.

Students, however, are distressed, not by what they can or cannot do, but with the idea of a dress code.

* * * *

THOUGH THE issue has not reached other Long Beach high schools with the same force as Millikan, most students feel dress codes are oldfashioned.

Some, like Wilson High School's student body president, Alan Hersh, say students don't like the idea of a code but have a good understanding with their school officials. Others like Nora Matsuda, senior at Poly High School, say there are other more vital issues like racial problems which need to be considerer first.

Sixteen-year-old Phil Lipson, a junior at Millikan agrees that the dress code is "ridiculous."

"They tell us it is okay to have hair above the lip but not below. I just don't understand the philosophy," he says.

* * * *

LONG BEACH administrators are happy to explain.

"After all, school is a place of business and education is serious business. We are training students for their place in society and society has certain conventions. Being a part of that society means adhering to these rules," Philips says.

Moreover, he adds, if you have a free campus like Berkeley "it looks like Halloween everyday."

John Sanders, principal at Los Angeles' Hamilton High School, which abandoned its dress code Feb. 4, admits students look "way out."

* * * *

GIRLS COME to school with shawls and boys with little ribbons in their hair but there is a nice relaxed atmosphere. It's turned out to be very pleasant," Sanders says.

As hard as it might be for some educators to adjust to such scenes, they must, students say, if they are going to turn out free thinking, questioning, and creative graduates.

"Students can not be placed on a production line and squeezed into the same mold," Bellflower administrator Jack Thompson acknowledges.

Students, themselves, admit their initial reaction to no dress rules would be bizarre clothes until the novelty wore off.

* * * *

BUT CALLING attention to wild dress, sending offenders to the office or home causes a greater distraction than the clothing itself, they contend.

Distraction in and of itself—others argue—does not mean a thing. "The mere presence of a pretty girl is distracting to an adolescent boy but we cannot deny girls the right to be beautiful," says a Saturday Review author.

The arguments abound. They are not new. Anxious educators during the flapper era tried to impose their own dress code and in 1923 the Supreme Court of Arkansas upheld the right of a school board to prohibit "the wearing of transparent hosiery, a low-necked dress or any style of dress tending toward immodesty or the use of face paint or cosmetics."

* * * *

STILL whether educators belong in the grooming business is a much-debated question today.

Ron Postal, director of the National Council of Men's Fashions, says there is little doubt that dress does affect behavior.

"In a sense," he adds, "there's much truth in the adage 'sloppy of dress, sloppy of mind.'"

Yet teachers like Patrick Moretta of Seal Beach, who work in an East Los Angeles School, says students learn just as much on authorized casual-dress days when they can wear what they want as they do on regular school days.

* * * *

MARINA HIGH School Principal Glen Dysinger says he frankly believes students need some form of rules.

"Adolescents are not known for their great depth of wisdom," he says.

He tells of one campus where boys came with levis with the backs ripped out, proclaiming it was "the new reality."

However, other educators feel the only standards school should impose are those having to do with health and safety.

As one administrator is fond of pointing out:

"If we were to be really honest about our grooming standards, I think the reason for them would be that we want the students to look like us. And I think there are enough of us now."

PIERRE, S.D. (AP) — The South Dakota Welfare Commission has decided to cut public assistance payments 5 per cent across the board for fiscal 1970.

The reduction, affects all categories, including the aged, blind, disabled and dependent children.

Welfare director Peter B. Gorssman said the action was taken so that the department may stay within the appropriation limit set by the 1969 Legislature.

Ultimatum Ends Strike of Firemen

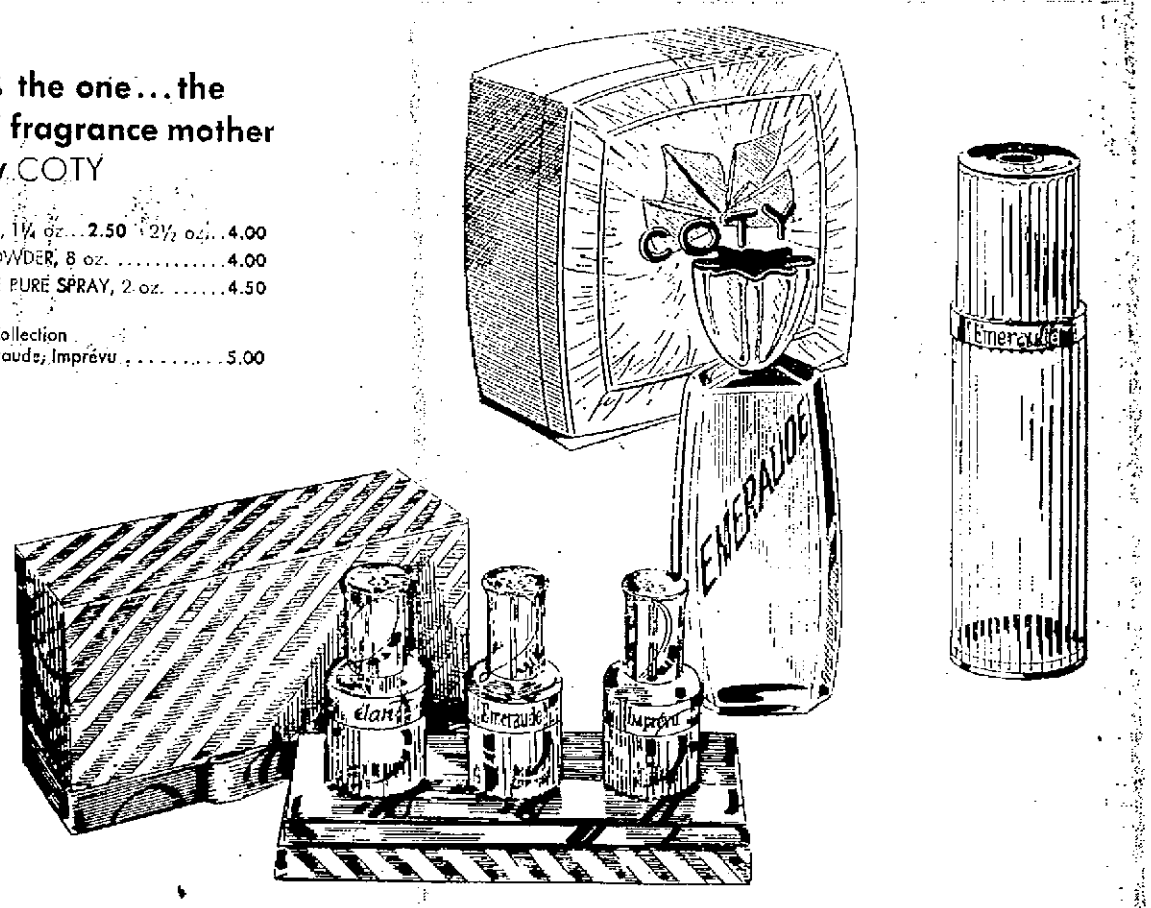

DES MOINES (UPI) — Striking Des Moines firemen went back to work Saturday and Sen. Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, took over as a mediator in wage talks between city officials and leaders of the Des Moines Association of Professional Fire Fighters.

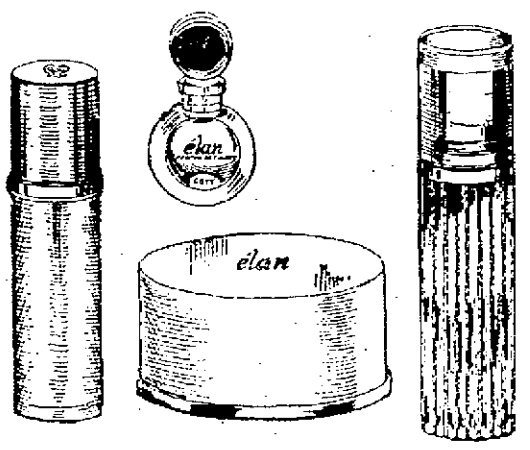

Mayor Thomas Urban announced that the strike had ended. Firemen met through the night after Urban issued an ultimatum that any fireman not back on the job at 7:45 a.m. Saturday would be fired.

CABINET-LEVEL MARITIME UNIT URGED

INDEPENDENT, PRESS-TELEGRAM—A-21
Long Beach, Calif., Sun., May 4, 1969

From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — A bill to consolidate all federal maritime activities into a Cabinet-level department will be offered Monday by Rep. Glenn M. Anderson, D-Torrance.

Anderson's approach is the boldest yet among a number of proposals for bringing various agencies from under what he Friday termed "submerged and largely ignored" status in large unrelated departments.

These would include the Federal Maritime Administration and Commission, the Coast Guard, Coast and Geodetic Survey Bureau of Commercial Fisheries, as examples.

Anderson, who represents Los Angeles Harbor, said such a department would give maritime affairs the coordination and status they badly need in the federal structure.

He has subscribed to moves such as creating an independent maritime administration or an oceanographic agency, but said these should be but steps towards a larger, more comprehensive department.

Mystery Dynamite Cache, Machine Guns Discovered

DES MOINES (AP) — A cache of weapons, ammunition and explosives has been unearthed at a small airport north of here by police, sheriff's officers and state agents.

They said the arsenal consisted of six cases of dynamite, three submachine guns, a detonator, and 200 rounds of clipped ammunition.

A tip led police to the cache, Detective Sgt. William B. Foster said.

No arrests were made, he said, but some persons were questioned.

Bridge Toll Takers Offer Credit Plan

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Toll keepers on Golden Gate Bridge are working on a "commute now — pay later" plan.

Bridge manager Dale Leuhring said an experimental plan has been begun that allows buses through the toll gates without paying.

The bus line will be billed monthly, based on number of buses that crossed in that period.

Bridge officials see an eventual automated system for buses and perhaps later for all the thousands of commuters who cross the scenic bridge on their way to work each day.

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

FORECAST FOR MONDAY

Your birthday today: All things seem to revolve around material values. You find in yourself improved ability to get your share, regardless of your own values, and you should take full advantage. Intense personalities are normal among today natives but they keep their affairs strictly outside public view. Most are diligent.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19): TODAY A DILEMMA: either go out after business and disappoint those at home, or stay home and deprive yourself of opportunity elsewhere. Spend time this evening deciding tomorrow's schedules.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20): Your routine today is interrupted, so make the most of this chance for variety. There will be many more such interventions, most favorable, in the season. Bring accounts up to date this evening.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20): A perfectly normal day ensues in which all you have to do is be yourself and make a reasonable effort. Use it as a period of respite. Let others do the talking — you'll learn something.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22): Teamwork is the keynote; let people express themselves, and go along with their creative energies. Major decisions are to be left for a more stressful time. This should be a low-pressure day.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 29): There may be new people in charge, fresh contacts to make. Take the initiative, and go after results. Consistent business effort pays off today, while speculation loses out. Play it safe.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): Your practical side comes into better expression. Make the necessary adjustments, invest in conservative enterprises, add to savings. Quiet romance is favored this evening.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): Bring unfinished business to conclusions today. Attend to matters related to home and property, the schooling of children, and the likely, while the coast is clear.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): Take the first step toward discussions with partners and kin to ease tensions, avoid misunderstandings. Relations can improve markedly at this time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21): Concern over ready cash may cause a pause in activities. Get busy and develop sounder partnerships. Some of the expedients toward lower expenses today may turn out to be lasting improvements in your scheme of things.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan 19): The going is slower than you'd like, but still a great deal can be done. The affairs of children are to be featured. Cooperation and attention to details are vitally important today.

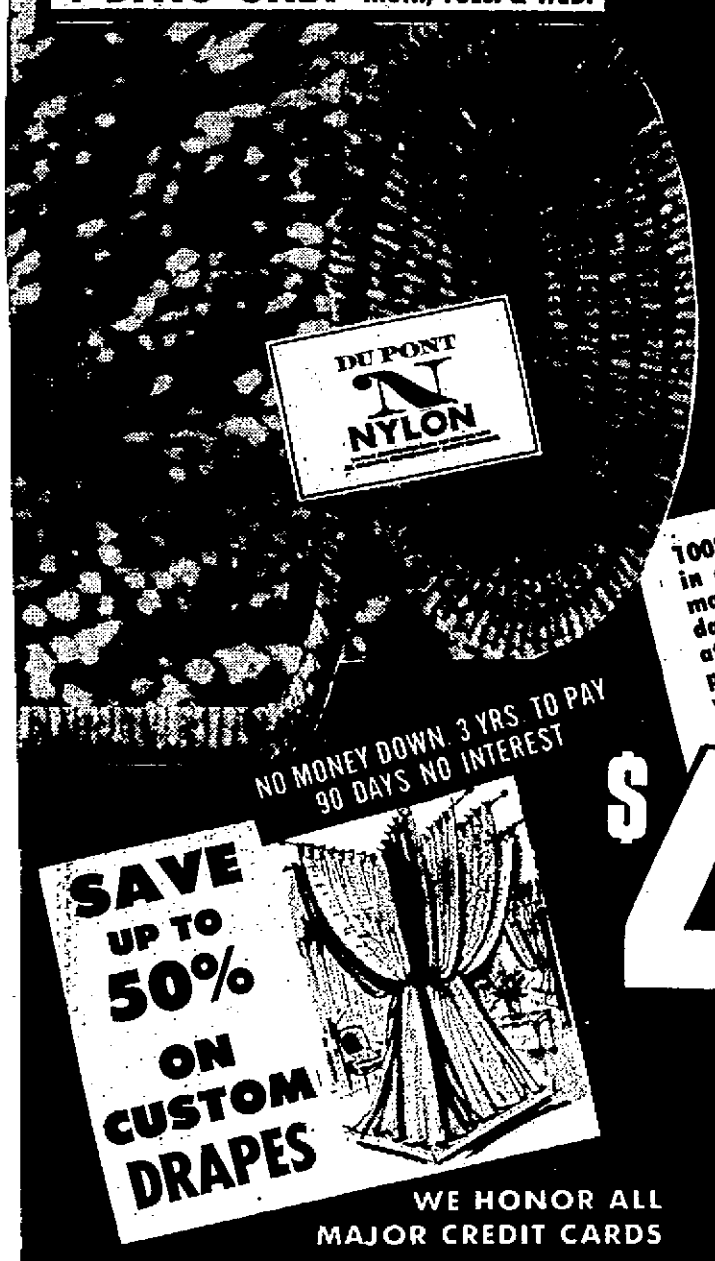

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): Your work will proceed more enjoyably if you can dispense with social distractions. Concentrate on work which requires no collaboration. If you have a holiday coming, this would be a day to spend in solitary meditation.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20): You can further your own interests by using utter candor. Be on your toes in business deals — go right out after them.

French, N. Ireland Leaders Resign

By DON HASTINGS

THE WORLD

French President Charles de Gaulle, who served as chief of state longer than anyone since Napoleon III, resigned Monday after his countrymen voted down his proposals for constitutional reform which would have given him more power.

Following De Gaulle's resignation the franc tumbled to its lowest level in five months and the price of gold on the free European market soared to a record.

A presidential election will be held within five weeks. Among a half-dozen or so contenders to succeed De Gaulle, the early favorite was former Gaullist Premier Georges Pompidou. Heading the government until the election is Alain Poher, Centrist Party president of the French Senate.

* * * *

BOWING TO OPPONENTS of his civil rights concessions to Roman Catholics, Northern Ireland's Premier Terence O'Neill resigned as leader of the governing Unionist Party. He had won majority approval of the Unionists to extend the vote equally to all citizens, but the action failed to halt the violent confrontations between Protestants and Catholics that have rocked the country for months. The Unionists Thursday elected James Chichester-Clark as their party leader and premier. He pledged to tour the country and try to heal its divisive wounds.

* * * *

THE 29-SHIP, U.S. NAVY task force sent into the Sea of Japan to protect reconnaissance planes flying off the coast of North Korea was reduced to 12 ships. There were some reports that these vessels also would be leaving the area and that the protection responsibility would be turned over to the U.S. Air Force.

* * * *

FIVE AMERICAN MOUNTAIN CLIMBERS and two Sherpa guides were killed when an avalanche hit their base camp at the 16,000-foot level of 26,975-foot Mt. Dhaulagiri in the Himalayas. One of the victims was Paul Alexander Gerhard, 27, of Laguna Beach.

THE NATION

Militants continued to disrupt college campuses around the nation and Washington took notices. Both houses of Congress accelerated investigations of the disorders and U.S. Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and other Justice Department spokesmen said the time has come to put an end to "minority tyranny . . . and for the immediate establishment of civil peace and the protection of individual rights."

* * * *

THE WEST

Another Goldwater was sent to Washington Tuesday. Barry M. Goldwater Jr., son of the senator from Arizona, who ran unsuccessfully for the presidency against Lyndon B. Johnson, was elected to the House of Representatives in a special election in Californias 27th Congressional District. He easily defeated Democrat John Van de Kamp, a former deputy U.S. attorney general. Goldwater's district lies mostly in the San Fernando Valley, but extends into the Antelope Valley and the extreme southern part of Kern County.

* * * *

"SHOCKED" SUPERVISORS last week received the preliminary Los Angeles County budget for fiscal 1969-70 from Chief Administrative Officer Lindon S. Hollinger. Not only was it a record proposed outlay, $1.7 billion, but it also called for a property tax increase of 29 cents per $100 evaluation. The supervisors vowed to trim the figure as much as possible, but admitted chances for a reduction in the tax increase are remote.

* * * *

NEGOTIATIONS ARE UNDER WAY for the President to buy a 10-room, Spanish-style home on an isolated bluff in San Clemente to serve as a summer White House, it was announced by presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler. Ziegler added the dwelling probably will become Nixon's voting residence.

* * * *

REVERSING ITS 80-YEAR-OLD position on evolution, the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States last week adopted a report concluding that the theory of evolution and the Bible are compatible.

THE WAR

There was a glimmer of hope for peace last week. Tran Bu Kiem, head of the National Liberation Front delegation at the Paris talks on ending the conflict in Vietnam, said the NLF is willing to begin negotiations with all parties, including the Saigon government. Kiem's statement was an apparent response to a March 2 offer by South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu to talk with the Communist front.

* * * *

SLACKENING OF THE REDS' spring offensive was reflected in casualty tolls announced Thursday by the U.S. Command in Saigon. American losses for the week ended April 26 included 163 killed — the lowest toll in four months — and 1,235 wounded. South Vietnamese casualties also dropped. The Allies claimed 3,662 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong killed during the seven-day period, an increase of 164 over the preceding week.

THE NATION

Militants continued to disrupt college campuses around the nation and Washington took notices. Both houses of Congress accelerated investigations of the disorders and U.S. Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and other Justice Department spokesmen said the time has come to put an end to "minority tyranny . . . and for the immediate establishment of civil peace and the protection of individual rights."

ONE OF THE SWINGINGEST parties to be held in the White House for years was hosted by President Nixon Tuesday night when he presented the Medal of Freedom to the duke of jazz, Edward Kennedy (Duke) Ellington, on his 70th birthday. The medal recognizes Ellington's "exceptional contributions to cultural endeavors."

THE WEST

Another Goldwater was sent to Washington Tuesday. Barry M. Goldwater Jr., son of the senator from Arizona, who ran unsuccessfully for the presidency against Lyndon B. Johnson, was elected to the House of Representatives in a special election in California's 27th Congressional District. He easily defeated Democrat John Van de Kamp, a former deputy U.S. attorney general. Goldwater's district lies mostly in the San Fernando Valley, but extends into the Antelope Valley and the extreme southern part of Kern County.

"SHOCKED" SUPERVISORS last week received the preliminary Los Angeles County budget for fiscal 1969-70 from Chief Administrative Officer Lindon S. Hollinger. Not only was it a record proposed outlay, $1.7 billion, but it also called for a property tax increase of 29 cents per $100 evaluation. The supervisors vowed to trim the figure as much as possible, but admitted chances for a reduction in the tax increase are remote.

NEGOTIATIONS ARE UNDER WAY for the President to buy a 10-room, Spanish-style home on an isolated bluff in San Clemente to serve as a summer White House, it was announced by presidentiai press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler. Ziegler added the dwelling probably will become Nixon's voting residence.

REVERSING ITS 80-YEAR-OLD position on evolution, the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States last week adopted a report concluding that the theory of evolution and the Bible are compatible.

THE WAR

There was a glimmer of hope for peace last week. Tran Bu Kiem, head of the National Liberation Front delegation at the Paris talks on ending the conflict in Vietnam, said the NLF is willing to begin negotiations with all parties, including the Saigon government. Kiem's statement was an apparent response to a March 2 offer by South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu to talk with the Communist front.

SLACKENING OF THE REDS' spring offensive was reflected in casualty tolls announced Thursday by the U.S. Command in Saigon. American losses for the week ended April 26 included 163 killed — the lowest toll in four months — and 1,235 wounded. South Vietnamese casualties also dropped. The Allies claimed 3,662 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong killed during the seven-day period, an increase of 164 over the preceding week.

Hectic Transatlantic Race Under Way

LONDON (AP) — A teen-age girl, former racing driver Stirling Moss and a housewife who flies her own plane will set off today in a hectic air race from central London to downtown New York.

Four hundred more contestants are heading across the ocean this week, racing from the pinnacle of London's Post Office Tower to the top of the Empire State Building —or vice versa—for $144,000 in prizes in the Daily Mail Transatlantic Air Race.

Any one of them could win, since the contest has 21 classes, and the racers range from two 10-year-old boys and a 75-year-old taxi driver to Royal Navy and Air Force jet pilots.

First off today: Pretty 18-year-old Anne Alcock, niece of pioneer Sir John Alcock who made the first nonstop Atlantic flight 50 years ago with navigator Sir Arthur Witten-Brown. She chose a Capitol Airways charter flight.

Next: Julia Turner, mother of three, flying a twin Piper Comanche, and veteran speedster Moss Aboard a British VC10 airliner.

The biggest barrier isn't the ocean, but the traffic in New York and London streets. Contestants have lined up motorcycles, helicopters, fast cars and even a rickshaw to beat it, and Britain's Royal Air Force has the most sophisticated answer of all: revolutionary jet planes that can land in the middle of town.

"The winners will be the ones with luck," said Capt. Edward Alcock, 67, Anne's father and a former airline pilot.

"You can have the finest aircraft in the world but if the luck's against you, you won't win."

From the ground to the 86th floor of the Empire State Building, you can make it in 74 seconds. It takes 30 seconds to get to the top of the Post Office Tower in London.

Renewed Bombings Shake Montreal

MONTREAL (UPI) — Two buildings were damaged by blasts Friday night and early Saturday in the first outbreak of bombings in several months.

Police rushed first to the Montreal Construction Association office in the Cote des Neiges district when a blast caused heavy damage to the building. There were no injuries.

A second blast occurred at about 2:30 a.m. at a building under construction in the north end of the city. Damage was slight and there were no injuries.

Yankee Dollars to Open Lavish Greek Casino

ATHENS (AP) — Five American businessmen have invested $4 million in an Athens casino which, they claim, will make Greece a new Las Vegas and Europe's playground.

The five have equal shares in Club Alexander Inc., a Massachusetts firm.

The casino will be the first to be created under a new Greek law allowing foreign concerns to set up gambling facilities in the country. Company President William Yediares, 38, a Greek-American from Boston, sold out his travel and tour business to join forces with four other New England businessmen in the club Alexander venture.

The others are Artie Strahl, former partner of Yediares' travel firm, who is the vice president; William Hess, attorney for Providence, R.I.; P. Holian, Boston attorney; and H. Phillips, a Boston electronics executive.

The casino is to be established in the historic 140-room Acropole Palace Hotel, opposite the National Archeological Museum in downtown Athens.

When it opens on June 10, it will have four crap tables, 12 blackjack tables, bacarat and slot machines, but no roulette, which is a monopoly concession of a German concern operating in Corfu and Rhodes.

Club Alexander will operate a special charter amendment with Aristotle Onassis' Olympic Airways to bring about 150-180 American businessmen every Monday for a week's stay.

"They'll all be Americans of the higher income bracket," Yediares told an interviewer.

Ireland: Hub of Conflict for Ancient Hatreds, Locked in Struggle for Rights

Editors note: Bill Madden of the Independent, Press-Telegram staff, was reared and educated in Dublin, the capital of Eire, where the dominant religion is Roman Catholic. He also lived in Belfast, the capital of Ulster, where the religion is predominantly Protestant. Although Madden's education was designed and administered by the Church of Ireland (Protestant) he was exposed also to Roman Catholicism through the Irish Jesuits who taught the Irish language (Gaelic) in all Dublin schools. Madden is now an American citizen.

By BILL MADDEN
Staff Writer

To understand what is happening in riot-torn Ireland today, the reader must be familiar with the geography of that country and know a little of its history. To try to explain its political background in detail would take several volumes and is a task for the political scientist rather than the journalist.

Ireland is divided into four provinces: Ulster, Munster, Leinster and Connaught.

Ulster is that part known as Northern Ireland and the remaining three form the Irish Republic of Eire formerly known as the Irish Free State or Southern Ireland.

The population of Ulster is 1,472,000 and predominantly Protestant while the polulation of Eire is 2,884,002 and predominantly Roman Catholic. This religious division dates back to the 17th century.

* * * *

HISTORY tells us that in the early 1600's, King James II and King William of Orange met in battle on the banks of the River Boyne in Ulster and that Roman Catholic James was defeated whereupon William imposed the now infamous penal laws on all Irish Roman Catholics. Like most conquerers he demanded taxes with allegiance. His followers became known as Orangemen.

Although subjected to harsh and often brutal conditions at the hands of William, Irish Roman Catholics made several efforts to regain the dignity they lost with the defeat of King James but it was not until 1689 or thereabouts that the first sign of open rebellion was felt.

Unfortunately for the Irish rebels, the dictator Oliver Cromwell had established himself as the Lord Protector of Britain and hearing of the Irish rebellion he sent his armies across the channel to supress it.

* * * *

A PURITAN in every sense of the word, Cromwell was also a militant, so opposed to Roman Catholicism, that he tried to ban any form of religion other than his own and supported his demands with his sword.

Cromwell was a devout man who after the initial massacre of Irish rebels, relented and issued his famous ultimatum: "To Hell or to Connaught."

Those Roman Catholics who had survived the sword found their way to the barren bogs of Connaught where they remained for centuries in almost total isolation from the rest of the land. Even to this day these people on the west coast of Galway, and Sligo speak the Gaelic language and live in self-imposed isolation under the protection of the Roman Catholic church.

For the sake of brevity we may skip the next few centuries and look at Ireland in the early 1920s.

* * * *

THE COUNTRY was still occupied by Britain and controlled by a few families of English origin who had been given land grants for the sole purpose of keeping the Irish, Protestant and Roman Catholic alike, under subjugation of the crown. Irish families were paying taxes to England and to Rome and getting nothing in return from either of them.

Between 1914 and 1918 when England found herself at war with Germany with her armies bogged down in Europe, a young Irish intellectual, Eamon de Valera, decided it was time to strike a blow for freedom and formed the Irish Republican Army.

Unable to cope with a war in Europe and a rebellion in Ireland, the British had the choice of granting the IRAs demand for a free and independent Ireland or to fight. They chose the latter.

To raise an army large enough to suppress the rebellion, the British granted amnesty to 125,000 convicts in English prisons on condition they fought in the new army. Sad to say the ranks of this army were swollen with men from Scotland and Ireland also.

* * * *

TO DISTINGUISH these men from the regular British army, they were dressed in black and tan colored overalls — hence the name "Black and Tans" a title to become infamous in Irish history.

This army ravaged the countryside, imprisoned thousands of innocent families and butchered those who opposed them or gave sanctuary to Irish rebels.

It is of particular interest to know that these men who led the Irish Republic Army against Britain were Protestant and it is with particular pride that I am able to claim my father, John Madden, among them.

After four years of bitter fighting, when brother fought with brother, the British agreed to allow the IRA to have control of the three provinces of Munster, Leinster and Connaught.

* * * *

TODAY, the Roman Catholic minority in Ulster, after sleeping for three centuries, has suddenly awakened to find although Cromwell and the kings have departed, they have left a legacy of hatred and bigotry which hangs like a dark cloud over that little isle across the Irish Sea.

It is uncharitible to blame the Irish people for their present condition. They have been the pawns in a giant chess game between church and state since the 16th century and their leaders have been blinded by resultant prejudices ever since.

Ulster's retiring prime minister put it well when he said: "We are the victims of ancient hatreds."

New Ulster Cabinet Presents Dilemma'

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Northern Ireland's new premier, James Chichester-Clark, named a coalition cabinet of right and liberal wings Saturday that Unionist Party sources said created a civil rights dilemma similar to that of his predecessor.

Chichester-Clark returned the same men — with four exceptions — to his government that formed the cabinet of former premier Terence O'Neill, who resigned after four cabinet defections over proposed civil rights reforms on behalf of the country's Roman Catholic minority.

The new premier brought back to the government Brian Faulkner, former deputy premier under O'Neill, whom Chichester-Clark defeated by a one-vote majority for the premiership on Thursday.

IN ADDITION, he named three other right-wing members who had led the fight to oust O'Neill and gave them junior ministries. They are John Brooke, John Dobson and John Taylor, all of whom fought against O'Neill's efforts to pass civil rights and voting reforms.

Faulkner, who was deputy premier under O'Neill until the fomer premier fired him earlier this yar, was given the post of minister of development in the new government.

This would give him control of the politically explosive issue of local franchise — the freedom of vote in local elections.

This is a similar coalition of right and liberal wings of the Unionist Party which O'Neill tried to push ahead with a reform program. However, right wing cabinet ministers opposed the reforms at every step and four of them resigned over differences with O'Neill. Finally, O'Neill resigned.

Large Firms to Appeal in Price-Fixing

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Three large plumbing fixture manufacturers convicted of fixing prices on $1 billion worth of products said Saturday they would appeal.

American Standard Inc., of New York, Kohler Co. of Kohler, Wis.; and Borg-Warner Co. of Chicago and three executives were found guilty of price fixing by a federal court jury Friday night.

The defendants included Daniel J. Quinn, 67, retired American Standard sales executive; Joseph J. Decker, a vice president of American Standard, and Norman R. Held, 57, a Kohler vice president and a director. They were charged with price-fixing from 1962 to 1966.

Ireland: Hub of Conflict for Ancient Hatreds, Locked in Struggle for Rights

Editors note: Bill Madden of the Independent, Press-Telegram staff, was reared and educated in Dublin, the capital of Eire, where the dominant religion is Roman Catholic. He also lived in Belfast, the capital of Ulster, where the religion is predominantly Protestant. Although Madden's education was designed and administered by the Church of Ireland (Protestant) he was exposed also to Roman Catholicism through the Irish Jesuits who taught the Irish language (Gaelic) in all Dublin schools. Madden is now an American citizen.

To understand what is happening in riot-torn Ireland today, the reader must be familiar with the geography of that country and know a little of its history. To try to explain its political background in detail would take several volumes and is a task for the political scientist rather than the journalist.

Ireland is divided into four provinces: Ulster, Munster, Leinster and Connaught.

Ulster is that part known as Northern Ireland and the remaining three form the Irish Republic of Eire formerly known as the Irish Free State or Southern Ireland.

The population of Ulster is 1,472,000 and predominantly Protestant while the polulation of Eire is 2,884,002 and predominantly Roman Catholic. This religious division dates back to the 17th century.

* * * *

HISTORY tells us that in the early 1600's, King James 11 and King William of Orange met in battle on the banks of the River Boyne in Ulster and that Roman Catholic James was defeated whereupon William imposed the now infamous penal laws on all Irish Roman Catholics. Like most conquerers he demanded taxes with allegiance. His followers became known as Orangemen.

Although subjected to harsh and often brutal conditions at the hands of William, Irish Roman Catholics made several efforts to regain the dignity they lost with the defeat of King James but it was not until 1689 or thereabouts that the first sign of open rebellion was felt.

Unfortunately for the Irish rebels, the dictator Oliver Cromwell had established himself as the Lord Protector of Britain and hearing of the Irish rebellion he sent his armies across the channel to supress it.

* * * *

A PURITAN in every sense of the word, Cromwell was also a militant, so opposed to Roman Catholicism, that he tried to ban any form of religion other than his own and supported his demands with his sword.

Cromwell was a devout man who after the initial massacre of Irish rebels, relented and issued his famous ultimatum: "To Hell or to Connaught."

Those Roman Catholics who had survived the sword found their way to the barren bogs of Connaught where they remained for centuries in almost total isolation from the rest of the land. Even to this day these people on the west coast of Galway, and Sligo speak the Gaelic language and live in self-imposed isolation under the protection of the Roman Catholic church.

For the sake of brevity we may skip the next few centuries and look at Ireland in the early 1920s.

* * * *

THE COUNTRY was still occupied by Britain and controlled by a few families of English origin who had been given land grants for the sole purpose of keeping the Irish, Protestant and Roman Catholic alike, under subjugation of the crown. Irish families were paying taxes to England and to Rome and getting nothing in return from either of them.

Between 1914 and 1918 when England found herself at war with Germany with her armies bogged down in Europe, a young Irish intellectual, Eamon de Valera, decided it was time to strike a blow for freedom and formed the Irish Republican Army.

Unable to cope with a war in Europe and a rebellion in Ireland, the British had the choice of granting the IRAs demand for a free and independent Ireland or to fight. They chose the latter.

To raise an army large enough to suppress the rebellion, the British granted amnesty to 125,000 convicts in English prisons on condition they fought in the new army. Sad to say the ranks of this army were swollen with men from Scotland and Ireland also.

* * * *

TO DISTINGUISH these men from the regular British army, they were dressed in black and tan colored overalls — hence the name "Black and Tans" a title to become infamous in Irish history.

This army ravaged the countryside, imprisoned thousands of innocent families and butchered those who opposed them or gave sanctuary to Irish rebels.

It is of particular interest to know that these men who led the Irish Republic Army against Britain were Protestant and it is with particular pride that I am able to claim my father, John Madden, among them.

After four years of bitter fighting, when brother fought with brother, the British agreed to allow the IRA to have control of the three provinces of Munster, Leinster and Connaught.

* * * *

TODAY, the Roman Catholic minority in Ulster, after sleeping for three centuries, has suddenly awakened to find although Cromwell and the kings have departed, they have left a legacy of hatred and bigotry which hangs like a dark cloud over that little isle across the Irish Sea.

It is uncharitible to blame the Irish people for their present condition. They have been the pawns in a giant chess game between church and state since the 16th century and their leaders have been blinded by resultant prejudices ever since.

Ulster's retiring prime minister put it well when he said: "We are the victims of ancient hatreds."

New Ulster Cabinet Presents Dilemma'

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Northern Ireland's new premier, James Chichester-Clark, named a coalition cabinet of right and liberal wings Saturday that Unionist Party sources said created a civil rights dilemma similar to that of his predecessor.

Chichester-Clark returned the same men — with four exceptions — to his government that formed the cabinet of former premier Terence O'Neill, who resigned after four cabinet defections over proposed civil rights reforms on behalf of the country's Roman Catholic minority.

The new premier brought back to the government Brian Faulkner, former deputy premier under O'Neill, whom Chichester-Clark defeated by a one-vote majority for the premiership on Thursday.

IN ADDITION, he named three other right-wing members who had led the fight to oust O'Neill and gave them junior ministries. They are John Brooke, John Dobson and John Taylor, all of whom fought against O'Neill's efforts to pass civil rights and voting reforms.

Faulkner, who was deputy premier under O'Neill until the fomer premier fired him earlier this yar, was given the post of minister of development in the new government.

This would give him control of the politically explosive issue of local franchise — the freedom of vote in local elections.

This is a similar coalition of right and liberal wings of the Unionist Party which O'Neill tried to push ahead with a reform program. However, right wing cabinet ministers opposed the reforms at every step and four of them resigned over differences with O'Neill. Finally, O'Neill resigned.

Large Firms to Appeal in Price-Fixing

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Three large plumbing fixture manufacturers convicted of fixing prices on $1 billion worth of products said Saturday they would appeal.

American Standard Inc., of New York, Kohler Co. of Kohler, Wis.; and Borg-Warner Co. of Chicago and three executives were found guilty of price fixing by a federal court jury Friday night.

The defendants included Daniel J. Quinn, 67, retired American Standard sales executive; Joseph J. Decker, a vice president of American Standard, and Norman R. Held, 57, a Kohler vice president and a director. They were charged with price-fixing from 1962 to 1966.

'CALIFORNIA? HERE IT COMES!'

Landslides--More Wet Years Due

EDITOR'S NOTE — The rains have mostly ended, but the landslides linger on. That's in California, which is drying up from a winter of heavy rains and floods — and now faces a dangerous period of possible landslides. Those song words, "California, Here We Come," may yet be changed to "California? Here it comes!"

By RALPH DIGHTON
AP Science Writer

California, long known as "earthquake country," appears well on the way to earning the tag "landslide country" as well.

Evidence supporting this gloomy trend includes:

—A warning by the U.S. Geological Survey that torrential rains which caused spectacular and costly mud-floods early this year have created one of the worst landslide hazards in the state's history — a peril that will persist well into summer even if no more rain falls.

—A prediction by Dr. Richard H. Jahns, dean of the Stanford University school of earth sciences, that California weather is heading into a wet period that probably will last into mid-1970s and be accompanied by a corresponding increase in the number of landslides.

—Discovery by state survey teams that hundreds of older homes, including much of California's expensive view property, were built on peaceful-looking slopes and hilltops now known to be landslides waiting to happen.

—Insurance companies have found the risk so great they no longer write policies against mud-floods or landslides.

But scientists say new building codes new building techniques and greater information by the reasons for slides offer hope of better days ahead.

Geologists say California's hills and mountains are especially vulnerable to slippage, for several reasons.

One is the underlying structure of the soil. California's crustal wrinkles are frequently made up of layers of clay shale, which expands when water gets in to them. An excess of water acts almost like a lubricant, allowing the top layers to slide off the lower ones.

Another reason is the irregular rain pattern. Deluges follow months or even years of near-drought. In dry seasons the shale contracts, opening cracks through which heavy rain can seep down many feet, turning once-solid rock into a plastic goo.

Sometimes just the additional weight of absorbed rainwater can make an entire hillside slip. If houses have been built on the hill, their weight can increase the momentum. And if the base of the potential slide area has been cut away from a homesite, the owner of that home may wake up to find the hillside in his backyard — or even in his living room.

Another factor is the continual trembling of the earth's crust. California Institute of Technology seismologists register more than 300 earthquakes per year of magnitude 3 and above — strong enough to be felt. In some areas of Southern California there are hundreds of daily microquakes — too weak to be felt but cumulatively enough to trigger rain-jellied shale into avalanching at times.

During dry spells, Los Angeles, with an average of 14 inches of rain annually, may go for years without a landslide.

Then comes wet seasons such as this past winter, when as much as 70 inches fell in five weeks in some mountainous suburban areas.

The result was a rash of mud-floods and landslides blamed for more than a dozen deaths and upwards of $15 million damage.

California's earth slippages are of two major types: mud flows and landslides.

* * * *

MUDFLOWS involve only the upper mantle of surface soil. When saturated with water, the mantle slides off the underlying layers of rock in patches. Such "skin slides" are seldom more than a few yards across but can create much heartbreak when they wind up in some hill-dweller's patio or swimming pool.

A more devastating form of mud flow is the mud-flood. California's mud-floods differ from the floods of flat country in that they are literally walls of mud instead of water. They start when mountain streams overflow their banks and undercut the soil mantle on slopes, causing numerous "skin slides." When several skin slides occur along one stream the result can be a wall of fast-flowing mud rushing down into foothill residential areas, carrying bridges, cars and even homes before it.

Landslides start much deeper, in the layers of rock far below the soil mantle, and affect much larger areas of ground. Some are instant avalanches. Others are creepers. One of the latter, 13 years ago in the Portuguese Bend area of Los Angeles' Palos Verdes Peninsula carried more than 100 homes with it as it crept along at the rate of an inch a day. Subsequent studies showed the ground had slipped before and led to building codes requiring geological surveys prior to construction. The area still is slipping, at a slower rate, and most of the homes have long since been destroyed.

* * * *

THE DANGER of landslides doesn't end when the rain stops.

The U.S. Geological Survey issued a warning in March that "although the destruction from floods and mudflows subsides when heavy rains cease, the danger from landslides will persist well into the summer in susceptible hilly and mountainous areas of California. Long after the rains stop, water slowly seeps down into the ground and the likelihood of landsliding increases.

Additional rains or earthquakes could trigger widespread, disastrous slides during this critical period."

The statement said the winter rains "have created one of the greatest potentials for landsliding in the history of California."

A longer-term view was expressed by geologist Richard H. Jahns of Stanford, writing in Caltech's Engineering and Science magazine in March. Jahns compared rainfall figures and landslide activity back to 1800 and said: "At present we can anticipate a generally wet period that probably will last at least into the mid-seventies. It may well include exceptional storms and ground-moving phenomena."

Haight-Ashbury Girl, 19, Kills Herself; Pills Blamed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A 19-year-old girl who apparently was in a state of drug-induced depression shot and killed herself Friday night.

The victim, Sharon Marsh, died of a bullet through the heart in the apartment she shared on the fringe of the Haight-Ashbury with her 14-year-old sister and a 29-year-old friend.

Roommates told homicide inspectors Miss Marsh was a drug user and frequently became depressed when she used them.

They said she swallowed a number of "reds," containing Seconal, shortly before her death and again had a depressive reaction.

Suddenly, the girls said, Miss Marsh picked up a .22-caliber revolver, pressed it to her breast and pulled the trigger.

The shooting was in the same apartment where Robert Prodanovich, 19, son of an Oakland construction executive, was found shot to death.

Bulldozer Threatens Ranch Sought for Seashore Reserve

POINT REYES (UPI) — Work aimed at subdividing the 2,500-acre Lake rangh began Saturday despite conservationists' efforts to save it for a Point Reyes National Seashore Reserve.

Bulldozers began carving an access road into the property located on the west shore of Marin County. The road will give access to heavy leveling equipment and surveyors to begin subdivision planning for the property owner, banker A. W. Sweet of Coos Bay, Ore.

Harold Gregg, president of the Marin County Conservation League, said Sweet wants the unspoiled Lake Ranch saved for the national seashore and, "If he could get some solid assurance from somewhere, the land might be saved."

Edward J. Kurtz, superintendent of the Point Reyes Park, said he was told Sweet would stop the subdivision work if some source could offer $1 million as "earnest money." The conservationists said the land was priced at between $4 and $6 million.

Litton Hiring of Defense Aide Called 'Big-Influence Buying'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said Saturday former Assistant Secretary of Defense Thomas Morris's decision to take top job with Litton Industries involves a serious conflict of interest.

"Morris's hiring by Litton as a vice president is more serious than the hiring of admirals and generals by defense contractors," the senator said in a statement.

"In hiring Morris, Litton is buying influence with the Pentagon and plenty of it."

Proxmire said "no one has been more integrally and powerfully involved with every Pentagon decision on the annual $43-billion military procurement than Morris."

Thus, he said, the situation involves "a conflict of interest at its most vivid and conspicuous."

"Morris's decision to go with Litton is particularly offensive," the Senator declared, "because in the last full year of Morris's power as the Pentagon procurement boss, Litton's contracts jumped from $180 million in 1967 to $466 million in 1968 — a mammoth 250 per cent."

"So Morris's vice presidency of Litton can be viewed both as a payoff for the huge Pentagon business shifted to Litton in 1968 and as assurance of immense future influence for Litton."

Proxmire asked, "With Tom Morris coaching the Litton team, how objective will Morris's former subordinates be in deciding whether or not to give the big, profitable jobs to Litton?"

The senator said he is exploring the possibilities of some sort of legislation "to prevent this kind of massive-influence buying in the future."

Litton Hiring of Defense Aide Called 'Big-Influence Buying'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said Saturday former Assistant Secretary of Defense Thomas Morris's decision to take top job with Litton Industries involves a serious conflict of interest.

"Morris's hiring by Litton as a vice president is more serious than the hiring of admirals and generals by defense contractors," the senator said in a statement.

"In hiring Morris, Litton is buying influence with the Pentagon and plenty of it."

Proxmire said "no one has been more integrally and powerfully involved with every Pentagon decision on the annual $43-billion military procurement than Morris."

Thus, he said, the situation involves "a conflict of interest at its most vivid and conspicuous."

"Morris's decision to go with Litton is particularly offensive," the Senator declared, "because in the last full year of Morris's power as the Pentagon procurement boss, Litton's contracts jumped from $180 million in 1967 to $466 million in 1968 — a mammoth 250 per cent."

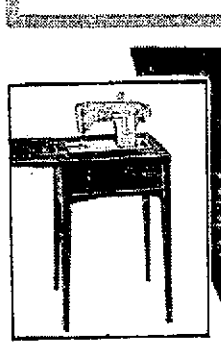

"So Morris's vice presidency of Litton can be viewed both as a payoff for the huge Pentagon business shifted to Litton in 1968 and as assurance of immense future influence for Litton."

Proxmire asked, "With Tom Morris coaching the Litton team, how objective will Morris's former subordinates be in deciding whether or not to give the big, profitable jobs to Litton?"

The senator said he is exploring the possibilities of some sort of legislation "to prevent this kind of massive-influence buying in the future."

Stolzberg Says Council's Position Alienates Campus

By BOB HOUSER
POLITICAL EDITOR

Saul Stolzberg, City Council candidate in the 2nd District, told a college audience that the present City Council's orientation "continues to alienate the campus from the community and creates an ever-growing barrier between the community and the college.

Speaking at the Political Open Forum at California State College at Long Beach, Stolzberg said that college "is the largest and most isolated, in relation to the community, of any college in the entire state system."

He said the college must be regarded as a real segment of the community and there must be mutual interest in working together to solve such serious problems as off campus housing, adequate parking, minority group housing for both students and faculty, and fraternity housing.

Stolzberg asked his audience when a councilman had ever "cared enough to come and speak with the students." He said, "The incumbent in the 2nd District has been in office for nine years yet he has not been concerned enough to visit the campus. It's time for the city to reach out to the campus."

He said it is also time for the campus people to become more involved with the community.

STEIN STATEMENT

Morton Stein, council candidate in the 3rd District, charged that the incumbent has offered no solutions for the Naples weekend parking problem.

He said the problem is caused mainly by nonresident boat owners. Naples pier owners, he noted, rent space in front of their homes for up to $2.50 per foot per month. Similar space at the Long Beach Marina costs 90 cents per foot.

"The incumbent has acknowledged that this problem does exist," said Stein, "but in three years on the City Council he has offered no solutions."

Stein did not propose a solution of his own.

COBB ON TAX, CHARTER

Steven D. Cobb, 3rd District Council candidate, explained details of his tax incentive program and for charter revision.

The tax incentive program, aimed at encouraging the upgrading of private property, especially rundown multiple rental properties, would eliminate an immediate increase in the owner's property tax assessment after he made improvements.

Cobb said the system could work on a sliding scale, with details to be worked out later. For example, an owner making $5,000 worth of improvements would escape any increase in assessed valuation for as long as he owned the property. From $5,000 to $10,000, the increase would be postponed for five years; and from $10,000 up, the increase would be delayed for one year.

Cobb said the incentive would result in a general upgrading of property citywide and a future increase in tax revenue citywide "without overloading a few individuals with the burden."

He said he also favors complete revision of the City Charter, criticizing the "city fathers failure to act for nine years." He said the revision chore should be assigned to a committee of concerned citizens.

Cobb said his proposals demonstrated the basics of his campaign— "to show the people that their government is working with their interest in mind, and second, to bring the public into active roles in their government."

Leggy Alaskan Overcomes as Wellesley Hoops Roll

WELLESLEY, Mass. (AP) — A leggy 21-year-old from Fairbanks, Alaska, Jennifer Cook, won Saturday's 75th annaual HOOP Rolling race for Wellesley College seniors.

By tradition, Jennifer wins the honor of being the first in her class to marry, but her plans for the summer call for her to serve as photographer on a team which will climb Canada's 19,850-foot Mt. Logan.

Jennifer, a history major, wearing track shoes, edged out about 100 other girls, plus what a college official called "The usual Harvard man."

"You know, in disguise as a girl, and the girls discovered him and threw him into Lake Waban. This has been going on since 1942, when the first Harvard man ran in the race," said the spokesman.

WRONG AIRPORT

Landing Plane Misses Runway by Eight Miles

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — "It's better than going to Havana," commented Karen Boesenberg of Chicago, one of 93 passengers aboard a jetliner that landed at the wrong airport.

Another, James Groat of Fort Lauderdale, groaned: "When we can hit the moon, and can't hit the airport!"

The Northwest Airlines Boeing 727 trijet landed at a small airfield Friday night instead of the large Fort Lauderdale-Hollywood International Airport, eight miles away.

Passengers said a copilot landed the craft while the captain, Richard Robbins of Minneapolis, was trying to calm a woman aboard who had become hysterical. They said she was running through the aisle screaming and trying to open an emergency door.

A federal Aviation Agency spokesman said the plane had been offered radar guidance into the Fort Lauderdale-Hollywood port. "He (the pilot) said he had the airport in sight, and we let him go," he added.

The 129,000-pound craft landed on a 6,000-foot runway at Executive Airport. The tower was unmanned, but the runways were lighted.

The passengers on Flight 716, Minneapolis-St. Louis to Miami with a stopover at Chicago and another scheduled at Fort Lauderdale, continued to their destinations in taxicabs and buses with their baggage.

Without its load, the jetliner made a perfect takeoff from the short runway Saturday and flew to Miami.

Robbins declined to comment. Neither would Northwest officials discuss the incident.

Florida SOS Heard in Arizona; 3 Saved

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The distress message was from Arizona. A boat was sinking in Florida, it said.

From 2,000 miles away, a ham radio operator guided the rescue.

L. W. Oehlbeck of Lenoi, N.C., and two friends were cruising in a 40-foot cabin cruiser on the St. Johns River when the luxury craft slammed into a log. The log tore a gaping hole in the hull. The boat started to sink.

Oehlbeck turned to his radio to summon aid.

"I tried to use the regular boat channels," he said. "But the airways were crowded and no one would let me on the air. I kept repeating 'Mayday! Mayday!' Someone who was on the air heard me and asked the fellow he was talking to, 'What does mayday mean?'"

Oehlbeck switched on his pumps, but they couldn't keep pace with the river water gushing in through the hole. Oehlbeck turned toward shore to run the vessel aground. Then he switched to a citizens radio band and again pleaded for help.

In Mesa, Ariz., ham operator Mark Ewart picked up the signal. He telephoned the Arizona Highway Patrol. The patrol flashed a teletype message to the Jacksonville Police Department. And in Jacksonville another telephone call sent a Coast Guard boat flying to Oehlbeck's aid.

"I knew someone heard me and was answering," Oehlbeck said. "But I couldn't understand them very well and had no idea where they were." Police said freak atmospheric conditions on Friday apparently caused the citizen band radio signals — normally only good for a few miles—to skip to Arizona.

Crash Kills Six Flying for Holiday

WHITESBORO, Tex. (AP) — Six McDonnell Douglas Aircraft company employes heading for a weekend reunion with their families in Texas died in a plane crash, investigators found Saturday when a Whitesboro resident discovered the plane.

The Air Rescue Service at Kansas City said the six were flying from St. Louis to Dallas or Fort Worth.

All resided in North Texas cities near major aircraft and space industries.

The air traffic supervisor at the Lambert-St. Louis airfield said the plane left at 6:45 p.m. Friday.

The wrist watches of all six had stopped at 9:40 p.m.

The plane was flattened so badly by the fall that only a tiny piece of white tail could be seen from the nearby highway in a field of wheat four feet tall.

Facts You Should Know About Diamonds

"Are Diamonds a good investment?" We have learned that diamonds are the most precious of all gems, that precious gems have historically had the tradition of being valuable solely because they are precious gems. When paper money and coinage came into existence, people still treasured precious gems and precious metals. For example, coins were made of gold, a precious metal. Paper money was redeemable in gold. This philosophy of precious metal backing the value of coins and paper is still with us today.

Why else is the entire world faced with the problem of gold — like our own government? We are concerned with our gold drain, from our government's treasury to a foreign country.

But gold has one major drawback — it is exceedingly heavy and bulky. It is exceedingly difficult to move a million dollars of gold.

On the other hand, one can place a million dollars worth of precious gems in your pocket. The complete mobility of precious gems, easily transportable with no effort as they are relatively weightless in comparison to their value, increase their value.

The major difficulty with coins is that they are like gold, for to be valuable, they must contain gold. So, valuable coins are heavy and difficult to transport.

The major difficulty with paper money is that it is backed by the government that issues it. Paper money is subject to inflation, deflation, devaluation, etc. as we are all too well aware of.

Remember, it is MOTHER'S DAY, next Sunday and nothing could be better than a gift of a precious gem.

BEACH COMBING

MALCOLM EPLEY

A COUPLE of years ago I had a paper to do for the Torch Club, a society of professional people here, and selected as my subject the influence of incumbency in California elections.

In the course of thought and research, I got into the matter of limiting the consecutive terms a California governor can serve. The more I pondered it, the better I thought of the idea.

So I finished my thesis with a plug for a two-term constitutional limitation on the governorship, comparable to the present limitation on Presidential terms.

SUCH A PROPOSAL is now before the Legislature, with the backing of Gov. Reagan. I think it is a proposition that should be given to the people as a constitutional amendment for their determination.

The bill has not created any great excitement at the moment, but a strong showing of public interest could bring it to the front.

There's enough to be said in favor of the proposal to justify clear-cut consideratioon and decision.

BASICALLY, of course, the justification for limitation lies in the fact the vast powers of the California governorship carry the potentials for political entrenchment and self-perpetuation.

Assemblyman Craig Biddle, who was a sponsor of the movement when it first started in the Legislature, said: "We simply feel that eight years is long enough for one man to hold the office. While we didn't make the proposal because of the limits on the presidency, many of the basic reasons apply in both situations.

THE APPOINTIVE powers of the California governor are so extensive that when I asked at Sacramento for the number of appointments he could make in a year or a term, nobody could come up with a definite answer. There were too many to count.

A review of the Senate journal shows the appointments have increased steadily over the years. The Legislature creates new agencies, boards, etc., and often the bill calls for gubernatorial appointments, originally or to fill vacancies.

It is not merely the number of appointments that is significant. Many appointments, such as for judicial positions and the state board of university regents, are for long terms or for situations where incumbency, once the appointment is made, is almost certain to keep the appointee in office indefinitely.

Thus a governor's political and, or philosophical influence can live long after he has been repudiated at the polls. Eight years of making such profound impact should be long enough for any one man.

THERE'S AMPLE precedent for limitation of gubernatorial re-eligibility. At the time I wrote my paper, I found that 24 states limit the terms of their governors. In 15 of these, the constitution forbids the governor succeeding himself. In the others, the limit is two consecutive terms.

Evidently, states with the rule like it. Since 1880, no state, having imposed limits on re-eligibility of its governor, had abandoned limitation.

Californians who think this one over, and come to a conclusion like mine, may want to inform their legislators that they'd like to see our state follow the lead of others who have found this form of restraint on political power desirable.

Jobs Scarce For Summer Work Program

By CHARLES SUTTON
Staff Writer

Long Beach's annual summer work program for young people is getting off to a shaky start this year. The problem: not enough jobs on the horizon.

"Frankly," says a job coordinator for the city school system, "I'm pessimistic."

If Ronald Detrick's sentiment sounds curiously familiar, it's because the summer program — now officially in its third year — has never had an easy time of it in Long Beach. Applicants have always far outnumbered openings.

And this year shouldn't be any different, officials say — except possibly that it may be worse than last year, and the year before.

"There's no question we'll be inundated with youths looking for work," says Tony Mazur, placement supervisor for the city's Youth Opportunity Center, an arm of the State Department of Employment.

"If we have 5,000 students graduating this June, it's logical to assume there'll be 5,000 more who are a year behind and aren't graduating; and I'd venture to say about 75 per cent of the total will be looking for work this summer," he adds.

Roughly speaking, then, there may be something like 7,500 youngsters flooding the job market this summer, a good number of them looking for permanent work.

Many, of course, will be looking on their own, and should have little trouble finding work. But for large numbers of others — particularly in the poor and minority communities — the going will be tougher. And they're the ones the summer campaign will focus on, officials say.

Last year, 2,000 young people — most of them poor or otherwise disadvantaged — were placed in a variety of government and private jobs; and this year the hope is to put 3,000 to work.

But if the hope is there, the certainty isn't. In addition to the widespread feeling that business firms in the city may not be able to supply enough jobs, there's a fear that government-funded programs may not produce as many slots as last year.

The uneasiness is especially noticeable in the city school system, where, last year, a program subsidized by the State Department of Education gave 125 socially or economically disadvantaged youngsters a chance to work 20 hours a week and attend classes the other 20. This year, there's been no word from the state on whether the work-study program will be renewed.

School officials are reasonably confident, though, that funds will be available for 400 jobs in the Neighborhood Youth Corps program. That would equal last year's youth corps allotment to the schools.

The city's antipoverty program is expected to get about $140,000 from the federal government for the summer, but the number of jobs will depend on plans being drafted by the Mayor's Youth Council.

"The kids will determine a lot of their own programs," explains Charles Eure of the anti-poverty agency, the Economic Opportunitites Commission. "They may decide to put more money into recreation than the agency did last year."

In 1968, the poverty agency sponsored 325 summer jobs.

The Long Beach Naval Shipyard is expected to provide jobs for 170 this summer, and other government installations in the area are slated to supply some others.

"But if we're going to get help this year," declares Detrick, "it's going

CSLB Plans to Reorganize on Wide Scale

By RALPH HINMAN JR.
Education Editor

California State College at Long Beach may undergo in coming months a massive reorganization touching almost every aspect of campus life.

Details of these potential changes on "the Hill" are contained in an 18-page recommendation prepared by a faculty-administrative "Committee on the Organization of the College."

Approved almost unanimously by the committee-appointing Academic Senate, the document urges that:

—Student affairs — including disciplinary questions — receive needed additional emphasis;

—State's six schools be given more real autonomy — and responsibility for their actions;

—Central administrative functions be completely overhauled, along with creation of a new "office of the president";

—Steps be taken to further involve students, faculty and administrators in making policy, those rules by which the college lives;

—Methods be set in motion to make possible an "orderly consideration, adoption and dissemination of policy" by and to all segments of the college community.

Some phases may be immediately implemented, says Dr. David E. Gray, committee chairman and associate dean of the applied arts and sciences school. Others will require prior approval from Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke or additional state funds.

He believes it possible under present rules to move quickly on policy points and in strengthening the schools. Administrative changes, however, needs the chancellor's OK, and more state money needs be allocated to add five or six new positions — including a currently nonexistent vice president — to the staff.

Most administrative and other changes involve rearranging or upgrading today's job slots, notes Gray.

In essence the plan proposes for State a "federal system" roughly comparable to the U.S. government's basic structure.

AT THE TOP is a new "office of the president" presided over by the chief executive. His immediate subordinates would be an executive vice president,

LONG BEACH CIVIL LIBERTARIAN OF THE YEAR NAMED

'CIVIL LIBERTARIAN OF YEAR'

Attorney Griffin Honored

By TONY CILLO
Staff Writer

Attorney Tom Griffin was named Long Beach Civil Libertarian of the Year and actor James Whitmore termed Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty "irresponsible" during the third annual garden party of the Long Beach Chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union Saturday.

Griffin, who received the award from Long Beach Municipal Court presiding Judge Charles S. Litwin, was described as a cooperating attorney with ACLU and was lauded for "dedicated service to the cause of civil rights."

Whitmore, a member of the ACLU for 28 years, was to discuss the civil rights organization to an expected audience of 200 persons at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Franklin Waters.

During a press conference, Whitmore — admittedly a Tom Bradley supporter through speeches and fund donations — indicated a "bright spot" in the country's future would be the election of Bradley as chief executive of Los Angeles.

Asked about the race issue in the mayoralty contest, Whitmore reflected it would be decided by average citizens. Earlier, he remarked, however, "If Bradley were white, he'd win hands down."

On the ACLU role on campus turmoil he said:

"Basically (it is to) try to point out in this time — a very passionate time for everybody — it is a time when we must assiduously observe the rules of fair play . . . and proceed in a responsible, fashion."

He said the ACLU is "totally misunderstood" by those who might be "afraid" of it. Some might say the organization is "defending a Nazi," he observed and added strongly, " . . . strongly in negation, ". . . We're defending a man's right to a fair trial."

Asked about charges that the communications media — television, radio, newspapers for example — contribute to today's problems, Whitmore paused a moment and answered, "They're culpable as charged."

"They're in another business," he added. "They're in show business. I have no panacea for the problem."

Suit Shocks Candidates in Compton Vote

By BILL HOMER
Staff Writer

Three candidates running for office in Tuesday's Compton city election Saturday responded with shock and dismay over being named defendants in a suit charging them with violations of the federal Hatch Act.

Douglas Dollarhide, candidate for mayor, Lionel Cade, running for a city council seat, and city clerk candidate Mrs. Esther Jackson said they were mystified at being named defendants in a suit by Robert Moseley.

Also charged in the suit were Rep. Augustus Hawkins and three members of the Compton-Willowbrook-Enterprise Community Action Agency.

MOSELEY'S suit contended letters of endorsement by Hawkins for Dollarhide, Cade and Mrs. Jackson were prepared by Action Agency employes, and that this was in violation of the Hatch Act, which prohibits federal employes from participating in politics during working hours.

Also named as defendants in the suit were Father Llewellyn Williams, of the Action Agency's board of directors, Leroy Hayes, its executive director, and Harvey Howard, its manpower project director.

Superior Court Judge Richard Schauer issued a temporary restraining order Friday barring further distribution of Hawkins' letter of endorsement pending a hearing May 12.

"I know nothing about the preparation of the congressman's mail, but was very happy to receive his endorsement," Dollarhide said.

"I think it's a pretty tricky game he (Moseley) is playing and that he's playing it for publicity. He's supporting the opposition candidates in the election, and I think that's what's behind this suit."

MRS. JACKSON'S reaction to the Moseley suit was somewhat stronger.

"That is ridiculous," she

Emergency Unit for San Pedro

A dispute between Los Angeles city officials and San Pedro Community Hospital over emergency medical care appeared heading toward solution Saturday.

New facilities at the hospital for which ground is scheduled to be broken next April are expected to provide enough space for "A large and fully equipped emergency unit . . .," according to an undated letter by the president of the hospital's board of directors.

". . . PLANNING IS now in its final stages and we 'go to bid' in August of this year, with ground breaking to begin, we believe, in April of 1970," board president Leonard M. Fenton said in the letter to members of the San Pedro Community Hospital Corporation.

"At last six years ago (the) board examined the possibility of tacking 35 beds on to the present structure, but gradually arrived . . . at our present plan to expand from 135 to 250 beds with expansion of all ancilliary facilities," the letter stated.

"The new facility, with complete remodeling of the present hospital, will carry a large and fully equipped emergency unit, upon completion of which we will negotiate a full emergency contract with

CSLB MILE-A-THON SATURDAY

The first workshop on jogging and fitness was held Saturday at the men's gymnasium at California State College, Long Beach.

The program, a kick-off for next Saturday's annual Mile-a-Thon at CSLB, featured seminars on subjects including jogging methods and precautions, protecting and preventing injuries to the back and body fat vs. body weight.

Participants were also given a chance to test themselves on physical condition.

Part of the program required that those taking part have their medical clearance for the Fifth Annual Mile-a-Thon International.

Others wishing to participate will require a release and medical report. Forms are available at Mile-a-Thon International headquarters at Long Beach Community Hospital, the event's sponsor. Forms must be turned in before the run.

Doors to the gymnasium open at 8:30 a.m. and the run will begin at 9.

Participants will be able to run on courses ranging from one to ten miles. According to Dr. Richard C. Steiner, president of Mile-a-Thon, participants will compete only with themselves. He described the event as "a run, not a race."

Completing the program will be a talk by Dr. Kenneth H. Cooper, the Air Force physician whose book "Aerobics" is credited with making jogging popular.

BEACH COMBING

MALCOLM EPLEY

A COUPLE of years ago I had a paper to do for the Torch Club, a society of professional people here, and selected as my subject the influence of incumbency in California elections.

In the course of thought and research, I got into the matter of limiting the consecutive terms a California governor can serve. The more I pondered it, the better I thought of the idea.

So I finished my thesis with a plug for a two-term constitutional limitation on the governorship, comparable to the present limitation on Presidential terms.

SUCH A PROPOSAL is now before the Legislature, with the backing of Gov. Reagan. I think it is a proposition that should be given to the people as a constitutional amendment for their determination.

The bill has not created any great excitement at the moment, but a strong showing of public interest could bring it to the front.

There's enough to be said in favor of the proposal to justify clear-cut consideratioon and decision.

BASICALLY, of course, the justification for limitation lies in the fact the vast powers of the California governorship carry the potentials for political entrenchment and self-perpetuation.

Assemblyman Craig Biddle, who was a sponsor of the movement when it first started in the Legislature, said: "We simply feel that eight years is long enough for one man to hold the office. While we didn't make the proposal because of the limits on the presidency, many of the basic reasons apply in both situations.

THE APPOINTIVE powers of the California governor are so extensive that when I asked at Sacramento for the number of appointments he could make in a year or a term, nobody could come up with a definite answer. There were too many to count.

A review of the Senate journal shows the appointments have increased steadily over the years. The Legislature creates new agencies, boards, etc., and often the bill calls for gubernatorial appointments, originally or to fill vacancies.

It is not merely the number of appointments that is significant. Many appointments, such as for judicial positions and the state board of university regents, are for long terms or for situations where incumbency, once the appointment is made, is almost certain to keep the appointee in office indefinitely.

Thus a governor's political and or philosophical influence can live long after he has been repudiated at the polls. Eight years of making such profound impact should be long enough for any one man.

THERE'S AMPLE precedent for limitation of gubernatorial re-eligibility.

At the time I wrote my paper, I found that 24 states limit the terms of their governors. In 15 of these, the constitution forbids the governor succeeding himself. In the others, the limit is two consecutive terms.

Evidently, states with the rule like it. Since 1880, no state, having imposed limits on re-eligibility of its governor, had abandoned limitation.

Californians who think this one over, and come to a conclusion like mine, may want to inform their legislators that they'd like to see our state follow the lead of others who have found this form of restraint on political power desirable.

Jobs Scarce For Summer Work Program

By CHARLES SUTTON
Staff Writer

Long Beach's annual summer work program for young people is getting off to a shaky start this year. The problem: not enough jobs on the horizon.

"Frankly," says a job coordinator for the city school system, "I'm pessimistic."

If Ronald Detrick's sentiment sounds curiously familiar, it's because the summer program — now officially in its third year — has never had an easy time of it in Long Beach. Applicants have always far outnumbered openings.

And this year shouldn't be any different, officials say — except possibly that it may be worse than last year, and the year before.

"There's no question we'll be inundated with youths looking for work," says Tony Mazur, placement supervisor for the city's Youth Opportunity Center, an arm of the State Department of Employment.

"If we have 5,000 students graduating this June, it's logical to assume there'll be 5,000 more who are a year behind and aren't graduating; and I'd venture to say about 75 per cent of the total will be looking for work this summer," he adds.

Roughly speaking, then, there may be something like 7,500 youngsters flooding the job market this summer, a good number of them looking for permanent work.

Many, of course, will be looking on their own, and should have little trouble finding work. But for large numbers of others — particularly in the poor and minority communities — the going will be tougher. And they're the ones the summer campaign will focus on, officials say.

Last year, 2,000 young people — most of them poor or otherwise disadvantaged — were placed in a variety of government and private jobs; and this year the hope is to put 3,000 to work.

But if the hope is there, the certainty isn't. In addition to the widespread feeling that business firms in the city may not be able to supply enough jobs, there's a fear that government-funded programs may not produce as many slots as last year.

The uneasiness is especially noticeable in the city school system, where, last year, a program subsidized by the State Department of Education gave 125 socially or economically disadvantaged youngsters a chance to work 20 hours a week and attend classes the other 20. This year, there's been no word from the state on whether the work-study program will be renewed.

School officials are reasonably confident, though, that funds will be available for 400 jobs in the Neighborhood Youth Corps program. That would equal last year's youth corps allotment to the schools.

The city's antipoverty program is expected to get about $140,000 from the federal government for the summer, but the number of jobs will depend on plans being drafted by the Mayor's Youth Council.

"The kids will determine a lot of their own programs," explains Charles Eure of the anti-poverty agency, the Economic Opportunitites Commission. "They may decide to put more money into recreation than the agency did last year."

In 1968, the poverty agency sponsored 325 summer jobs.

The Long Beach Naval Shipyard is expected to provide jobs for 170 this summer, and other government installations in the area are slated to supply some others.

"But if we're going to get help this year," declares Detrick, "it's going

CSLB Plans to Reorganize on Wide Scale

By RALPH HINMAN JR.
Education Editor

California State College at Long Beach may undergo in coming months a massive reorganization touching almost every aspect of campus life.

Details of these potential changes on "the Hill" are contained in an 18-page recommendation prepared by a faculty-administrative "Committee on the Organization of the College."

Approved almost unanimously by the committee-appointing Academic Senate, the document urges that:

—Student affairs — including disciplinary questions — receive needed additional emphasis;

—State's six schools be given more real autonomy — and responsibility for their actions;

—Central administrative functions be completely overhauled, along with creation of a new "office of the president";

—Steps be taken to further involve students, faculty and administrators in making policy, those rules by which the college lives;

—Methods be set in motion to make possible an "orderly consideration, adoption and dissemination of policy" by and to all segments of the college community.

Some phases may be immediately implemented, says Dr. David E. Gray, committee chairman and associate dean of the applied arts and sciences school. Others will require prior approval from Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke or additional state funds.

He believes it possible under present rules to move quickly on policy points and in strengthening the schools. Administrative changes, however, needs the chancellor's OK, and more state money needs be allocated to add five or six new positions — including a currently nonexistent vice president — to the staff.

Most administrative and other changes involve rearranging or upgrading today's job slots, notes Gray.

In essence the plan proposes for State a "federal system" roughly comparable to the U.S. government's basic structure.

AT THE TOP is a new "office of the president" presided over by the chief executive. His immediate subordinates would be an executive vice president,

'CIVIL LIBERTARIAN OF YEAR'

Attorney Griffin Honored

By TONY CILLO
Staff Writer

Attorney Tom Griffin was named Long Beach Civil Libertarian of the Year and actor James Whitmore termed Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty "irresponsible" during the third annual garden party of the Long Beach Chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union Saturday.

Griffin, who received the award from Long Beach Municipal Court presiding Judge Charles S. Litwin, was described as a cooperating attorney with ACLU and was lauded for "dedicated service to the cause of civil rights."

Whitmore, a member of the ACLU for 28 years, was to discuss the civil rights organization to an expected audience of 200 persons at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Franklin Waters.

During a press conference, Whitmore — admittedly a Tom Bradley supporter through speeches and fund donations — indicated a "bright spot" in the country's future would be the election of Bradley as chief executive of Los Angeles.

Asked about the race issue in the mayoralty contest, Whitmore reflected it would be decided by average citizens. Earlier, he remarked, however, "If Bradley were white, he'd win hands down."

On the ACLU role on campus turmoil he said:

"Basically (it is to) try to point out in this time — a very passionate time for everybody — it is a time when we must assiduously observe the rules of fair play . . . and proceed in a responsible, fashion."

He said the ACLU is "totally misunderstood" by those who might be "afraid" of it. Some might say the organization is "defending a Nazi," he observed and added strongly, " . . . strongly in negation, ". . . We're defending a man's right to a fair trial."

Asked about charges that the communications media — television, radio, newspapers for example — contribute to today's problems, Whitmore paused a moment and answered, "They're culpable as charged."

"They're in another business," he added. "They're in show business. I have no panacea for the problem."

Suit Shocks Candidates in Compton Vote

By BILL HOMER
Staff Writer

Three candidates running for office in Tuesday's Compton city election Saturday responded with shock and dismay over being named defendants in a suit charging them with violations of the federal Hatch Act.

Douglas Dollarhide, candidate for mayor, Lionel Cade, running for a city council seat, and city clerk candidate Mrs. Esther Jackson said they were mystified at being named defendants in a suit by Robert Moseley.

Also charged in the suit were Rep. Augustus Hawkins and three members of the Compton-Willowbrook-Enterprise Community Action Agency.

MOSELEY'S suit contended letters of endorsement by Hawkins for Dollarhide, Cade and Mrs. Jackson were prepared by Action Agency employes, and that this was in violation of the Hatch Act, which prohibits federal employes from participating in politics during working hours.

Also named as defendants in the suit were Father Llewellyn Williams, of the Action Agency's board of directors, Leroy Hayes, its executive director, and Harvey Howard, its manpower project director.

Superior Court Judge Richard Schauer issued a temporary restraining order Friday barring further distribution of Hawkins' letter of endorsement pending a hearing May 12.

"I know nothing about the preparation of the congressman's mail, but was very happy to receive his endorsement," Dollarhide said.

"I think it's a pretty tricky game he (Moseley) is playing and that he's playing it for publicity. He's supporting the opposition candidates in the election, and I think that's what's behind this suit."

MRS. JACKSON'S reaction to the Moseley suit was somewhat stronger.

"That is ridiculous," she

Emergency Unit for San Pedro

A dispute between Los Angeles city officials and San Pedro Community Hospital over emergency medical care appeared heading toward solution Saturday.

New facilities at the hospital for which ground is scheduled to be broken next April are expected to provide enough space for "A large and fully equipped emergency unit . . ." according to an undated letter by the president of the hospital's board of directors.

". . . PLANNING IS now in its final stages and we 'go to bid' in August of this year, with ground breaking to begin, we believe, in April of 1970," board president Leonard M. Fenton said in the letter to members of the San Pedro Community Hospital Corporation.

"At last six years ago (the) board examined the possibility of tacking 35 beds on to the present structure, but gradually arrived . . . at our present plan to expand from 135 to 250 beds with expansion of all ancilliary facilities," the letter stated.

"The new facility, with complete remodeling of the present hospital, will carry a large and fully equipped emergency unit, upon completion of which we will negotiate a full emergency contract with

CSLB MILE-A-THON SATURDAY

The first workshop on jogging and fitness was held Saturday at the men's gymnasium at California State College, Long Beach.

The program, a kick-off for next Saturday's annual Mile-a-Thon at CSLB, featured seminars on subjects including jogging methods and precautions, protecting and preventing injuries to the back and body fat vs. body weight.

Participants were also given a chance to test themselves on physical condition.

Part of the program required that those taking part have their medical clearance for the Fifth Annual Mile-a-Thon International.

Others wishing to participate will require a release and medical report. Forms are available at Mile-a-Thon International headquarters at Long Beach Community Hospital, the event's sponsor. Forms must be turned in before the run.

Doors to the gymnasium open at 8:30 a.m. and the run will begin at 9.

Participants will be able to run on courses ranging from one to ten miles. According to Dr. Richard C. Steiner, president of Mile-a-Thon, participants will compete only with themselves. He described the event as "a run, not a race."

Completing the program will be a talk by Dr. Kenneth H. Cooper, the Air Force physician whose book "Aerobics" is credited with making jogging popular.

Nixon opens his thoughts to the public

NOT ONLY women should have the right to change their minds — so should presidents.

Often our national leaders have blindly followed policy paths laid down publicly even though a wiser course might have dictated a new direction. Some presidents, in fact, have been mighty bullheaded about changing their views.

President Nixon so far has shown a commendable flexibility of viewpoint and has not been afraid to expose his changes of mind to the public.

WHILE RUNNING for office Mr. Nixon did not hide his dislike of the 10 per cent surtax on incomes. But after assuming office, he agreed the surtax should remain in effect. Just a couple of weeks ago he modified that stand and asked for a phased reduction in the tax.

Again in his campaign, Mr. Nixon advocated increased federal support for research in university and college graduate schools.

And yet this week the President circulated and endorsed the views of Michigan Prof. S. J. Tonsor to the effect that government should forego "easy recourse" to university research facilities and instead rely on other institutions.

Why Mr. Nixon has changed his views on this subject has not been explained but it is reasonable to assume that he has noted the rising opposition to war-related research on the campus.

IN ANOTHER somewhat related area the President not only changed his views but admitted at a White House meeting that he had been wrong — an almost unprecedented action by a chief executive.

The "error" Mr. Nixon admitted had to do with his intended appointment of Dr. Franklin A. Long as head of the National Science Foundation. At an April 18 news conference Mr. Nixon had said he was not going to nominate Long, after all, because of Long's opposition to the anti-ballistic missile program. This week the President reversed his field, offered the job to Long and emphasized that he now feels the foundation and its director should be dealt with as nonpolitical and nonpartisan.

THE FACT THAT Professor Long refused the new offer because he did not want the controversial case reopened should not detract from the value of the President's action.

There was a hard lesson to be learned from the "credibility gap" which developed in the Johnson Administration. Mr. Nixon is following an "open administration" policy and the willingness of his officials to discuss public issues has been evident. The opening of his own mental processes to public view may be the best move Mr. Nixon could make toward restoring confidence in the operation of government!

Now Stalin's a good guy

WITHOUT BENEFIT of elections, the Soviet Union does manage to change details of "political philosophy" from time to time. Occasionally, as in two recent instances, the results are startling.

One of these is the rehabilitation of the late Josef Stalin. Since 1956 Russian dogma for internal consumption has downgraded Stalin both as military strategist and as national hero.

THE MONTHLY publication Kommunist, issued by the Central Committee, now erases Nikita Khrushchev's version of history and describes Stalin as an "outstanding military leader."

Somewhere in the Kremlin the wheels turned and the equivalent of a new behind-the-scenes administration prevailed. No outsider can be sure of the purposes or the consequences. One conjecture is that the archtype of Soviet ruthlessness was rescued from disgrace to intimidate Russia's allies in their current rebellious mood.

The Communist party newspaper Pravda reveals another policy line of the new administration in its campaign against "employed idlers" in the government-run economy.

IN AMERICAN slang, these are goof-offs. For its part, Pravda stoutly endorses the official posters demanding "a rise in labor productivity and a strengthening of work discipline."

The Moscow daily does not add the ominous phrase, "or else." It does lament the bureaucratic rules which protect workers. And since pitiless Josef Stalin is being disinterred and cleaned up, the rulers of the workers' paradise shouldn't have much trouble getting their message across.

Wages of violence—just more problems

JERUSALEM — There is perhaps no better place than Jerusalem to contemplate the creed of violence. Not only the ancient history of the capital of faiths but its daily life today show what violence can and cannot achieve for human inspiration.

Not long ago, in New Haven, a young Yale faculty member was defending the concept of student violence and black power violence. He used the now familiar argument that it is positive, even when it provokes more repression. "It's the only way to break through the suffocating social crust," he said, "the only way to launch change. It works. Look at Algeria and Israel. They had to start with violence and terrorism. They made it. Look at them now."

FLORA LEWIS

ALGERIA I had to point out, is in a sorry state, half its labor force unemployed, its people listless and gloomy, its tattered economy limping along only on the crutch of subsidy from France. That might be called independence, but it isn't the surging spirit, the progressive energy, the release from lethargy and self-doubt into beneficial change that indulgence in violence is supposed to give the victims of repression, according to the theory.

One can't help wondering what the apostle of "purifying" violence, the late Frantz Fanon, would say if he saw his country now. His young heroes, who did indeed draw spirit from assaulting the mighty French, are moody, bitter men, aware that they aren't getting anything useful done. They brood, without comprehension, on the question of why their passion that magically defeated an imperial power does not with equal magic build their country. Their faith in violence paralyzes them when it comes to hard, quiet labor.

AND ISRAEL. No one can say what might have been. Doubtless, Britain would have left Palestine by now in its general discarding of colonies and empire, whether or not there had been terrorism. Possibly, a more peaceable birth would have allowed the 21-year-old Jewish state to grow up in less hostile relations with its neighbors instead of living, as it does and must for the foreseeable future, as an embattled garrison.

If the ennobling, energizing theory of violence is true, it must also be true for the Arabs as well as for the Jews. Many Arabs think so, and proudly announce that they are going to follow it — "for generations if necessary, time doesn't matter. Nations rise and fall. We are weakened by the centuries of colonialism. Our time to rise again is coming," an elder Palestinian told me.

So far, violence has brought the Arabs nothing but calamitous loss. It has been grievous for the Israelis too, but nonetheless they have flourished and prospered. Does the theory discriminate by race and religion in conferring favors?

THE ANSWER is evident in Israel. It wasn't the use of violence that brought strength and health here. It was two quite different things: one was the development of a clear and concrete goal focusing not so much on what was to be overthrown but on what was to be built; the second was the acceptance of an austere discipline devoted to the goal, eschewing self-indulgence on the thrill of conflict for its own sake.

There is and will be violence nevertheless, even if everybody comes to understand this, because men have conflicting goals. But the violence doesn't really promote strength. Even when it's inevitable, it causes at least as many problems as it solves and usually more.

A visit to Algeria and to the Holy Land to ponder the principle of programmed violence might be enlightening for student and black militants. When it comes to serious, sustained test, their theory just doesn't work out the way they think it does.

In harness the boo may have a place

IF THERE WERE no such thing as a boo, it would have had to be invented. For the simple reason that silence is seldom a satisfactory reaction to outrageous behavior or utterances, especially in the context of a crowd watching a single event or single speaker.

Not that it's a part of human nature we should exalt — or even be proud of — but simply that man should not lose all his capacity for indignation.

I defend the boo — while personally despising it — because of the lack of suitable device, other than silence, for an audience to use to register its collective opinion. However, I would commend to all dissenters the "harnessed boo."

BOB HOUSER

This is a ground-rule boo. You may use it and your speaker is notified he may expect it. But the boo, once booed, must promptly be cut off and the speaker allowed to continue his thought. He must be allowed to make his entire presentation. The pause for booing must be respected by him as you must yield to his right to speak.

GRANTED THE boo is boorish, discourteous and primitive. How else, in political dialogue, may a protagonist assess the reception of his ideas? Applause for agreement, the harnessed boo for disagreement.

This far-out comment is triggered by the well-reasoned essay of Lakewood's Mayor Mark W. Hannaford, written in response to Democratic Women's Forum president Hope M. Schechter, who deplored the use of "verbal abuse and shouts of derision" against Democratic National Committeewoman Carmen Warschaw at a mid-April party convention in Sacramento.

I was there and it was a bad scene. It seemed that Mrs. Warschaw was actually bullied from the podium, after only a few remarks, because of the persistence of the boos and shouting. The delegates were communicating their anger at her endorsement of L.A. Mayor Sam Yorty.

HANNAFORD'S VIEW: "There is room in the Democratic Party for every shade of opinion . . . This involves often saying that which is unpopular. Quite often it involves giving a long and patient hearing to many things that are absolute nonsense because every thought needs to be tested in the 'market place of ideas.'

"And so those of us who understand and cherish the meaning of freedom, those of us of long experience and responsible position — we have for years listened patiently to much that was manifestly nonsense. As in panning for gold, we have sifted some grains of ideas from it all. Our party councils have often been turbulent because when youth gives birth to that which it perceives to be an idea, it is often a painful birth, emotional and frenzied.

". . . There is no place in our party councils for anyone who would deny another, any other, the right to speak and be heard. It is not only illiberal, it is subversive, it is authoritarian; and the party of liberalism must put a stop to it.

"At any party conclave, the leadership should make their position clear at the outset, that every speaker is to be heard with equal patience and that whoever would subvert that necessary element in the democratic process would be ejected posthaste."

'Guess who . . .'

Hunger can be handled now

AMERICA has tough problems such as slums, illiteracy and poverty, which have been generations in the making and which will require many years and billions of dollars to solve. But we have one very basic and critical problem that can be taken care of — now — and that is the feeding of the poor and hungry in this land of plenty.

Recent investigations show there are over 10 million chronically hungry people in our country. Many others live on substandard diets of beans, grits or tortillas — children in these families seldom see milk or meat on their table.

Protein and iron deficiences have been found in many poor children, and the resulting brain damage and vulnerability to disease cripples or kills many of these babies before they can stand on their own two feet.

OUR current government food programs reach only one out of every five poor people.

Is it that we don't have the food? No.

Is it that we can't afford to feed our hungry? No.

Is it that we don't have the means to distribute the food? No.

Is it that food growers and processors don't want to help? No.

What is wrong is that in the past 35 years we have worried more about overflowing granaries and stockpiles of milk, butter, poultry and meat than about our hungry people.

We send billions of dollars worth of food overseas under our Food for Peace program. But, because of bureaucratic bickering and a lack of both federal and local initiative, we have allowed hunger and malnutrition to become part of the poverty cycle in our own country.

We now have three federal programs to feed the hungry.

The Commodity Distribution program, set up in 1935, gives surplus food to needy families. This program reaches about three million of our poor, but does not provide these families with a well-balanced diet.

The Food Stamp program, originally set up in 1939, allows poor families to buy bonus stamps which can be spent in food stores. This program reaches two million people.

HUBERT HUMPHREY

The school lunch program provides about $1 in federal funds for each $3 in state and local funds to help provide free school lunches for poor children. The program reaches about two million children, but many schools in poor areas do not have cafeterias or do not take part in the program.

COUNTIES take part in either the commodity or food stamp program at their own initiative. Over a third of our poorest counties take part in neither program.

These food programs are administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the agriculture committees in Congress, which traditionally have been primarily concerned with farm income. But hunger is a human crisis. The emphasis must be put on feeding the hungry.

The Commodity Distribution program is inefficient and it carries the stigma of the welfare dole. It should be a supplemental program.

What is needed is a greatly expanded Food Stamp program run by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Free food stamps should be made available to families with little or no income. The cash requirements for other poor families should be sharply reduced.

Where local government is unwilling to act, the federal government should step in, set eligibility requirements, and run the Food Stamp program.

We should make it easier for poor people to buy food stamps. Under the present program, there is often only one food stamp office in a county, and the poor must buy their entire month's supply of stamps at one time.

THERE IS no reason why food stamps cannot be sold in every post office, and during every week of the month.

Newspapers and radio and television stations should tell poor people about food stamps and the food industry, as a public service, should sponsor efforts to show poor people how to buy, prepare, and serve balanced means using food that is not too expensive.

A Food Stamp program designed to make sure every one of our poor people has enough to eat would cost about one billion dollars more than we are now spending.

Can we afford it? Can a nation which annually spends $15 billion for alcoholic beverages and $9 billion for cigarets afford to feed its poor and hungry people, many of them small children?

I think so.

The extent of hunger and malnutrition in America is both immoral and intolerable. If our government cannot respond to such a crying need, then the poor and hungry will turn to the cynical radicals who call our society a failure and who incite revolution against our institutions.

We can feed our hungry, and we can do it now.

OPEN FORUM

A proud Cuban

EDITOR:

I am shocked to find out through your newspaper that I am a "parasitical, depravated scum, a member of the American Mafia and of the dibauchered and sponged elite" of Cuban refugees. Up to today I was proudly called the daughter of a Cuban farmer. I have been in the United States for seven years. I left my country because my life was in danger due to the fact that I did not agree with the policies of the government of my country. I was refused the right of education and my whole family was persecuted.

My father worked in a restaurant and as a taxi driver while my mother also held two jobs. Because of these four jobs we were in a good, presentable position. My grandmother died in 1965 because of wrong medication being administered at the same hospital I was born. My mother lost a child because of lack of attention at the hospital and the whole family depended on whatever our relatives could give us because we were unemployed.

Can Mr. Cortez prove where the "new hospitals, schools and other social institutions" are? Is he a Cuban? Has he ever been in Cuba or is he merely stating what he read in a book? Paper can stand anything you put in it. I am only 23 years old and because of the Communistic government of Cuba I have suffered more than what any 50-year-old woman will ever suffer in her whole life.

Perhaps we "fleas" left because of the sickening and putrid situation of the dog, as that Cortez refers to Cuba. Those three patriotic Cubans are here because we are helping them. I am proud of being a member of the group of Cuban farmers in the United States and I am also proud of being able to help these people that are planning to go back and fight so that our country can become what it once was: a country with liberties for all.

Not long ago, in New Haven, a young Yale faculty member was defending the concept of student violence and black power violence. He used the now familiar argument that it is positive, even when it provokes more repression. "It's the only way to break through the suffocating social crust," he said, "the only way to launch change. It works. Look at Algeria and Israel. They had to start with violence and terrorism. They made it. Look at them now."

FLORA LEWIS

ALGERIA I had to point out, is in a sorry state, half its labor force unemployed, its people listless and gloomy, its tattered economy limping along only on the crutch of subsidy from France. That might be called independence, but it isn't the surging spirit, the progressive energy, the release from lethargy and self-doubt into beneficial change that indulgence in violence is supposed to give the victims of repression, according to the theory.

One can't help wondering what the apostle of "purifying" violence, the late Frantz Fanon, would say if he saw his country now. His young heroes, who did indeed draw spirit from assaulting the mighty French, are moody, bitter men, aware that they aren't getting anything useful done. They brood, without comprehension, on the question of why their passion that magically defeated an imperial power does not with equal magic build their country. Their faith in violence paralyzes them when it comes to hard, quiet labor.

AND ISRAEL. No one can say what might have been. Doubtless, Britain would have left Palestine by now in its general discarding of colonies and empire, whether or not there had been terrorism. Possibly, a more peaceable birth would have allowed the 21-year-old Jewish state to grow up in less hostile relations with its neighbors instead of living, as it does and must for the foreseeable future, as an embattled garrison.

If the ennobling, energizing theory of violence is true, it must also be true for the Arabs as well as for the Jews. Many Arabs think so, and proudly announce that they are going to follow it — "for generations if necessary, time doesn't matter. Nations rise and fall. We are weakened by the centuries of colonialism. Our time to rise again is coming," an elder Palestinian told me.

So far, violence has brought the Arabs nothing but calamitous loss. It has been grievous for the Israelis too, but nonetheless they have flourished and prospered. Does the theory discriminate by race and religion in conferring favors?

THE ANSWER is evident in Israel. It wasn't the use of violence that brought strength and health here. It was two quite different things: one was the development of a clear and concrete goal focusing not so much on what was to be overthrown but on what was to be built; the second was the acceptance of an austere discipline devoted to the goal, eschewing self-indulgence on the thrill of conflict for its own sake.

There is and will be violence nevertheless, even if everybody comes to understand this, because men have conflicting goals. But the violence doesn't really promote strength. Even when it's inevitable, it causes at least as many problems as it solves and usually more.

A visit to Algeria and to the Holy Land to ponder the principle of programmed violence might be enlightening for student and black militants. When it comes to serious, sustained test, their theory just doesn't work out the way they think it does.

Nixon opens his thoughts to the public

NOT ONLY women should have the right to change their minds — so should presidents.

Often our national leaders have blindly followed policy paths laid down publicly even though a wiser course might have dictated a new direction. Some presidents, in fact, have been mighty bullheaded about changing their views.

President Nixon so far has shown a commendable flexibility of viewpoint and has not been afraid to expose his changes of mind to the public.

WHILE RUNNING for office Mr. Nixon did not hide his dislike of the 10 per cent surtax on incomes. But after assuming office, he agreed the surtax should remain in effect. Just a couple of weeks ago he modified that stand and asked for a phased reduction in the tax.

Again in his campaign, Mr. Nixon advocated increased federal support for research in university and college graduate schools.

And yet this week the President circulated and endorsed the views of Michigan Prof. S. J. Tonsor to the effect that government should forego "easy recourse" to university research facilities and instead rely on other institutions.

Why Mr. Nixon has changed his views on this subject has not been explained but it is reasonable to assume that he has noted the rising opposition to war-related research on the campus.

IN ANOTHER somewhat related area the President not only changed his views but admitted at a White House meeting that he had been wrong — an almost unprecedented action by a chief executive.

The "error" Mr. Nixon admitted had to do with his intended appointment of Dr. Franklin A. Long as head of the National Science Foundation. At an April 18 news conference Mr. Nixon had said he was not going to nominate Long, after all, because of Long's opposition to the anti-ballistic missile program. This week the President reversed his field, offered the job to Long and emphasized that he now feels the foundation and its director should be dealt with as nonpolitical and nonpartisan.

THE FACT THAT Professor Long refused the new offer because he did not want the controversial case reopened should not detract from the value of the President's action.

There was a hard lesson to be learned from the "credibility gap" which developed in the Johnson Administration. Mr. Nixon is following an "open administration" policy and the willingness of his officials to discuss public issues has been evident. The opening of his own mental processes to public view may be the best move Mr. Nixon could make toward restoring confidence in the operation of government!

In harness the boo may have a place

IF THERE WERE no such thing as a boo, it would have had to be invented. For the simple reason that silence is seldom a satisfactory reaction to outrageous behavior or utterances, especially in the context of a crowd watching a single event or single speaker.

Not that it's a part of human nature we should exalt — or even be proud of — but simply that man should not lose all his capacity for indignation.

I defend the boo — while personally despising it — because of the lack of suitable device, other than silence, for an audience to use to register its collective opinion. However, I would commend to all dissenters the "harnessed boo."

BOB HOUSER

This is a ground-rule boo. You may use it and your speaker is notified he may expect it. But the boo, once booed, must promptly be cut off and the speaker allowed to continue his thought. He must be allowed to make his entire presentation. The pause for booing must be respected by him as you must yield to his right to speak.

GRANTED THE boo is boorish, discourteous and primitive. How else, in political dialogue, may a protagonist assess the reception of his ideas? Applause for agreement, the harnessed boo for disagreement.

This far-out comment is triggered by the well-reasoned essay of Lakewood's Mayor Mark W. Hannaford, written in response to Democratic Women's Forum president Hope M. Schechter, who deplored the use of "verbal abuse and shouts of derision" against Democratic National Committeewoman Carmen Warschaw at a mid-April party convention in Sacramento.

I was there and it was a bad scene. It seemed that Mrs. Warschaw was actually bullied from the podium, after only a few remarks, because of the persistence of the boos and shouting. The delegates were communicating their anger at her endorsement of L.A. Mayor Sam Yorty.

HANNAFORD'S VIEW: "There is room in the Democratic Party for every shade of opinion . . . This involves often saying that which is unpopular. Quite often it involves giving a long and patient hearing to many things that are absolute nonsense because every thought needs to be tested in the 'market place of ideas.'

"And so those of us who understand and cherish the meaning of freedom, those of us of long experience and responsible position — we have for years listened patiently to much that was manifestly nonsense. As in panning for gold, we have sifted some grains of ideas from it all. Our party councils have often been turbulent because when youth gives birth to that which it perceives to be an idea, it is often a painful birth, emotional and frenzied.

" . . . There is no place in our party councils for anyone who would deny another, any other, the right to speak and be heard. It is not only illiberal, it is subversive, it is authoritarian; and the party of liberalism must put a stop to it.

"At any party conclave, the leadership should make their position clear at the outset, that every speaker is to be heard with equal patience and that whoever would subvert that necessary element in the democratic process would be ejected posthaste."

'Guess who . . .'

Now Stalin's a good guy

WITHOUT BENEFIT of elections, the Soviet Union does manage to change details of "political philosophy" from time to time. Occasionally, as in two recent instances, the results are startling.

One of these is the rehabilitation of the late Josef Stalin. Since 1956 Russian dogma for internal consumption has downgraded Stalin both as military strategist and as national hero.

THE MONTHLY publication Kommunist, issued by the Central Committee, now erases Nikita Khrushchev's version of history and describes Stalin as an "outstanding military leader."

Somewhere in the Kremlin the wheels turned and the equivalent of a new behind-the-scenes administration prevailed. No outsider can be sure of the purposes or the consequences. One conjecture is that the archtype of Soviet ruthlessness was rescued from disgrace to intimidate Russia's allies in their current rebellious mood.

The Communist party newspaper Pravda reveals another policy line of the new administration in its campaign against "employed idlers" in the government-run economy.

IN AMERICAN slang, these are goof-offs. For its part, Pravda stoutly endorses the official posters demanding "a rise in labor productivity and a strengthening of work discipline."

The Moscow daily does not add the ominous phrase, "or else." It does lament the bureaucratic rules which protect workers. And since pitiless Josef Stalin is being disinterred and cleaned up, the rulers of the workers' paradise shouldn't have much trouble getting their message across.

Hunger can be handled now

AMERICA has tough problems such as slums, illiteracy and poverty, which have been generations in the making and which will require many years and billions of dollars to solve. But we have one very basic and critical problem that can be taken care of — now — and that is the feeding of the poor and hungry in this land of plenty.

Recent investigations show there are over 10 million chronically hungry people in our country. Many others live on substandard diets of beans, grits or tortillas — children in these families seldom see milk or meat on their table.

Protein and iron deficiences have been found in many poor children, and the resulting brain damage and vulnerability to disease cripples or kills many of these babies before they can stand on their own two feet.

OUR current government food programs reach only one out of every five poor people.

Is it that we don't have the food? No.

Is it that we can't afford to feed our hungry? No.

Is it that we don't have the means to distribute the food? No.

Is it that food growers and processors don't want to help? No.

What is wrong is that in the past 35 years we have worried more about overflowing granaries and stockpiles of milk, butter, poultry and meat than about our hungry people.

We send billions of dollars worth of food overseas under our Food for Peace program. But, because of bureaucratic bickering and a lack of both federal and local initiative, we have allowed hunger and malnutrition to become part of the poverty cycle in our own country.

We now have three federal programs to feed the hungry.

The Commodity Distribution program, set up in 1935, gives surplus food to needy families. This program reaches about three million of our poor, but does not provide these families with a well-balanced diet.

The Food Stamp program, originally set up in 1939, allows poor families to buy bonus stamps which can be spent in food stores. This program reaches two million people.

HUBERT HUMPHREY

The school lunch program provides about $1 in federal funds for each $3 in state and local funds to help provide free school lunches for poor children. The program reaches about two million children, but many schools in poor areas do not have cafeterias or do not take part in the program.

COUNTIES take part in either the commodity or food stamp program at their own initiative. Over a third of our poorest counties take part in neither program.

These food programs are administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the agriculture committees in Congress, which traditionally have been primarily concerned with farm income. But hunger is a human crisis. The emphasis must be put on feeding the hungry.

The Commodity Distribution program is inefficient and it carries the stigma of the welfare dole. It should be a supplemental program.

What is needed is a greatly expanded Food Stamp program run by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Free food stamps should be made available to families with little or no income. The cash requirements for other poor families should be sharply reduced.

Where local government is unwilling to act, the federal government should step in, set eligibility requirements, and run the Food Stamp program.

We should make it easier for poor people to buy food stamps. Under the present program, there is often only one food stamp office in a county, and the poor must buy their entire month's supply of stamps at one time.

THERE IS no reason why food stamps cannot be sold in every post office, and during every week of the month.

Newspapers and radio and television stations should tell poor people about food stamps and the food industry, as a public service, should sponsor efforts to show poor people how to buy, prepare, and serve balanced means using food that is not too expensive.

A Food Stamp program designed to make sure every one of our poor people has enough to eat would cost about one billion dollars more than we are now spending.

Can we afford it? Can a nation which annually spends $15 billion for alcoholic beverages and $9 billion for cigarets afford to feed its poor and hungry people, many of them small children?

I think so.

The extent of hunger and malnutrition in America is both immoral and intolerable. If our government cannot respond to such a crying need, then the poor and hungry will turn to the cynical radicals who call our society a failure and who incite revolution against our institutions.

We can feed our hungry, and we can do it now.

OPEN FORUM

A proud Cuban

EDITOR:

I am shocked to find out through your newspaper that I am a "parasitical, depravated scum, a member of the American Mafia and of the dibauchered and sponged elite" of Cuban refugees. Up to today I was proudly called the daughter of a Cuban farmer. I have been in the United States for seven years. I left my country because my life was in danger due to the fact that I did not agree with the policies of the government of my country. I was refused the right of education and my whole family was persecuted.

My father worked in a restaurant and as a taxi driver while my mother also held two jobs. Because of these four jobs we were in a good, presentable position. My grandmother died in 1965 because of wrong medication being administered at the same hospital I was born. My mother lost a child because of lack of attention at the hospital and the whole family depended on whatever our relatives could give us because we were unemployed.

Can Mr. Cortez prove where the "new hospitals, schools and other social institutions" are? Is he a Cuban? Has he ever been in Cuba or is he merely stating what he read in a book? Paper can stand anything you put in it. I am only 23 years old and because of the Communistic government of Cuba I have suffered more than what any 50-year-old woman will ever suffer in her whole life.

Perhaps we "fleas" left because of the sickening and putrid situation of the dog, as that Cortez refers to Cuba. Those three patriotic Cubans are here because we are helping them. I am proud of being a member of the group of Cuban farmers in the United States and I am also proud of being able to help these people that are planning to go back and fight so that our country can become what it once was: a country with liberties for all.

Strong words used, action is needed

By L.A. COLLINS Sr.

SPEAKING BEFORE the local Rotary Club Wednesday the Los Angeles deputy chief of Police, Daryl Gates, wondered if we would be able to celebrate the 200th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence. That date is only seven years ahead. The concern was over the anarchy erupting on campuses and streets across the county. He said a combination of all these disruptions were in effect revolution, which must be controlled if we are to escape disaster. He agreed police on campuses was not desirable but it is the duty of government to enforce law and order anywhere in the nation.

At about the same time Vice President Agnew was telling a press conference that it was the duty of students and professors to call in the police if they are molested regardless of what the college administration does. If an individual is molested or kept from his rightful freedom to attend classes — he has the right to prosecute regardless of the attitude of the college president or faculty. The practice of granting amnesty to rioting students, he said, constitutes a great device to encourage future explosions. He was particularly critical of Cornell University, which nullified reprimands to several black students who displayed guns in their take-over of college buildings.

THESE STATEMENTS followed statements by President Nixon the day before in which the President called for strong measures and said colleges could not compromise with lawlessness or surrender to force if free education is to survive. It was time, Mr. Nixon said, for the faculties, administration and trustees to have the "backbone" to stand up to those who terrorize other students, rifle private files and carry guns and knives.

Agnew went on to say that Congress was justified in considering the withholding of any federal aid to colleges which failed to take needed action to stop disruption of orderly education on their campuses. He said he felt Cornell, in granting amnesty to gun-toting students, had exceeded "reasonable limits of permissiveness." Other colleges, he said, had been lax in calling for necessary forces to stop anarchy on their campuses. He said it was not up to presidents and deans of colleges and universities to decide whether amnesty should be granted to students who break the law. He said it was the perfect right of students who are set upon by others to seek the arrest of their attackers.

He added that some things have gotten totally out of hand. There is a general feeling on campuses that you are some kind of fink if you complain. Well, the deans who were hustled out of their offices at Harvard were entitled to complain to police if they wanted to. But some of the college teachers and officials seem to believe that it would be anti-intellectual and antifreedom to summon police. But, he said, it is not up to them to decide when and how police should be brought to the campus.

AS FOR THE ROTC, Agnew remarked that it is this organization that trains many of the officers of our armed forces in time of war. It is a voluntary organization. He said students should have as much right to enroll in its courses, for example, as Negro students have a right to enroll in black studies courses. These are strong words but it is probable the great majority of the public and students and faculty will agree they are needed as anarchy spreads across the country.

It reminds me of a statement recently made by Long Beach State Senator George Deukmejian that the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), which is inciting most of the anarchy should be referred to as "Saboteurs for the Destruction of Society." It is time for administrators of our colleges to accept their responsibility to call the police whenever anarchy appears on their campuses.

Dirty water polluted? Well, maybe not

ON MAY 13 Los Angeles Harbor officials will conduct a public hearing to examine the causes and extent of possible pollution of harbor waters, how to clean them up and who is going to pay for it.

Based on past experience, it is likely some of those damanding adoption of a clean water policy will base their comments more on emotion than on facts.

To start with those offering testimony during public hearings conducted by state and local water quality control agencies often don't even have their terms straight.

In Webster's New World dictionary, for instance, the words "pollution" and "contamination" are used synonymously.

BUT STATE agencies dealing with pollution and contamination do not use the dictionary definitions. They use the terms as defined in the California Water Code, Water Quality Control Act. The words are clearly defined there and indicate two widely different conditions of water quality.

When spokesmen for various conservation groups use "pollution" and "contamination" interchangeably this tips off officials that the speaker does not know what he is talking about in a legal sense and his testimony is considerably weakened.

A legal definition of "pollution" was given recently by Raymond V. Hertel, executive officer, of the Los Angeles Regional Water Quality Control Board.

"Pollution: An unreasonable adverse impairment of a beneficial use of the waters of the state as they may be affected by the discharge of waste material."

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By comparison "contamination" is defined by state law as: "An impairment of the quality of the waters of the state by sewage or by other waste to a degree which creates an actual hazard to public health through poisoning or through spread of disease. It shall include any equivalent effect resulting from the disposal of sewage or other waste whether or not waters of the state are affected."

Pollution of a water resource, whether it be a lake, stream, well water, the ocean, or a harbor does not occur legally until some form of waste flows or is discharged into the water resource.

AND EVEN then — according to state law — pollution does not occur until a beneficial use, so designated by a state agency, has been destroyed.

As an example: A body of water such as the Los Angeles River or the Dominguez Channel might carry unsightly floating debris and smelly chemicals, which could be unpleasant to observe or smell. The average person would label such waters as polluted.

However, as defined by state law, such waters, regardless of how much debris they contain, would not be considered polluted unless and until a state agency, i.e. the Los Angeles Regional Water Quality Control Board, declares a beneficial use of those waters is damaged by the debris.

The beneficial use of the waters of the Inner Harbor of the Port of Los Angeles to be protected by law at present are: Harborage purposes; shipping, navigation, and anchoring (commercial and naval vessels); small boat mooring (including small boat transit to areas for pleasure boating); industrial water for cooling and fish handling (Fish Harbor); and esthetic enjoyment.

DESPITE the claim of conservationists that the waters of the Los Angeles harbor are so polluted fish and other aquatic life can not survive there, the waters of the Inner Harbor are NOT legally polluted in this regard.

Sustenance of fish and aquatic life is not now a designated beneficial use of those waters, which under state law, must be protected.

Numerous organizations are seeking to have the Los Angeles Regional Water Quality Control Board declare fish life as a beneficial use to be protected within the waters of the Inner Harbor.

But until the water quality board recognizes fish life in those waters as a beneficial use to be protected, the Inner Harbor is not considered to be legally polluted.

While all nature of liquids and solids are carried by run off waters and industrial discharges into the upper reaches of Los Angels Harbor they have not prevented the use of the harbor for the beneficial purposes now delineated by law.

Therefore the harbor is not legally polluted.

BY COMPARISON, contaminated waters can exist — and do — in lands where there are no laws, at least no laws to protect water quality.

A bather swimming in waters containing raw sewage can contract a disease with or without any governmental agency first acting to declare the waters to be contaminated.

Any water resource, above or below ground, containing untreated sewage or poisonous matter which poses a threat to public health is contaminated. It requires no "act of Congress" — or any other governmental agency — to label water as contaminated. There were waters which were contaminated long before there was a Congress or regional water quality control boards.

By contrast a water resource — without anything being added to it or anything being taken out of it — may be declared as polluted if a beneficial use of the resource has been destroyed.

Lag in education helped bring on racial violence

WASHINGTON — The direct connection between racial violence in the big cities and failure to vote aid to education was emphasized by Rep. Ray Madden, the Irish Democrat from northern Indiana. Speaking just before the House passed a watered-down aid-to-education bill, Madden reminded congressmen of their dilly-dallying 13 years ago when a school-aid bill was defeated by 45 votes.

"That was in 1956," said Madden. "In 1957 another bill was defeated by five votes. I have often thought since then that had these bills passed, our congested elementary and high schools, especially in metropolitan areas, would have had ample money for expansion, teachers' salaries and equipment needed to properly educate millions of young people.

"IT IS DIFFICULT to estimate how many grade and high school dropouts would have continued their education instead of following agitators who go about the country organizing riots and burning cities, homes and stores.

"It is easy to organize those who are unqualified for satisfactory employment, due to lack of an education which this great, rich land of ours could easily afford if the Congress would cooperate."

Madden added that "the time is short for the federal government to take drastic steps to protect and retain our educational system for coming generations."

"The same yardstick of elementary, secondary and college education methods of 25 years ago does not apply under our present population of 200 million," he said. "Today 71 per cent of our people reside in urban areas. In 1967 over 400,000 farm families left rural areas and moved to the city."

Madden's plea fell on deaf ears. So many Southern Democrats deserted their party that the Nixon watered-down education bill passed easily.

REP. BERTRAM Podell, D-N.Y., is urging a "fund-raising dinner for the poor, persecuted tax-dodgers of the oil industry."

"The tears course down my face as I listen to their lobbyists opposing tax reforms," said the Brooklyn Congressman. "After all, Marathon Oil didn't pay a penny in Federal taxes in 1968, 1964 and 1965. This is indeed acute suffering.

"One also sobs with grief at the plight of Sinclair Oil, which earned over $130 million in net income in 1967, but paid only 8.1 per cent of it in federal taxes. Or take the case of poor Tidewater Oil, recently absorbed by Getty Oil. It earned more than $42 million in 1966 and paid a tax of 4.1 per cent.

"After a long night of soul searching and prayerful contemplation, I resolved to hold this dinner — a Lucullan feast — to alleviate the sufferings of the oil industry."

Podell will suggest as "entrees" on the menu: "Filet of Taxpayer, Taxpayer Under Glass, Taxpayer Sauteed in Heavy Oil, and Seabirds Soaked in Crude Oil."

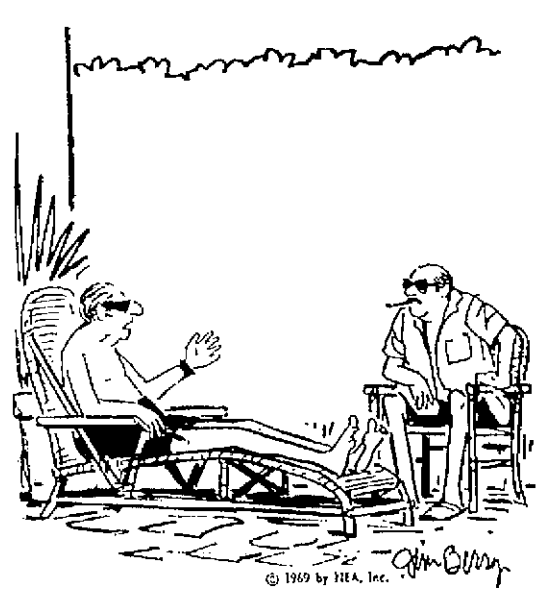

As a liqueur — "Courvoisier a la Overseas Depletion Allowance."

CAREER diplomats who have been gunning for Ambassador Roger Tubby, in charge of international conferences in Geneva, have discovered that Tubby is actually a Republican. Though hired by Truman, Tubby came to Washington as a rock-ribbed Vermont Republican under Sen. George Aiken. He was once editor of a Republican daily newspaper in Bennington, Vt., and on the Republican town committee.

When Truman asked him to join his press staff, Tubby reminded him of his GOP background.

"If you're OK with George Aiken," said Truman, "you're OK with me."

Just a typical young American couple

GOOD MORNING, housewives and other shut-ins. Welcome to "Tripping through Life" — our dramatic new daytime serial about a Typical Young American Couple and their dreams, their struggles and their heartaches.

As we join Gridwell and Grivonne Grommet today in their Typical American Pad in Anywhere, U.S.A., Gridwell is staring blankly at his typewriter. A struggling young author of children's books, Gridwell is striving for a sequel to his earlier works, "Johnny's First Trip" and "Mary Turns On," which were well-received by the underground critics. But nothing comes.

Grivonne, like any young matron, has been out engaged in her favorite civic project, The Legalize Laudanum League. She enters with the couple's curly-haired young son, Maharashee, in tow.

MAHARASHEE (throwing his chubby arms around his father's neck): Hi, Mommy!

GRIDWELL: No, I'm Daddy, son. Really, Grivonne, I wish you'd get a Joan Baez haircut so he could tell us apart.

GRIVONNE: You're always criticising me. If it's not my hair, it's my cooking. You didn't even finish my Alice B. Toklas brownies last night.

GRIDWELL (hesitantly): Well, frankly, dear, they were just like my mother used to make.

GRIVONNE (sobbing): Oh, even my cooking doesn't turn you on any more. I knew I should never have married beneath myself. Me, a Sagitarius with my moon in ascendency wed to a Taurus barely able to enter the Fifth House. Oh, I'd pack up and leave you this very minute if I could find myself.

GRIDWELL (appeasingly): I'm trying to improve, dear. After all,

ARTHUR HOPPE

I'm taking that course you recommended on Self Realization through Gestalt Massage and . . . What's that?

GRIVONNE: What's what?

GRIDWELL: There seems to be a mob of hip types down there on the sidewalk shouting, "Grind up the Grommets!"

GRIVONNE (nervously): That's probably the Maoist faction of the Legalize Laudanum League. We had a little split today and they threatened to lynch us Che Guevara followers.

GRIDWELL (alarmed): Lynch us? My God! There's only one thing to do.

GRIVONNE: Go down and face them with love and non-violence?

GRIDWELL (dialing the phone): Are you mad? Hello? Hello, Sergeant. This is Gridwell Grommet at 1412½ Elm street. We need help. Will you please send a couple of your pigs over here right away? No, pigs like in fuzz. Look, I've got a right to pig protection. But would you mind making them plainclothes pigs in unmarked pig cars? I've got to think of my reputation among my neighbors. Fine, thanks very much.

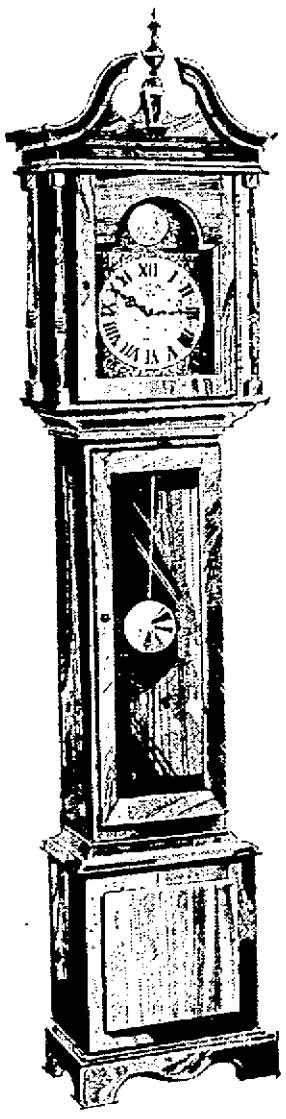

GRIVONNE: Is help on the way?

GRIDWELL: He said he'd send over two pigs right away. Isn't that nice? You now, we've got to stop thinking of the pigs as our enemies. They . . . Say! I've got the title for my new children's book: "Your Friend, the Pig."

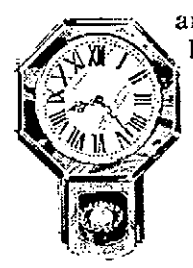

Will the pigs rescue the Grommets? What kind of pigs? Will Grivonne find herself? Where? Tune in to the next dramatic episode in our heartwarming story of this Typical Young American Couple and their search for better living through chemistry.

Well, the deans who were hustled out of their offices at Harvard were entitled to complain to police if they wanted to. But some of the college teachers and officials seem to believe that it would be anti-intellectual and antifreedom to summon police. But, he said, it is not up to them to decide when and how police should be brought to the campus.

AS FOR THE ROTC, Agnew remarked that it is this organization that trains many of the officers of our armed forces in time of war. It is a voluntary organization. He said students should have as much right to enroll in its courses, for example, as Negro students have a right to enroll in black studies courses. These are strong words but it is probable the great majority of the public and students and faculty will agree they are needed as anarchy spreads across the country.

It reminds me of a statement recently made by Long Beach State Senator George Deukmejian that the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS), which is inciting most of the anarchy should be referred to as "Saboteurs for the Destruction of Society." It is time for administrators of our colleges to accept their responsibility to call the police whenever anarchy appears on their campuses.

Dirty water polluted? Well, maybe not

ON MAY 13 Los Angeles Harbor officials will conduct a public hearing to examine the causes and extent of possible pollution of harbor waters, how to clean them up and who is going to pay for it.

Based on past experience, it is likely some of those damanding adoption of a clean water policy will base their comments more on emotion than on facts.

To start with those offering testimony during public hearings conducted by state and local water quality control agencies often don't even have their terms straight.

In Webster's New World dictionary, for instance, the words "pollution" and "contamination" are used synonymously.

BUT STATE agencies dealing with pollution and contamination do not use the dictionary definitions. They use the terms as defined in the California Water Code, Water Quality Control Act. The words are clearly defined there and indicate two widely different conditions of water quality.

When spokesmen for various conservation groups use "pollution" and "contamination" interchangeably this tips off officials that the speaker does not know what he is talking about in a legal sense and his testimony is considerably weakened.

A legal definition of "pollution" was given recently by Raymond V. Hertel, executive officer, of the Los Angeles Regional Water Quality Control Board.

"Pollution: An unreasonable adverse impairment of a beneficial use of the waters of the state as they may be affected by the discharge of waste material."

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By comparison "contamination" is defined by state law as: "An impairment of the quality of the waters of the state by sewage or by other waste to a degree which creates an actual hazard to public health through poisoning or through spread of disease. It shall include any equivalent effect resulting from the disposal of sewage or other waste whether or not waters of the state are affected."

Pollution of a water resource, whether it be a lake, stream, well water, the ocean, or a harbor does not occur legally until some form of waste flows or is discharged into the water resource.

AND EVEN then — according to state law — pollution does not occur until a beneficial use, so designated by a state agency, has been destroyed.

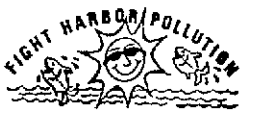

As an example: A body of water such as the Los Angeles River or the Dominguez Channel might carry unsightly floating debris and smelly chemicals, which could be unpleasant to observe or smell. The average person would label such waters as polluted.

However, as defined by state law, such waters, regardless of how much debris they contain, would not be considered polluted unless and until a state agency, i.e. the Los Angeles Regional Water Quality Control Board, declares a beneficial use of those waters is damaged by the debris.

The beneficial use of the waters of the Inner Harbor of the Port of Los Angeles to be protected by law at present are: Harborage purposes; shipping, navigation, and anchoring (commercial and naval vessels); small boat mooring (including small boat transit to areas for pleasure boating); industrial water for cooling and fish handling (Fish Harbor); and esthetic enjoyment.

DESPITE the claim of conservationists that the waters of the Los Angeles harbor are so polluted fish and other aquatic life can not survive there, the waters of the Inner Harbor are NOT legally polluted in this regard.

Sustenance of fish and aquatic life

is not now a designated beneficial use of those waters, which under state law, must be protected.

Numerous organizations are seeking to have the Los Angeles Regional Water Quality Control Board declare fish life as a beneficial use to be protected within the waters of the Inner Harbor.

But until the water quality board recognizes fish life in those waters as a beneficial use to be protected, the Inner Harbor is not considered to be legally polluted.

While all nature of liquids and solids are carried by run off waters and industrial discharges into the upper reaches of Los Angels Harbor they have not prevented the use of the harbor for the beneficial purposes now delineated by law.

Therefore the harbor is not legally polluted.

BY COMPARISON, contaminated waters can exist — and do — in lands where there are no laws, at least no laws to protect water quality.

A bather swimming in waters containing raw sewage can contract a disease with or without any governmental agency first acting to declare the waters to be contaminated.

Any water resource, above or below ground, containing untreated sewage or poisonous matter which poses a threat to public health is contaminated. It requires no "act of Congress" — or any other governmental agency — to label water as contaminated. There were waters which were contaminated long before there was a Congress or regional water quality control boards.

By contrast a water resource — without anything being added to it or anything being taken out of it — may be declared as polluted if a beneficial use of the resource has been destroyed.

Lag in education helped bring on racial violence

WASHINGTON — The direct connection between racial violence in the big cities and failure to vote aid to education was emphasized by Rep. Ray Madden, the Irish Democrat from northern Indiana. Speaking just before the House passed a watered-down aid-to-education bill, Madden reminded congressmen of their dilly-dallying 13 years ago when a school-aid bill was defeated by 45 votes.

"That was in 1956," said Madden. "In 1957 another bill was defeated by five votes. I have often thought since then that had these bills passed, our congested elementary and high schools, especially in metropolitan areas, would have had ample money for expansion, teachers' salaries and equipment needed to properly educate millions of young people.

"IT IS DIFFICULT to estimate how many grade and high school dropouts would have continued their education instead of following agitators who go about the country organizing riots and burning cities, homes and stores.

"It is easy to organize those who are unqualified for satisfactory employment, due to lack of an education which this great, rich land of ours could easily afford if the Congress would cooperate."

Madden added that "the time is short for the federal government to take drastic steps to protect and retain our educational system for coming generations."

"The same yardstick of elementary, secondary and college education methods of 25 years ago does not apply under our present population of 200 million," he said. "Today 71 per cent of our people reside in urban areas. In 1967 over 400,000 farm families left rural areas and moved to the city."

Madden's plea fell on deaf ears. So many Southern Democrats deserted their party that the Nixon watered-down education bill passed easily.

REP. BERTRAM Podell, D-N.Y., is urging a "fund-raising dinner for the poor, persecuted tax-dodgers of the oil industry."

"The tears course down my face as I listen to their lobbyists opposing tax reforms," said the Brooklyn Congressman. "After all, Marathon Oil didn't pay a penny in Federal taxes in 1968, 1964 and 1965. This is indeed acute suffering.

"One also sobs with grief at the plight of Sinclair Oil, which earned over $130 million in net income in 1967, but paid only 8.1 per cent of it in federal taxes. Or take the case of poor Tidewater Oil, recently absorbed by Getty Oil. It earned more than $42 million in 1966 and paid a tax of 4.1 per cent.

"After a long night of soul searching and prayerful contemplation, I resolved to hold this dinner — a Lucullan feast — to alleviate the sufferings of the oil industry."

Podell will suggest as "entrees" on the menu: "Filet of Taxpayer, Taxpayer Under Glass, Taxpayer Sauteed in Heavy Oil, and Seabirds Soaked in Crude Oil."

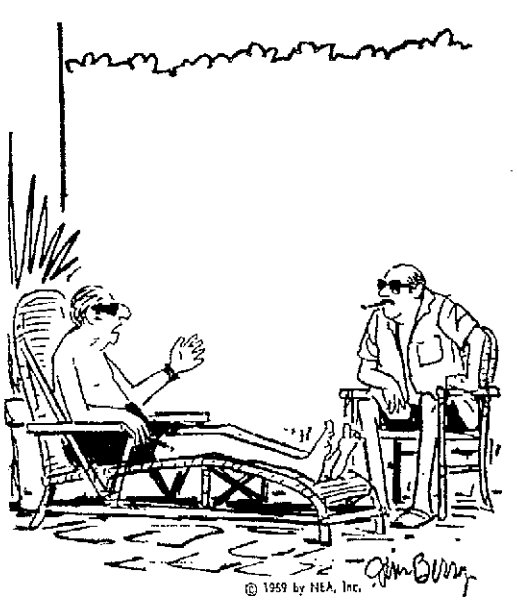

As a liqueur — "Courvoisier a la Overseas Depletion Allowance."

CAREER diplomats who have been gunning for Ambassador Roger Tubby, in charge of international conferences in Geneva, have discovered that Tubby is actually a Republican. Though hired by Truman, Tubby came to Washington as a rock-ribbed Vermont Republican under Sen. George Aiken. He was once editor of a Republican daily newspaper in Bennington, Vt., and on the Republican town committee.

When Truman asked him to join his press staff, Tubby reminded him of his GOP background.

"If you're OK with George Aiken," said Truman, "you're OK with me."

Just a typical young American couple

GOOD MORNING, housewives and other shut-ins. Welcome to "Tripping through Life" — our dramatic new daytime serial about a Typical Young American Couple and their dreams, their struggles and their heartaches.

As we join Gridwell and Grivonne Grommet today in their Typical American Pad in Anywhere, U.S.A., Gridwell is staring blankly at his typewriter. A struggling young author of children's books, Gridwell is striving for a sequel to his earlier works, "Johnny's First Trip" and "Mary Turns On," which were well-received by the underground critics. But nothing comes.

Grivonne, like any young matron, has been out engaged in her favorite civic project, The Legalize Laudanum League. She enters with the couple's curly-haired young son, Maharashee, in tow.

MAHARASHEE (throwing his chubby arms around his father's neck): Hi, Mommy!

GRIDWELL: No, I'm Daddy, son. Really, Grivonne, I wish you'd get a Joan Baez haircut so he could tell us apart.

GRIVONNE: You're always criticising me. If it's not my hair, it's my cooking. You didn't even finish my Alice B. Toklas brownies last night.

GRIDWELL (hesitantly): Well, frankly, dear, they were just like my mother used to make.

GRIVONNE (sobbing): Oh, even my cooking doesn't turn you on any more. I knew I should never have married beneath myself. Me, a Sagitarius with my moon in ascendency wed to a Taurus barely able to enter the Fifth House. Oh, I'd pack up and leave you this very minute if I could find myself.

GRIDWELL (appeasingly): I'm trying to improve, dear. After all,

ARTHUR HOPPE

I'm taking that course you recommended on Self Realization through Gestalt Massage and . . . What's that?

GRIVONNE: What's what?

GRIDWELL: There seems to be a mob of hip types down there on the sidewalk shouting, "Grind up the Grommets!"

GRIVONNE (nervously): That's probably the Maoist faction of the Legalize Laudanum League. We had a little split today and they threatened to lynch us Che Guevara followers.

GRIDWELL (alarmed): Lynch us? My God! There's only one thing to do.

GRIVONNE: Go down and face them with love and non-violence?

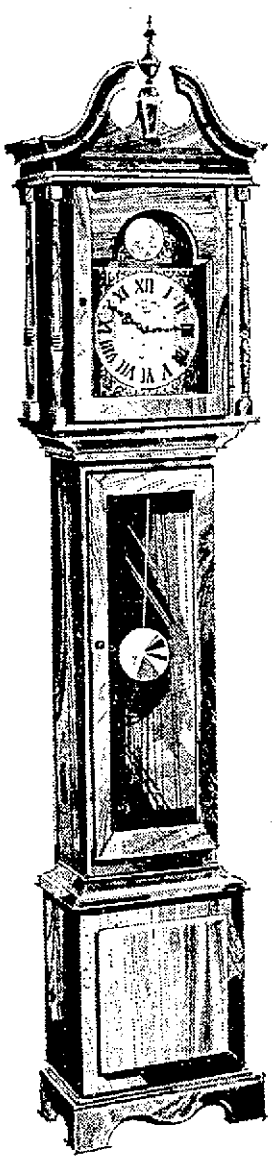

GRIDWELL (dialing the phone): Are you mad? Hello? Hello, Sergeant. This is Gridwell Grommet at 1412½ Elm street. We need help. Will you please send a couple of your pigs over here right away? No, pigs like in fuzz. Look, I've got a right to pig protection. But would you mind making them plainclothes pigs in unmarked pig cars? I've got to think of my reputation among my neighbors. Fine, thanks very much.

GRIVONNE: Is help on the way?

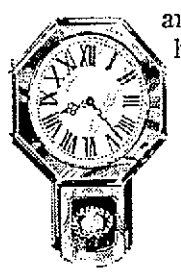

GRIDWELL: He said he'd send over two pigs right away. Isn't that nice? You now, we've got to stop thinking of the pigs as our enemies. They . . . Say! I've got the title for my new children's book: "Your Friend, the Pig."

Will the pigs rescue the Grommets? What kind of pigs? Will Grivonne find herself? Where? Tune in to the next dramatic episode in our heartwarming story of this Typical Young American Couple and their search for better living through chemistry.

CHANGES DUE CSLB

V.P.s for finance, academic affairs and student affairs. Reporting directly to the president would be a public information director and Academic Senate chairman.

The study committee "considered the role of certain key positions in the organization," then made it clear that to them:

"The president is the leader and chief executive officer of the college. He has the legal authority and responsibility for its management."

But in the committee's proposal, "The president manages the instructional... support and planning activities through a series of line officers." He is represented elsewhere by members of his official family.

Statewide college rules now call for two vice presidents at each campus. The system's trustees in February voted to seek necessary funds to create a third everywhere — for student affairs.

This request still must be processed through the legislature and a year or more may be required before a final decision is made, observers note.

AT LONG BEACH, which now has but one vice president — Dr. Donald Simonsen, academic affairs — an administrative deanship could be upgraded to fill one of the higher slots called for in the recommendations, says Gray.

Trustee and legislative action then would be needed in order to add a fourth V.P.

(Whether this total proposal will help or hamper an incoming president is a question presently being heard on campus. It particularly is pertinent since a successor to departing Dr. Carl W. McIntosh has yet to be named.

(Gray and others indicate belief the new chief executive will be aided rather than hindered by finding at least the beginning of a major restructuring. "Our goal is to update the organization and procedures to bring them in line with the size and complexity of this evolving college," says Gray. "This can only be a help to him.")

McIntosh, unavailable for comment, reportedly is "enthusiastic" about the recommendations. He along with other ranking administrators was involved in consultations leading to the finished product.

The retiring officer already has comitted himself to staying at CSCLB until a successor is named.

CONTINUING AN analogy with the federal government:

The Academic Senate and five to-be-created councils form a "federal" union in dealing with policy making. Represented would be schools, departments, students and other elements.

The president — through his "office" — is part of each council, dealing with finance, educational policies and planning, graduate school, teacher education and student affairs.

Formalized procedures by which policy could be made or altered is envisioned.

Major modifications are seen in the area of student affairs, whose top administrator would become a vice president.

Pressently a dean and assistant dean of students supervise a wide range of activities — including meting out punishment to rule breakers.

ALSO PLANNED is a new job, director of intergroup relations, to supervise Educational Opportunities Program, Head Start and other special functions.

CSLB's six schools — applied arts and sciences, business administration, education, engineering, fine arts, letters and science — would be given authority, "subject to applicable codes and trustees' or chancellor's regulations":

"To recommend minimum necessary policies and guidelines... for effective all-college operation." Further, schools could change their internal structure; delegate to their own departments additional freedom of action; authorize new courses; control admission of students and, "by authority delegated from the president, appoint faculty and approve reappointments..."

said of the charges in the suit, "It's a lie. He really doesn't know what he's talking about.

"I think it's especially detestable that Moseley would do something like this to Father Williams, who never takes sides in local politics.

"Father Williams buried his wife (Saturday). She died Monday. For Moseley to do this to Father Williams, of all people, is detestable.

"In his grief now, how is Father Williams going to defend himself?

"Moseley was fired from his job with the agency about a year ago and at that time he filed suit against the organization. He lost the suit because the judge said he had no grounds for filing it in the first place," Mrs. Jackson said.

"I suppose he's a disgruntled person who's trying to tear down the only agency here that's really trying to help the poor people. I can't understand it."

"I'M PRETTY sure the charges are false and I believe Moseley certainly has done a disservice to the community," Cade told The Independent, Press-Telegram.

"All I can say is the congressman put out a letter endorsing me and I'm very proud to be endorsed by him. The only thing I know about the letter is that he published it and that I saw a copy of it at my home.

"I can say without a doubt that even if there were anything to Moseley's charges, Father Williams shouldn't have been named.

"I think Moseley has done a great disservice to a great number of people, to the community and to the city of Compton.

"Of course, the courts have to accept suits once they're filed, but I believe once the hearing is held Moseley's suit will be thrown out."

Moseley said at a Friday press conference he has sworn affidavits from four Community Action Agency employes stating they were required to prepare the Hawkins' endorsement letter during regular working hours.

The Agency receives federal funds.

JOB PLAN

to have to be from the private sector."

The business community is generally conceded to have done poorly in 1968. And while few people are betting on it, this year could be different.

Tony Mazur of the Youth Opportunity Center is more confident than most observers.

"Jobs from the business sector will offset the drop in the public sector," he says. "There's an awful lot of effort going out to the private sector. They have to come through. There's been enough publicity and racket made for them to recognize the need."

Another optimist is Harry Stroud, director of the Long Beach metropolitan division of the National Alliance of Businessmen. The alliance, which was started nationally over a year ago at former President Johnson's urging, is primarily oriented toward finding permanent jobs for the hard core. But NAB also took part in last summer's job campaign in communities throughout the country, and will do the same this year.

Locally, the organization covers Long Beach and a number of surrounding communities. Its summer goal has been set at 1,000 jobs, or 1,500 fewer than last year.

STROUD SAYS NAB's effort has gotten off to a slow start in Long Beach, and the task ahead looks "tough." He concedes that manpower cutbacks in the aerospace industry, and at Douglas particularly, aren't going to help any. But he still thinks the organization can meet its quota.

Even if NAB lines up 1,000 jobs, though, some officials aren't sure the jobs will make much of an impact on Long Beach proper.

ST. MARY'S
Push Hospital Fund Drive

Increased efforts to raise an additional $3 million for the St. Mary's Hospital Development Fund are under way this week, and the hospital's medical staff reports its members so far have exceeded their $650,000 goal by $16,097.

The hospital is seeking some $10 million for new development. Long Beach residents Modestus and Evalyn Bauer have contributed $1.1 million, and the Catholic order of the Sisters of Charity has promised to finance an additional $5.9 million.

New fund drive "divisions" scheduled to embark on their money-gathering missions this week include the "Special 'A' Division," headed by chairman Irving Schneider, and the "Special 'B' Division," headed by chairman Jack J. Fee, Rear Adm., U.S. Navy, retired.

A combined step-off meeting for the two divisions will be held at the Victor Hugo Restaurant at 6:30 p.m. Thursday.

The drive's "Pattern 'B' Division," headed by Weckford Morgan, meets Wednesday at the Lafayette Hotel in preparation for initiation of its efforts May 22.

Kickoff meeting for the "Pattern 'A' Division" was held Thursday. It is headed by Frank J. Fontana.

Among those active in the "Pattern 'A' Division" effort are group chairmen H. G. "Jerry" Hogan and Raymond L. Monnahan.

Included in fund drive contribution selling points are "sale" of memorial units in St. Mary's proposed 10-story tower building, and a "pledge now, pay later" plan.

General campaign chairman Joseph A. Ball said the hospital is seeking to construct the 10-story building to house 230 new patient beds immediately, and 100 more in the near future.

the city (of Los Angeles)."

Fenton's letter was in response to Councilman John S. Gibson's saying "doctors of San Pedro Community Hospital refuse to provide emergency services to the community around it," the board president said.

HE ALSO cited City Administrative Officer C. Erwin Piper as saying "he had been informed that the hospital's directors were not interested in the emergency problem in San Pedro, but feels that they may yet repent of their sins and cooperate with the city."

"Lack of a full emergency hospital at San Pedro has long been the concern of the hospital board, and we have done all in our power to provide emergency treatment," Fenton said in the letter.

Artesia, Bellflower Will Donate Blood

Blood banks are scheduled this month in Bellflower and Artesia.

The Red Cross mobile unit will be at the Masonic Lodge, 9813 E. Beach St., Bellflower, from 3 to 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, May 7.

The unit will be at the Holy Family Catholic Church parish hall, 18708 S. Clarkdale Ave., Artesia, from 3 to 7:30 p.m., Monday, May 12.

Donors, including those from nearby communities, may call 437-2921 for appointments.

CHANGES DUE CSLB

V.P.s for finance, academic affairs and student affairs. Reporting directly to the president would be a public information director and Academic Senate chairman.

The study committee "considered the role of certain key positions in the organization," then made it clear that to them:

"The president is the leader and chief executive officer of the college. He has the legal authority and responsibility for its management."

But in the committee's proposal, "The president manages the instructional... support and planning activities through a series of line officers." He is represented elsewhere by members of his official family.

Statewide college rules now call for two vice presidents at each campus. The system's trustees in February voted to seek necessary funds to create a third everywhere — for student affairs.

This request still must be processed through the legislature and a year or more may be required before a final decision is made, observers note.

AT LONG BEACH, which now has but one vice president — Dr. Donald Simonsen, academic affairs — an administrative deanship could be upgraded to fill one of the higher slots called for in the recommendations, says Gray.

Trustee and legislative action then would be needed in order to add a fourth V.P.

(Whether this total proposal will help or hamper an incoming president is a question presently being heard on campus. It particularly is pertinent since a successor to departing Dr. Carl W. McIntosh has yet to be named.

(Gray and others indicate belief the new chief executive will be aided rather than hindered by finding at least the beginning of a major restructuring. "Our goal is to update the organization and procedures to bring them in line with the size and complexity of this evolving college," says Gray. "This can only be a help to him.")

McIntosh, unavailable for comment, reportedly is "enthusiastic" about the recommendations. He along with other ranking administrators was involved in consultations leading to the finished product.

The retiring officer already has comitted himself to staying at CSCLB until a successor is named.

CONTINUING AN analogy with the federal government:

The Academic Senate and five to-be-created councils form a "federal" union in dealing with policy making. Represented would be schools, departments, students and other elements.

The president — through his "office" — is part of each council, dealing with finance, educational policies and planning, graduate school, teacher education and student affairs.

Formalized procedures by which policy could be made or altered is envisioned.

Major modifications are seen in the area of student affairs, whose top administrator would become a vice president.

Pressently a dean and assistant dean of students supervise a wide range of activities — including meting out punishment to rule breakers.

ALSO PLANNED is a new job, director of intergroup relations, to supervise Educational Opportunities Program, Head Start and other special functions.

CSLB's six schools — applied arts and sciences, business administration, education, engineering, fine arts, letters and science — would be given authority, "subject to applicable codes and trustees' or chancellor's regulations":

"To recommend minimum necessary policies and guidelines... for effective all-college operation." Further, schools could change their internal structure; delegate to their own departments additional freedom of action; authorize new courses; control admission of students and, "by authority delegated from the president, appoint faculty and approve reappointments..."

Center to Open Officially Today

Grand opening ceremonies for the new East Long Beach Neighborhood Center facilities, 2338 E. Anaheim St., will be held at 1:30 p.m. today.

Scheduled to attend are Mayor Edwin W. Wade, Councilman Bert Bond and Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Long Beach. Mayor Wade will cut the ribbon officially opening the center.

said of the charges in the suit, "It's a lie. He really doesn't know what he's talking about.

"I think it's especially detestable that Moseley would do something like this to Father Williams, who never takes sides in local politics.

"Father Williams buried his wife (Saturday). She died Monday. For Moseley to do this to Father Williams, of all people, is detestable.

"In his grief now, how is Father Williams going to defend himself?

"Moseley was fired from his job with the agency about a year ago and at that time he filed suit against the organization. He lost the suit because the judge said he had no grounds for filing it in the first place," Mrs. Jackson said.

"I suppose he's a disgruntled person who's trying to tear down the only agency here that's really trying to help the poor people. I can't understand it."

"I'M PRETTY sure the charges are false and I believe Moseley certainly has done a disservice to the community," Cade told The Independent, Press-Telegram.

"All I can say is the congressman put out a letter endorsing me and I'm very proud to be endorsed by him. The only thing I know about the letter is that he published it and that I saw a copy of it at my home.

"I can say without a doubt that even if there were anything to Moseley's charges, Father Williams shouldn't have been named.

"I think Moseley has done a great disservice to a great number of people, to the community and to the city of Compton.

"Of course, the courts have to accept suits once they're filed, but I believe once the hearing is held Moseley's suit will be thrown out."

Moseley said at a Friday press conference he has sworn affidavits from four Community Action Agency employes stating they were required to prepare the Hawkins' endorsement letter during regular working hours.

The Agency receives federal funds.

JOB PLAN

to have to be from the private sector."

The business community is generally conceded to have done poorly in 1968. And while few people are betting on it, this year could be different.

Tony Mazur of the Youth Opportunity Center is more confident than most observers.

"Jobs from the business sector will offset the drop in the public sector," he says. "There's an awful lot of effort going out to the private sector. They have to come through. There's been enough publicity and racket made for them to recognize the need."

Another optimist is Harry Stroud, director of the Long Beach metropolitan division of the National Alliance of Businessmen. The alliance, which was started nationally over a year ago at former President Johnson's urging, is primarily oriented toward finding permanent jobs for the hard core. But NAB also took part in last summer's job campaign in communities throughout the country, and will do the same this year.

Locally, the organization covers Long Beach and a number of surrounding communities. Its summer goal has been set at 1,000 jobs, or 1,500 fewer than last year.

STROUD SAYS NAB's effort has gotten off to a slow start in Long Beach, and the task ahead looks "tough." He concedes that manpower cutbacks in the aerospace industry, and at Douglas particularly, aren't going to help any. But he still thinks the organization can meet its quota.

Even if NAB lines up 1,000 jobs, though, some officials aren't sure the jobs will make much of an impact on Long Beach proper.

ST. MARY'S
Push Hospital Fund Drive

Increased efforts to raise an additional $3 million for the St. Mary's Hospital Development Fund are under way this week, and the hospital's medical staff reports its members so far have exceeded their $650,000 goal by $16,097.

The hospital is seeking some $10 million for new development. Long Beach residents Modestus and Evalyn Bauer have contributed $1.1 million, and the Catholic order of the Sisters of Charity has promised to finance an additional $5.9 million.

New fund drive "divisions" scheduled to embark on their money-gathering missions this week include the "Special 'A' Division," headed by chairman Irving Schneider, and the "Special 'B' Division," headed by chairman Jack J. Fee, Rear Adm., U.S. Navy, retired.

A combined step-off meeting for the two divisions will be held at the Victor Hugo Restaurant at 6:30 p.m. Thursday.

The drive's "Pattern 'B' Division," headed by Weckford Morgan, meets Wednesday at the Lafayette Hotel in preparation for initiation of its efforts May 22.

Kickoff meeting for the "Pattern 'A' Division" was held Thursday. It is headed by Frank J. Fontana.

Among those active in the "Pattern 'A' Division" effort are group chairmen H. G. "Jerry" Hogan and Raymond L. Monnahan.

Included in fund drive contribution selling points are "sale" of memorial units in St. Mary's proposed 10-story tower building, and a "pledge now, pay later" plan.

General campaign chairman Joseph A. Ball said the hospital is seeking to construct the 10-story building to house 230 new patient beds immediately, and 100 more in the near future.

the city (of Los Angeles)."

Fenton's letter was in response to Councilman John S. Gibson's saying "doctors of San Pedro Community Hospital refuse to provide emergency services to the community around it," the board president said.

HE ALSO cited City Administrative Officer C. Erwin Piper as saying "he had been informed that the hospital's directors were not interested in the emergency problem in San Pedro, but feels that they may yet repent of their sins and cooperate with the city."

"Lack of a full emergency hospital at San Pedro has long been the concern of the hospital board, and we have done all in our power to provide emergency treatment," Fenton said in the letter.

PAM LEARNS FROM CAMELOT

By HAL LOWE
Staff Writer

Pam Armstrong, Lakewood, is used to being in a crowd and she doesn't mind it at all when it comes to being in a theater.

The 20-year old Lakewood High School graduate always finds herself being called on to fill in, in the chorus of a production when the show calls for a crowd scene and she likes to gain the experience.

Pam plans to teach and would like to know every facet of theatre work so she can also teach that subject.

"I have served as stage manager backstage on productions and performed with the crowds on stage" Pam said preparing for her latest "crowd" scene in the Long Beach Civic Light Opera production of "Camelot." Her part in the musical show now at the Municipal Auditorium, sort of sums up her theater experiences . . . lady in waiting.

"Camelot" is Pam's second appearance with the CLO. She appeared in last winter's production of "Oklahoma" . . . still as part of a crowd.

The city college coed can sing and play the piano, but she has never really tried for a lead in shows of local theatre groups.

"I can learn a lot more about the theatre by observing how the directors work and what goes on around the stage, if I am just part of the crowd" Pam said, "A lead role would take too much of my time."

Time is something which Pam treasures. Her off-stage, out-of-school, time is spent with working with arts and crafts which her parents approve of, and of joining a crowd of friends and going in the country to ride motorcycles, which her family disapproves of.

PAM ARMSTRONG
Used to Being in a Crowd

Her first effort as a "lead" on a motorcycle, almost resulted in the death of a couple of sheep and an injury for Pam.

"I think my parents prefer me on the stage rather than on a cycle" Pam said, "Even on a real crowded stage, there is less chance of getting run over than with a group of my friends 'cow trailing' on cycles."

EARL WILSON

Kiley 'Guy in Gray Hat'

NEW YORK — Richard Kiley was sitting in Toots Shor's, a small drink in front of him, when a man came over and said, 'I'm sorry, I've got a wife who's highly frustrated.'

'Who hasn't?" Kiley said.

"And she wants to know what the hell soap opera you play in," the man said.

"I've never been in a soap opera," Kiley replied.

'Now don't tell me that!" the stranger boomed. "You always play the nasty villain like Boris Karloff. You're like the guy in the grey hat. I can't think of your name."

"It's Richard Kiley," Richard Kiley confessed.

"That's what comes of wearing beards in shows," Kiley said. The now 47-year-old ex-star of "Man of La Mancha," who justifiably feels that "Impossible Dream" (correct title, "The Quest") sort of belongs to him, is not likely to be recognized on the street, especially when he doesn't have on a beard or a toupee.

"WE'RE SWEATING OUT the movie," he said. "I've been mentioned for the picture, but so has everybody else, including Richard Burton. I played it on Broadway for a year and a half — then in Los Angeles and San Francisco . . ."

He paused, to reminisce.

"The night of the opening, Nov. 23, 1965, we had a party at One 5th Ave. The first review, on TV, spoke of 'how embarrassingly sentimental Richard Kiley was singing "Impossible Dream." '

"The next morning my wife put the reviews on the table. The TV review was the only one that was not a rave.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Elmer Watson claims he heard a woman ask her husband for a new diamond ring. The husband snapped, "What for? The old one isn't worn out yet!"

WISH I'D SAID THAT: If you see a man who's miserable at the end of the day, it's probably because he hasn't a wife to go home to — or because he has.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "I've never been hurt by something I didn't say." — Mark Twain.

That's earl, brother.

PAM LEARNS FROM CAMELOT

By HAL LOWE
Staff Writer

Pam Armstrong, Lakewood, is used to being in a crowd and she doesn't mind it at all when it comes to being in a theater.

The 20-year old Lakewood High School graduate always finds herself being called on to fill in, in the chorus of a production when the show calls for a crowd scene and she likes to gain the experience.

Pam plans to teach and would like to know every facet of theatre work so she can also teach that subject.

"I have served as stage manager backstage on productions and performed with the crowds on stage" Pam said preparing for her latest "crowd" scene in the Long Beach Civic Light Opera production of "Camelot." Her part in the musical show now at the Municipal Auditorium, sort of sums up her theater experiences . . . lady in waiting.

"Camelot" is Pam's second appearance with the CLO. She appeared in last winter's production of "Oklahoma" . . . still as part of a crowd.

The city college coed can sing and play the piano, but she has never really tried for a lead in shows of local theatre groups.

"I can learn a lot more about the theatre by observing how the directors work and what goes on around the stage, if I am just part of the crowd" Pam said, "A lead role would take too much of my time."

Time is something which Pam treasures. Her off-stage, out-of-school, time is spent with working with arts and crafts which her parents approve of, and of joining a crowd of friends and going in the country to ride motorcycles, which her family disapproves of.

PAM ARMSTRONG
Used to Being in a Crowd

Her first effort as a "lead" on a motorcycle, almost resulted in the death of a couple of sheep and an injury for Pam.

"I think my parents prefer me on the stage rather than on a cycle" Pam said, "Even on a real crowded stage, there is less chance of getting run over than with a group of my friends 'cow trailing' on cycles."

EARL WILSON

Kiley 'Guy in Gray Hat'

NEW YORK — Richard Kiley was sitting in Toots Shor's, a small drink in front of him, when a man came over and said, 'I'm sorry, I've got a wife who's highly frustrated.'

'Who hasn't?" Kiley said.

"And she wants to know what the hell soap opera you play in," the man said.

"I've never been in a soap opera," Kiley replied.

'Now don't tell me that!" the stranger boomed. "You always play the nasty villain like Boris Karloff. You're like the guy in the grey hat. I can't think of your name."

"It's Richard Kiley," Richard Kiley confessed.

"That's what comes of wearing beards in shows," Kiley said. The now 47-year-old ex-star of "Man of La Mancha," who justifiably feels that "Impossible Dream" (correct title, "The Quest") sort of belongs to him, is not likely to be recognized on the street, especially when he doesn't have on a beard or a toupee.

* * * *

"WE'RE SWEATING OUT the movie," he said. "I've been mentioned for the picture, but so has everybody else, including Richard Burton. I played it on Broadway for a year and a half — then in Los Angeles and San Francisco . . ."

He paused, to reminisce.

"The night of the opening, Nov. 23, 1965, we had a party at One 5th Ave. The first review, on TV, spoke of 'how embarrassingly sentimental Richard Kiley was singing "Impossible Dream.' "

"The next morning my wife put the reviews on the table. The Tv review was the only one that was not a rave.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Elmer Watson claims he heard a woman ask her husband for a new diamond ring. The husband snapped, "What for? The old one isn't worn out yet!"

WISH I'D SAID THAT: If you see a man who's miserable at the end of the day, it's probably because he hasn't a wife to go home to — or because he has.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "I've never been hurt by something I didn't say." — Mark Twain.

That's earl, brother.

Mail Rate Increase Outlined

Details of President Richard M. Nixon's postal rate hike request were reported by Long Beach Postmaster David Selcer Saturday.

Selcer said an "inherited" postal deficit of $12 billion is responsible for the President's rate hike request, which seeks to ease the deficit by some $600 million.

The Long Beach post office chief said Postmaster General Winton M. (Red) Blount told him the 1970 deficit compelled the President to seek the increase to ease the Post Office Department's economic difficulties and eliminate an added public tax burden.

"In addition to increasing mail from six to seven cents, as proposed by the Johnson administration, President Nixon also asked that second and third-class mailers help reduce the large postal deficit which would otherwise be paid by the taxpayers," Selcer said.

* * * *

"FOR BULK third-class mail and most magazines and newspapers, the rates would be increased 16 to 20 per cent above today's levels. These percentages include rate hikes already scheduled by previous action of Congress."

Salcer said the President's recommended increase to reduce the 1970 postal deficit is being considered by Congress. Other postal rate increase requests include:

— First-class letters and post cards would be increased one cent to seven cents an ounce and six cents apiece, respectively, on July 1, 1969. Airmail postage would remain at 10 cents. This would yield $557.2 million in new revenues.

* * * *

— FOR second-class mail, a handling charge of 3-10ths of a cent per piece for circulation outside home counties would become effective July 1, 1970. This would yield $15.3 million yearly and would represent a 12 per cent increase in addition to the eight per cent rate hike slated to take effect Jan. 1, 1970.

— Rates for single pieces of third-class mail would be increased one cent apiece, yielding $12.4 million annually. For regular, bulk third-class, the minimum would be increased to a uniform rate of 4.2 cents Jan. 1, 1970, as contrasted with the present rate of 3.6 cents. The 1970 increase would lift revenues by $46.8 million annually, Selcer said.

Guests this year will be 18 senior enlisted advisors from major ships and commands in the area. Fourne's boss, Master Chief Quartermaster Ernest Greci is included.

Sons of Italy Launch March of Dimes Drive

Members of the Long Beach Lodge No. 1982, Order Sons of Italy in America, Monday will begin a week-long effort to raise funds to support research and treatment in the 103 March of Dimes birth defects centers in the United States.

The project consists of the street sale of buttons which bear the Roman numeral "XVI," indicating the incidence of birth defects in the nation each year.

XVI represents 16, and the final numeral, "1", is broken on the button to symbolize the one child in 16 who is born with a birth defect.

Containers for coins and bills, according to local lodge Venerable Mario Sirignano, of 2044 Raymond Ave., will be clearly labeled. "National charity project of the Order Sons of Italy in America to fight birth defects."

The street fund-raising effort will continue daily through Saturday.

Commenting on the problem of birth defects, Sirignano pointed out that each year in the United States, birth defects destroy an estimated half-million lives before birth and kill 60,000 children and adults.

The local effort is part of a nation-wide drive, scheduled to conclude with the observance of Mother's Day, May 11.

ANAHEIM HIGH SLATES '59 REUNION

A reunion of members of the Class of 1959 of Anaheim High School is being planned, and organizers of the event are seeking alumni in the Long Beach area.

Members of the class may contact Dick Jenkins, of 1310 N. Wren St., Anaheim, or George Bragg, of 2851 Piedmont Ave., Los Alamitos.

The event is tentatively set for Aug. 9 at the Newporter Inn.

Learn about an investment philosophy founded on informed, well-calculated investment speculation. With a potentially aggressive capital-gains program in mind, this philosophy is geared to change rather than stability.
Find out what nine well-defined factors cause changes in a stock. Learn how these factors have set off spectacular gains in recent years. And how to evaluate new candidate stocks using four yardsticks. Learn what we believe to be the proper ratios of risk versus potential reward. In the discussion period which follows, you are welcome to ask questions.
If your own investment philosophy aims for aggressive capital gains, we believe you will find it reinforced by this advanced lecture. For your reservation for this stimulating and educational lecture we suggest that you mail your name, address, zip and phone or telephone us without delay.

Mail Rate Increase Outlined

Details of President Richard M. Nixon's postal rate hike request were reported by Long Beach Postmaster David Selcer Saturday.

Selcer said an "inherited" postel deficit of $12 billion is responsible for the President's rate hike request, which seeks to ease the deficit by some $600 million.

The Long Beach post office chief said Postmaster General Winton M. (Red) Blount told him the 1970 deficit compelled the President to seek the increase to ease the Post Office Department's economic difficulties and eliminate an added public tax burden.

"In addition to increasing mail from six to seven cents, as proposed by the Johnson administration, President Nixon also asked that second and third-class mailers help reduce the large postal deficit which would otherwise be paid by the taxpayers," Selcer said.

* * * *

"FOR BULK third-class mail and most magazines and newspapers, the rates would be increased 16 to 20 per cent above today's levels. These percentages include rate hikes already scheduled by previous action of Congress."

Salcer said the President's recommended increase to reduce the 1970 postal deficit is being considered by Congress. Other postal rate increase requests include:

— First-class letters and post cards would be increased one cent to seven cents an ounce and six cents apiece, respectively, on July 1, 1969. Airmail postage would remain at 10 cents. This would yield $557.2 million in new revenues.

* * * *

— FOR second-class mail, a handling charge of 3-10ths of a cent per piece for circulation outside home counties would become effective July 1, 1970. This would yield $15.3 million yearly and would represent a 12 per cent increase in addition to the eight per cent rate hike slated to take effect Jan. 1, 1970.

— Rates for single pieces of third-class mail would be increased one cent apiece, yielding $12.4 million annually. For regular, bulk third-class, the minimum would be increased to a uniform rate of 4.2 cents Jan. 1, 1970, as contrasted with the present rate of 3.6 cents. The 1970 increase would lift revenues by $46.8 million annually, Selcer said.

Sons of Italy Launch March of Dimes Drive

Members of the Long Beach Lodge No. 1982, Order Sons of Italy in America, Monday will begin a week-long effort to raise funds to support research and treatment in the 103 March of Dimes birth defects centers in the United States.

The project consists of the street sale of buttons which bear the Roman numeral "XVI," indicating the incidence of birth defects in the nation each year.

XVI represents 16, and the final numeral, "I", is broken on the button to symbolize the one child in 16 who is born with a birth defect.

Containers for coins and bills, according to local lodge Venerable Mario Sirignano, of 2044 Raymond Ave., will be clearly labeled. "National charity project of the Order Sons of Italy in America to fight birth defects."

The street fund-raising effort will continue daily through Saturday.

Commenting on the problem of birth defects, Sirignano pointed out that each year in the United States, birth defects destroy an estimated half-million lives before birth and kill 60,000 children and adults.

The local effort is part of a nation-wide drive, scheduled to conclude with the observance of Mother's Day, May 11.

Probation Officer Looks Like Model

By BOB SANDERS
Staff Writer

In Room 2046 of the Orange County Probation Department building at 301 S. Manchester Avenue, Orange, sits a very pretty, smiling — most of the time — young woman at a neatly cluttered desk.

The sunlight streams through the open window behind her, highlighting her dark brown hair and putting an amber tint in her grey-blue eyes.

One who didn't know where he was might take her for a model. She has the classic profile and the trim figure for it.

She isn't. She is Miss Nancy Nelson, transplanted Iowan with bachelor's and master's degrees in criminology from the University of Iowa.

ALTHOUGH HER APPEARANCE and her demeanor belie the old stereotype of the stern, all-business probation officer, that is what she is.

As fellow workers and some of her "clients" can aver, she can be stern enough when the occasion demands it. When it doesn't she isn't.

Day in and day out, she counsels those who need it before their court appearances, investigating the facts of their cases and lives, and making recommendations to the court that many times affect the person's whole future.

How does she like it?

"It's a good job," she says, smiling with her eyes, and then adds, "if you have to have a job."

And Nancy does.

She has to be busy. And is.

"The toughest part of my job," she adds seriously, "is being the bridge between the community and the person who is in trouble.

"Sometimes we all feel like we're being too harsh, and other times like we're being too soft. Somewhere in between is probably right.

"But we just keep trying and hope we're close enough that the community won't be hurt and that the persons we're trying to help will be helped.

"Most of the time I think we make it."

This is the attitude that has made the attractive Miss Nelson one of the most effective probation people in the area.

HOW DID A LOVELY GIRL like her get involved in criminology?

"When I first started at the university," she says, "I took a class under Dr. Robert Caldwell (author of the standard college text "Criminology") and he got me enthused with the subject.

"Apparently I never recovered. I've worked here 10 years and I still like it."

"To think," she adds musingly, "it all began with a 'crush' on a professor."

She came to Orange County because she liked California, the climate was good and "they paid more money than a lot of places."

When she first came here the department had 66 professional probation officers. Today it has more than 230.

And Nancy Nelson has been part of that growth.

She has only one complaint, and that's not a major one, even she admits.

"The juvenile offender gets a lot of publicity," she says, "and I'm not against that. It's just that I do think that more might be said of the problems adults have and how we're trying to solve them too."

$80 Stereo Taken

Thieves took an $80 stereo tape player from an auto owned by Daniel J. Kleiman, of the USS England, while the car was parked near Gate 1 of Long Beach Naval Station, police said Saturday.

Torrance Readies For Big Parade

Fort MacArthur's garrison set its best foot forward for Torrance Princess Jenell Shawgo the other day.

The petite miss previewed the Army entries for the 10th annual Torrance Armed Forces Day and celebration on May 16-17.

She learned the GIs will be "sharper than sharp" for the reviewing officer and Grand Marshal, General of the Army Omar N. Bradley — the nation's highest ranking officer.

This year's parade is dedicated to the memory of former President and General of the Army Dwight Eisenhower.

Entries received to day by parade coordinator Ed Sullivan indicate the two-day event will be the largest in its 10-year history. More than 7,000 marchers will be seen by an anticipated crowd of 140,000.

Jenell, 19, a dental assistant and Torrance West High graduate, watch Fort MacArthur's color guard and members of the 72nd Army Band sharpen their skills to match the Marine, Navy, Air Force and Coast Guard units.

THERE WILL also be a platoon of WACs, massed colors by the 19th Artillery Group (Air Defense) with 80 marchers and its mobile Nike-Hercules missile.

At the junior level, Long Beach Polytechnic High will defend its 1968 title against units from Long Beach Millikan and Arcadia High Schools.

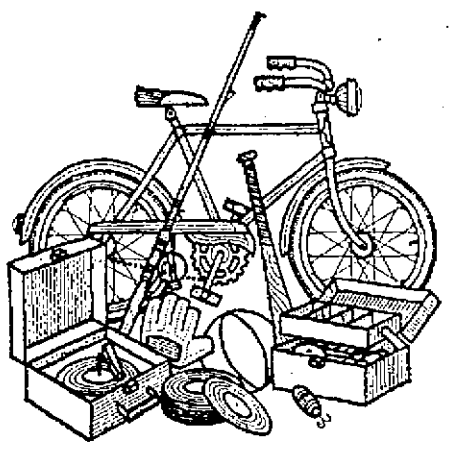

The May 17 parade begins at 10 a.m. and goes west down Torrance Boulevard past the Civic Center.

Torrance Readies For Big Parade

Fort MacArthur's garrison set its best foot forward for Torrance Princess Jeneli Shawgo the other day.

The petite miss previewed the Army entries for the 10th annual Torrance Armed Forces Day and celebration on May 16-17.

She learned the GIs will be "sharper than sharp" for the reviewing officer and Grand Marshal, General of the Army Omar N. Bradley — the nation's highest ranking officer.

This year's parade is dedicated to the memory of former President and General of the Army Dwight Eisenhower.

Entries received to day by parade coordinator Ed Sullivan indicate the two-day event will be the largest in its 10-year history. More than 7,000 marchers will be seen by an anticipated crowd of 140,000.

Jenell, 19, a dental assistant and Torrance West High graduate, watch Fort MacArthur's color guard and members of the 72nd Army Band sharpen their skills to match the Marine, Navy, Air Force and Coast Guard units.

THERE WILL also be a platoon of WACs, massed colors by the 19th Artillery Group (Air Defense) with 80 marchers and its mobile Nike-Hercules missile.

At the junior level, Long Beach Polytechnic High will defend its 1968 title against units from Long Beach Millikan and Arcadia High Schools

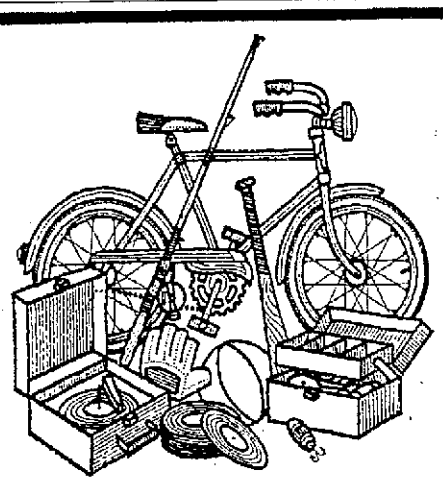

The May 17 parade begins at 10 a.m. and goes west down Torrance Bouleward past the Civic Center.

USED CAR DEALERS ASSOCIATION

AUTO ALBUM

by TED BURNESS

THE INITIALS OF "E.M.F." STOOD FOR THE EVERITT-METZGER-FLANDERS CO. OF DETROIT, MANUFACTURERS OF THIS CAR (1908-1913.) STUDEBAKER WAS SALES AGENT FOR BOTH THE E.M.F. AND ITS LOWER-PRICED COMPANION CAR, THE FLANDERS.

THOUGH IT WAS NO WORSE THAN MANY OTHER EARLY AUTOS, THE E.M.F. INSPIRED MANY DEROGATORY SLOGANS (MOSTLY NO JOKES)

"EVERY MORNING FIXIT"
"EVERY MAN'S FOLLY"
"EACH MOUNTAIN FOILS IT"
"ENDLESS MECHANICAL FAILURES"
"ENDS MOTORING FUN"
"EVERY MOTOR FAILS"
"EVERY MECHANICAL FAULT"
"EVERY MECHANIC FATTENED"
"EACH MOTORIST FURIOUS"

CAN YOU THINK OF ANY OTHER COMIC E-M-F SLOGANS? IF SO, HOW ABOUT SENDING THEM IN TO "AUTO ALBUM," c/o THIS NEWSPAPER.

TAP 5-4

THANKS TO ORVILLE RENNIE ASSOCIATES, DENVER, COLORADO, FOR PHOTOS AND DETAILS ON THIS RARE CAR IN A COLLECTION WHICH CAN BE SEEN AT THE FORNEY CAR MUSEUM IN DENVER.

These sponsoring dealers invite you to clip this weekly feature and keep it in album form, We are proud to present America's automotive tradition to the reading public.

AUTO ALBUM

by TED BURNESS

THE INITIALS OF "E.M.F." STOOD FOR THE EVERITT-METZGER-FLANDERS CO. OF DETROIT, MANUFACTURERS OF THIS CAR (1908-1913.) STUDEBAKER WAS SALES AGENT FOR BOTH THE E.M.F. AND ITS LOWER-PRICED COMPANION CAR, THE FLANDERS.

THOUGH IT WAS NO WORSE THAN MANY OTHER EARLY AUTOS, THE E.M.F. INSPIRED MANY DEROGATORY SLOGANS (MOSTLY AS JOKES)

"EVERY MORNING FIXIT"
"EVERY MAN'S FOLLY"
"EACH MOUNTAIN FOILS-IT"
"ENDLESS MECHANICAL FAILURES"
"ENDS MOTORING FUN"
"EVERY MOTOR FAILS"
"EVERY MECHANICAL FAULT"
"EVERY MECHANIC FATTENED"
"EACH MOTORIST FURIOUS"

CAN YOU THINK OF ANY OTHER COMIC E-M-F SLOGANS? IF SO, HOW ABOUT SENDING THEM IN TO "AUTO ALBUM," C/o THIS NEWSPAPER!

TAP 5-4

THANKS TO ORVILLE RENNIE ASSOCIATES, DENVER, COLORADO, FOR PHOTOS AND DETAILS ON THIS RARE CAR, IN A COLLECTION WHICH CAN BE SEEN AT THE FORNEY CAR MUSEUM IN DENVER.

The Arts Are Vital to Healthy Business Community

G. Robert Turex Jr., executive vice president of the Bank of America, and Dr. Robert W. Corrigan, president of the California Institute of the Arts, will address an Arts Council luncheon meeting of Long Beach area business leaders at the Pacific Coast Club Thursday.

Theme of the meeting, sponsored by the Long Beach Regional Arts Council, is "Arts Are the Business of Business," according to Mrs. John H. Dale, Council president.

"Turex and Dr. Corrigan are prime movers in the creation of the $54 million California Institute of the Arts now under construction at Valencia," Mrs. Dale said.

"As nationally recognized leaders in their fields of business, finance, and the arts, they have an exciting story to tell of why it is good business for business to support and promote arts which illuminate man's mind and spirit."

* * * *

THE ACTION of the Arts Council in arranging the meeting was praised by Jerry Quinlan, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce economic-industrial development committee:

"If Long Beach is to attract more science and research industries, we must continue to improve the quantity and quality of cultural facilities such creative people demand.

"When those companies seek a new location, they don't pick a city just for its economic advantages.

"They also insist it have well developed and growing art programs to enable their highly paid and highly educated professional people, and their families, to enjoy a full and meaningful life," Quinlan said.

* * * *

QUINLAN'S chamber group is composed of a cross-section of Long Beach's business leaders and is dedicated to building the city's economic base and prosperity.

On display at a reception preceding the luncheon will be representative exhibits of current activities by many of the 42 art organizations which support the Arts Council.

"Long Beach leaders will be surprised and inspired by the scope and excellence of the work of these groups," Mrs. Dale said.

"Many have achieved more recognition nationally for their accomplishments than they have locally.

"By bringing the arts groups and our business leaders together, we want to generate a greater pride in Long Beach's cultural riches," said Mrs. Dale.

* * * *

"FEW CITIES become great without nourishing the arts and Long Beach is no exception.

"We already have the solid foundation for greatness. All we need do is build on it," she concluded.

Reservations for the luncheon, open to the public, may be made at the Arts Council office in the Pacific Coast Club or at the Chamber of Commerce, 121 Linden Ave.

Builder Don Ayres Jr. Wisely Predicted Cerritos' Boom

TWO-STORY MODELS . . . Have Attractive Stairways

"FHA didn't share our enthusiasm for the Cerritos area back in 1966 when we decided to build the first residential subdivision in that area," says Don Ayres Jr., president of Frank H. Ayres and Son, builders.

"Finally, with the help of Congressman James Utt, we convinced them Cerritos, had a great potential for growth and got our committment."

At that time Cerritos was predominantly agricultural. There were more dairy cows per square acre than humans, but Cerritos' location was in the path of progressive growth.

* * * *

THERE was a need for a well-planned bedroom community, supported by industry and commerce, as the complex of Southern California freeway systems evolved.

Bellflower, Lakewood, Artesia, La Palma, Buena Park and a number of other cities filled the need for a while, but another master-planned community like Cerritos was needed.

Ayres realized the need for a good, large residential community to provide homes for families desiring easy access to freeways, employment opportunities, schools, churches, shopping facilities, and an almost perfect climate.

* * * *

INDUSTRY had been steadily moving into Cerritos and the surrounding areas.

The alert Cerritos planning commission convinced city officials and land owners their city was changing and in the path of urban development.

The dairy industry, representing more than $100 million a year, began to migrate to Chino and other suburban areas.

Three years ago Don Ayres was convinced Cerritos was undergoing one of the most accelerated residential booms since Orange County was "discovered."

* * * *

NOW Ayres is in the second unit of his fifth community of Rancho La Cuesta homes in Cerritos.

The city has met the demands of progress.

By 1970 there will be a $40 million shopping mall along the San Gabriel Freeway (605), between 183rd and South Streets. It will be air-conditioned and offer a full complement of shops, stores and services.

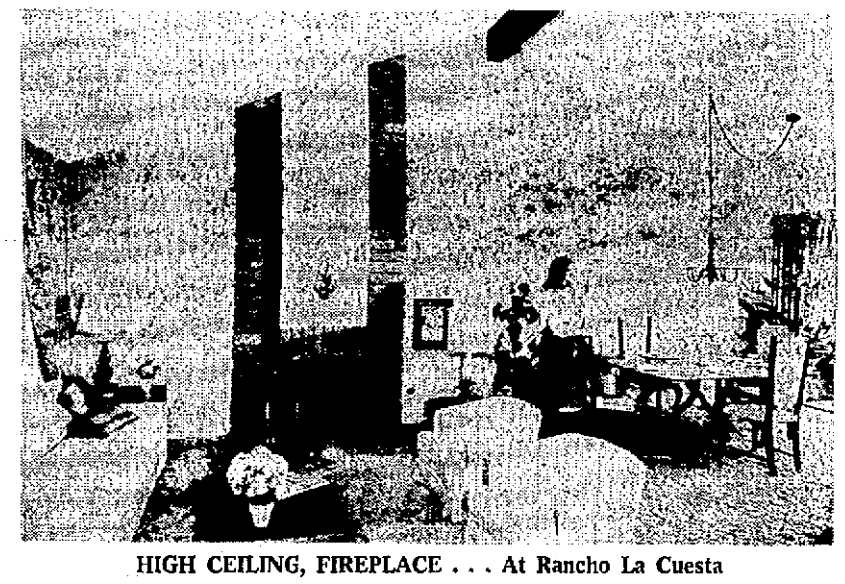

Cerritos now boasts a 16-acre industrial park, now leasing, and a like development at 166th and Norwalk Boulevard.

Cerritos is taking shape as a complete community through guidance of the Chamber of Commerce and its manager, John Corcoran.

* * * *

THE Artesia Freeway is now completed between Lakewood Boulevard and Bloomfield Avenue.

Rancho La Cuesta Cerritos V has furnished and decorated model homes and a sales-information center open daily at 13001 Artesia Blvd.

IT'S WORKSHOP WORKERS WEEK

CRI Becomes A Major Electronics Manufacturer

Community Rehabilitation Industries now is numbered among the largest electronics manufacturing businesses in the Long Beach-Orange County area.

This is an unusual feat, since this "business" is a rehabilitation program, a nonprofit training workshop located at 1409-21 E. Anaheim St., Long Beach, where handicapped people are trained toward the goal of competitive employment.

Some of the companies which subcontract work to CRI are Douglas Aircraft Co., Long Beach; Thermco Products Corp., Orange; General Precision Systems Inc., Kearfott Group, located in San Marcos; Norris Industries, Los Angeles, and Hughes Aircraft Co., Fullerton, according to Russell K. Peterson, president of CRI's board.

* * * *

TO accommodate these expanding contracts, CRI has experienced rapid growth in the last 12 months.

One hundred fifty persons are now either in training or employed at CRI, Peterson said.

According to a proclamation by the governor and the joint houses of the state legislature, this week has been declared "Workshop Workers Week" both to honor the workers and subcontractors currently involved in the program, and to encourage additional use of the shops.

The week's observance is being sponsored by the Department of Rehabilitation and the California Association of Rehabilitation Workshops.

* * * *

CLAIFORNIA leads the nation with 10 per cent of such workshops where handicapped persons may train for positions in industry while producing taxable income.

The growth of the workshop program is a direct result of the services provided by the business community, which is finding subcontracting to these shops not only is assisting persons back to independent living "but is good business," Peterson said.

Last year, the workshops paid out $12-13 million in wages and salaries with most of it going to persons who could not compete for jobs in private industry, due to their handicaps.

* * * *

IT HAS proven of great value to many industries.

Some are as mammoth as the largest aerodynamics firms who job out small electronics projects, and cosmetic houses who need products specially packaged.

Others using the workshops are small businesses without the space or personnel to do specialized work.

The workshops provide a saving in company bookkeeping, taxes, paper work, payroll, space, machinery, hiring, inspection and storage.

For some projects the workshops take over an entire job — from the pickup of necessary supplies to the storage, packing, and shipping of the finished product.

Tip o' the Derby to You, Mr. President

LOUISVILLE, Ky (UPI) — Unbeaten Majestic Prince, displaying a fighting heart as well as blinding speed, thrilled President Nixon and one of the biggest crowds in the history of Churchill Downs Saturday when he won the $155,700 Kentucky Derby by a neck over Arts and Letters.

Majestic Prince covered the one mile ¼ race in 2:01⅘.

The copper-colored colt, for whom Canadian owner Frank McMahon once paid $250,000, made every penny of what worthwhile as he seized the Derby lead at the head of the stretch and defied a brilliant field of 3-year-olds to catch him.

Jockey Bill Hartack kept Majestic Prince in front

all the way down that long, long stretch under a blazing sun to become only the second jockey in history to win America's top turf classic five times — tying a mark held by Eddie Arcaro.

Dike, noted as a strong finisher, made a game run at the two frontrunners but had to settle for third place, a half-length behind Arts and Letters.

President Nixon, attending the Derby for the second consecutive year, was the first President to watch a Derby while in office and also the first chief executive to attend horse races anywhere while in office since Rutherford Hayes.

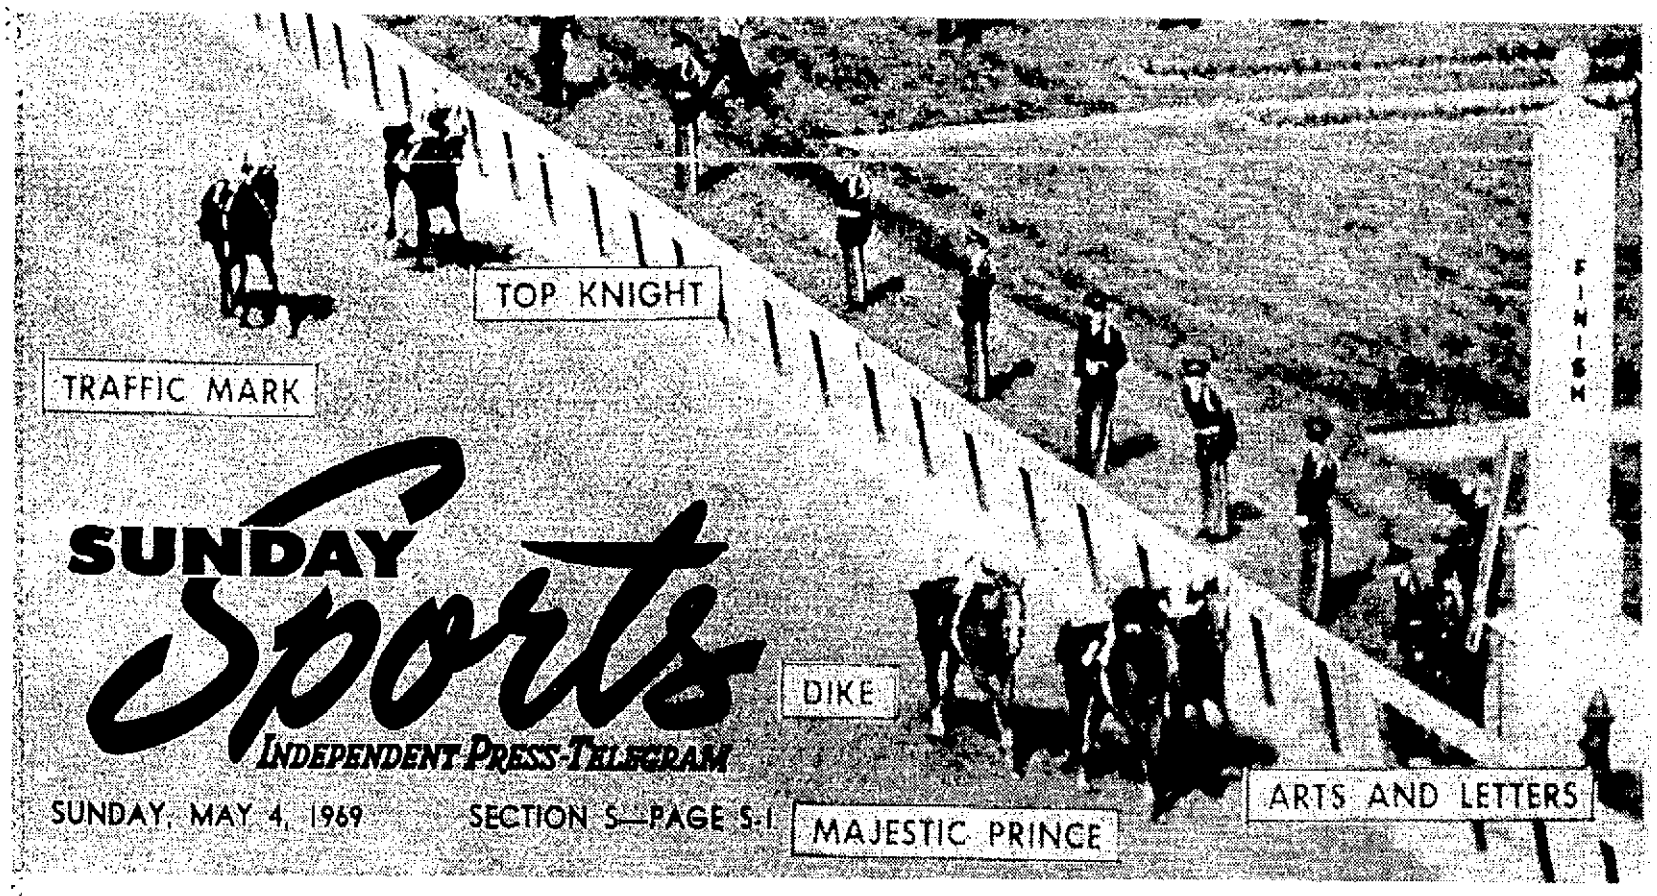

When asked before the race for his selection, Nixon said, "I have to stick with the California horse. I don't follow racing closely, so I don't have a system."

Majestic Prince, a Kentucky-bred colt who had done most of his racing in California, went to the post as favorite of the crowd of 100,000 and paid $4.80, 3.40 and 2.60 across the board. Arts and Letters paid $4.20, and 3.20 and Dike 2.80.

"If he wouldn't have been a fighter he wouldn't have won," said Hartack in the winner's circle, and that was the absolute truth.

On the final turn, Arts and Letters, racing along the rail, took the lead briefly under Jockey Braulio Baeza, while several lengths to the rear Jorge Velasquez

ATLANTA — "I'll tell you what wins games," said Atlanta's Clete Boyer. "It's pitching and defense."

The Dodgers might care to argue the point.

It was Boyer's ninth-inning home run which defeated the Dodgers 6-5 Saturday afternoon.

The loss was the toughest one for the Dodgers this season and dropped them out of a tie for first place. But they tried their best to take it in stride. "Maybe that makes up for some of the games we were fortunate to win," said manager Walt Alston.

The Dodgers appeared to have this one locked up. They led 5-4 entering the ninth inning, and relief ace Jim Brewer had his screwball working to perfection.

Brewer entered the game in the bottom of the seventh after the Dodgers had snapped a 4-all tie in the top of the frame on Willie Davis' single.

Brewer needed only 14 pitches — all strikes — to put down the Braves in the seventh and eighth innings. He struck out four of the six batters he faced in the two innings, ending the eighth by retiring Henry Aaron on a strikeout.

It was an error which led to the Dodgers' downfall in the ninth. Orlando Cepeda hit a grounder to third baseman Bill Sudakis and he booted the ball for his sixth error of the season. Tito Francona put down a sacrifice bunt attempt but Sudakis turned it into a force play by retiring Cepeda on a throw to second base.

Boyer came to the plate and Brewer got two quick strikes with the Braves' third baseman fouling off the second ptich.

Brewer then came in with his screwball, and Boyer slammed the 0-2 pitch over the leftfield fence to set off a celebration by the Braves.

"I was trying to guess with Brewer and stay out of the double play," said Boyer. "I was guessing screwball and that's what I got. The ball was down and I didn't really hit it that hard. I guess I was supposed to hit it out of here."

Of Brewer's 26 pitches, 25 had been strikes but he found little consolation in the statistics. "I never consider a g a m e well pitched if I lose," said the veteran lefthander.

The Dodgers tossed away a four-run lead Saturday after they had wasted a three-run advantage Friday night.

Ted Sizemore's single, Tom Haller's triple and Bill Grabarkewitz's single gave the Dodgers a 2-0 lead in the second and they doubled that in the third on home runs by Bill Russell and Andy Kosco.

The Braves tied the game on Cepeda's two-run homer in the sixth after they had scored twice in the fourth on doubles by Aaron and Cepeda and a sacrifice fly by Boyer.

The Braves' first four runs had come at the expense of Dodger starter Alan Foster, the 22-year-old righthander who has replaced Don Drysdale in the starting rotation.

The Dodgers lost an opportunity for a big inning

Troy Terrific Again, Blisters Bruins, 94-60

By JOHN DIXON
Staff Writer

USC is king of the Pacific-8. Next — the nation?

The Terrific Trojans, improving by leaps and dashes, ground out a difficult but decisive 94-60 victory over UCLA Saturday on the Westwood speedway.

The unbeaten Trojans were favored, but they didn't look like favorites at the halfway pole.

After nine events UCLA was in front 41-36. But USC swept the half-mile and discus, and surrendered only third-plaece points in the 100, 220-two-mile and intermediate hurdles in computing a 58-18 advantage in the final nine events.

UCLA will be tougher in title meets — and so will USC.

To win, the Trojans had to handcuff UCLA high-pointer Wayne Collett.

They almost shut him out.

Give Olympian Lennox Miller and muscle-injured Fred Kuller the credit.

Prodded by a 9.8 mile per hour wind, Miller won the 100 in 9.3, Kuller was second in 9.4, Collett fourth in an estimated 9.6.

Miller fought off Kuller in the 220 as both were credited with 20.7, and Collett picked up a point with third at 20.8.

Kuller and Miller were bellwethers in USC's victory in the 440-yard relay in 39.6, second fastest time of the year.

UCLA, anchored by Collett, finished only a yard and tenth of a second behind.

USC tried to give it away on a fumble-finger baton exchange between leadoff Rich Coulter and

Kuller, but UCLA gave it back — with some change — when Collett ran away from John Johnson.

When it comes to making a pass, the Trojans and Bruins are no Errol Flynns.

Len Van Hofwegen, the blazing Bruin from Cerritos, established a meet record of 45.9 in the 440, and brought UCLA victory in the mile relay with a 45.8 leg. Collett also ran a 45.8, and Andy Young, from Jordan High, was clocked at 47.0, after running second in the 440 in 47.3.

Trojan Carl Trentadue lowered the meet record in the 880 to 1:48.3. He had to set a record to win, because teammates Rick Joyce and Howard Becker dashed home in second and third places in

WEST SURVIVES

Celts Drub Lakers; It's Back to L.A.

By DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

Boston — The Lakers lost the battle but might have won the war.

That was the unstated feeling here Saturday after Boston forced a title showdown by drubbing the Lakers, 99-90, in the sixth game of their battle for the NBA championship.

The Celtics were tough on defense and horrible on offense, but the significant factor about this game was the performance of Jerry West.

Without fanfare, it can be reported that the Lakers' superstar guard survived his "rehabilitation" game in brilliant fashion and should be near total efficiency for Monday's deciding game in Los Angeles.

It was touch-and-go that West, nursing a pulled hamstring muscle in his left leg, would be able to play at all Saturday. For two periods there was still doubt, but it all was erased in the third and fourth periods.

West finished with 26 points, which may not be brilliant for him in this series, but it was a dandy effort considering his physical condition. And, more important, he still has much of his defensive quickness and lightning-quick reflexes—at least enough to get the job done.

The veteran guard was restricted to nine points in the first half and this was a decisive figure. While West was gingerly testing his leg the Celtics were running up a 55-39 advantage that they tried to squander but couldn't.

West was so surprised that his leg held up so well that he predicted the Lakers would win Monday's showdown and thus end their long frustration of losing title matches to the Celtics.

"We're going to win it because we have the better team," West told a cluster of writers. "I'm not positive I will be at my best, but I'm encouraged by today's game."

All signs point toward the Lakers winning their first title since coming to Los Angeles.

Besides West, the most significant factor was the performance of Elgin Baylor. He showed flashes of past glories by scoring 26 points and getting 10 rebounds.

Also, Wilt Chamberlain did not play one of his better games; perhaps because of his injured eye. No matter what the reason, the Lakers have every right to think he will bounce back Monday.

Chamberlain scored only one basket and finished with eight points. His defense was spotty, but there were moments in the fourth period when his defense was great as the Lakers made a mild run at cutting a 22-point Boston lead.

Bill Russell, who outrebounded Chamberlain 19-18, praised his team's defense and said he didn't feel West's injury inhibited his play.

Russell was in foul trouble early, but without West to drive the basket, the Celtic star wasn't tested. The Lakers took some low percentage shots instead of working in to Chamberlain, who might havs fouled Russell out.

The Celtics shot only 36 per cent, but they received a super effort from reserve Don Nelson who scored 25 points, 15 in the second half.

The turning point came far earlier, however.

West scored nine points in the first 10½ minutes and the Lakers trailed only 26-22. He went out for a rest and when he returned Boston was ahead by 11.

Boston held its lead, 82-65, in the third stanza thanks to the work of Nelson and Larry Sieg-

Lumber, Plywood Costs Add to Builders' Headaches

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Progress Section Editor

It is time, says an Orange County home builder, to release cost figures to the public.

Some of it is startling. And most of it makes sense.

"The high cost of building homes . . . in an industry already beset with the highest interest rates in history . . . should be an important segment of the communications and sales programs of builders selling homes in Southern California," declares Syd Carnine, general partner of Alscot Development Company.

Alscot's latest project is Aegean Hills in Orange County's Mission Viejo.

The average homebuyer, Carnine believes, isn't knowledgeable on the high costs of building his home.

A STUDY MADE BY ALSCOT reveals an increase in nearly every type of material and labor in home building since 1967.

Carnine said the percentages of increase are: fixtures, 5 per cent; concrete, 11; drywall, 20; labor, 33; lumber, 87; plywood, 92; and shingles and shakes, 102 per cent up.

Carnine goes further.

He cites the costs involved in the construction of the lowest-priced Aegean Hills model home (Plan B) and the highest (Plan F).

Here is his cost breakdown.

Plan B — cost of house, $18,400; cost of improved lot, $9,260; construction financing, $1,100; direct sales expense, $900; indirect sales expense, $750; total cost, $30,400; sales price, $31,800.

Plan F — cost of house, $17,300; cost of improved lot, $9,260; construction financing, $1,500; direct sales expense, $1,100; indirect sales expense, $750; total cost, $39,900; sales price, $41,500.

"WITHOUT LUMBER AND PLYWOOD," says Eugene A. Gulledge, president of the National Association of Home Builders, "we cannot build the homes America needs."

Gulledge first cites the short supply of skilled labor, then zeroes in on the shortages of lumber and plywood, the basic elements of home construction.

"Spokesmen for the forest products industry have warned that this shortage is not temporary," Gulledge adds.

During the hot, dry summer of 1967, extreme fire danger kept western loggers out of the woods. The next summer, heavy rains in the same areas made forest roads nearly impassable.

Then came the winter of 1968-69, with record cold and snow virtually closing the woods.

"It was in this atmosphere that homebuilding began its late-1968 rebound," Gulledge said, "Generating today's enormous demand for lumber and plywood."

SO WHAT FOLLOWED? Douglas fir lumber prices went up 29 per cent in 1968.

Obviously, demand for logs was greater than the demand for finished material — and the big reason was buying pressure from Japan, with 2.2 billion board feet of logs shipped to that country during 1968.

Limitations have since been placed on export of logs from federal lands.

According to its own figures, the U.S. Forest Service has 54 per cent of the national inventory of softwood timber — the raw material for lumber and plywood.

Industry owns 17 per cent.

But only 28 per cent of the total harvest comes from Forest Service land, and 36 per cent from industry lands.

INDUSTRY LAND CONTRIBUTES 25 per cent of the total growth; Forest Service land, only 20 per cent, and it would seem industry is 4½ times more efficient at growing timber than the Forest Service.

Or, maybe, that industry is depleting its share of the resource.

Says Gulledge: "Neither conclusion is correct."

Industry reinvests a portion of the income from its forest lands in making them more productive. The Forest Service is prevented from doing this.

An answer, Gulledge and the industry believe, lies in these areas: revision of federal policies, adequate funding of federal forestry, encouragement of better private forestry, and an export policy based on our national need.

THE NAHB PRESIDNET comes out swinging on another point: "Some lumber suppliers, not content with prices almost doubling during the past year, are fueling inflation with still higher prices, pleading short supply, lack of transportation and anything else but the real reason — being participants in a system that is charging all the market will bear."

The charge was like a hammer applied to the kneecap of the lumber producers. James Bronson, president of the National Forest Products Association, said the Gulledge charges were laudable sentiments but should be better used to focus attention on the true roadblock: federal management of national timber lands.

The answer, Bronson asserts, is to allow multiple use of federal forest and wilderness areas by combining park and conservation functions with the cutting of timber for commerical sale.

Missing from both their statements — these presidents of huge associations — were urging that their respective members try to hold the price line.

Business Week index

Crude Oil Refinery Runs Increase

A slip in steel production and a rise in auto output reversed last week's situation and held the chartline to its week ago level.

Steel production slipped 0.3 per cent. New orders continue strong.

Auto output rose 4.3 per cent above a week ago, but due to strikes and high inventory, this years output lags 9.6 per cent below a year ago.

The energy components registered gains in the current week. Crude oil refinery runs rose 2.1 per cent, while electric power output increased 2.2 per cent.

Miscellaneous carloadings dropped 2.8 per cent, due in part to a slowdown in forest product and farm products: all other carloadings decreased 2.3 per cent, and intercity truck tonnage fell 1.0 per cent.

Paperboard production slipped and continues to fall from March 22 all-time high.

LEONARD LICATA

ROBERT SHAFFER

Robert Shaffer of Claremont, eastern area general manager for General Telephone Co., has been transferred to the utility's southern area headquarters in Long Beach as area general manager replacing Leonard Licata, who becomes central area general manager in Monrovia.

An active community leader, serving the Rotary Club of Pomona and the Pomona Chamber of Commerce, Shaffer brings more than 23 years telephone experience with him, 12 with General of California.

He began his career in 1946 with Western Electric Co. as an equipment engineer in Chicago, and for the next 11 years worked in various positions throughout Arkansas and Missouri.

IN 1957, Shaffer joined the General Telephone Service Corp. in New York and that same year was transferred to the California company. Since coming here, he has served as assistant vice-president—service, and area general manager.

Licata began with General of California in 1950 as an equipment installer in Pomona. He quickly distinguished himself and by 1960 held the position of eastern area facilities administrator. The following year he was promoted to northern area plant administrator.

His Long Beach duties began in 1965 when he was again promoted, this time to area operations manager. He assumed his present position in May 1967.

Standard Brands Paint Sales, Earnings in Peak

TRADE TIPS ON THE WORLD MARKET

(Note: Revan Komaroff is transacting business in Africa and Europe. In his absence, Richard Anderson, director of research for the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, will fill in as guest columnist.)

By RICHARD ANDERSON

Terms of sale are important in determining the cost of doing business in international trade.

An exporter will need to look closely at his profit margin before quoting a price to a foreign buyer which takes into consideration the terms of sale.

Often such costs as transportation, warehousing, and insurance are not apparent from a surface view.

The international businessman must be fully aware of his individual responsibilities for delivery of an order before entering into a sales contract.

* * * *

STANDARD terms of sale are widely used in international trade. These terms define the relationship between the buyer and the seller and the responsibilities of each.

Here are some of the more frequently used terms of sale:

FAS (Free Alongside Ship) — This term specifies that the seller is responsible for all charges up to alongside ship. The seller is responsibile for all charges incurred from that point on.

FOB (Free on Board) — Here the seller is responsible for all charges incurred and all losses or damage prior to the time when the goods are placed on board the vessel. Once on board, the responsibility belongs to the buyer.

CIP (Cost, Insurance, Freight) — Under these conditions the seller is responsible for charges and also for the loss or damage to goods up to the port of final destination. At this point the seller assumes full responsibility.

As you can see, there are different cost factors involved in all of these terms. For more information, call the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce.

Angels Answer Rig's Wish, Turn Back Kansas City, 3-2

By GOORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

"You know what I'd like?" Bill Rigney, the Angels' manager, was asking before Saturday night's game at Anaheim Stadium. "A little base hit with a man on base, that's what."

The manager's wish was understandable. He had watched the Halos squander Andy Messersmith's fine pitching job the night before by muffing one opportunity after another.

And for sx innings Saturday Rig sat back and pulled out what hair he has left.

The Angels managed at least a base runner every inning three times getting as far as second, but that big base hit just wasn't there.

But in the seventh Jay Johnstone, who laced out three hits for the evening, lined one to right that scored Vic Davalillo with the tie-breaking tally and sent the Angels on their way to a 3-2 nod over Kansas City.

Jim McGlothlin looked like he might suffer the same non-support Messersmith went through for seven innings.

But an unearned run in the sixth, Johnstone's run-scoring single in the seventh and then Bobby Knoop's first home run of the year, a towering shot over the centerfield fence in the eighth, gained the win for McGlothlin who's now 2-2.

Knoop's blast turned out to be the winning margin since the Royals cut loose against reliever Hoyt Wilhelm in the ninth, getting three singles and a run.

The Angels have been without the clutch hit most of the season. It was missing altogether Friday when the Angels blew a double bill to the Royals.

They missed five more chances in a row the first five rounds Saturday, pinch hitter Bill Voss finally driving in a run. Jim Fregosi rolled one into right to move Vic along to third. And then Johnstone got his popper into right to snap the tie and help the Angels snap their three-game losing streak.

"I had a little trouble getting my fast ball over in spots," explained McGlothlin who's becoming something of a "stopper" for the Angels. "My curve ball was the best pitch. That's the one they were hitting into the ground. I got one up too high to Kirkpatrick (Mac's roommate for five seasons with the Angels) and he hit it real good."

The Angels collected 10 hits off Mike Hedlund and Dave Wickersham who came on in the eighth. Wickersham took the loss. He gave up two of the Angels' runs, snapping a string of 15-plus scoreless innings by the Kansas City bullpen.

Rick Reichardt collected two of the Angels' safeties, moving into the club lead in batting with a .348 mark (23 for 66).

Noting Rick's flock of singles Rigney said afterward he's toying with the idea of batting the big guy in the leadoff spot — ala Willie Mays and the Giants.

ANGEL ANGELS: Clyde Wright (0-0) makes his first start of the season today, facing the Royals' Roger Nelson (1-2), plucked out of the Baltimore organization in the expansion draft . . . Wright was 10-6 last year with two complete games . . . today is Bat Day. All youngsters 12 and under accompanied by a paying adult selecting from Jim Fregosi, Vic Davalillo, Bobby Knoop, Rick Reichardt and Tom Satriano model Little League bats . . . The Halos are idle Monday, then await their first run-in with the Eastern Division Tuesday evening when the New York Yankees appear for the first of a two-game set. Boston is at the Big A for the weekend and then Ted Williams' Washington Senators follow the Red Sox for three games.

The injury hex continues to plague Bob Rodgers, the former Angel catcher. Trying a comeback at the Angel's Hawaii farm club, Rodgers suffered a broken finger that'll be in a cast for three weeks.

TV Gambling for Winning 'Wild Card'

One of the most successful features of ABC's college football TV schedule last fall was its "wild card" game.

The "wild card," inaugurated last year, gives the network the option to choose one extra game for showing anytime during the season as long as it also telecasts the game or games already scheduled for the same date.

It was obvious by mid-season last year that ABC was hopefully pointing for the USC-Notre Dame finale in the Coliseum as its "wild card."

And it proved to be an overwhelming success. It drew the largest viewing audience in the history of television for any regular-season game, college or pro.

USC, trying to close out an unbeaten season, jumped off to a quick 7-0 lead in the first minute on an interception, but fell behind at halftime, 21-7, before O.J. Simpson rallied them to a 21-21 tie in a spectacular affair.

The ABC network has the option for another "wild card" again for the '69 season . . . and already he most likely game to be picked is the USC-Notre Dame struggle Oct. 18 at South Bend.

This would set up a doubleheader program capped by the UCLA-California game later in the day from the Coliseum which is set for full network coverage.

BECAUSE OF ABC'S TIGHT SCHEDULING in November, there aren't too many good possibilities for a late-season "wild card" game. That's why the Trojan-Irish encounter looms so big at this time, even though it does come in mid-season.

Naturally, both teams would have to get through their first four starts in reasonably good shape to set up their game as the "wild card" choice.

Whether the Irish can make it up to the game without getting burned at least once is the big question. Including the USC fray, Notre Dame's three toughest games come in the first half of the season . . . and Ara Parseghian, confronted with the biggest rebuilding job in six years at South Bend, would approach the '69 campaign with more confidence if they were in the second half.

The Irish defensive unit, which had to be reconstructed a year ago and developed into a fine unit by the end of the season, is back almost intact and will have to carry most of the load in the early games until the offense gains experience.

Only two starters — both linemen — and Joe Theismann, the skinny sophomore quarterback who took over for the injured Terry Hanratty late last season are back from the great offensive unit which averaged 90 plays a game, 508.4 yards per start and produced 51 touchdowns for a scoring average of 37.6 points in 10 starts.

AFTER OPENING AGAINST NORTHWESTERN Notre Dame's hopes for a big season will be on the line in back-to-back games the next two weeks against Purdue and Michigan State, both of whom are among the leading candidates for the Big Ten's Rose Bowl bid. The Irish meet Army the week before hosting the Trojans.

Even though the Trojans also lost eight offensive starters from their explosive '68 club, they have all the ingredients to reach the Notre Dame game undefeated and in a challenging position for the national crown.

Like Notre Dame, Troy will start with a proven defense which numbers 18 of the top 22 men from last year's unit, including nine starters. It should keep the Trojans respectable in the early games until the offense begins to jell.

Offensively, USC will have the highly touted sophomore, Jimmy Jones, at quarterback; the sensational JC transfer, Clarence Davis, who could be another Simpson; fine receivers Bob Chandler and Sam Dickerson, plus important experience in the interior line.

The Trojans meet Nebraska, Northwestern, Oregon State and Stanford before the Irish tilt . . . and only Stanford with its great passer, Jim Plunkett, appears dangerous.

UNLESS THEY ARE PICKED for the "wild card" game, USC and Notre Dame will appear only once on TV this fall — Notre Dame meeting Georgia Tech in a night game (6:30 PST) on the full network Nov. 15, and USC battling UCLA in the second half of a twin bill on Nov. 22 starting at 3 p.m., which puts the game in prime time in the East.

Likewise, the only two teams to finish the 1969 season with perfect records — Ohio State (10-0) and Penn State (11-0) — also are slated for only one appearance each.

The "loaded" Buckeyes, who were No. 1 last season with a sophomore-studded club, will be the pre-season favorites for the national title, yet they are scheduled only to appear in one of five regional games on Nov. 1. Fortunately, the game with Northwestern will be shown in the West.

THE 1969 COLLEGE TELEVISION PROGRAM is marked by some rather unusual scheduling.

For one thing, the ABC network is concentrating heavily on Southwest teams in its 37-game slate — 11 national telecasts and 26 regional contests.

Of this number, 10 games and the possibility of an 11th will involve teams from the Southwest Conference or from Texas. Four will be among the 11 games to be telecast over the full network starting with the inaugural affair on Sept. 13 between Southern Methodist and Air Force in Dallas' Cotton Bowl. It will be a night affair starting at 6:30 p.m. (PDT).

Other full-network games include the Texas-Oklahoma battle, the Thanksgiving Day clash between Texas Tech and Arkansas, and the final game of the '69 regular-season schedule between Texas and Arkansas on Dec. 6.

Regional affairs will include Texas vs. California, Texas A&M vs. Nebraska, Texas Tech vs. Southern Methodist, Texas A&M vs. Arkansas, Houston vs. Miami, and West Texas State vs. New Mexico State.

'NEVER BEEN ABLE TO BEAT THESE GUYS'

Wise Stifles Slumping Cards

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Even though the St. Louis Cardinals are slumping, beating the defending National League champions is still a thrill for Rick Wise.

"I'd never been able to beat these guys," Wise said Saturday after holding the Cardinals to five hits as Philadelphia topped them 4-1.

The 23-year-old Philadelphia pitcher broke into the big leagues five years ago but success has not been quick in coming his way.

"I've matured more as a pticher nore," the slim righthander said quietly. I'm r3ady to have a number of great years."

In 1967, Wise had his best year with an 11-11 record but was not consistent last season and dropped to 9-15.

"It's taken a lot of work and concentration," he said, "I worked on developing a slider and a change up in the Instructional League this winter and the two extra pitches have been the difference between night and day."

Wise gave the Cards four scattered singles before allowing a run-scoring double by Joe Torre in the eighth and that run was set up when Larry Hisle and Johnny Briggs collided in the outfield and dropped Tim McCarver's fly ball. Wise's ERA is now a team low of 1.14.

The slumping Cards, many of whom were ordered to extra batting practice immediately after the game, have lost four of five games to the Phils this season.

DODGERS LOSE--

when they settled for one run in the seventh. Grabarkewitz walked to start the inning and went to third on a single by pinch - hitter Ron Fairly. Davis singled to center to score the tie-breaking run and then Russell put down a sacrifice to move Fairly to third and Davis to second. The Braves gave Wes Parker an intentional walk to load the bases with one out but Cecil Upshaw worked himself out of trouble by retiring Kosco and Sudakis. Upshaw, who has six saves as the big man in the Braves' bullpen, evened his record at

DODGER OF DAY

Rookie outfielder BILL RUSSELL, who hit his second home run and made a diving catch in the fourth inning as the Dodgers lost to the Braves, 6-5.

DODGER NOTES: The Braves' amazing Henry Aaron had three consecutive hits Saturday, including doubles in the first and fourth innings. Aaron, 35, has 497 career doubles and is about to move into an elite statistical class when he reaches 500 doubles. Only two players in history — Babe Ruth and Ted Williams —passed the 500-mark in both doubles and homers. Aaron slugged his 514th career homer, and fourth of the season, against the Dodgers' Claude Osteen Friday night. . .Aaron has played in all 24 Atlanta games this season and is batting .393 (33-for-83). He leads the Braves in hits, doubles (13) and walks (19) and is close to the club lead in homers (4), runs batted in (14) and stolen bases (3) Aaron says he's not been thinking of retiring until he rolls up 3,000 career hits. . .The Dodgers and Braves wind up their three-game series today with Bill Singer (4-1) facing Milt Pappas. . .Quoting Braves' vice president Paul Richards: "If we had two players the Dodgers have we'd win the pennant for sure. I mean Willie Davis and Jim Brewer. Up until Boyer's homer, Brewer's relief job was the best I've ever seen. That screwball he has is amazing". . . The Dodgers have hit two homers in each of their last three games for a seasonal total of 18. They hit 67 last season, their lowest total since 1946. . .The Dodgers hit only two homers against the Braves all of last season, both at Dodger Stadium. They now have five homers against the Braves with Andy Kosco hitting two. . .Atlanta manager Lum Harris admits his biggest worry is the bullpen and Richards is searching for relief help.

Ollie's Slam Caps 9-Run Padre Rally

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Ollie Brown highlighted a nine-run explosion in the first inning Saturday with the first grand slam of his career to lead San Diego to a 13-5 victory over Cincinnati.

Joe Niekro, with an eighth-inning assist from Tommy Sisk, picked up his first victory of the year as the Padres handed the Reds their eighth loss in the last nine games. Jim Maloney's no-hitter on Wednesday night has been the Reds' only win in the last week.

The Padres sent 13 batters to the plate as they clobbered Tony Cloninger, who failed to retire a batter, Jim Merritt and John Noriega, for nine runs during the first-inning scoring spree.

Killebrew Spoils Gutteridge's Debut

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (UPI) — Harmon Killebrew's two-run homer, the 402nd of his career, gave Minnesota a 3-1 victory over Chicago Saturday and spoiled Don Gutteridge's debut as White Sox manager.

The victory was Minnesota's seventh in a row and its 15th win in its last 18 games.

The defeat was Chicago's fifth successive loss and its first under Gutteridge, who was named Friday to replace the retired Al Lopez. Lopez quit for health reasons.

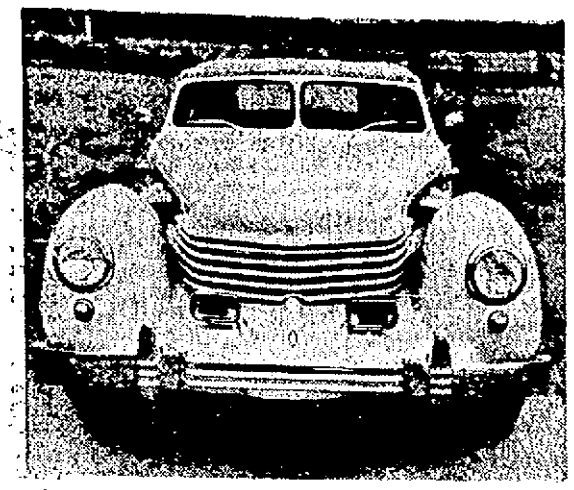

Killebrew's blast in the fourth came off Gary Peters, now 1-4. Killebrew had hits his 400th career homer off Peters last Sunday in a 4-3 Minnesota victory at Chicago.

AVAILABLE . . . New Cord

WORLD OF WHEELS

By ART STEPHAN
Auto Editor

A unique new set of wheels has come to Long Beach's auto row—the 1969 Cord Royale 8-10—a modern version of the famous Cord front-wheel drive car that was motordom's masterpiece more than 30 years ago.

Jim Blum, sales manager of Browning Oldsmobile, 1221 Long Beach Blvd., where the Royale will be sold, explained the background of the sporty car.

In the early thirties, Blum recounted, Cord Automobile company gave the world a new car, in advance of its time. With a unique design, it was fitted with many new features.

The Cord of 30 years ago was fitted with an automatic transmission, front-wheel drive, hidden headlights and a high-powered engine.

It was listed as the fastest car of its day and many production models were even supercharged. It was the car of the era, but the depression marked its demise.

IN 1968, GORDON BEHRIG who designed the original Cord, was consulted by a company called S.A.M.C.O. and asked what he would do if he was to build the 8-10 again. He remarked build it four-fifths of scale and lower, put a high-power engine in it and all modern conveniences.

SAMCO listened and went into production just a year ago to produce the 1969 Cord Royale that now stands in the Browning showroom. The new Cord has all the fine features of the old with the exception of the front-wheel drive. And, Jim assured me, it is still one of the fastest cars on the road today. Powered by a Chrysler 440 engine of 375 hp or a Ford 302 of 210 hp the car really flies.

AUTOMATIC TRANSMISSION, power steering, electric windows, bucket seats, AM-FM radio, aeroplane-type instrument panel, triple mirrors, air conditioner, tinted glass, two-speed wiper and washer, twin spotlights and luggage rack are all standard equipment.

Wtih a fibreglass body, the interior is upholstered in the finest grained Royal Naugahyde. Seats and door panels are all padded and pleated and padded dashboard and sunshades add to the elegance.

Truly the 1969 Cord deserves accord.

A War Isn't for Running

"I was really lucky. I hoped nothing would happen that would prevent me from running again. I knew I would come back. Everybody comes back . . . one way or the other." — Ed Keith.

For a moment, the Cal State Long Beach athletic field becomes a piece of Asian real estate where Ed Keith spent a lifetime one day.

"A North Vietnamese unit pinned us down in the open," he says, reconstructing the terrain with a soldier's eye. "They were in a coconut grove 100 meters away—about where those bushes are along the baseball field."

The din of the bulldozers expanding the lower campus is the artillery that kept the Reds too off-balance to overrun Keith's outfit. The planes swooping into Long Beach Airport are the air support that followed the rain and bailed them out after a day-and-a-half.

"Out of a company of 120 men, only 33 of us came out unscratched," Keith says. "The rest were all dead or wounded."

The incident scarcely relates to Keith's present circumstances. Then he was a footslogging demolitions specialist attached to infantry search-and-destroy units. Now a world removed, he's pursuing a history degree and running distance races for the 49er track team.

"If we had 200 more like him," says coach Jack Rose, treading lightly on Ed's readjustment, "the war would be over there and we'd have a heck of a track team here."

KEITH SUGGESTS wryly that "jumping across rice paddies is good training for the steeplechase," an event he has just started to run. But at 25 he has a life of serious purpose planned. Already holding a three-year army hitch, he will seek a Marine Corps commission when he graduates next year.

"I plan on teaching when I retire," he says, "but first I want to do my little part to do away with some of the old ideas in the service. It takes intelligence to survive in the field, not just a bunch of blind idiots. You're getting a better educated soldier now, and you're going to have to explain things to him. No more of this blind faith."

Keith has studied war from afar and from a foxhole.

"To be honest with you, I didn't go over with a feeling that this war was for a good purpose. But after I had been there a while and had spent most of my time in the field, I could see that, basically, it's a very pretty country and the people are worth fighting for . . . especially when you see the kids."

Keith does not expect his views to be popular.

"It's my own little active rebellion against my own generation that I don't agree with," he says.

His job was to blow out trees for helicopters or blow up enemy caves and tunnels. South Vietnamese interpreters would try to persuade anybody inside to come out before Ed went to work.

"If there were civilians in there, we wouldn't blow it up," he says emphatically. "The army doesn't operate that way . . . regardless of what you've heard."

Ed has a proposal for the superliberal Students for a Democratic Society.

"I would like for some of the SDS to spend one night in a little helpless village out in the boondocks without any weapons, without any form of protection, and let 'em watch some Viet Cong or North Vietnamese come into the village.

"They could watch them massacre and disembowel the village chieftan and his entire family, or line up about 20 kids and shoot all the kids in the legs—to get the popular support of the village.

"One night, and I imagine the SDS and some of these idealistic people would realize it's gonna take more than two fingers stuck up in the air to hold the peace."

ALTHOUGH HE RETURNED from Vietnam with higher ideals than when he left, Keith avows that the life of the typical foot soldier remains, as in all wars, "miserable."

"There is no glory in it. You realize how great life is here and how much you really take for granted . . . such small things as flush toilets, electric lights, nice paved streets, beds . . ."

Ed once went 36 days wearing the same underwear and socks and living on cold C-rations. Some things begin to seem very precious . . . a shave, a shower. A girl.

"I'm not kiddin' ya, we went wild over a Spiegel's catalog one time. Playboy magazines are gold."

The days are walking and searching, walking and searching. The nights are a hole in the ground.

"You sleep beside it," Keith says, "or, if you expect something, you sleep in it. If it's full of water . . . well, water doesn't hurt as bad as bullets."

Morale is lowest, Keith says, "when there isn't anything to do. You have time to think about your problems and you start feeling sorry for yourself. You really feel like you're on the farthest corner of the earth."

EVENTUALLY, BEING wounded, to some, is a welcome ticket home.

"But I never got to where I felt that way," Ed says. "Some of my friends got wounded. It's kind of painful for a projectile to enter your body."

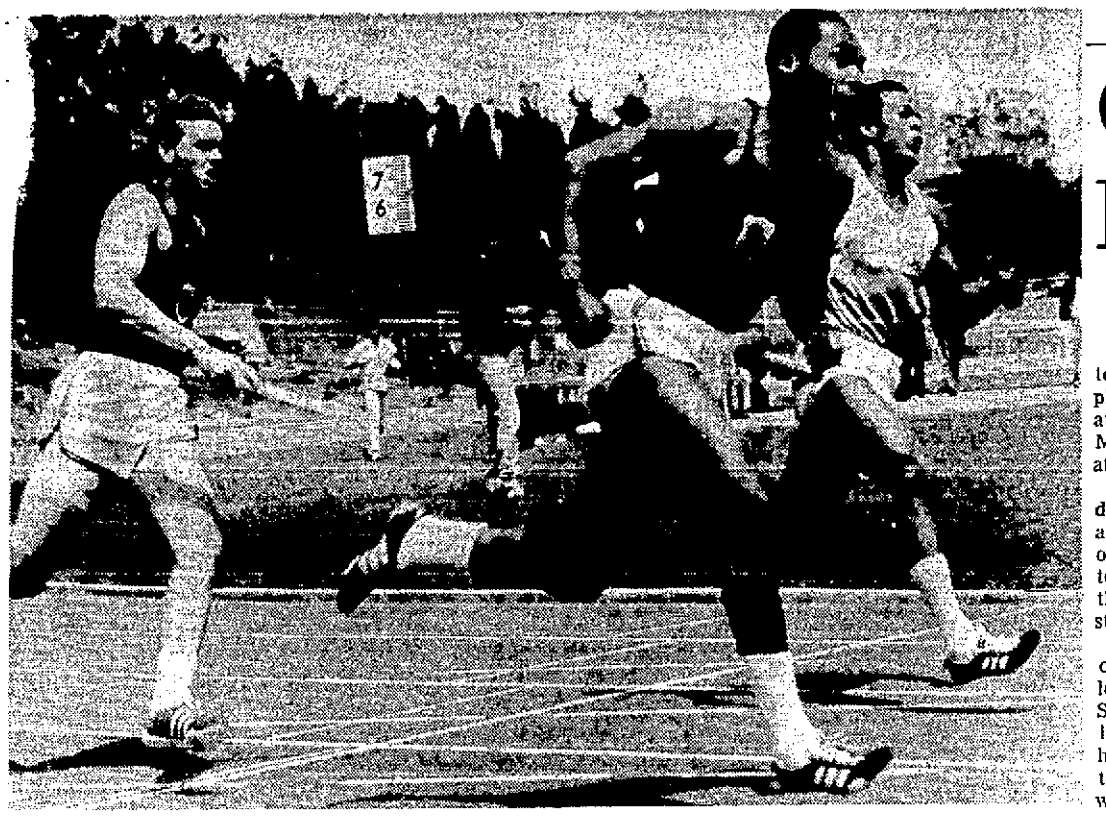

There are better ways to survive.

"You've gotta go there with a sense of humor and the attitude that you're coming back. Just learn to laugh about it . . . like wet feet. Your feet are wet all the time.

"I'm 5-6½, and every time we had to cross a river I'd laugh about it, 'cause it'd be up to my neck and only up to the other guys' waists."

Finally, the effect of a letter from home can't be overstated, Ed says.

"Once we were in an obscure place that wasn't even on the army maps. I got letters that were seven days postdated. A letter means quite a lot to a soldier. It means that people back home are thinking about him, that he hasn't been forgotten. A letter from home almost puts home in his grasp."

Gibson Hurt, No CIF Berth

By KEN PIVERNETZ
Staff Writer

Disappointments seemed to overshadow the accomplishments of high school athletes during Saturday's Moore League track finals at Millikan.

Gusty winds aided all dashes and hurdle times and in turn made it rough on distance men who had to worry about battling the breezes on the home stretch.

A damper was also put on the meet when the league's top sprinter, Steve Gibson, pulled up hobbling after taking a handoff on the last leg of the 440 relay for Lakewood.

Gibson had been bothered in recent weeks with a muscle strain, but was apparently just rounding into top shape before his misfortune struck again Saturday.

With best times of 9.6 and 21.9 this season in the sprints, Gibson was considered a good bet reach the CIF finals.

"I don't see how he can make it now," a dejected Bill Meyer, his coach, said afterwards. It would take a special ruling by league coaches or another athlete relinquishing his place for Gibson to advance. The extent of his injury, however, won't be known until later this week.

* * * *

WILSON'S Bob Barmeyer, and Millikan's Bob Langston were double winners in the varsity division; Glenn Bernard won a slow 4:23.2 mile; Jim Chaffin an all-alone two-mile, and Robert Stockton zipped 18.6 in a wind aided 189 low hurdles.

Athlete making the most improvement had to be Lakewood half-miler Steve Rynerson who nearly caught Langston at the wire.

Rynerson closed fast in the final 100 yards and passed Poly's Pierre Robinson in the stretch to take second at 1:55.4, only a tenth back of Langston who turned in his season best.

Poly won the unofficial scoring title in the varsity division with 71 points.

Only meet record to fall in the three divisions was a 58-8½ effort by Lakewood Cee shotputter Alan Martin. First three men in each event advance to the CIF prelims Saturday at Millikan.

CAPTURE IMPORTANT CCAA MEET, 80-69

Bulldogs' Bite Too Much for 49ers

By JIM McCormack
Staff Writer

Cal State Long Beach was one event into a track meet it was supposed to lose by 31 points Saturday when assistant coach Chris Johnson pointed out, "We haven't lost a 440 relay on our track."

Perhaps Johnson was afraid bright spots were going to be difficult to find in the California Collegiate Athletic Assn. faceoff with Fresno State and Cal State L.A.

The 49ers never did find the biggest bright spot, a victory, but they put together enough best efforts to take a great deal of the sting out of an 80-69 loss to the Bulldogs. CSLA was a distant third with 28 points.

"This was a great track meet for us," 49er coach Jack Rose said. "Our kids really tried to win this one. We figure we made up nearly 20 points on Fresno."

In the final analysis, Long Beach was beaten because it failed to score in the javelin and long jump.

While the 49ers were piling up a big "0" in those competitions, Fresno was collecting 10 points in the javelin and four in the long jump.

"It's too bad we couldn't have scored in those events," Rose admitted. "They really hurt us."

The 49ers were helped by a misfortune to Bulldog sprinter John Edmondson, who pulled up lame while anchoring the 440 relay and was scratched from three events.

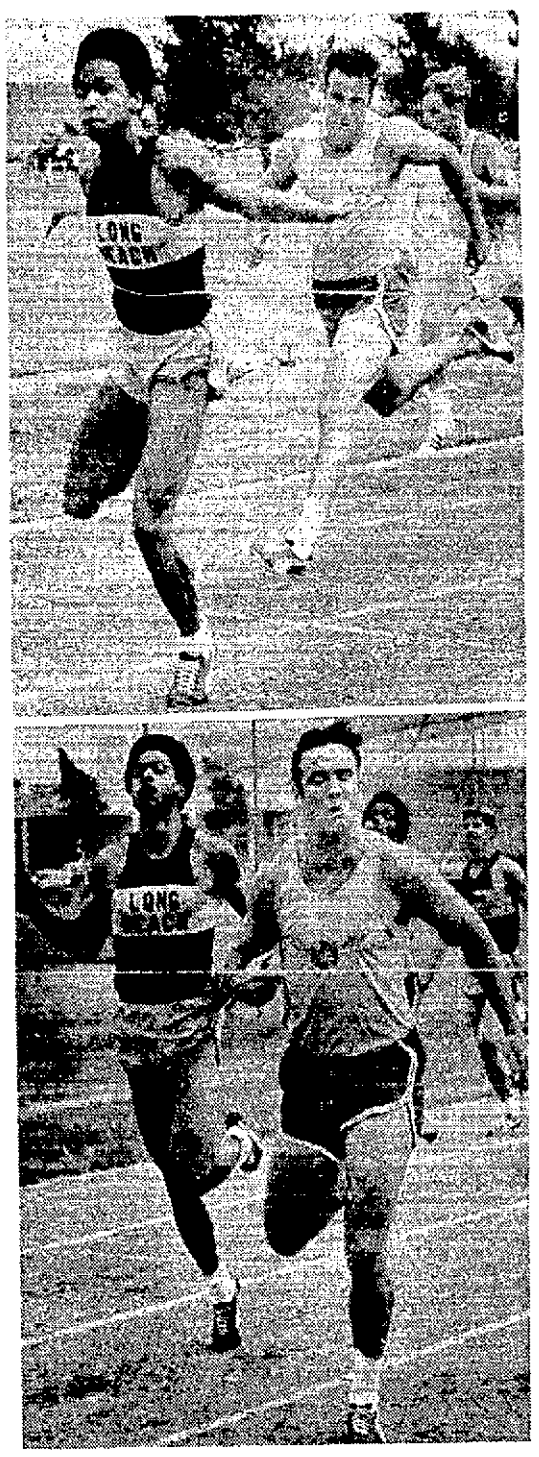

Betting season or lifetime bests from several athletes, the 49ers won six events and led throughout the meet until the pole vault, triple jump and long jump scores were added.

Fresno State pole vaulter Erkki Mustakari was thwarted in his chase for glory.

Mustakari, a junior from Finland who is priming to become the first person to vault 18 feet, couldn't clear 16-6 Saturday.

"I feel that it is only a matter of time until I make a great vault," Mustakari said after setting a field record at 16 feet. "I was bothered by the cross wind. Also, the event was long, and I really didn't have much competition."

Long Beach got come-through performances from Lenny Jay in winning the mile in 4:13.2 and finishing second in the two-mile (9:17.6), from Al Carlson in taking the 440 in 48.0, from Herm Clayborn in the shotput (51-8½), from Tom Kirkwold in the discus (176-8) and from the two relay teams.

TRADING WINS

Jack Hildreth of Cal State L.B. wins 100 (top) from Don Zimmerman of Fresno St., then finishes second to Bulldog sprinter in 220 (below) during CCAA meet Saturday on 49ers' track. Winning times were 9.9 and 21.8, both wind-aided. —Staff Photos by SKIP SHUMAN

'Gades Storm to Metro Track Title

Henry Shipes won two individual events and anchored the mile relay team to victory Saturday night while spearheading Bakersfield College to its fifth Metropolitan Conference track championship in six years.

It was Shipes' 48.5 anchor on the mile relay that allowed the Renegades to hold off Cerritos College, the host, and Pasadena.

The Renegades had 115½ points, Cerritos 104, Pasadena 80 and Long Beach City College 46½.

"On paper," Bakersfield coach Bob Covey explained, "we looked like we were in trouble. But we haven't lost a mile relay this year. When you have people like Shipes around, you're pretty tough to beat."

Shipes also ran in the Renegade 440 relay team, which finished second, and won both hurdles races, although he was lucky in one.

Long Beach City College's Gary Kidder was leading the 120 highs over the last hurdle but lost his balance and fell, allowing Shipes to win.

Kidder took his header only five yards from the finish and he went unplaced although he appeared to have skidded across the finish line. The race will be reviewed on film.

Shipes won the 440-yard intermediates after a long battle with LBCC's Allan Tobin, who led for the first 330 yards before losing his stride.

HUBBELL PUTS SHOT 62¾

15-Mile Wind Helps Carlos Run Fast Ever 100--9.0

Combined News Services

Controversial Olympian John Carlos ran the fastest 100 yards in history Saturday, clocking nine seconds flat, but the effort won't ever be recorded as a world mark because he had an excessive aiding wind behind his back.

Even so, no one ever has run 100 yards that fast.

Carlos, who incurred the wrath of many Americans for raising a clenched fist during victory ceremonies of the 200 meter dash in last year's Olympics, predicted earlier this week that he would one day clock 8.8 or 8.9 for the 100.

He bolted out of the blocks ahead of a crack field and led all the way, winning easily over Ronnie Ray Smith, Billy Gaines and fellow Olympian Charlie Greene. All three were clocked in 9.3.

The wind was measured at 15.6 miles per hour, well over the allowable 4.4.

There were a number of other fine performances with Marion Anderson of San Jose State winning the long jump with a leap of 26-5½; Sam Caruthers, also of San Jose State, beating Olympian Chris Papanicolaou in the pole vault with a leap of 16-6, and Jeff Vanderstock, another Olympian and former world record holder, taking the 440 yard intermediate hurdles in 52.4.

IN PACIFIC-8 dual meets, Washington State crushed Wadhington, 115-39; Oregon State dominated the sprints to defeat Oregon, 91-63 and windup an unbeaten dual meet season; and Stanford upset California, 87-67.

Washington shotputter John Hubbell, who attended Poly High, won the shotput in his all-time best of 62-2¾.

49er QB McKinney on Target

Quarterback Shawn McKinney came within a dropped pass of having a perfect afternoon Saturday in a Cal State Long Beach intra-squad game on the campus field.

McKinney, a transfer from the University of Washington, completed 12 of 13 passes for 233 yards and all three offense touchdowns to stand out in the hour-long scrimmage.

McKinney threw TD passes of 77 yards to Keith Huber, 16 yards to John Turner and 13 yards to Al Kimball. Turner was the afternoon's leading receiver with five receptions for 71 yards. Huber caught two tosses for 100 yards.

"I am pleased with our progress," head coach Jim Stangel said after the workout. "When you realize that everyone is learning something new, you can see a marked improvement."

With reserve quarterbacks Ron Olson and Tom Nordee adding five completions in 10 attempts, the 49er offense gained 269 yards passing. Adding 136 yards rushing, gave the offense 405 total yards.

"Our defense is improving," defensive coach Ernie Johnson said after the workout. "I thought John Kahler, Steve Landis, Bob Claycamp and Bruce Davis, our defensive ends, did a good job."

Landis intercepted a Nordee pass and ran 27 yards for the only defensive score

The Forum Follies

There was a time when I thought that the loudest, most uneducated sports fans in the world were baseball fanatics. You know — the ones who took their wives out upon a Sunday afternoon and then proceeded to tell the little lady all the facets of the game. It was a big deal in the straw-hat days.

Such comments as:

"That pitcher's no good. He's lost two in a row." (The expert forgot to remember that the hurler previously had notched 10 triumphs in succession.)

"You're supposed to put your glove under the ball — that infielder doesn't know how to play his position." (The jerk who's making all the noise didn't even make his junior varsity team in high school. One reason, among others, was that every ball dribbled at him in the infield went right through his legs. Yet with a couple of cups of beer, the failure suddenly turned into an expert.)

Anyway, the baseball empire is declining every day. Even the fans at Laker basketball playoff games are uninformed.

Take one of the playoff games, for example. I'm sitting in the stands with a turtle-neck behind me blowing smoke from his five-cent cigar (honest, Clyde, I didn't realize that they imported that type rope anymore, but the stench proves it's true).

Humphrey Hobart has all the answers. That's why he is a requisition clerk in a discount house.

Says Humphrey, the man in the turtle neck: "This coach, Breed A Cough (he was referring to Bill van Breda Kolff), doesn't know from nothing. If I was the coach (which he'll never be), I'd put Wilt Chamberlain at guard and let the big man go the length of the floor and dunk one. How come this Breed A Cough doesn't know about that?"

Humphrey, the fan, is very simple and so is the reason why Wilt doesn't go the length of the flour every time he grabs a rebound. The big seven-footer must pace himself, and on the fast break and full-court dribble The Stilt just couldn't go the whole route.

ANYWAY, BACK TO fans' reactions — and to one who has been conditioned only to press box pearls of wisdom, they indeed are funny.

The whole Forum shook Thursday night when an apparent earthquake struck as Jerry West flipped in a go-ahead basket in the second half. It was no earthquake. It simply was a rhinoceros stomping in the aisles. He kept shouting, "Go, babies, go. Man, we're with you." So was I, but do I have to make a buffoon of myself to get across the point? I hope not.

And the unbay with the cigar kept heaping blasphemies upon West. "You're a bum, Jerry," screeched the fanatic. "Get lost." Some minutes later, West began hitting from every angle. Then the guy smoking his Castro rope changed his tune.

"That's the way, Jerry," he droned. "Kid, you're the greatest."

Even the most disdainful look from this seat occupant didn't deter the blabbermouth. "Ain't you a Jerry West fan?" he inquired. "That's my boy. Why don't you clap when he hits one?"

We turned away, praying that we'd have no further contact.

THE FIREWORKS were just beginning. A long-haired chap with dark glasses (and you have to be different to wear dark glasses in a building) screamed like a frightened porpoise when Chamberlain muffed a seemingly easy shot.

"You are a pig, Wilt, a complete pig," yelled the freak. "I could have made that shot myself."

After Wilt dominated the boards and tucked in a dozen rebounds before the intermission, this same introvert snapped to his friend: "Buddy, what did I tell you? This Chamberlain is something else."

As an interjection, there's the other side — from a little lady with some pity within her heart: "Oh, Elgin, Elgin Baylor, don't miss another shot. I hate to see you go out this way."

SOME FELLOW two rows down was berating Mel Counts. "He is positively, absolutely, the worst," remarked the expert. "He is a clown. He couldn't even play in the ABA."

Mel must have heard this derogatory remark. Within the next 45 seconds he dunked two baskets for four points.

So, what was the reaction of the clown, two rows down? This: "Honey," the clown was saying to his lady friend, "that big guy's terrific. I told you all along he does everything right."

Then a pompous gentleman smoking a cigar (and why do all well-fed gents smoke cigars?) took exception to Johnny Egan being in the starting lineup. "Geez," coughed the cigar, "what do they want with a runt like that on their first team? I'm better than he is."

Pause for laughs.

"Oh, boy," spoke another, "this (Tom) Hawkins can't begin to handle Bill Russell."

Well, Hawkins wasn't supposed to "handle" Russell, but I guess the fan didn't know the difference.

This is a simple indication of how fickle are fans. But I would guess that they have every right. After all — $7 per seat!

Cal State Splits With Mustangs

SAN LUIS OBISPO — Bruce Wade's clutch relief pitching with two out and two on in the bottom of the seventh inning saved Cal State Long Beach from losing both ends of a doubleheader with Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo, Saturday afternoon, 6-5.

In the opener John Keisler yielded back-to-back doubles to Steve Brummer and Mike Neilsen and Mike Young blanked the 49ers for the second consecutive time, 1-0.

Wade relieved Ben Withers, who had pitched 6 1/3 innings in relief of starter Pete Espinosa, and got Dean Treaner to ground out and Mike Young to pop out to end the game.

In the top of the seventh inning the 49ers pushed across what proved to be the winning run when Ron DeLeener singled home Jim Seida from second base.

Neither of the starters, Espinosa nor Steve Gruba, lasted more than one-third of an inning.

Larry Albright broke the 49ers out of their first-game hitting slump when he singled home two runs in the opening frame.

Hill, Beard In Front

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Tough little Dave Hill shot a four-under-par 68 Saturday and tied Frank Beard for the third-round lead in the $100,000 Greater New Orleans gold tournament, each with a 54-hole total of 203.

Beard had a third-round 69. He and Hill were each 13 under par after three trips over the 7,090-yard, par-72 Lakewood Country Club course.

Hill, a slender 143-pounder, caught Beard on the final hole, rimming in a tricky, 20-foot downhill putt for his fifth birdie of the day.

"I had some juice on a 6-iron shot and put it over the flag," Hill said. "I had a tough 29-footer and it went in."

Bruin Swimmers Set Moore Marks

Wilson High set three Moore League records while qualifying five men and two relay teams during the CIF swimming preliminaries at Belmont Plaza Olympic Pool Saturday afternoon.

A crowd estimated at 2,000 saw the Bruins start fast with a pace-setting 1:42.3 effort in the 200 medley relay with the team of Steve Shaw, Mike Brousard, John McMullen and Jerry Barrus.

"The boys have been working together for four months now, and we're looking forward to a CIF championship in the event," exclaimed Wilson coach Bob Gruneisen.

Two hours later, McMullen clocked 49.8 in the 100 freestyle and Brousard 1:02.8 in the 100 breaststroke for Moore League records. The Bruin 400 freestyle relay team consisting of McMullen, Shaw, Barrus and Bret Graham also set a Moore League standard of 3:22.5 while finishing second behind Buena of Ontario at 3:21.7.

Steve Genter of Lakewood High reached the first step in his quest for a third consecutive CIF medal in the 400 freestyle as he qualified first at 3:51.7, but he was considerably shy of the CIF record of 3:45.7. Genter also qualified first in the 200 freestyle at 1:46.9, seven tenths of a second ahead of Anaheim's Steve Lashbrooke.

Poly's Bill Penn made the grade in the 100 butterfly, tying Costa Mesa's Chris Gammon for second place at 54.3. The CIF finals are slated for Belmont Plaza Friday night beginning at 7:30.

It was Gonzales' first match in the $30,000 tourney. He arrived Friday from Los Angeles where he had been nursing a foot injury.

Roche is favored to win the "B" group and meet countryman, Rod Laver, who is expected to take the "A" group, in the finals on May 9 in Osaka.

Dennis Ralston of Berkeley scored his first victory against two defeats in "A" group by defeating countryman Marty Riessen, 5-6, 6-5, 6-3.

In the other singles matches Saturday night, Butch Buchholz of St. Louis won his first match against one defeat in the "B" group as he downed Ray Moore of South Africa, 6-4, 3-6, 6-5.

At Bournemouth, England, Australian pro John Newcombe, winner of the Italian title five days ago, captured the British hard court tennis championship with a 6-8, 6-3, 5-7, 6-4, 6-4 victory over Bob Hewitt of South Africa.

The marathon match, interrupted twice by rain, lasted more than five hours and earned Newcombe $3,600.

Another Australian, Mrs. Margaret Court, beat Winnie Shaw of Scotland, 5-7, 6-4, 6-4, for the women's crown in a match described as one of the finest ever seen in this country. Mrs. Court won $1,800.

Vikes Earn Metro Tie; Cerritos Playoff Foe

By DAVE DANIEL

"I'm happy for the Vikings. They went far beyond my expectations."

Long Beach City College coach Joe Hicks was reflecting on his Vikings' 8-2 win over Bakersfield College Saturday at Blair Field. The win gave LBCC a share of the Metropolitan Conference championship with Cerritos College. Both teams finished with 15-6 marks.

The Vikings will play Cerritos Wednesday to see who advances to the Southern California playoffs, which begin May 13. A coin flip Monday will determine the site of Wednesday's game.

The defending champion Vikings sewed up half the title with a 17-hit attack, their biggest binge of the year. It is Hicks' eighth title in 16 years as LBCC coach.

Rookie Mike Davis and co-captain Ray Colin collected three hits each and Eddie Crosby, Jay Morrison, Jim Gmur and winning pitcher Ray Brown each got two.

Brown got off to a slow start, with Bakersfield hitting some hard shots until Steve Liebeck turned in the play of the day in left field in the first inning.

Liebeck made a circus catch on his knees of a line drive that appeared to be going for extra bases. He tossed back to Eddie Crosby, whose relay doubled a runner scampering back to first for a double play that balled Brown out of a tight situation.

The title tie marked the first time in Metro annals that two teams deadlocked for the championship. In 1957, however, there was a three-way deadheat between Long Beach, East L.A. and San Diego.

Falcons Nip Lancers for Metro Tie

Bob Apodaca and Cliff Vaudreuil came on in relief to choke off a ninth-inning rally as Cerritos College shaded Pasadena, 5-4, Saturday to finish in a tie for the Metropolitan Conference baseball championship.

Cerritos finished with a 15-6 record after the conference took away four wins because the Falcons used two ineligible players.

Merced Salinas was the batting hero for the winners, ripping a two-run homer in the fourth. He also singled.

fried. Siggy hit from outside and Nelson worked the backboards for baskets.

Seven consecutive misses at the foul line to start the fourth quarter helped kill the Laker rally. They continued to be ineffective at the free throw stripe, missing 17 of 47, while Boston failed only twice in 25 tries.

"We just didn't play well," said Laker coach Bill van Breda Kolff. "But I was encouraged about West. Even at 75 per cent effeciency he's better than most."

How about West at 90 per cent efficiency Monday?

The question van Breda Kolff didn't need to answer. Neither did any of the Lakers. The feeling they will win it Monday showed on their faces and in their actions.

Specialty Restaurants Corp. Plans Fine Chicago Facility

Announcement of its first out-of-state restaurant was made last week by Long Beach-based Specialty Restaurants Corporation, developers and operators of "atmosphere" restaurants throughout California.

Specialty, the facilities of which include the Reef Restaurant in Long Beach Harbor, will begin operation of the Lake Point Tower Club in Chicago approximately June 15. That facility, located atop the 70-story Lake Point Tower apartment building in downtown Chicago, will command a sweeping three-state view from its lake-front vantage point.

The building, the world's tallest apartment structure, contains more than 850 apartment units.

* * * *

THE restaurant, which will open as a private club for residents and Chicago executives, will be followed by a ground level public restaurant to be known as Bill & Charley's.

"Our company's expansion program includes several restaurant developments throughout the United States and we are particularly excited about starting our national program at the Chicago site," said David Tallichet, Specialty's president.

Other Long Beach area operations of the company include the Ports O' Call, Yankee Whaler and Rum Runner Restaurants in the company's Ports O' Call Village at San Pedro.

Rancho Capistrano Sites Selling Swiftly

Southern Californians have turned out by the thousands to visit Rancho Capistrano, a 300-acre development of 2½ to 3-acre rancho sites within the Cleveland National Forest.

Of 133 sites available, 75 sold in the first 2½ weeks.

According to Dick Beamish and Ron Diggins of Rancho Capistrano, this response indicates a need for land in the Southern California coastal area. Southern California land in larger parcels is becoming increasingly scarce.

Rancho Capistrano is the last available land in the Forest area, and is an unequalled opportunity to invest in the South Coast area of California.

RANCHO CAPISTRANO'S unique location further insures this land will retain its exclusive value in years to come.

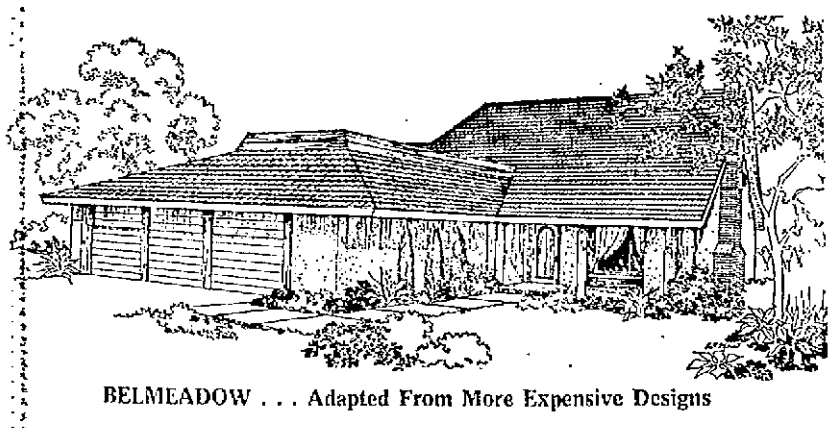

A 300-acre island of incompatable beauty, completely surrounded by the sanctuary of the Cleveland National Forest, Rancho Capistrano remains unspoiled and untouched by commercialism and industry.

Early California rancho living and modern recreational facilities have been imaginatively combined in the development of Rancho Capistrano, and the rolling hills, shaded vales, and stately Spanish oaks remain as they have for hundreds of years.

Go east on Hwy. 74 for 23 miles from Mission San Juan Capistrano and follow the signs. Rancho Capistrano is open every day from 9 to 5.

BELMEADOW . . . Adapted From More Expensive Designs

Belmeadow Homes Boast Extra-Large Master Suites

Belmeadow, builder William Lyon's newest Huntington Beach community, introduces many of the important features of his more expensive homes adapted to the activities and budgets of young families, states Jack Sindorf, area sales manager for the national building firm.

"The extra-large master suites in Belmeadow homes, for example, are as big as most found in luxury homes priced up to $45,000," Sindorf said.

Each bedroom suite has its own private dressing room and bath plus large sliding door wardrobes.

Plans offer from two to four bedrooms, one with three bedrooms and upstairs "bonus room" which can convert the home to five bedrooms.

* * * *

PRICES begin at $24,990 with no down payment to veterans and choice of VA, FHA and conventional terms.

The exclusive "Terrace Kitchen" is another quality feature which has been adapted from Lyon's luxury homes.

This all-glass family activity center is surrounded by sliding walls of glass framed in gold anodized aluminum with a pass-thru window to patio serving counter.

Included are built-in General Electric range, double ovens, dishwasher and disposal.

THE unusual contemporary homes are characterized by a feeling of spaciousness created by such dramatic features as high, sloping ceilings and an abundance of glass in every room.

The model home complex is located at 6532 Cory Drive in Huntington Beach and may be reached by taking the San Diego Freeway to the Golden West exit, then south to Slater Street and west to Edwards and the sales complex.

Late Openings for All Sierra Passes

When you started reading this column today, you probably thought that it would have a BISHOP dateline and concern trout fishing in the Sierra Nevada. Well, I am not in Bishop and I am not planning to freeze my feet and hands for a few trout, if any, and because of newspaper deadlines, this column was written in sunny, warm Long Beach before the season opened.

Because of the fact that many persons call and ask for information on the mountains at this time of year, I have concerned myself mostly with fresh-water resorts and I hope to g ive some valuable advice to those persons planning early vacations over the Sierra Nevada passes.

If you have never traveled over Tioga Pass from Yosemite National Park to Leevining on the eastern slope, or vice versa, or if you have never stopped long enough to see the gorgeous scenery along Sonora Pass, you have missed a great part of our Golden State.

Tioga Pass, one of the most delightful drives in this state, can not possibly be opened until May 30. It opened on May 7 last year. Even the May 30 date is a gamble because the California Division of Highways has a tremendous job to clear the road.

And when you drive over Tioga Pass around the first week in June — if that's what you plan — be prepared to see snow piled many feet high at the sides of the road.

THE ROAD-CLEARING CREWS will tackle Tioga Pass first of all because it is the most important pass across the mountains. Naturally, the freeway passes from San Francisco to Reno have been kept open, but on those one travels so fast that he doesn't see anything. Tioga and Sonora handle most of the crowds that like to take their time, do some fishing, camp, try rock-hounding and do just about anything that one cares to do.

When the crews clear Tioga, they will divert their attention mainly to Sonora, which probably can not be opened until mid-June or later. Other routes scheduled for late June openings are California 88 over Carson Pass, California 89 in Shasta County, the Lassen Loop, California 4 over Ebbetts Pass and California 89 over Monitor Pass.

The Tioga Pass opening date is strictly problematical and tourists trying that and other passes should make local inquiry at the points of entry because spring weather can change within hours in the Sierras. Better yet, if you belong to the Automobile Club of Southern California, check with its outing bureau before leaving home.

Here is another bit of advice: Don't depend on the Kern River above and below Isabella Lake for fishing. It is too high and roily for stocking and it is entirely possible that it won't be stocked for weeks, if then, because that 20-foot-deep snowpack is going to mean months of heavy runoff.

NEW PUBLICATIONS — When Dorothy Boone Kidney's husband suggested that they move to a Maine wilderness where there were no roads, no stores, no houses and live in a one-bedroom shack that he had discovered on a fishing trip, she was aghast, and that's putting it mildly. But she loved him and she did. Now she has written "Away From It All," which tells of tame deer and wild bears in their back yard. It's an A. S. Barnes & Company publication and is delightful reading.

Another Barnes book now on the bookshelves is Jack Mohr's "Hyenas in My Bedroom," which describes an adventurous romp on safari through the Dark Continent. Jack, an American GI stationed in Ethiopia, knew nothing about big game, but my, oh my, how he learned! The result is a humorous, and at times terrifying story of his journey.

If you feel that you'd like to live off the land, or at least do so partly, by all means read "More Free-For-the-Eating Wild Foods," by Bradford Angier, who has made a study of wilderness areas for many years. He now has written what he calls a nature-study cookbook with 200 ways to pepare common wild plants for the table, no matter whether you are camping or taking them home.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS — The California Golden Bears Trap Shooting Club will be competing today at the Long Beach-Dominguez Gun Club, on Artesia Boulevard between Central and Avalon. Neal Pettygrove, who bought the old Dominguez club, says that there will be room for public shooters as well as members of the Golden Bears.

Dr. Julius Coronado, while not a member of the Southern California Tuna Club, agrees most heartily with the Tuna Club members that the father-son trips are highly profitable from the standpoint of both parent and son.

He took his boy, 11-year-old Michael Holton, to Rancho Buena Vista, Baja California Sur, recently and the boy almost beat his father in billfishing. Mike got one marlin weighing 132 pounds on 40-pound test line, just six pounds under the one his dad caught. They also caught tuna, roosterfish, dolphinfish and yellowtail. They reside at 3601 Julian Ave.

Just to let you know that 1968 wasn't the worst ocean fishing year in history, here's what the Department of Fish and Game has to say: Party boat anglers caught 5,731,201 fish last year for an average of 6.7 fish per man. Records were set in two categories — rockfish 2,102,859 and kelp and sand bass 1,317,963.

The salmon catch also was up at 127,584, as compared with 84,946 the previous year. Those figures do not embrace the hundreds of privately operated boats that made no reports of their catches.

GROOMING THE TROJAN HORSE

Jimmy Jones, USC's sophomore quarterback prospect, discusses points with assistant footbali coaches Craig Fertig (center) and Willie Brown.

TROJANS LIKE JONES

Soph QB Can't Stand to Sit

By LOEL SCHRADER
Staff Writer

When you see Jimmy Jones run, you understand why he doesn't want to sit.

"I didn't come to USC to sit," says the 18-year-old freshman quarterback from Harrisburg, Pa. "I came here with the idea of starting as a sophomore."

Jones is neither brash nor cocky.

But there is an underlying self-assurance that belied his age.

FOR EXAMPLE, in the Trojans' first scrimmage of the spring, when the offense was rusty and employing only four basic plays, Jones suffered through a horrible 70 minutes.

He threw the ball 11 times, completed only three and had two intercepted.

"No, I didn't get discouraged," says Jones when asked to recall that experience. "It was about what I expected."

Jones demonstrated the following week that he expects to give senior Mike Holmgrem, who is sitting out spring practice with a knee injury, a strong fight for a starting position next fall.

He threw 17 passes and completed nine for 108 yards and one touchdown.

"Gaining confidence and getting respect from my teammates as a leader are the most important things," says Jones, who was sought by 112 schools before choosing USC.

At the same time, Jones is winning followers among the Troy coaching staff, including head coach John McKay.

While trying to keep the pressure off his young quarterback, McKay does admit that Jones has "a highly intelligent football mind."

And McKay also confesses he's returning to the "beathard-type of offense we used in 1962."

The 1962 attack featured the rollout running and passing talents of Pete Beathard, skills also possessed by Jones.

So there'll be a little bit of the past when the Trojans prepare for the future in their full-dress spring game Saturday at 3 p.m. in the Coliseum.

Fassel Hot Stand-In for Jones

Fullerton Junior College transfer Jim Fassel completed 17 of 32 passes for 344 yards and four touchdowns Saturday in a USC football scrimmage.

With Jimmy Jones held out of action because of a minor thigh injury, Fassel played most of the 70 minutes at quarterback and connected on scoring passes of 80 yards to Bruce Rollinson, 37 to Bob Chandler, 18 to Sam Dickerson and 18 to Gary Orcutt.

"I thought Fassel did a creditable job," said coach John McKay. "We held Jones out because we wanted to make sure he would be ready for next Saturday's spring game."

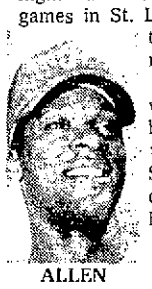

A fifth touchdown was scored by freshman halfback Bob Giorgetti on a 3-yard run.

NO END TO AQUEDUCT STRIKE

Allen Missing, Fine Due

Philadelphia manager Bob Skinner indicated Saturday he would take "disciplinary action" against star infielder Richie Allen, missing from the team for two days.

Allen was absent from the Phillies' lineup Friday night and Saturday for games in St. Louis against the Cardinals.

ALLEN

Allen's wife Barbara had telphoned Skinner Friday that her husband had missed plane connections. He was understood to be on his way to St. Louis Saturday.

THE HORSEMEN'S boycott at Aqueduct race track moved into its second week Saturday. No break was in sight.

The horsemen called the boycott in protest to state legislative inaction to a proposal to fund a pension plan for backstretch employes. The plan would create four new racing days and divert what ordinarily would be state revenue for those days to the pension fund.

PEARL AGNES HERNANDEZ, wife of turf announcer Joe Hernandez, died Saturday after a lingering illness at the family home in Arcadia.

The couple were to celebrate their 45th wedding anniversary soon.

In addition to her husband, the track announcer at Santa Anita without interruption since it began operation in 1935, survivors include two daughters, a son and four grandchildren.

THE CALGARY Stampeders of the Canadian Football League have refused the Philadelphia Eagles permission to contact Jerry Williams regarding the position as coach of the NFL team.

The Stampeders' board of directors, approached late Friday, decided unanimously Saturday that Williams should abide by his four-year contract

JOE FRAZIER, recognized as heavyweight champion in six states, continued to hold down the No. 1 contender slot in the WBA's ratings. Jimmy Ellis has not defended his WBA version of the title since he won a controversial decision from Floyd Patterson on Sept. 14, 1968.

Blues Turn to Farm Club as Last Resort in Finals

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — If the best of the Kansas City Blues are a match for the Montreal Canadiens, the lopsided finals of the Stanley Cup playoffs might not end this afternoon.

Channel 2, 11 A.M.

But who expects them to be?

It is the St. Louis Blues, not their Kansas City farm club, who found no way of controlling Montreal in 3-1, 3-1 and 4-0 defeats. Two Kansas City stars have been promoted, but how much difference can they make?

The series has been so one-sided that it has offended the sense of fitness of some hockey tories who believe the Stanley Cup climax should be a seven-game donnybrook.

A final series matching the East against the expansion West is bound to be an anticlimax for years to come, they will say.

Left winger Gary Veneruzzo and defenseman Ray Fortin, both all-stars for Kansas City in the Central Hockey League, will be in the Blues' lineup, replacing the injured Ron Schock and Bob Plager.

Indulto Comes Off Pace to Win L.A. 'CAP

Stretch-running Indulto raced to his third consecutive stakes victory Saturday as he captured the 17th running of the $56,350 Los Angeles Handicap at Hollywood Park, ranked as one of the nation's top sprint races.

Indulto caught defending champion Rising Market Midway down the stretch and pulled away by a length at the finish in the blazing time of 1:20 3/5, just three-fifths of a second off the world record for seven furlongs.

Dewan closed fast to finish third and First Mate was fourth in the field of 10 starters.

Indulto was sent off a lukewarm favorite and returned $7.40, $3.80 and $2.80. Rising Market paid $4.60 and $3.40 while Dewan returned $5.40.

In his previous two races, Indulto won the Premiere Handicap on opening day at Hollywood Park and the Sierra Madre Handicap at Santa Anita. The 6-year-old gelding was a top juvenile and 3-year-old but last year failed to win a race although he placed in several stakes. He developed a reputation as a rogue but settled down after being brought West last summer to return to his earlier form in New York.

At the start of the race, Key Rulla went out in front and set a swift pace but Rising Market stayed locked on the leader coming down the chute into the main track. They were followed by Don B. and Broad Shadows.

Indulto was seventh in the early stages of the race but moved forward steadily under the handling of Don Pierce.

As the field headed into the turn, Indulto began his long drive while Rising Market shot to the front. But once they straightened out in the stretch the winner wore down rising Market with every stride and drew even at the 16th pole before pulling away.

The victory was worth $33,850 to Indulto's owner, Mrs. Edward Lasker, and increased the gelding's earnings for the year to nearly $75,000.

Indulto carried 122 pounds to 124 for Rising Market.

The Los Angeles Handicap ranks with the San Carlos at Santa Anita and the Carter Handicap at New York as legs on the spring triple crown. Rising Market won the first leg, the San Carlos, in January.

ONE SKIPPER DIES

Slow But Safe Ensenada Race

By DONNELL CULPEPPER
Staff Writer

The 2nnd annual Newport Harbor-to-Ensenada International Yacht Race, which started Thursday noon and finished Friday, was one of the slowest due to lack of proper winds, but it was one of the safest.

Only one incident marred the race and that was a real tragedy to the Voyagers Yacht Club of Newport Beach. Ross Procter, owner of ths boat Elena, suffered a heart attack while en route and died before he could be brought back to land.

The fastest time was made by a catamaran, Patty-Cat II, owned and skippered by Dr. John P. Pursell (Balboa YC). The elapsed time was 23 hours, 53 minutes.

Here is the way he tabulated the corrected time results in the various classes:

OCEAN RACING CATAMARANS — 1. Auripa, Dr. Robert Cameron (South Gate YC of San Diego); 2. Foamy, Conrad Banks (Santa Barbara YC); 3. Star Trek, William Stein (Malibu YC); 4. Glass Slipper, Jan Johnson (Seal Beach YC); 5. Polyneslan Concept, Buddy Ebsen (BYC); 6. Tom, Tom Sauter (Seal Beach YC). champion, captain Jim Thomas in the 440.

He had some luck when favorite Ron Martinez of Cerritos pulled up five yards from the finish to turn what appeared to be a bang-bang finish into a 4-10ths of a second victory for Thomas, 48.1 to 48.5.

"I don't know what happened," Martinez moaned. "Both of my knees locked. I nearly fell down."

Thomas' 48.1, was a lifetime best and a school record.

Greg Smithey also set a school record in the pole vault. He climbed 15-3¼ while finishing second to Pierce's Jeff Sakala, who set a meet record at 15-5½.

DERBY

had shifted the stretch-running Dike into high gear.

That was where Top Knight, second choice after winning the Flamingo Stakes and Florida Derby, dropped completely out of contention. The three other colts headed around the final turn in front of the jam-packed infield and down into the stretch.

The critics had said the courage of Majestic Prince never had been tested under fire against a class horse. But he responded to Hartack's urging and, despite the furious effort of Arts and Letters and Dike to overhaul him, he clung to the lead and went under the wire a neck in front.

Ocean Roar, a long shot whose only hope was supposed to be bad weather, surprised by cutting out a fast early pace before fading after five furlongs.

Top Knight, who had been battling for the lead, moved on the inside to go in front midway down the back stretch, then drifted out slightly on the last turn and suddenly dropped out of contention.

Majestic Prince earned a winners purse of $113,200, for McMahon, a millionaire oilman from Vancouver, B.C., who bought him for $250,000 as a yearling and already has refused offers of more than $2 million.

McMahon, who had been suffering from the flu, was present but was feeling "under the weather." In his place, Mrs. McMahon said Majestic Prince "is going to the Preakness and the Belmont, if he is sound.

The second jewel of the turf Triple Crown, the Preakness Stakes, will be run at Pimlico May 17.

Although nickel was only isolated as an element 200 years ago, coins minted in Bacteria more than 21 centuries ago were similar in composition to our present-day copper-nickel coins.

Law in the News

False arrest is also a tort for which you can get money damages. The arrest may be by private persons or by police officers.

Martha worked in a store. One afternoon her supervisor told her the manager wanted her. The manager told Martha that they had investigated her department and found she had been stealing. She denied the charge.

They told her that she couldn't leave until she had signed a confession. They kept Martha for five hours threatening her and demanding that she sign. When at last she did, they let her go.

Martha sued the store for false imprisonment. The store claimed that since she was working at the store there was no false imprisonment in calling her to the office during working hours.

* * * *

NOT SO, said a California Court. They detained her not to investigate but to get Martha to confess. Her duties did not give them the right to hold her by force for that purpose. by police officers? George

What about false arrest Smith and some friends were shooting a somewhat boisterous game of pool. Police officers came in and asked George about Ed, a friend of his. They arrested Ed, then ordered George into the police car, searched him, and later turned him loose.

George sued the police officer. The court gave him damages and said that while it is a good citizen's duty to give information to police about a crime, "if a person does not talk willingly to an investigator no law permits a police officer to arrest or detain him on that ground." A policeman cannot arrest or detain a citizen who is not charged with or suspected of a crime. And any alleged inconvenience caused to the investigating authorities by this principle is far outweighed by the rights of citizens to be protected in their personal liberty.

If the defendant is himself suspected of a crime, a reasonable period of detention for investigation is permitted.

PORTS O'PROGRESS

By JACK O. BALDWIN

Charles L. Vickers, who has served the Port of Long Beach for the past 45 years — the last 11 as general manager, will be honored at a retirement testimonial dinner to be held June 12 at the Long Beach Petroleum Club.

CHARLES L. VICKERS

The affair is likely to be a sell out. It is suggested those wishing to attend make reservations now through the Chamber of Commerce.

Vickers is recognized as one of the world's leading authorities on port construction and operations. Under his management the port of Long Beach has experienced the most dramatic growth in the 58-year history of the port, increasing cargo tonnage handled per year from seven million tons to nearly 20 million tons.

Irving Koppel, president of Koppel Bros., Inc., operators of the towering grain elevators in the port, is serving as chairman of the affair.

Bernard J. Caughlin, general manager of the Port of Los Angeles, has returned from Japan where he completed arrangements with the manufacturers of Datsun automobiles to use a planned multi-million dollar imported autombobile distribution and service center to be built on a portion of land now occupied by Sun Lumber Co.

The Nissan Motor Co., Ltd. is presently shipping from 2,500 to 3,000 vehicles per month into Los Angeles Harbor which have been moving across several wharves at different locations within the port. The new distribution center will consolidate the operation.

The project is scheduled for completion in late October and in full operation in November.

The Long Beach unit of the United States Power Squadron has endorsed an idea for marking the entrance to the Port of Long Beach at the Queen's Gate which could rival in uniqueness passage beneath the Golden Gate Bridge, and perhaps in time, the greeting extended by the Statue of Liberty.

The Queen's Gate, the opening in the Federal Breakwater through which ships pass as they enter the Port, is also the gateway to the largest current oil and gas producing field in North America — Long Beach's offshore East Wilmington Field.

The idea would be to erect an Olympic-style torch on either side of the breakwater. Flames fed by gas from the field would burn night and day as an unusual aid to navigation to help guide and bid welcome to mariners entering the Port of Long Beach.

City officials, while approving the concept, quickly snuffed out the idea.

"Who would pay for it?" they ask.

WORLD OF WINGS

By HERB SHANNON
Aerospace Editor

Cal-State Air Lines, the rapidly growing regional carrier based in Long Beach, has contracted to take over scheduled air mail and freight routes operated by Priority Air Transportation System, of San Francisco.

The new service will include mail and freight schedules between San Francisco, San Jose, Bakersfield, Las Vegas, Hollywood-Burbank and Mojave. All of the routes except the Mojave link parallel those previously served by Cal-State.

Also included in the new agreement is a freight contract operation for Eastman Kodak Company between San Francisco and Hollywood-Burbank.

Cal-State President Richard A. Dick said the Civil Aeronautics Board and the Post Office Department have approved the agreement between the two carriers.

A deal also is pending for Cal-State to acquire four Beech Super-18 aircraft operated by Priority. These will be offered for resale, according to Dick.

The Long Beach carrier last month added San Francisco and Sacramento to its route network connecting principal California cities with Las Vegas. The airline started service last Nov. 11.

TRANS WORLD AIRLINES WILL inaugurate transpacific service and its first round-the-world link from Los Angeles on Aug. 1, under the revised authority granted by President Nixon.

The original award by the Civil Aeronautics Board under President Johnson's administration called for the airline to operate the Pacific service from Long Beach or Ontario, but this was changed to permit TWA to use terminal facilities at Los Angeles International Airport.

TWA's first westbound Pacific flight will leave Los Angeles at 9:45 p.m., arrive at Honolulu at 11:55 p.m. and continue to Guam, Okinawa, Taipei and Hong Kong. The flight will continue on around the world on the carrier's present route through Southeast Asia, the Middle East and Europe to New York.

The first eastbound global flight will depart Los Angeles at 10 a.m., operating through New York on the reverse of the above route to Hong Kong. Continuing, the airline's first daily eastbound flight across the Pacific leaves Hong Kong at 5 p.m. Aug. 3 for Taipei or Okinawa on alternate days, Guam, Honolulu and back to Los Angeles.

Other cities to be served daily on TWA's new earth-orbit service include Bangkok, Bombay, Tel Aviv, Athens and Frankfurt.

Pirelli Tires to Headquarter in Compton Industrial Center

PIRELLI Sales West, Inc., prime distributor for Pirelli tires in the Southwest, will occupy a 30,000-square-foot building in the CC&F Los Angeles Industrial Center, now under development in Compton.

The 20-year lease was announced by Christopher E. Malone Jr., Pirelli general manager, and Charles V. Kendall Jr., Cabot, Cabot & Forbes marketing manager. George Fox and Larry Parrish, of the Coldwell Banker Co., served as brokers.

Currently operating from facilities in Compton, Pirelli serves more than 150 distributors in Southern California, New Mexico, Arizona and Hawaii.

* * * *

PIRELLI, headquartered in Milan, Italy, is ranked as the 54th largest corporation outside the United States.

Widely known for its development of radial tires for racing and imported cars, the firm now manufactures radials for all standard passenger cars, and will introduce radial truck tires in the United States in the near future.

Pirelli Sales West, Inc. is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Pirelli Tire Corp., in New York.

The new sales and distribution center will be built by Aberthaw Construction Co., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Cabot, Cabot & Forbes. The site has already been graded, and construction will be completed by June 15.

Pirelli is the third firm to announce its move into the Los Angeles Industrial Center in recent weeks. Construction is already underway on an 82,000 square foot lease building for DEC Associates, and a 60,000 square foot building purchased by Standard Infant & Childrens Wear, Inc.

* * * *

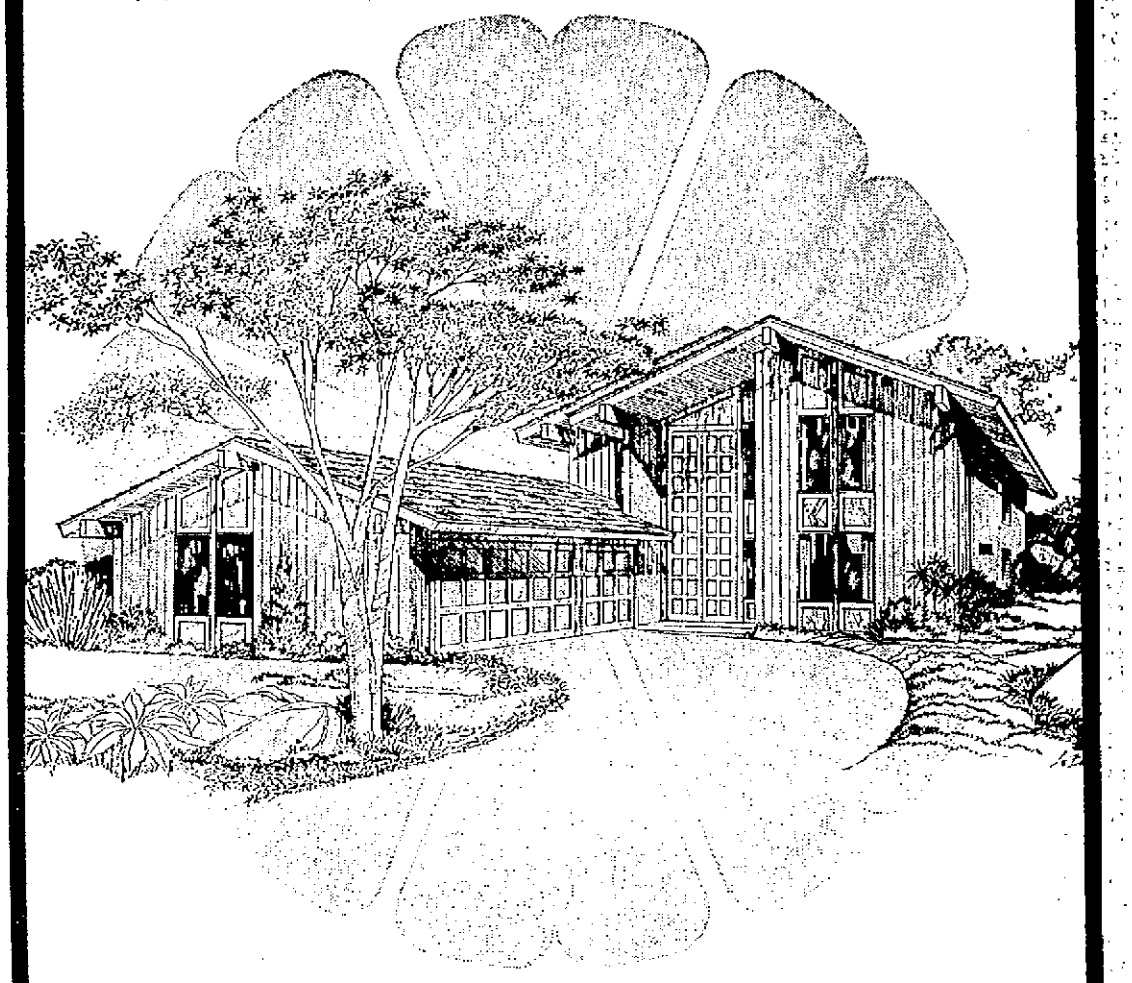

THE LOS ANGELES Industrial Center was purchased last June as a joint venture by CC&F and the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company.

The 540-acre development — one of the largest industrial complexes close to downtown Los Angeles — will be completed by 1975 and will eventually house between 75 and 100 companies.

Hayes to Address AHA Meet

Assemblyman James A. Hayes will speak at the Apartment House Association, Long Beach-Southern Cities, members and guests' meeting at the Elks Club Thursday at 6:30 p.m.

Hayes will address the audience on the current Baggage Lien Law and legislative activities pending at Sacramento. The Assemblyman was author of the Baggage Lien Law of 1967 with amendments of 1968.

BERNIE SPECHT, AHA President, said more than 25,000 letters with petitions have been sent to income property owners in support of Senate Bill 35, which would remove the nine-line clause in AB 272 which was passed two years ago. The present law would become effective on July 1, 1971, giving the local board unlimited authority to increase property taxes without voter approval.

Cuties Mark 25th Year in L.B. Game

By CHUCK MEDICK

In the fall of 1944, on the island of Guam, a large group of servicemen had an outdoor party. The enterprising Trino Palacios had an idea.

"Since there are no girls around, why not dress up some of the guys in girls' outfits and play a softball game?" said Trinio, and he did it.

Out of that gag was born the California Cuties, who 25 years later will make their only appearance of the year in Long Beach Saturday at 8 p.m. at Park Ave. Field engaging the Long Beach Fire Dept.

The success story of the Cuties has been one of good promotion. Palacios has taken his "sweet things" into the Orient, the Caribbean, Puerto Rico and every state in the union except Alaska. Last year they invaded Western Canada and were so popular that they are returning this summer for 75 games in Alberta and Manitoba.

One problem faced the "girls" when they visited the Orient. The parks weren't large enough to hold the spectators and twice Palacios had to quickly remove his team from the field for fear of losing the costumes.

Naval Station Opens Softball Slate This Week

Forty-one teams in six leagues begin play this week in Long Beach Naval Station's Special Services softball program.

Los Alamitos Naval Air Station is defending Major League champion, but the Flyers can expect rugged competition, particularly from the USS Bryce Canyon and USS Long Beach.

Pacific MineForce, 18-0 Shore League winner last year, has been advanced to major status and is the dark horse.

Other teams are USS Canberra, USS New Orleans, USS El Dorado, USS Navarro and USS Merrick.

There are six teams each in the Minor, Fleet, Bay and Afloat loops, with eight entries in the Destroyer League.

Angels to Give Free Bats Today

Bat Day, one of the most popular promotional dates of the season, is scheduled at Anaheim Stadium today when the Angels host the Kansas City Royals for the first time.

Each youngster, 12 and under, accompanied by a paying adult will receive free a Louisville Pro bat, approved for Little League play.

Gates will open at 11 a.m. and bats will be distributed as the youngsters enter the park.

Not Bad Wolf at Door, Just Ol' Zoning Board

By DON CAMPBELL

It may be quite literally true that home is either where a man hangs his hat, or where his heart lies. But just try to get a zoning board to go along with the designation of a hat rack as a "one-family residence."

MR. CAMPBELL:

I noticed that beautiful mobile home pictures right near your column in a recent issue of the paper. This reminded me of a retired couple I know who have been farming all of their lives. To retire, they sold their farm and set aside a piece of land on which to put a mobile home.

They ordered a 12 by 60 foot custom model but, when this home arrived, they were told they couldn't put it on their land due to zoning. It was the most luxury you could ever get for some $8,000.

They tell you at the zoning office, why not build a small home. Whom are they kidding? Now this couple, who cried like babies when they were told they couldn't live there, have had to leave their land that they worked so hard for so they could retire.

This is the kind of grip that our county governments have everybody in —they drive the poor into the bush to rebuild old deserted chicken coops as home until they start something as bad as the ghettos in the city.—Mrs. J. M. D.

ANSWER: It's a pretty harsh indictment, but one that certainly isn't without justification because it's a relatively rare zoning board that has updated its attitude toward this phenomenon of post-World War II America.

Today's mobile home is a far cry from the jerry-built, tin-can-like house trailers that popped up during World War II to alleviate the housing shortage and to accommodate an abnormally mobile citizenry, but the transition has apparently escaped the notice of nine out of ten zoning authorities.

As a result, the average request for zoning to permit the establishment of a mobile home park gets just about the same official reaction that one would receive if he solicited the city, or county, for permission to set up a gypsy camp complete with a fortune-telling tent and a tattooing parlor.

Fortunately, some of the zoning barriers are beginning to crumble and this particulary so in the south and southwest where so many retirees have settled down. It's a group, incidentally, that accounts for about 25 per cent of the industry's $1-billion-plus sales each year.

It is probably going to come along too late to do the retired couple mentioned by Mrs. J. M. D. much good, but I think that we will eventually see a turn-about in the official attitude toward mobile homes as their mushrooming popularity (sales up almost 150 per cent in the last six or seven years) continues. And continue it will as conventional building costs inexorably climb upward. At present, according to the latest figures, the mobile home enjoys an 85 per cent cost advantage over a conventional home. You can ignore a development like this just so long before public pressure on zoning bodies becomes impossible.

MR. CAMPBELL:

Is this so-called "indoor-outdoor" carpeting on the level? We have just had a screened patio attached to the rear of our house and the builder has suggested that we lay this carpeting over the concrete floor.

Maybe we're being awfully old-fashioned, but I don't understand how anything exposed to the weather that much is going to hold up the way the builder says it will.—T.L.P.

ANSWER: You're not being old-fashioned—the explosion in indoor-outdoor carpeting is simply so new that it all happened while you had your back turned. Chicago's Ozite Corporation brought out the first batch of carpeting less than five years ago.

Your builder isn't handing you a line, either. The carpeting—most of it made out of polypropylene olefin fiber—resists water, stains, sunlight, mildew, rotting, freezing and lasts twice as long as conventional carpeting. Significantly, too, it costs about half the price of regular carpeting, and, with several other manufacturers now getting into the act, the price differential is spreading even further.

If the stuff is okay for use around swimming pools, on diving boards and as tennis court surfacing—which it is—the beating that it will take on your patio should be child's play for it.

Mr. Campbell:

My husband is being transferred to Puerto Rico for two years on his job. We have a house which we bought for $18,750 in 1964. Our problem is if we sell now and buy another house in 1971, what will the interest rate be, and at what price can we sell the house now? We have had a 16-by-27 foot patio and central air conditioning added and a tremendous amount of work done on the yard.

We are trying to decide whether or not to sell as we have teen-age children whom I think their Dad should be around to handle, and I don't think that I could do this alone at this point. Also, I have a very good job, and hate to leave, but believe I could acquire some type of job in Puerto Rico. I would appreciate it very much if you would try to answer this as soon as possible. — Mrs. M. A. T.

ANSWER: Whew! there are more imponderables here than one will find in a piece of modern poetry. In the first place, there is no way in the world of knowing what interest rates will be in 1971, or at what price your present house will move. How fond of this present house are you, and what assurance do you have that your husband will be transferred back to the states to the same city?

In the absence of anything really concrete, I will give you my strictly personal opinion on the matter: I think that the headaches of trying to operate as an out-of-the-country, absentee landlord far outweigh, in a negative sense, most of the financial "ifs," "ands," and "buts" that you propose.

So far, I have sold three houses that I thought I loved very much. In each case, though, the succeeding house that I bought was so good that, today, I have difficulty recalling the details of the earlier ones. I wouldn't worry about comparative 1969 and 1971 interest rates, either.

If they are higher in 1971 than they are today (a fair bet), you should be able to invest the sale price of your present house at rates that will help compensate for this.

Admittedly, it's purely personal reaction, but — in your place — I would sell the home, move to Puerto Rico with a light heart and play it by ear from that point on. Who knows? By 1971 we could, conceivably be back to 4-½ per cent interest rates!

Campbell welcomes letters. He is unable to enter into correspondence with readers, but will answer as many letters as possible through his column.

The Arts Are Vital to Healthy Business Community

G. Robert Turex Jr., executive vice president of the Bank of America, and Dr. Robert W. Corrigan, president of the California Institute of the Arts, will address an Arts Council luncheon meeting of Long Beach area business leaders at the Pacific Coast Club Thursday.

Theme of the meeting, sponsored by the Long Beach Regional Arts Council, is "Arts Are the Business of Business," according to Mrs. John H. Dale, Council president.

"Turex and Dr. Corrigan are prime movers in the creation of the $54 million California Institute of the Arts now under construction at Valencia," Mrs. Dale said.

"As nationally recognized leaders in their fields of business, finance, and the arts, they have an exciting story to tell of why it is good business for business to support and promote arts which illuminate man's mind and spirit."

* * * *

THE ACTION of the Arts Council in arranging the meeting was praised by Jerry Quinlan, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce economic-industrial development committee:

"If Long Beach is to attract more science and research industries, we must continue to improve the quantity and quality of cultural facilities such creative people demand.

"When those companies seek a new location, they don't pick a city just for its economic advantages.

"They also insist it have well developed and growing art programs to enable their highly paid and highly educated professional people, and their families, to enjoy a full and meaningful life," Quinlan said.

* * * *

QUINLAN'S chamber group is composed of a cross-section of Long Beach's business leaders and is dedicated to building the city's economic base and prosperity.

On display at a reception preceding the luncheon will be representative exhibits of current activities by many of the 42 art organizations which support the Arts Council.

"Long Beach leaders will be surprised and inspired by the scope and excellence of the work of these groups," Mrs. Dale said.

"Many have achieved more recognition nationally for their accomplishments than they have locally.

"By bringing the arts groups and our business leaders together, we want to generate a greater pride in Long Beach's cultural riches," said Mrs. Dale.

* * * *

"FEW CITIES become great without nourishing the arts and Long Beach is no exception.

"We already have the solid foundation for greatness. All we need do is build on it," she concluded.

Reservations for the luncheon, open to the public, may be made at the Arts Council office in the Pacific Coast Club or at the Chamber of Commerce, 121 Linden Ave.

Builder Don Ayres Jr. Wisely Predicted Cerritos' Boom

TWO-STORY MODELS . . . Have Attractive Stairways

"FHA didn't share our enthusiasm for the Cerritos area back in 1966 when we decided to build the first residential subdivision in that area," says Don Ayres Jr., president of Frank H. Ayres and Son, builders.

"Finally, with the help of Congressman James Utt, we convinced them Cerritos, had a great potential for growth and got our commitment."

At that time Cerritos was predominantly agricultural. There were more dairy cows per square acre than humans, but Cerritos' location was in the path of progressive growth.

* * * *

THERE was a need for a well-planned bedroom community, supported by industry and commerce, as the complex of Southern California freeway systems evolved.

Bellflower, Lakewood, Artesia, La Palma, Buena Park and a number of other cities filled the need for a while, but another master-planned community like Cerritos was needed.

Ayres realized the need for a good, large residential community to provide homes for families desiring easy access to freeways, employment opportunities, schools, churches, shopping facilities, and an almost perfect climate.

* * * *

INDUSTRY had been steadily moving into Cerritos and the surrounding areas.

The alert Cerritos planning commission convinced city officials and land owners their city was changing and in the path of urban development.

The dairy industry, representing more than $100 million a year, began to migrate to Chino and other suburban areas.

Three years ago Don Ayres was convinced Cerritos was undergoing one of the most accelerated residential booms since Orange County was "discovered."

* * * *

NOW Ayres is in the second unit of his fifth community of Rancho La Cuesta homes in Cerritos.

The city has met the demands of progress.

By 1970 there will be a $40 million shopping mall along the San Gabriel Freeway (605), between 183rd and South Streets. It will be air-conditioned and offer a full complement of shops, stores and services.

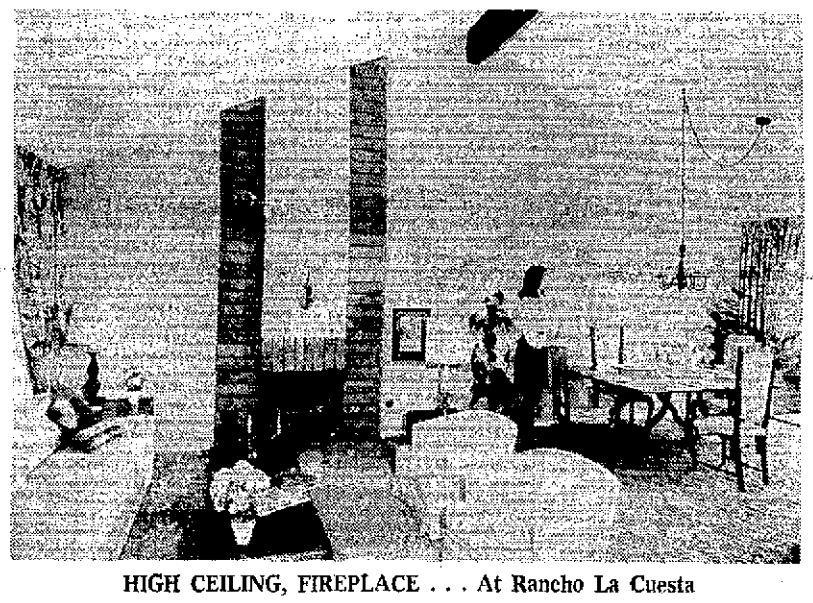

Cerritos now boasts a 16-acre industrial park, now leasing, and a like development at 166th and Norwalk Boulevard.

Cerritos is taking shape as a complete community through guidance of the Chamber of Commerce and its manager, John Corcoran.

* * * *

THE Artesia Freeway is now completed between Lakewood Boulevard and Bloomfield Avenue.

Rancho La Cuesta Cerritos V has furnished and decorated model homes and a sales-information center open daily at 13001 Artesia Blvd.

IT'S WORKSHOP WORKERS WEEK

CRI Becomes A Major Electronics Manufacturer

Community Rehabilitation Industries now is numbered among the largest electronics manufacturing businesses in the Long Beach-Orange County area.

This is an unusual feat, since this "business" is a rehabilitation program, a nonprofit training workshop located at 1409-21 E. Anaheim St., Long Beach, where handicapped people are trained toward the goal of competitive employment.

Some of the companies which subcontract work to CRI are Douglas Aircraft Co., Long Beach; Thermco Products Corp., Orange; General Precision Systems Inc., Kearfott Group, located in San Marcos; Norris Industries, Los Angeles, and Hughes Aircraft Co., Fullerton, according to Russell K. Peterson, president of CRI's board.

* * * *

TO accommodate these expanding contracts, CRI has experienced rapid growth in the last 12 months.

One hundred fifty persons are now either in training or employed at CRI, Peterson said.

According to a proclamation by the governor and the joint houses of the state legislature, this week has been declared "Workshop Workers Week" both to honor the workers and subcontractors currently involved in the program, and to encourage additional use of the shops.

The week's observance is being sponsored by the Department of Rehabilitation and the California Association of Rehabilitation Workshops.

* * * *

CLAIFORNIA leads the nation with 10 per cent of such workshops where handicapped persons may train for positions in industry while producing taxable income.

The growth of the workshop program is a direct result of the services provided by the business community, which is finding subcontracting to these shops not only is assisting persons back to independent living "but is good business," Peterson said.

Last year, the workshops paid out $12-13 million in wages and salaries with most of it going to persons who could not compete for jobs in private industry, due to their handicaps.

* * * *

IT HAS proven of great value to many industries.

Some are as mammoth as the largest aerodynamics firms who job out small electronics projects, and cosmetic houses who need products specially packaged.

Others using the workshops are small businesses without the space or personnel to do specialized work.

The workshops provide a saving in company bookkeeping, taxes, paper work, payroll, space, machinery, hiring, inspection and storage.

For some projects the workshops take over an entire job — from the pickup of necessary supplies to the storage, packing, and shipping of the finished product.

Model Rooms Ready

RICHARD SIRIS, president of Siris Home Furnishings, 1235 Long Beach, has announced the completion of redecoration of his Interior Design Center. More than 60 model rooms, including that shown here, have been constructed, reproducing interiors found in such community developments as El Dorado, College Park, Bixby Hills, Sol Vista. Siris is third generation head of 45-year-old firm.

Hundreds of O.C. Business Firms Profit Through NR

A total of 572 small business firms in Orange County received more than $12 million in contracts from the Autonetics Division of North American Rockwell during the 1968 fiscal year, the company reported last week.

W. F. Kochne, small business administrator for Autonetics, said the grand total of 4,523 contracts awarded by the division to small business during the year had a value of $54,976,962 and represented every state in the union.

Orange County businesses shared $12,128,866, while neighboring Los Angeles County's small businesses shared $12,128,866, orders totaling $25,224,148.

* * * *

TOTAL value of small business contracts from Autonetics throughout the state of California reached $43,761,525.

Usually firms are classified as small businesses if they employ fewer than 500 persons.

During the company's 1968 fiscal year, which ended Sept. 30, 1968, North American Rockwell's Aerospace and Systems Group, which includes Autonetics, spent $703,694,307 with 15,098 different subcontractors and suppliers representing each of the 50 states.

* * * *

OF THESE, 13,097 — or 86.7 per cent — were classified as small businesses and received contracts valued at $235,486,856, which represented 33.4 per cent of the total dollar value of all contracts.

One of the world's largest civilian research and development organizations, NR is the nation's leading independent manufacturer of automotive original equipment and the leading manufacturer of space vehicles, liquid propellant rocket engines, textile machinery and industrial gears.

It is among the largest companies in aerospace electronics and nuclear reactro development and is a major manufacturer of aircraft for business, private and agricultural customers.

Minority Groups Aided

For some time now the Standard Oil Co. of California and the Economic Development Council, Inc., of the Los Angeles Black Congress have had a joint venture — the development of privately operated businesses in the black community.

Here is how it works — in the arrangement the Development Council acts as a Chevron dealer, normally operating six stations at a time, and selects an agent manager for each station.

Standard Oil then trains these prospective independent dealers for six weeks at a Standard Station, Inc. unit, paying the trainee a full salary.

* * * *

FOLLOWING this period, designed to make each man a fully accomplished service station salesman, he is then assigned as manager of one of the Council stations.

Standard sends a member of its training panel to the station to work alongside the prospective dealer.

This intensive education continues for some time — in each case it is judged on an individual basis — long enough to assure that the prospective dealer will in fact become a successful businessman.

When a station is accepted by this new Chevron dealer, the Economic Development Council arranges with Standard for acquisition of another unit and selects another agent and the whole process begins again.

* * * *

AT THE present time, two of these stations are located in Paccoima and four are in southeast Los Angeles.

The opportunities, then, for new black businessmen are not limited to these present six, but will be extended to other enterprising hard working members of minority communities.

Standard's Retail Sales Manager R. W. Taylor emphasized this is not just a training exercise, but the "beginning of what is planned to be a long and successful relationship in mutually assisting members of minority groups to become businessmen in the fullest sense of the word."

* * * *

IN A significant effort to increase black business ownerhip in the ghetto area, the Sons of Watts has just taken over operation of one such modern Chevron station.

The special architecture unit has a sales potential, according to District Sales Manager R. W. Patterson, of a million gallons per year.

The station, located at 120th and Central, was completed some months ago and has been undergoing a gradual management evolution.

California now has 59,000 farms, 5,000 fewer than a year ago, with the average size farm increased in one year from 581 to 627 acres.

Lumber, Plywood Costs Add to Builders' Headaches

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Progress Section Editor

It is time, says an Orange County home builder, to release cost figures to the public.

Some of it is startling. And most of it makes sense.

"The high cost of building homes . . . in an industry already beset with the highest interest rates in history . . . should be an important segment of the communications and sales programs of builders selling homes in Southern California," declares Syd Carnine, general partner of Alscot Development Company.

Alscot's latest project is Aegean Hills in Orange County's Mission Viejo.

The average homebuyer, Carnine believes, isn't knowledgeable on the high costs of building his home.

A STUDY MADE BY ALSCOT reveals an increase in nearly every type of material and labor in home building since 1967.

Carnine said the percentages of increase are: fixtures, 5 per cent; concrete, 11; drywall, 20; labor, 33; lumber, 87; plywood, 92; and shingles and shakes, 102 per cent up.

Carnine goes further.

He cites the costs involved in the construction of the lowest-priced Aegean Hills model home (Plan B) and the highest (Plan F).

Here is his cost breakdown.

Plan B — cost of house, $18,400; cost of improved lot, $9,260; construction financing, $1,100; direct sales expense, $900; indirect sales expense, $750; total cost, $30,400; sales price, $31,800.

Plan F — cost of house, $17,300; cost of improved lot, $9,260; construction financing, $1,500; direct sales expense, $1,100; indirect sales expense, $750; total cost, $39,900; sales price, $41,500.

"WITHOUT LUMBER AND PLYWOOD," says Eugene A. Gulledge, president of the National Association of Home Builders, "we cannot build the homes America needs."

Gulledge first cites the short supply of skilled labor, then zeroes in on the shortages of lumber and plywood, the basic elements of home construction.

"Spokesmen for the forest products industry have warned that this shortage is not temporary," Gulledge adds.

During the hot, dry summer of 1967, extreme fire danger kept western loggers out of the woods. The next summer, heavy rains in the same areas made forest roads nearly impassable.

Then came the winter of 1968-69, with record cold and snow virtually closing the woods.

"It was in this atmosphere that homebuilding began its late-1968 rebound," Gulledge said, "Generating today's enormous demand for lumber and plywood."

SO WHAT FOLLOWED? Douglas fir lumber prices went up 29 per cent in 1968.

Obviously, demand for logs was greater than the demand for finished material — and the big reason was buying pressure from Japan, with 2.2 billion board feet of logs shipped to that country during 1968.

Limitations have since been placed on export of logs from federal lands.

According to its own figures, the U.S. Forest Service has 54 per cent of the national inventory of softwood timber — the raw material for lumber and plywood.

Industry owns 17 per cent.

But only 28 per cent of the total harvest comes from Forest Service land, and 36 per cent from industry lands.

INDUSTRY LAND CONTRIBUTES 25 per cent of the total growth; Forest Service land, only 20 per cent, and it would seem industry is 4½ times more efficient at growing timber than the Forest Service.

Or, maybe, that industry is depleting its share of the resource.

Says Gulledge: "Neither conclusion is correct."

Industry reinvests a portion of the income from its forest lands in making them more productive. The Forest Service is prevented from doing this.

An answer, Gulledge and the industry believe, lies in these areas: revision of federal policies, adequate funding of federal forestry, encouragement of better private forestry, and an export policy based on our national need.

THE NAHB PRESIDNET comes out swinging on another point: "Some lumber suppliers, not content with prices almost doubling during the past year, are fueling inflation with still higher prices, pleading short supply, lack of transportation and anything else but the real reason — being participants in a system that is charging all the market will bear."

The charge was like a hammer applied to the kneecap of the lumber producers. James Bronson, president of the National Forest Products Association, said the Gulledge charges were laudable sentiments but should be better used to focus attention on the true roadblock: federal management of national timber lands.

The answer, Bronson asserts, is to allow multiple use of federal forest and wilderness areas by combining park and conservation functions with the cutting of timber for commerical sale.

Missiing from both their statements — these presidents of huge associations — were urging that their respective members try to hold the price line.

LONG BEACH CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

TRADE TIPS ON THE WORLD MARKET

(Note: Revan Komaroff is transacting business in Africa and Europe. In his absence, Richard Anderson, director of research for the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, will fill in as guest columnist.)

By RICHARD ANDERSON

Terms of sale are important in determining the cost of doing business in international trade.

An exporter will need to look closely at his profit margin before quoting a price to a foreign buyer which takes into consideration the terms of sale.

Often such costs as transportation, warehousing, and insurance are not apparent from a surface view.

The international businessman must be fully aware of his individual responsibilities for delivery of an order before entering into a sales contract.

* * * *

STANDARD terms of sale are widely used in international trade. These terms define the relationship between the buyer and the seller and the responsibilities of each.

Here are some of the more frequently used terms of sale:

FAS (Free Alongside Ship) — This term specifies that the seller is responsible for all charges up to alongside ship. The seller is responsibile for all charges incurred from that point on.

FOB (Free on Board) — Here the seller is responsible for all charges incurred and all losses or damage prior to the time when the goods are placed on board the vessel. Once on board, the responsibility belongs to the buyer.

CIP (Cost, Insurance, Freight) — Under these conditions the seller is responsible for charges and also for the loss or damage to goods up to the port of final destination. At this point the seller assumes full responsibility.

As you can see, there are different cost factors involved in all of these terms. For more information, call the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce.

Crude Oil Refinery Runs Increase

A slip in steel production and a rise in auto output reversed last week's situation and held the chartline to its week ago level.

Steel production slipped 0.3 per cent. New orders continue strong.

Auto output rose 4.3 per cent above a week ago, but due to strikes and high inventory, this years output lags 9.6 per cent below a year ago.

The energy components registered gains in the current week. Crude oil refinery runs rose 2.1 per cent, while electric power output increased 2.2 per cent.

Miscellaneous carloadings dropped 2.8 per cent, due in part to a slowdown in forest product and farm products: all other carloadings decreased 2.3 per cent, and intercity truck tonnage fell 1.0 per cent.

Paperboard production slipped and continues to fall from March 22 all-time high.

Tip o' the Derby to You, Mr. President

LOUISVILLE, Ky (UPI) — Unbeaten Majestic Prince, displaying a fighting heart as well as blinding speed, thrilled President Nixon and one of the biggest crowds in the history of Churchill Downs Saturday when he won the $155,700 Kentucky Derby by a neck over Arts and Letters.

Majestic Prince covered the one mile ¼ race in 2:01⅘.

The copper-colored colt, for whom Canadian owner Frank McMahon once paid $250,000, made every penny of what worthwhile as he seized the Derby lead at the head of the stretch and defied a brilliant field of 3-year-olds to catch him.

Jockey Bill Hartack kept Majestic Prince in front

all the way down that long, long stretch under a blazing sun to become only the second jockey in history to win America's top turf classic five times — tying a mark held by Eddie Arcaro.

Dike, noted as a strong finisher, made a game run at the two frontrunners but had to settle for third place, a half-length behind Arts and Letters.

President Nixon, attending the Derby for the second consecutive year, was the first President to watch a Derby while in office and also the first chief executive to attend horse races anywhere while in office since Rutherford Hayes.

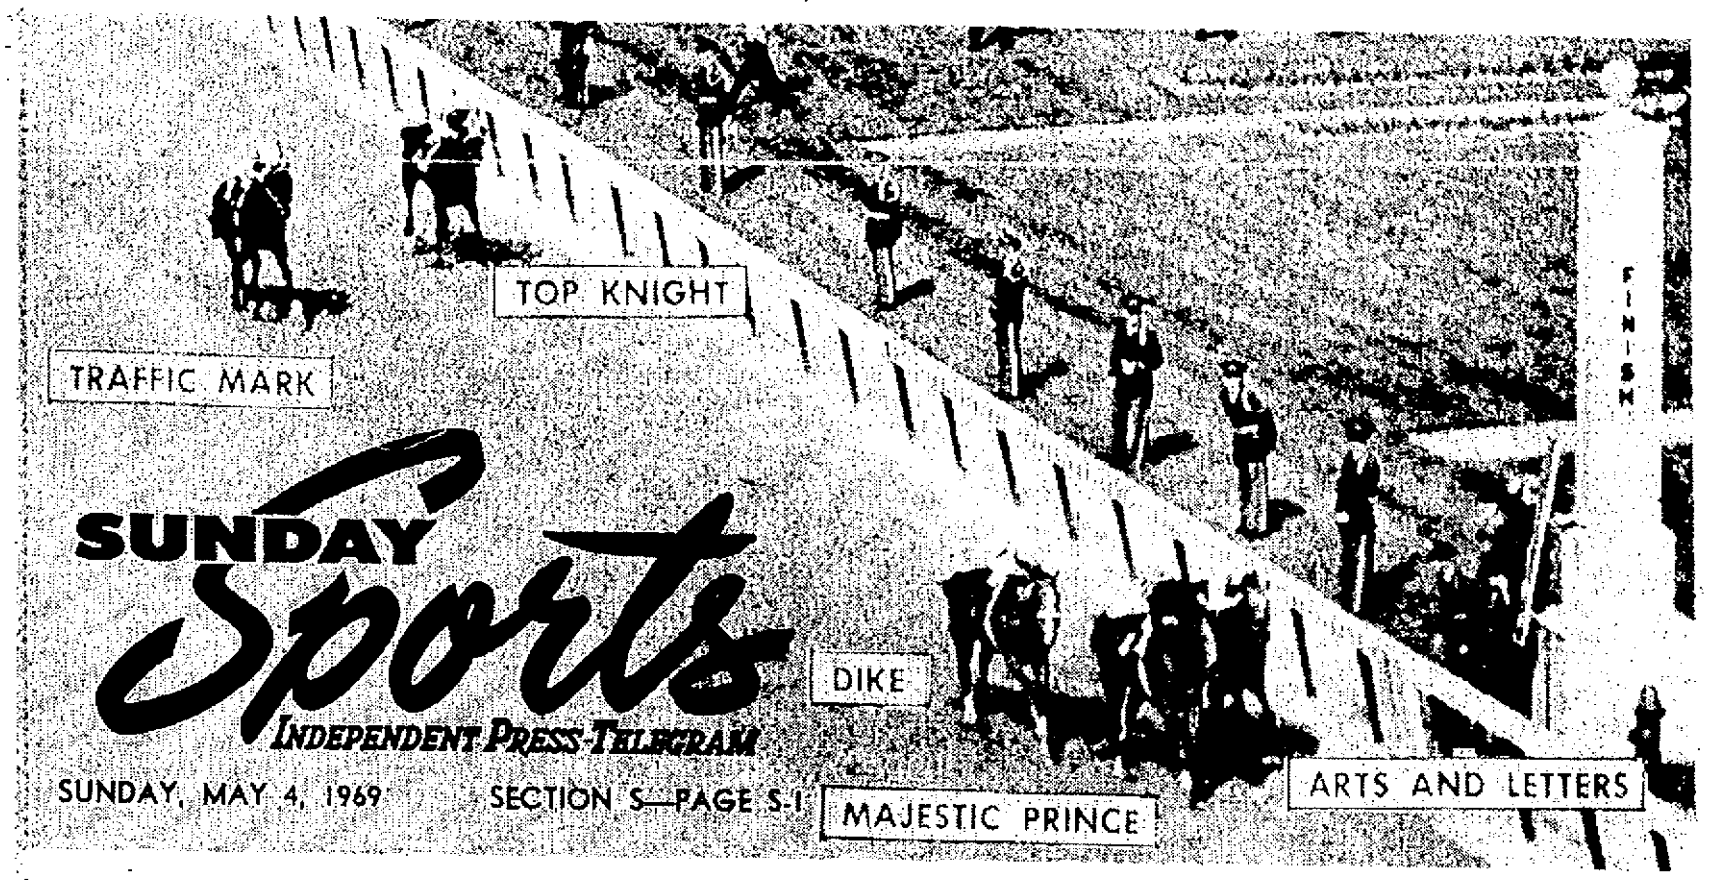

When asked before the race for his selection, Nixon said, "I have to stick with the California horse. I don't follow racing closely, so I don't have a system."

Majestic Prince, a Kentucky-bred colt who had done most of his racing in California, went to the post as favorite of the crowd of 100,000 and paid $4.80, 3.40 and 2.60 across the board. Arts and Letters paid $4.20, and 3.20 and Dike 2.80.

"If he wouldn't have been a fighter he wouldn't have won," said Hartack in the winner's circle, and that was the absolute truth.

On the final turn, Arts and Letters, racing along the rail, took the lead briefly under Jockey Braulio Baeza, while several lengths to the rear Jorge Velasquez

WEST SURVIVES

Celts Drub Lakers; It's Back to L.A.

By DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

Boston — The Lakers lost the battle but might have won the war.

That was the unstated feeling here Saturday after Boston forced a title showdown by drubbing the Lakers, 99-90, in the sixth game of their battle for the NBA championship.

The Celtics were tough on defense and horrible on offense, but the significant factor about this game was the performance of Jerry West.

Without fanfare, it can be reported that the Lakers' superstar guard survived his "rehabilitation" game in brilliant fashion and should be near total efficiency for Monday's deciding game in Los Angeles.

It was touch-and-go that West, nursing a pulled hamstring muscle in his left leg, would be able to play at all Saturday. For two periods there was still doubt, but it all was erased in the third and fourth periods.

West finished with 26 points, which may not be brilliant for him in this series, but it was a dandy effort considering his physical condition. And, more important, he still has much of his defensive quickness and lightning-quick reflexes—at least enough to get the job done.

The veteran guard was restricted to nine points in the first half and this was a decisive figure. While West was gingerly testing his leg the Celtics were running up a 55-39 advantage that they tried to squander but couldn't.

West was so surprised that his leg held up so well that he predicted the Lakers would win Monday's showdown and thus end their long frustration of losing title matches to the Celtics.

"We're going to win it because we have the better team," West told a cluster of writers. "I'm not positive I will be at my best, but I'm encouraged by today's game."

All signs point toward the Lakers winning their first title since coming to Los Angeles.

Besides West, the most significant factor was the performance of Elgin Baylor. He showed flashes of past glories by scoring 26 points and getting 10 rebounds.

Also, Wilt Chamberlain did not play one of his better games, perhaps because of his injured eye. No matter what the reason, the Lakers have every right to think he will bounce back Monday.

Chamberlain scored only one basket and finished with eight points. His defense was spotty, but there were moments in the fourth period when his defense was great as the Lakers made a mild run at cutting a 22-point Boston lead.

Bill Russell, who outrebounded Chamberlain 19-18, praised his team's defense and said he didn't feel West's injury inhibited his play.

Russell was in foul trouble early, but without West to drive the basket, the Celtic star wasn't tested. The Lakers took some low percentage shots instead of working in to Chamberlain, who might havs fouled Russell out.

The Celtics shot only 36 per cent, but they received a super effort from reserve Don Nelson who scored 25 points, 15 in the second half.

The turning point came far earlier, however.

West scored nine points in the first 10½ minutes and the Lakers trailed only 26-22. He went out for a rest and when he returned Boston was ahead by 11.

Boston held its lead, 82-65, in the third stanza thanks to the work of Nelson and Larry Sieg-

OUT OF 1ST-PLACE TIE

Boyer Bomb Jolts Dodgers

By FRED CLAIRE
Staff Writer

ATLANTA — "I'll tell you what wins games," said Atlanta's Clete Boyer. "It's pitching and defense."

The Dodgers might care to argue the point.

It was Boyer's ninth-inning home run which defeated the Dodgers 6-5 Saturday afternoon.

The loss was the toughest one for the Dodgers this season and dropped them out of a tie for first place. But they tried their best to take it in stride. "Maybe that makes up for some of the games we were fortunate to win," said manager Walt Alston.

The Dodgers appeared to have this one locked up. They led 5-4 entering the ninth inning, and relief ace Jim Brewer had his screwball working to perfection.

Brewer entered the game in the bottom of the seventh after the Dodgers had snapped a 4-all tie in the top of the frame on Willie Davis' single.

Brewer needed only 14 pitches — all strikes — to put down the Braves in the seventh and eighth innings. He struck out four of the six batters he faced in the two innings, ending the eighth by retiring Henry Aaron on a strikeout.

It was an error which led to the Dodgers' downfall in the ninth. Orlando Cepeda hit a grounder to third baseman Bill Sudakis and he booted the ball for his sixth error of the season. Tito Francona put down a sacrifice bunt attempt but Sudakis turned it into a force play by retiring Cepeda on a throw to second base.

Boyer came to the plate and Brewer got two quick strikes with the Braves' third baseman fouling off the second ptich.

Brewer then came in with his screwball, and Boyer slammed the 0-2 pitch over the leftfield fence to set off a celebration by the Braves.

"I was trying to guess with Brewer and stay out of the double play," said Boyer. "I was guessing screwball and that's what I got. The ball was down and I didn't really hit it that hard. I guess I was supposed to hit it out of here."

Of Brewer's 26 pitches, 25 had been strikes but he found little consolation in the statistics. "I never consider a game well pitched if I lose," said the veteran lefthander.

The Dodgers tossed away a four-run lead Saturday after they had wasted a three-run advantage Friday night.

Ted Sizemore's single, Tom Haller's triple and Bill Grabarkewitz's single gave the Dodgers a 2-0 lead in the second and they doubled that in the third on home runs by Bill Russell and Andy Kosco.

The Braves tied the game on Cepeda's two-run homer in the sixth after they had scored twice in the fourth on doubles by Aaron and Cepeda and a sacrifice fly by Boyer.

The Braves' first four runs had come at the expense of Dodger starter Alan Foster, the 22-year-old righthander who has replaced Don Drysdale in the starting rotation.

The Dodgers lost an opportunity for a big inning

Troy Terrific Again, Blisters Bruins, 94-60

By JOHN DIXON
Staff Writer

USC is king of the Pacific-8. Next — the nation?

The Terrific Trojans, improving by leaps and dashes, ground out a difficult but decisive 94-60 victory over UCLA Saturday on the Westwood speedway.

The unbeaten Trojans were favored, but they didn't look like favorites at the halfway pole.

After nine events UCLA was in front 41-36. But USC swept the half-mile and discus, and surrendered only third-plaece points in the 100, 220-two-mile and intermediate hurdles in computing a 58-18 advantage in the final nine events.

UCLA will be tougher in title meets — and so will USC.

To win, the Trojans had to handcuff UCLA high-pointer Wayne Collett.

They almost shut him out.

Give Olympian Lennox Miller and muscle-injured Fred Kuller the credit.

Prodded by a 9.8 mile per hour wind, Miller won the 100 in 9.3, Kuller was second in 9.4, Collett fourth in an estimated 9.6.

Miller fought off Kuller in the 220 as both were credited with 20.7, and Collett picked up a point with third at 20.8.

Kuller and Miller were bellwethers in USC's victory in the 440-yard relay in 39.6, second fastest time of the year.

UCLA, anchored by Collett, finished only a yard and tenth of a second behind.

USC tried to give it away on a fumble-finger baton exchange between leadoff Rich Coulter and

Kuller, but UCLA gave it back — with some change — when Collett ran away from John Johnson.

When it comes to making a pass, the Trojans and Bruins are no Errol Flynns.

Len Van Hofwegen, the blazing Bruin from Cerritos, established a meet record of 45.9 in the 440, and brought UCLA victory in the mile relay with a 45.8 leg. Collett also ran a 45.8, and Andy Young, from Jordan High, was clocked at 47.0, after running second in the 440 in 47.3.

Trojan Carl Trentadue lowered the meet record in the 880 to 1:48.3. He had to set a record to win, because teammates Rick Joyce and Howard Becker dashed home in second and third places in

AVAILABLE . . . New Cord

WORLD OF WHEELS

By ART STEPHAN
Auto Editor

A unique new set of wheels has come to Long Beach's auto row—the 1969 Cord Royale 8-10—a modern version of the famous Cord front-wheel drive car that was motordom's masterpiece more than 30 years ago.

Jim Blum, sales manager of Browning Oldsmobile, 1221 Long Beach Blvd., where the Royale will be sold, explained the background of the sporty car.

In the early thirties, Blum recounted, Cord Automobile company gave the world a new car, in advance of its time. With a unique design, it was fitted with many new features.

The Cord of 30 years ago was fitted with an automatic transmission, front-wheel drive, hidden headlights and a high-powered engine.

It was listed as the fastest car of its day and many production models were even supercharged. It was the car of the era, but the depression marked its demise.

IN 1968, GORDON BEHRIG who designed the original Cord, was consulted by a company called S.A.M.C.O. and asked what he would do if he was to build the 8-10 again. He remarked build it four-fifths of scale and lower, put a high-power engine in it and all modern conveniences.

SAMCO listened and went into production just a year ago to produce the 1969 Cord Royale that now stands in the Browning showroom. The new Cord has all the fine features of the old with the exception of the front-wheel drive. And, Jim assured me, it is still one of the fastest cars on the road today. Powered by a Chrysler 440 engine of 375 hp or a Ford 302 of 210 hp the car really flies.

AUTOMATIC TRANSMISSION, power steering, electric windows, bucket seats, AM-FM radio, aeroplane-type instrument panel, triple mirrors, air conditioner, tinted glass, two-speed wiper and washer, twin spotlights and luggage rack are all standard equipment.

With a fibreglass body, the interior is upholstered in the finest grained Royal Naugahyde. Seats and door panels are all padded and pleated and padded dashboard and sunshades add to the elegance.

Truly the 1969 Cord deserves accord.

Angels Answer Rig's Wish, Turn Back Kansas City, 3-2

By GOORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

"You know what I'd like?" Bill Rigney, the Angels' manager, was asking before Saturday night's game at Anaheim Stadium. "A little base hit with a man on base, that's what."

The manager's wish was understandable. He had watched the Halos squander Andy Messersmith's fine pitching job the night before by muffing one opportunity after another.

And for sx innings Saturday Rig sat back and pulled out what hair he has left.

The Angels managed at least a base runner every inning three times getting as far as second, but that big base hit just wasn't there.

But in the seventh Jay Johnstone, who laced out three hits for the evening, lined one to right that scored Vic Davalillo with the tie-breaking tally and sent the Angels on their way to a 3-2 nod over Kansas City.

Jim McGlothlin looked like he might suffer the same non-support Messersmith went through for seven innings.

But an unearned run in the sixth, Johnstone's run-scoring single in the seventh and then Bobby Knoop's first home run of the year, a towering shot over the centerfield fence in the eighth, gained the win for McGlothlin who's now 2-2.

Knoop's blast turned out to be the winning margin since the Royals cut loose against reliever Hoyt Wilhelm in the ninth, getting three singles and a run.

The Angels have been without the clutch hit most of the season. It was missing altogether Friday when the Angels blew a double bill to the Royals.

They missed five more chances in a row the first five rounds Saturday, pinch hitter Bill Voss finally driving in a run. Jim Fregosi rolled one into right to move Vic along to third. And then Johnstone got his popper into right to snap the tie and help the Angels snap their three-game losing streak.

"I had a little trouble getting my fast ball over in spots," explained McGlothlin who's becoming something of a "stopper" for the Angels. "My curve ball was the best pitch. That's the one they were hitting into the ground. I got one up too high to Kirkpatrick (Mac's roommate for five seasons with the Angels) and he hit it real good."

The Angels collected 10 hits off Mike Hedlund and Dave Wickersham who came on in the eighth. Wickersham took the loss. He gave up two of the Angels' runs, snapping a string of 15-plus scoreless innings by the Kansas City bullpen.

Rick Reichardt collected two of the Angels' safeties, moving into the club lead in batting with a .348 mark (23 for 66).

Noting Rick's flock of singles Rigney said afterward he's toying with the idea of batting the big guy in the leadoff spot — ala Willie Mays and the Giants.

ANGEL ANGELS: Clyde Wright (0-0) makes his first start of the season today, facing the Royals' Roger Nelson (1-2), plucked out of the Baltimore organization in the expansion draft . . . Wright won 10 6 last year with two complete games . . . today is Bat Day. All youngsters 12 and under accompanied by a paying adult selecting from Jim Fregosi, Vic Davalillo, Bobby Knoop, Rick Reichardt and Tom Satriano model Little League bats . . . The Halos are idle Monday, then await their first run-in with the Eastern Division Tuesday evening when the New York Yankees appear for the first of a two-game set. Boston is at the Big A for the weekend and then Ted Williams' Washington Senators follow the Red Sox for three games.

The injury hex continues to plague Bob Rodgers, the former Angel catcher. Trying a comeback at the Angel's Hawaii farm club, Rodgers suffered a broken finger that'll be in a cast for three weeks.

TV Gambling for Winning 'Wild Card'

One of the most successful features of ABC's college football TV schedule last fall was its "wild card" game.

The "wild card," inaugurated last year, gives the network the option to choose one extra game for showing anytime during the season as long as it also telecasts the game or games already scheduled for the same date.

It was obvious by mid-season last year that ABC was hopefully pointing for the USC-Notre Dame finale in the Coliseum as its "wild card."

And it proved to be an overwhelming success. It drew the largest viewing audience in the history of television for any regular-season game, college or pro.

USC, trying to close out an unbeaten season, jumped off to a quick 7-0 lead in the first minute on an interception, but fell behind at halftime, 21-7, before O.J. Simpson rallied them to a 21-21 tie in a spectacular affair.

The ABC network has the option for another "wild card" again for the '69 season . . . and already he most likely game to be picked is the USC-Notre Dame struggle Oct. 18 at South Bend.

This would set up a doubleheader program capped by the UCLA-California game later in the day from the Coliseum which is set for full network coverage.

BECAUSE OF ABC'S TIGHT SCHEDULING in November, there aren't too many good possibilities for a late-season "wild card" game. That's why the Trojan-Irish encounter looms so big at this time, even though it does come in mid-season.

Naturally, both teams would have to get through their first four starts in reasonably good shape to set up their game as the "wild card" choice.

Whether the Irish can make it up to the game without getting burned at least once is the big question. Including the USC fray, Notre Dame's three toughest games come in the first half of the season . . . and Ara Parseghian, confronted with the biggest rebuilding job in six years at South Bend, would approach the '69 campaign with more confidence if they were in the second half.

The Irish defensive unit, which had to be reconstructed a year ago and developed into a fine unit by the end of the season, is back almost intact and will have to carry most of the load in the early games until the offense gains experience.

Only two starters — both linemen — and Joe Theismann, the skinny sophomore quarterback who took over for the injured Terry Hanratty late last season are back from the great offensive unit which averaged 90 plays a game, 508.4 yards per start and produced 51 touchdowns for a scoring average of 37.6 points in 10 starts.

AFTER OPENING AGAINST NORTHWESTERN Notre Dame's hopes for a big season will be on the line in back-to-back games the next two weeks against Purdue and Michigan State, both of whom are among the leading candidates for the Big Ten's Rose Bowl bid. The Irish meet Army the week before hosting the Trojans.

Even though the Trojans also lost eight offensive starters from their explosive '68 club, they have all the ingredients to reach the Notre Dame game undefeated and in a challenging position for the national crown.

Like Notre Dame, Troy will start with a proven defense which numbers 18 of the top 22 men from last year's unit, including nine starters. It should keep the Trojans respectable in the early games until the offense begins to jell.

Offensively, USC will have the highly touted sophomore, Jimmy Jones, at quarterback; the sensational JC transfer, Clarence Davis, who could be another Simpson; fine receivers Bob Chandler and Sam Dickerson, plus important experience in the interior line.

The Trojans meet Nebraska, Northwestern, Oregon State and Stanford before the Irish tilt . . . and only Stanford with its great passer, Jim Plunkett, appears dangerous.

UNLESS THEY ARE PICKED for the "wild card" game, USC and Notre Dame will appear only once on TV this fall — Notre Dame meeting Georgia Tech in a night game (6:30 PST) on the full network Nov. 15, and USC battling UCLA in the second half of a twin bill on Nov. 22 starting at 3 p.m., which puts the game in prime time in the East.

Likewise, the only two teams to finish the 1969 season with perfect records — Ohio State (10-0) and Penn State (11-0) — also are slated for only one appearance each.

The "loaded" Buckeyes, who were No. 1 last season with a sophomore-studded club, will be the pre-season favorites for the national title, yet they are scheduled only to appear in one of five regional games on Nov. 1. Fortunately, the game with Northwestern will be shown in the West.

THE 1969 COLLEGE TELEVISION PROGRAM is marked by some rather unusual scheduling.

For one thing, the ABC network is concentrating heavily on Southwest teams in its 37-game slate — 11 national telecasts and 26 regional contests.

Of this number, 10 games and the possibility of an 11th will involve teams from the Southwest Conference or from Texas. Four will be among the 11 games to be telecast over the full network starting with the inaugural affair on Sept. 13 between Southern Methodist and Air Force in Dallas' Cotton Bowl. It will be a night affair starting at 6:30 p.m. (PDT).

Other full-network games include the Texas-Oklahoma battle, the Thanksgiving Day clash between Texas Tech and Arkansas, and the final game of the '69 regular-season schedule between Texas and Arkansas on Dec. 6.

Regional affairs will include Texas vs. California, Texas A&M vs. Nebraska, Texas Tech vs. Southern Methodist, Texas A&M vs. Arkansas, Houston vs. Miami, and West Texas State vs. New Mexico State.

'NEVER BEEN ABLE TO BEAT THESE GUYS'

Wise Stifles Slumping Cards

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Even though the St. Louis Cardinals are slumping, beating the defending National League champions is still a thrill for Rick Wise.

"I'd never been able to beat these guys," Wise said Saturday after holding the Cardinals to five hits as Philadelphia topped them 4-1.

The 23-year-old Philadelphia pitcher broke into the big leagues five years ago but success has not been quick in coming his way.

"I've matured more as a pticher nore," the slim righthander said quietly. I'm r3ady to have a number of great years."

In 1967, Wise had his best year with an 11-11 record but was not consistent last season and dropped to 9-15.

"It's taken a lot of work and concentration," he said, "I worked on developing a slider and a change up in the Instructional League this winter and the two extra pitches have been the difference between night and day."

Wise gave the Cards four scattered singles before allowing a run-scoring double by Joe Torre in the eighth and that run was set up when Larry Hisle and Johnny Briggs collided in the outfield and dropped Tim McCarver's fly ball. Wise's ERA is now a team low of 1.14.

The slumping Cards, many of whom were ordered to extra batting practice immediately after the game, have lost four of five games to the Phils this season.

when they settled for one run in the seventh. Grabarkewitz walked to start the inning and went to third on a single by pinch - hitter Ron Fairly. Davis singled to center to score the tie-breaking run and then Russell put down a sacrifice to move Fairly to third and Davis to second. The Braves gave Wes Parker an intentional walk to load the bases with one out but Cecil Upshaw worked himself out of trouble by retiring Kosco and Sudakis. Upshaw, who has six saves as the big man in the Braves' bullpen, evened his record at

DODGER OF DAY

Rookie outfielder BILL RUSSELL, who hit his second home run and made a diving catch in the fourth inning as the Dodgers lost to the Braves, 6-5.

DODGER NOTES: The Braves' amazing Henry Aaron had three consecutive hits Saturday, including doubles in the first and fourth innings. Aaron, 35, has 497 career doubles and is about to move into an elite statistical class when he reaches 500 doubles. Only two players in history — Babe Ruth and Ted Williams —passed the 500-mark in both doubles and homers. Aaron slugged his 514th career homer, and fourth of the season, against the Dodgers' Claude Osteen Friday night. . .Aaron has played in all 24 Atlanta games this season and is batting .398 (33-for-83). He leads the Braves in hits, doubles (13) and walks (19) and is close to the club lead in homers (4), runs batted in (14) and stolen bases (3) Aaron says he's not been thinking of retiring until he rolls up 3,000 career hits. . .The Dodgers and Braves wind up their three-game series today with Bill Singer (4-1) facing Milt Pappas. . .Quoting Braves' vice president Paul Richards: "If we had two players the Dodgers have we'd win the pennant for sure. I mean Willie Davis and Jim Brewer. Up until Bover's homer, Brewer's relief job was the best I've ever seen. That screwball he has is amazing". . . The Dodgers have hit two homers in each of their last three games for a seasonal total of 18. They hit 67 last season, their lowest total since 1946. . .The Dodgers hit only two homers against the Braves all of last season, both at Dodger Stadium. They now have five homers against the Braves with Andy Kosco hitting two. . .Atlanta manager Lum Harris admits his biggest worry is the bullpen and Richards is searching for relief help.

Ollie's Slam Caps 9-Run Padre Rally

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Ollie Brown highlighted a nine-run explosion in the first inning Saturday with the first grand slam of his career to lead San Diego to a 13-5 victory over Cincinnati.

Joe Niekro, with an eighth-inning assist from Tommy Sisk, picked up his first victory of the year as the Padres handed the Reds their eighth loss in the last nine games. Jim Maloney's no-hitter on Wednesday night has been the Reds' only win in the last week.

The Padres sent 13 batters to the plate as they clobbered Tony Cloninger, who failed to retire a batter, Jim Merritt and John Noriega, for nine runs during the first-inning scoring spree.

Killebrew Spoils Gutteridge's Debut

MINNEAPOLIS-ST. PAUL (UPI) — Harmon Killebrew's two-run homer, the 402nd of his career, gave Minnesota a 3-1 victory over Chicago Saturday and spoiled Don Gutteridge's debut as White Sox manager.

The victory was Minnesota's seventh in a row and its 15th win in its last 18 games.

The defeat was Chicago's fifth successive loss and its first under Gutteridge, who was named Friday to replace the retired Al Lopez. Lopez quit for health reasons.

Killebrew's blast in the fourth came off Gary Peters, now 1-4. Killebrew had hits his 400th career homer off Peters last Sunday in a 4-3 Minnesota victory at Chicago.

A War Isn't for Running

"I was really lucky. I hoped nothing would happen that would prevent me from running again. I knew I would come back. Everybody comes back . . . one way or the other." — Ed Keith.

For a moment, the Cal State Long Beach athletic field becomes a piece of Asian real estate where Ed Keith spent a lifetime one day.

"A North Vietnamese unit pinned us down in the open," he says, reconstructing the terrain with a soldier's eye. "They were in a coconut grove 100 meters away—about where those bushes are along the baseball field."

The din of the bulldozers expanding the lower campus is the artillery that kept the Reds too off-balance to overrun Keith's outfit. The planes swooping into Long Beach Airport are the air support that followed the rain and bailed them out after a day-and-a-half.

"Out of a company of 120 men, only 33 of us came out unscratched," Keith says. "The rest were all dead or wounded."

The incident scarcely relates to Keith's present circumstances. Then he was a footslogging demolitions specialist attached to infantry search-and-destroy units. Now a world removed, he's pursuing a history degree and running distance races for the 49er track team.

"If we had 200 more like him," says coach Jack Rose, treading lightly on Ed's readjustment, "the war would be over there and we'd have a heck of a track team here."

KEITH SUGGESTS wryly that "jumping across rice paddies is good training for the steeplechase," an event he has just started to run. But at 25 he has a life of serious purpose planned. Already holding a three-year army hitch, he will seek a Marine Corps commission when he graduates next year.

"I plan on teaching when I retire," he says, "but first I want to do my little part to do away with some of the old ideas in the service. It takes intelligence to survive in the field, not just a bunch of blind idiots. You're getting a better educated soldier now, and you're going to have to explain things to him. No more of this blind faith."

Keith has studied war from afar and from a foxhole.

"To be honest with you, I didn't go over with a feeling that this war was for a good purpose. But after I had been there a while and had spent most of my time in the field, I could see that, basically, it's a very pretty country and the people are worth fighting for . . . especially when you see the kids."

Keith does not expect his views to be popular.

"It's my own little active rebellion against my own generation that I don't agree with," he says.

His job was to blow out trees for helicopters or blow up enemy caves and tunnels. South Vietnamese interpreters would try to persuade anybody inside to come out before Ed went to work.

"If there were civilians in there, we wouldn't blow it up," he says emphatically. "The army doesn't operate that way . . . regardless of what you've heard."

Ed has a proposal for the superliberal Students for a Democratic Society.

"I would like for some of the SDS to spend one night in a little helpless village out in the boondocks without any weapons, without any form of protection, and let 'em watch some Viet Cong or North Vietnamese come into the village.

"They could watch them massacre and disembowel the village chieftan and his entire family, or line up about 20 kids and shoot all the kids in the legs—to get the popular support of the village.

"One night, and I imagine the SDS and some of these idealistic people would realize it's gonna take more than two fingers stuck up in the air to hold the peace."

ALTHOUGH HE RETURNED from Vietnam with higher ideals than when he left, Keith avows that the life of the typical foot soldier remains, as in all wars, "miserable."

"There is no glory in it. You realize how great life is here and how much you really take for granted . . . such small things as flush toilets, electric lights, nice paved streets, beds . . ."

Ed once went 36 days wearing the same underwear and socks and living on cold C-rations. Some things begin to seem very precious . . . a shave, a shower. A girl.

"I'm not kiddin' ya, we went wild over a Spiegel's catalog one time. Playboy magazines are gold."

The days are walking and searching, walking and searching. The nights are a hole in the ground.

"You sleep beside it," Keith says, "or, if you expect something, you sleep in it. If it's full of water . . . well, water doesn't hurt as bad as bullets."

Morale is lowest, Keith says, "when there isn't anything to do. You have time to think about your problems and you start feeling sorry for yourself. You really feel like you're on the farthest corner of the earth."

EVENTUALLY, BEING wounded, to some, is a welcome ticket home.

"But I never got to where I felt that way," Ed says. "Some of my friends got wounded. It's kind of painful for a projectile to enter your body."

There are better ways to survive.

"You've gotta go there with a sense of humor and the attitude that you're coming back. Just learn to laugh about it . . . like wet feet. Your feet are wet all the time.

"I'm 5-6½, and every time we had to cross a river I'd laugh about it, 'cause it'd be up to my neck and only up to the other guys' waists."

Finally, the effect of a letter from home can't be overstated, Ed says.

"Once we were in an obscure place that wasn't even on the army maps. I got letters that were seven days postdated. A letter means quite a lot to a soldier. It means that people back home are thinking about him, that he hasn't been forgotten. A letter from home almost puts home in his grasp."

VICTORY IS IN HAND

UCLA's John Johnson (right) leads USC's Ron Pharris (left) by two yards in final baton exchange of 440-yard relay Saturday, but lead disintegrated split-second later. Gibson Hurt, No CIF Berth

Disappointments seemed to overshadow the accomplishments of high school athletes during Saturday's Moore League track finals at Millikan.

Gusty winds aided all dashes and hurdle times and in turn made it rough on distance men who had to worry about battling the breezes on the home stretch.

A damper was also put on the meet when the league's top sprinter, Steve Gibson, pulled up hobbling after taking a handoff on the last leg of the 440 relay for Lakewood.

Gibson had been bothered in recent weeks with a muscle strain, but was apparently just rounding into top shape before his misfortune struck again Saturday.

With best times of 9.6 and 21.9 this season in the sprints, Gibson was considered a good bet reach the CIF finals.

"I don't see how he can make it now," a dejected Bill Meyer, his coach, said afterwards. It would take a special ruling by league coaches or another athlete relinquishing his place for Gibson to advance. The extent of his injury, however, won't be known until later this week.

WILSON'S Bob Barmeyer, and Millikan's Bob Langston were double winners in the varsity division; Glenn Bernard won a slow 4:23.2 mile; Jim Chaffin an all-alone two-mile, and Robert Stockton zipped 18.6 in a wind aided 180 low hurdles.

Athlete making the most improvement had to be Lakewood half-miler Steve Rynerson who nearly caught Langston at the wire.

Rynerson closed fast in the final 100 yards and passed Poly's Pierre Robinson in the stretch to take second at 1:55.4, only a tenth back of Langston who turned in his season best.

Poly won the unofficial scoring title in the varsity division with 71 points.

Only meet record to fall in the three divisions was a 58-8½ effort by Lakewood Cee shotputter Alan Martin. First three men in each event advance to the CIF prelims Saturday at Millikan.

CAPTURE IMPORTANT CCAA MEET, 80-69

Bulldogs' Bite Too Much for 49ers

By JIM McCormack
Staff Writer

Cal State Long Beach was one event into a track meet it was supposed to lose by 31 points Saturday when assistant coach Chris Johnson pointed out, "We haven't lost a 440 relay on our track."

Perhaps Johnson was afraid bright spots were going to be difficult to find in the California Collegiate Athletic Assn. faceoff with Fresno State and Cal State L.A.

The 49ers never did find the biggest bright spot, a victory, but they put together enough best efforts to take a great deal of the sting out of an 80-69 loss to the Bulldogs. CSLA was a distant third with 28 points.

"This was a great track meet for us," 49er coach Jack Rose said. "Our kids really tried to win this one. We figure we made up nearly 20 points on Fresno."

In the final analysis, Long Beach was beaten because it failed to score in the javelin and long jump.

While the 49ers were piling up a big "0" in those competitions, Fresno was collecting 10 points in the javelin and four in the long jump.

"It's too bad we couldn't have scored in those events," Rose admitted. "They really hurt us."

The 49ers were helped by a misfortune to Bulldog sprinter John Edmondson, who pulled up lame while anchoring the 440 relay and was scratched from three events.

Betting season or lifetime bests from several athletes, the 49ers won six events and led throughout the meet until the pole vault, triple jump and long jump scores were added.

Fresno State pole vaulter Erkki Mustakari was thwarted in his chase for glory.

Mustakari, a junior from Finland who is priming to become the first person to vault 18 feet, couldn't clear 16-6 Saturday.

"I feel that it is only a matter of time until I make a great vault," Mustakari said after setting a field record at 16 feet. "I was bothered by the cross wind. Also, the event was long, and I really didn't have much competition."

Long Beach got comethrough performances from Lenny Jay in winning the mile in 4:13.2 and finishing second in the two-mile (9:17.6), from Al Carlson in taking the 440 in 48.0, from Herm Clayborn in the shotput (51-8½), from Tom Kirkwold in the discus (176-8) and from the two relay teams.

'Gades Storm to Metro Track Title

Henry Shipes won two individual events and anchored the mile relay team to victory Saturday night while spearheading Bakersfield College to its fifth Metropolitan Conference track championship in six years.

It was Shipes' 48.5 anchor on the mile relay that allowed the Renegades to hold off Cerritos College, the host, and Pasadena.

The Renegades had 115½ points, Cerritos 104, Pasadena 80 and Long Beach City College 46½.

"On paper," Bakersfield coach Bob Covey explained, "we looked like we were in trouble. But we haven't lost a mile relay this year. When you have people like Shipes around, you're pretty tough to beat."

Shipes also ran in the Renegade 440 relay team, which finished second, and won both hurdles races, although he was lucky in one.

Long Beach City College's Gary Kidder was leading the 120 highs over the last hurdle but lost his balance and fell, allowing Shipes to win.

Kidder took his header only five yards from the finish and he went unplaced although he appeared to have skidded across the finish line. The race will be reviewed on film.

Shipes won the 440-yard intermediates after a long battle with LBCC's Allan Tobin, who led for the first 330 yards before losing his stride.

HUBBELL PUTS SHOT 62¾

15-Mile Wind Helps Carlos Run Fast Ever 100--9.0

Combined News Services

Controversial Olympian John Carlos ran the fastest 100 yards in history Saturday, clocking nine seconds flat, but the effort won't ever be recorded as a world mark because he had an excessive aiding wind behind his back.

Even so, no one ever has run 100 yards that fast.

Carlos, who incurred the wrath of many Americans for raising a clenched fist during victory ceremonies of the 200 meter dash in last year's Olympics, predicted earlier this week that he would one day clock 8.8 or 8.9 for the 100.

He bolted out of the blocks ahead of a crack field and led all the way, winning easily over Ronnie Ray Smith, Billy Gaines and fellow Olympian Charlie Greene. All three were clocked in 9.3.

The wind was measured at 15.6 miles per hour, well over the allowable 4.4.

There were a number of other fine performances with Marion Anderson of San Jose State winning the long jump with a leap of 26-5½; Sam Caruthers, also of San Jose State, beating Olympian Chris Papanicolaou in the pole vault with a leap of 16-6, and Jeff Vanderstock, another Olympian and former world record holder, taking the 440 yard intermediate hurdles in 52.4.

IN PACIFIC-8 dual meets, Washington State crushed Wadhington, 115-39; Oregon State dominated the sprints to defeat Oregon, 91-63 and windup an unbeaten dual meet season; and Stanford upset California, 87-67.

Washington shotputter John Hubbell, who attended Poly High, won the shotput in his all-time best of 62-2¾.

49er QB McKinney on Target

Quarterback Shawn McKinney came within a dropped pass of having a perfect afternoon Saturday in a Cal State Long Beach intra-squad game on the campus field.

McKinney, a transfer from the University of Washington, completed 12 of 13 passes for 233 yards and all three offense touchdowns to stand out in the hour-long scrimmage.

McKinney threw TD passes of 77 yards to Keith Huber, 16 yards to John Turner and 13 yards to Al Kimball. Turner was the afternoon's leading receiver with five receptions for 71 yards. Huber caught two tosses for 100 yards.

"I am pleased with our progress," head coach Jim Stangel and said after the workout. "When you realize that everyone is learning something new, you can see a marked improvement."

With reserve quarterbacks Ron Olson and Tom Nordee adding five completions in 10 attempts, the 49er offense gained 269 yards passing. Adding 136 yards rushing, gave the offense 405 total yards.

"Our defense is improving," defensive coach Ernie Johnson said after the workout. "I thought John Kahler, Steve Landis, Bob Claycamp and Bruce Davis, our defensive ends, did a good job."

Landis intercepted a Nordee pass and ran 27 yards for the only defensive score

Specialty Restaurants Corp. Plans Fine Chicago Facility

Announcement of its first out-of-state restaurant was made last week by Long Beach-based Specialty Restaurants Corporation, developers and operators of "atmosphere" restaurants throughout California.

Specialty, the facilities of which include the Reef Restaurant in Long Beach Harbor, will begin operation of the Lake Point Tower Club in Chicago approximately June 15. That facility, located atop the 70-story Lake Point Tower apartment building in downtown Chicago, will command a sweeping three-state view from its lake-front vantage point.

The building, the world's tallest apartment structure, contains more than 850 apartment units.

THE restaurant, which will open as a private club for residents and Chicago executives, will be followed by a ground level public restaurant to be known as Bill & Charley's.

"Our company's expansion program includes several restaurant developments throughout the United States and we are particularly excited about starting our national program at the Chicago site," said David Tallichet, Specialty's president.

Other Long Beach area operations of the company include the Ports O' Call, Yankee Whaler and Rum Runner Restaurants in the company's Ports O' Call Village at San Pedro.

Rancho Capistrano Sites Selling Swiftly

Southern Californians have turned out by the thousands to visit Rancho Capistrano, a 300-acre development of 2½ to 3-acre rancho sites within the Cleveland National Forest.

Of 133 sites available, 75 sold in the first 2½ weeks.

According to Dick Beamish and Ron Diggins of Rancho Capistrano, this response indicates a need for land in the Southern California coastal area. Southern California land in larger parcels is becoming increasingly scarce.

Rancho Capistrano is the last available land in the Forest area, and is an unequalled opportunity to invest in the South Coast area of California.

RANCHO CAPISTRANO'S unique location further insures this land will retain its exclusive value in years to come.

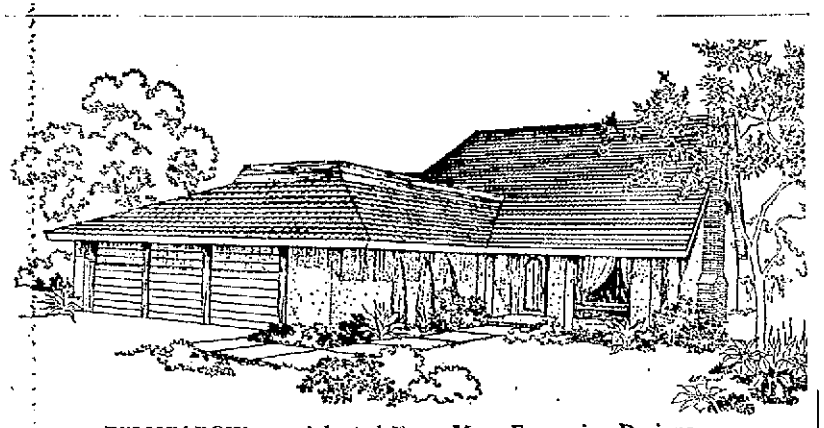

A 300-acre island of incompatable beauty, completely surrounded by the sanctuary of the Cleveland National Forest, Rancho Capistrano remains unspoiled and untouched by commercialism and industry.

Early California rancho living and modern recreational facilities have been imaginatively combined in the development of Rancho Capistrano, and the rolling hills, shaded vales, and stately Spanish oaks remain as they have for hundreds of years.

Go east on Hwy. 74 for 23 miles from Mission San Juan Capistrano and follow the signs. Rancho Capistrano is open every day from 9 to 5.

Belmeadow Homes Boast Extra-Large Master Suites

Belmeadow, builder William Lyon's newest Huntington Beach community, introduces many of the important features of his more expensive homes adapted to the activities and budgets of young families, states Jack Sindorf, area sales manager for the national building firm.

"The extra-large master suites in Belmeadow homes, for example, are as big as most found in luxury homes priced up to $45,000," Sindorf said.

Each bedroom suite has its own private dressing room and bath plus large sliding door wardrobes.

Plans offer from two to four bedrooms, one with three bedrooms and upstairs "bonus room" which can convert the home to five bedrooms.

* * * *

PRICES begin at $24,990 with no down payment to veterans and choice of VA, FHA and conventional terms.

The exclusive "Terrace Kitchen" is another quality feature which has been adapted from Lyon's luxury homes.

This all-glass family activity center is surrounded by sliding walls of glass framed in gold anodized aluminum with a pass-thru window to patio serving counter.

Included are built-in General Electric range, double ovens, dishwasher and disposal.

THE unusual contemporary homes are characterized by a feeling of spaciousness created by such dramatic features as high, sloping ceilings and an abundance of glass in every room.

The model home complex is located at 6532 Cory Drive in Huntington Beach and may be reached by taking the San Diego Freeway to the Golden West exit, then south to Slater Street and west to Edwards and the sales complex.

The Forum Follies

There was a time when I thought that the loudest, most uneducated sports fans in the world were baseball fanatics. You know — the ones who took their wives out upon a Sunday afternoon and then proceeded to tell the little lady all the facets of the game. It was a big deal in the straw-hat days.

Such comments as:

"That pitcher's no good. He's lost two in a row." (The expert forgot to remember that the hurler previously had notched 10 triumphs in succession.)

"You're supposed to put your glove under the ball — that infielder doesn't know how to play his position." (The jerk who's making all the noise didn't even make his junior varsity team in high school. One reason, among others, was that every ball dribbled at him in the infield went right through his legs. Yet with a couple of cups of beer, the failure suddenly turned into an expert.)

Anyway, the baseball empire is declining every day. Even the fans at Laker basketball playoff games are uninformed.

Take one of the playoff games, for example. I'm sitting in the stands with a turtle-neck behind me blowing smoke from his five-cent cigar (honest, Clyde, I didn't realize that they imported that type rope anymore, but the stench proves it's true).

Humphrey Hobart has all the answers. That's why he is a requisition clerk in a discount house.

Says Humphrey, the man in the turtle neck: "This coach, Breed A Cough (he was referring to Bill van Breda Kolff), doesn't know from nothing. If I was the coach (which he'll never be), I'd put Wilt Chamberlain at guard and let the big man go the length of the floor and dunk one. How come this Breed A Cough doesn't know about that?"

Humphrey, the fan, is very simple and so is the reason why Wilt doesn't go the length of the floor every time he grabs a rebound. The big seven-footer must pace himself, and on the fast break and full-court dribble The Stilt just couldn't go the whole route.

ANYWAY, BACK TO fans' reactions — and to one who has been conditioned only to press box pearls of wisdom, they indeed are funny.

The whole Forum shook Thursday night when an apparent earthquake struck as Jerry West flipped in a go-ahead basket in the second half. It was no earthquake. It simply was a rhinoceros stomping in the aisles. He kept shouting, "Go, babies, go. Man, we're with you." So was I, but do I have to make a buffoon of myself to get across the point? I hope not.

And the unbay with the cigar kept heaping blasphemies upon West. "You're a bum, Jerry," screeched the fanatic. "Get lost." Some minutes later, West began hitting from every angle. Then the guy smoking his Castro rope changed his tune.

"That's the way, Jerry," he droned. "Kid, you're the greatest."

Even the most disdainful look from this seat occupant didn't deter the blabbermouth. "Ain't you a Jerry West fan?" he inquired. "That's my boy. Why don't you clap when he hits one?"

We turned away, praying that we'd have no further contact.

THE FIREWORKS were just beginning. A long-haired chap with dark glasses (and you have to be different to wear dark glasses in a building) screamed like a frightened porpoise when Chamberlain muffed a seemingly easy shot.

"You are a pig, Wilt, a complete pig," yelled the freak. "I could have made that shot myself."

After Wilt dominated the boards and tucked in a dozen rebounds before the intermission, this same introvert snapped to his friend: "Buddy, what did I tell you? This Chamberlain is something else."

As an interjection, there's the other side — from a little lady with some pity within her heart: "Oh, Elgin, Elgin Baylor, don't miss another shot. I hate to see you go out this way."

SOME FELLOW two rows down was berating Mel Counts. "He is positively, absolutely, the worst," remarked the expert. "He is a clown. He couldn't even play in the ABA."

Mel must have heard this derogatory remark. Within the next 45 seconds he dunked two baskets for four points.

So, what was the reaction of the clown, two rows down? This: "Honey," the clown was saying to his lady friend, "that big guy's terrific. I told you all along he does everything right."

Then a pompous gentleman smoking a cigar (and why do all well-fed gents smoke cigars?) took exception to Johnny Egan being in the starting lineup. "Geez," coughed the cigar, "what do they want with a runt like that on their first team? I'm better than he is."

Pause for laughs.

"Oh, boy," spoke another, "this (Tom) Hawkins can't begin to handle Bill Russell."

Well, Hawkins wasn't supposed to "handle" Russell, but I guess the fan didn't know the difference.

This is a simple indication of how fickle are fans. But I would guess that they have every right. After all — $7 per seat!

Cal State Splits With Mustangs

SAN LUIS OBISPO — Bruce Wade's clutch relief pitching with two out and two on in the bottom of the seventh inning saved Cal State Long Beach from losing both ends of a doubleheader with Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo, Saturday afternoon, 6-5.

In the opener John Keisler yielded back-to-back doubles to Steve Brummer and Mike Neilsen and Mike Young blanked the 49ers for the second consecutive time, 1-0.

Wade relieved Ben Withers, who had pitched 6 1/3 innings in relief of starter Pete Espinosa, and got Dean Treaner to ground out and Mike Young to pop out to end the game.

In the top of the seventh inning the 49ers pushed across what proved to be the winning run when Ron DeLeener singled home Jim Seida from second base.

Neither of the starters, Espinosa nor Steve Gruba, lasted more than one-third of an inning.

Larry Albright broke the 49ers out of their first-game hitting slump when he singled home two runs in the opening frame.

Hill, Beard In Front

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Tough little Dave Hill shot a four-under-par 68 Saturday and tied Frank Beard for the third-round lead in the $100,000 Greater New Orleans gold tournament, each with a 54-hole total of 203.

Beard had a third-round 69. He and Hill were each 13 under par after three trips over the 7,090-yard, par-72 Lakewood Country Club course.

Hill, a slender 143-pounder, caught Beard on the final hole, rimming in a tricky, 20-foot downhill putt for his fifth birdie of the day.

"I had some juice on a 6-iron shot and put it over the flag," Hill said. "I had a tough 29-footer and it went in."

Bruin Swimmers Set Moore Marks

Wilson High set three Moore League records while qualifying five men and two relay teams during the CIF swimming preliminaries at Belmont Plaza Olympic Pool Saturday afternoon.

A crowd estimated at 2,000 saw the Bruins start fast with a pace-setting 1:42.3 effort in the 200 medley relay with the team of Steve Shaw, Mike Brousard, John McMullen and Jerry Barrus.

"The boys have been working together for four months now, and we're looking forward to a CIF championship in the event," exclaimed Wilson coach Bob Gruneisen.

Two hours later, McMullen clocked 49.8 in the 100 freestyle and Brousard 1:02.8 in the 100 breaststroke for Moore League records. The Bruin 400 freestyle relay team consisting of McMullen, Shaw, Barrus and Bret Graham also set a Moore League standard of 3:22.5 while finishing second behind Buena of Ontario at 3:21.7.

Steve Genter of Lakewood High reached the first step in his quest for a third consecutive CIF medal in the 400 freestyle as he qualified first at 3:51.7, but he was considerably shy of the CIF record of 3:45.7. Genter also qualified first in the 200 freestyle at 1:46.9, seven tenths of a second ahead of Anaheim's Steve Lashbrooke.

Poly's Bill Penn made the grade in the 100 butterfly, tying Costa Mesa's Chris Gammon for second place at 54.3. The CIF finals are slated for Belmont Plaza Friday night beginning at 7:30.

Vikes Earn Metro Tie; Cerritos Playoff Foe

By DAVE DANIEL

"I'm happy for the Vikings. They went far beyond my expectations."

Long Beach City College coach Joe Hicks was reflecting on his Vikings' 8-2 win over Bakersfield College Saturday at Blair Field. The win gave LBCC a share of the Metropolitan Conference championship with Cerritos College. Both teams finished with 15-6 marks.

The Vikings will play Cerritos Wednesday to see who advances to the Southern California playoffs, which begin May 13. A coin flip Monday will determine the site of Wednesday's game.

The defending champion Vikings sewed up half the title with a 17-hit attack, their biggest binge of the year. It is Hicks' eighth title in 16 years as LBCC coach.

Rookie Mike Davis and co-captain Ray Colin collected three hits each and Eddie Crosby, Jay Morrison, Jim Gmur and winning pitcher Ray Brown each got two.

Brown got off to a slow start, with Bakersfield hitting some hard shots until Steve Liebeck turned in the play of the day in left field in the first inning.

Liebeck made a circus catch on his knees of a line drive that appeared to be going for extra bases. He tossed back to Eddie Crosby, whose relay doubled a runner scampering back to first for a double play that bailed Brown out of a tight situation.

The title tie marked the first time in Metro annals that two teams deadlocked for the championship. In 1957, however, there was a three-way deadheat between Long Beach, East L.A. and San Diego.

Falcons Nip Lancers for Metro Tie

Bob Apodaca and Cliff Vaudreuil came on in relief to choke off a ninth-inning rally as Cerritos College shaded Pasadena, 5-4, Saturday to finish in a tie for the Metropolitan Conference baseball championship.

Cerritos finished with a 15-6 record after the conference took away four wins because the Falcons used two ineligible players.

Merced Salinas was the batting hero for the winners, ripping a two-run homer in the fourth. He also singled.

fried. Siggy hit from outside and Nelson worked the backboards for baskets.

Seven consecutive misses at the foul line to start the fourth quarter helped kill the Laker rally. They continued to be ineffective at the free throw stripe, missing 17 of 47, while Boston failed only twice in 25 tries.

"We just didn't play well," said Laker coach Bill van Breda Kolff. "But I was encouraged about West. Even at 75 per cent effeciency he's better than most."

How about West at 90 per cent efficiency Monday?

The question van Breda Kolff didn't need to answer. Neither did any of the Lakers. The feeling they will win it Monday showed on their faces and in their actions.

Late Openings for All Sierra Passes

When you started reading this column today, you probably thought that it would have a BISHOP dateline and concern trout fishing in the Sierra Nevada. Well, I am not in Bishop and I am not planning to freeze my feet and hands for a few trout, if any, and because of newspaper deadlines, this column was written in sunny, warm Long Beach before the season opened.

Because of the fact that many persons call and ask for information on the mountains at this time of year, I have concerned myself mostly with fresh-water resorts and I hope to g ive some valuable advice to those persons planning early vacations over the Sierra Nevada passes.

If you have never traveled over Tioga Pass from Yosemite National Park to Leevining on the eastern slope, or vice versa, or if you have never stopped long enough to see the gorgeous scenery along Sonora Pass, you have missed a great part of our Golden State.

Tioga Pass, one of the most delightful drives in this state, can not possibly be opened until May 30. It opened on May 7 last year. Even the May 30 date is a gamble because the California Division of Highways has a tremendous job to clear the road.

And when you drive over Tioga Pass around the first week in June — if that's what you plan — be prepared to see snow piled many feet high at the sides of the road.

THE ROAD-CLEARING CREWS will tackle Tioga Pass first of all because it is the most important pass across the mountains. Naturally, the freeway passes from San Francisco to Reno have been kept open, but on those one travels so fast that he doesn't see anything. Tioga and Sonora handle most of the crowds that like to take their time, do some fishing, camp, try rock-hounding and do just about anything that one cares to do.

When the crews clear Tioga, they will divert their attention mainly to Sonora, which probably can not be opened until mid-June or later. Other routes scheduled for late June openings are California 88 over Carson Pass, California 89 in Shasta County, the Lassen Loop, California 4 over Ebbetts Pass and California 89 over Monitor Pass.

The Tioga Pass opening date is strictly problematical and tourists trying that and other passes should make local inquiry at the points of entry because spring weather can change within hours in the Sierras. Better yet, if you belong to the Automobile Club of Southern California, check with its outing bureau before leaving home.

Here is another bit of advice: Don't depend on the Kern River above and below Isabella Lake for fishing. It is too high and roily for stocking and it is entirely possible that it won't be stocked for weeks, if then, because that 20-foot-deep snowpack is going to mean months of heavy runoff.

NEW PUBLICATIONS — When Dorothy Boone Kidney's husband suggested that they move to a Maine wilderness where there were no roads, no stores, no houses and live in a one-bedroom shack that he had discovered on a fishing trip, she was aghast, and that's putting it mildly. But she loved him and she did. Now she has written "Away From It All," which tells of tame deer and wild bears in their back yard. It's an A. S. Barnes & Company publication and is delightful reading.

Another Barnes book now on the bookshelves is Jack Mohr's "Hyenas in My Bedroom," which describes an adventurous romp on safari through the Dark Continent. Jack, an American GI stationed in Ethiopia, knew nothing about big game, but my, oh my, how he learned! The result is a humorous, and at times terrifying story of his journey.

If you feel that you'd like to live off the land, or at least do so partly, by all means read "More Free-For-the-Eating Wild Foods," by Bradford Angier, who has made a study of wilderness areas for many years. He now has written what he calls a nature-study cookbook with 200 ways to pepare common wild plants for the table, no matter whether you are camping or taking them home.

OUTDOOR PERSONALS — The California Golden Bears Trap Shooting Club will be competing today at the Long Beach-Dominguez Gun Club, on Artesia Boulevard between Central and Avalon. Neal Pettygrove, who bought the old Dominguez club, says that there will be room for public shooters as well as members of the Golden Bears.

Dr. Julius Coronado, while not a member of the Southern California Tuna Club, agrees most heartily with the Tuna Club members that the father-son trips are highly profitable from the standpoint of both parent and son.

He took his boy, 11-year-old Michael Holton, to Rancho Buena Vista, Baja California Sur, recently and the boy almost beat his father in billfishing. Mike got one marlin weighing 132 pounds on 40-pound test line, just six pounds under the one his dad caught. They also caught tuna, roosterfish, dolphinfish and yellowtail. They reside at 3601 Julian Ave.

Just to let you know that 1968 wasn't the worst ocean fishing year in history, here's what the Department of Fish and Game has to say: Party boat anglers caught 5,731,201 fish last year for an average of 6.7 fish per man. Records were set in two categories — rockfish 2,102,859 and kelp and sand bass 1,317,963.

The salmon catch also was up at 127,584, as compared with 84,946 the previous year. Those figures do not embrace the hundreds of privately operated boats that made no reports of their catches.

FISHIN' FACTS

San Diego — 711 anglers on 30 boats caught 433 yellowtail, 565 barracuda, 32 calico bass, 445 bonito, 60 calico bass, 421 miscellaneous.

GROOMING THE TROJAN HORSE

Jimmy Jones, USC's sophomore quarterback prospect, discusses points with assistant football coaches Craig Fertig (center) and Willie Brown.

TROJANS LIKE JONES

Soph QB Can't Stand to Sit

By LOEL SCHRADER
Staff Writer

When you see Jimmy Jones run, you understand why he doesn't want to sit.

"I didn't come to USC to sit," says the 18-year-old freshman quarterback from Harrisburg, Pa. "I came here with the idea of starting as a sophomore."

Jones is neither brash nor cocky.

But there is an underlying self-assurance that belied his age.

FOR EXAMPLE, in the Trojans' first scrimmage of the spring, when the offense was rusty and employing only four basic plays, Jones suffered through a horrible 70 minutes.

He threw the ball 11 times, completed only three and had two intercepted.

"No, I didn't get discouraged," says Jones when asked to recall that experience. "It was about what I expected."

Jones demonstrated the following week that he expects to give senior Mike Holmgrem, who is sitting out spring practice with a knee injury, a strong fight for a starting position next fall.

He threw 17 passes and completed nine for 108 yards and one touchdown.

"Gaining confidence and getting respect from my teammates as a leader are the most important things," says Jones, who was sought by 112 schools before choosing USC.

At the same time, Jones is winning followers among the Troy coaching staff, including head coach John McKay.

While trying to keep the pressure off his young quarterback, McKay does admit that Jones has "a highly intelligent football mind."

And McKay also confesses he's returning to the "beathard-type of offense we used in 1962."

The 1962 attack featured the rollout running and passing talents of Pete Beathard, skills also possessed by Jones.

So there'll be a little bit of the past when the Trojans prepare for the future in their full-dress spring game Saturday at 3 p.m. in the Coliseum.

Fassel Hot Stand-In for Jones

Fullerton Junior College transfer Jim Fassel completed 17 of 32 passes for 344 yards and four touchdowns Saturday in a USC football scrimmage.

With Jimmy Jones held out of action because of a minor thigh injury, Fassel played most of the 70 minutes at quarterback and connected on scoring passes of 80 yards to Bruce Rollinson, 37 to Bob Chandler, 18 to Sam Dickerson and 18 to Gary Orcutt.

"I thought Fassel did a creditable job," said coach John McKay. "We held Jones out because we wanted to make sure he would be ready for next Saturday's spring game."

A fifth touchdown was scored by freshman halfback Bob Giorgetti on a 3-yard run.

NO END TO AQUEDUCT STRIKE

Allen Missing, Fine Due

Philadelphia manager Bob Skinner indicated Saturday he would take "disciplinary action" against star infielder Richie Allen, missing from the team for two days.

Allen was absent from the Phillies' lineup Friday night and Saturday for games in St. Louis against the Cardinals.

ALLEN

Allen's wife Barbara had telphoned Skinner Friday that her husband had missed plane connections. He was understood to be on his way to St. Louis Saturday.

THE HORSEMEN'S boycott at Aqueduct race track moved into its second week Saturday. No break was in sight.

The horsemen called the boycott in protest to state legislative inaction to a proposal to fund a pension plan for backstretch employes. The plan would create four new racing days and divert what ordinarily would be state revenue for those days to the pension fund.

PEARL AGNES HERNANDEZ, wife of turf announcer Joe Hernandez, died Saturday after a lingering illness at the family home in Arcadia.

The couple were to celebrate their 45th wedding anniversary soon.

In addition to her husband, the track announcer at Santa Anita without interruption since it began operation in 1935, survivors include two daughters, a son and four grandchildren.

* * * *

THE CALGARY Stampeders of the Canadian Football League have refused the Philadelphia Eagles permission to contact Jerry Williams regarding the position as coach of the NFL team.

The Stampeders' board of directors, approached late Friday, decided unanimously Saturday that Williams should abide by his four-year contract

* * * *

JOE FRAZIER, recognized as heavyweight champion in six states, continued to hold down the No. 1 contender slot in the WBA's ratings. Jimmy Ellis has not defended his WBA version of the title since he won a controversial decision from Floyd Patterson on Sept. 14, 1968.

Blues Turn to Farm Club as Last Resort in Finals

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — If the best of the Kansas City Blues are a match for the Montreal Canadiens, the lopsided finals of the Channel 2, 11 A.M.

Stanley Cup playoffs might not end this afternoon.

But who expects them to be?

It is the St. Louis Blues, not their Kansas City farm club, who found no way of controlling Montreal in 3-1, 3-1 and 4-0 defeats. Two Kansas City stars have been promoted, but how much difference can they make?

The series has been so one-sided that it has offended the sense of fitness of some hockey tories who believe the Stanley Cup climax should be a seven-game donnybrook.

A final series matching the East against the expansion West is bound to be an anticlimax for years to come, they will say.

Left winger Gary Veneruzzo and defenseman Ray Fortin, both all-stars for Kansas City in the Central Hockey League, will be in the Blues' lineup, replacing the injured Ron Schock and Bob Plager.

Ten Times Older

Although nickel was only isolated as an element 200 years ago, coins minted in Bacteria more than 21 centuries ago were similar in composition to our present-day copper-nickel coins.

Law in the News

False arrest is also a tort for which you can get money damages. The arrest may be by private persons or by police officers.

Martha worked in a store. One afternoon her supervisor told her the manager wanted her. The manager told Martha that they had investigated her department and found she had been stealing. She denied the charge.

They told her that she couldn't leave until she had signed a confession. They kept Martha for five hours threatening her and demanding that she sign. When at last she did, they let her go.

Martha sued the store for false imprisonment. The store claimed that since she was working at the store there was no false imprisonment in calling her to the office during working hours.

* * * *

NOT SO, said a California Court. They detained her not to investigate but to get Martha to confess. Her duties did not give them the right to hold her by force for that purpose. by police officers? George

What about false arrest Smith and some friends were shooting a somewhat boisterous game of pool. Police officers came in and asked George about Ed, a friend of his. They arrested Ed, then ordered George into the police car, searched him, and later turned him loose.

George sued the police officer. The court gave him damages and said that while it is a good citizen's duty to give information to police about a crime, "if a person does not talk willingly to an investigator no law permits a police officer to arrest or detain him on that ground." A policeman cannot arrest or detain a citizen who is not charged with or suspected of a crime. And any alleged inconvenience caused to the investigating authorities by this principle is far outweighed by the rights of citizens to be protected in their personal liberty.

If the defendant is himself suspected of a crime, a reasonable period of detention for investigation is permitted.

PORTS O'PROGRESS

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Marine Editor

Charles L. Vickers, who has served the Port of Long Beach for the past 45 years — the last 11 as general manager, will be honored at a retirement testimonial dinner to be held June 12 at the Long Beach Petroleum Club.

CHARLES L. VICKERS

The affair is likely to be a sell out. It is suggested those wishing to attend make reservations now through the Chamber of Commerce.

Vickers is recognized as one of the world's leading authorities on port construction and operations. Under his management the port of Long Beach has experienced the most dramatic growth in the 58-year history of the port, increasing cargo tonnage handled per year from seven million tons to nearly 20 million tons.

Irving Koppel, president of Koppel Bros., Inc., operators of the towering grain elevators in the port, is serving as chairman of the affair.

Bernard J. Caughlin, general manager of the Port of Los Angeles, has returned from Japan where he completed arrangements with the manufacturers of Datsun automobiles to use a planned multi-million dollar imported autombobile distribution and service center to be built on a portion of land now occupied by Sun Lumber Co.

The Nissan Motor Co., Ltd. is presently shipping from 2,500 to 3,000 vehicles per month into Los Angeles Harbor which have been moving across several wharves at different locations within the port. The new distribution center will consolidate the operation.

The project is scheduled for completion in late October and in full operation in November.

The Long Beach unit of the United States Power Squadron has endorsed an idea for marking the entrance to the Port of Long Beach at the Queen's Gate which could rival in uniqueness passage beneath the Golden Gate Bridge, and perhaps in time, the greeting extended by the Statue of Liberty.

The Queen's Gate, the opening in the Federal Breakwater through which ships pass as they enter the Port, is also the gateway to the largest current oil and gas producing field in North America — Long Beach's offshore East Wilmington Field.

The idea would be to erect an Olympic-style torch on either side of the breakwater. Flames fed by gas from the field would burn night and day as an unusual aid to navigation to help guide and bid welcome to mariners entering the Port of Long Beach.

City officials, while approving the concept, quickly snuffed out the idea.

"Who would pay for it?" they ask.

SME Meets Monday Night

Members of the Sales and Marketing Executives of Long Beach will hear Dr. Robert Wald, executive vice president of Fry Consultants, Inc., speak at their 6 p.m. dinner meeting Monday at the International City Club.

His topic: "Mr. Executive—A Profile for the 70's."

Landmark Homes Draw to Cerritos

According to Landmark Homes sales manager Dick Sheakley, area homeseekers from the nearby neighboring communities continue to be attracted to the new model area.

Sheakley reports most visitors are familiar with the Cerritos area and are aware of the central location and subsequent growth potential in Cerritos.

They are, therefore, not inclined to move out of the area and are finding Landmark Homes Cerritos an excellent home value.

Indulto Comes Off Pace to Win L.A. 'CAP

Stretch-running Indulto raced to his third consecutive stakes victory Saturday as he captured the 17th running of the $56,350 Los Angeles Handicap at Hollywood Park, ranked as one of the nation's top sprint races.

Indulto caught defending champion Rising Market Midway down the stretch and pulled away by a length at the finish in the blazing time of 1:20 3/5, just three-fifths of a second off the world record for seven furlongs.

Dewan closed fast to finish third and First Mate was fourth in the field of 10 starters.

Indulto was sent off a lukewarm favorite and returned $7.40, $3.80 and $2.80. Rising Market paid $4.60 and $3.40 while Dewan returned $5.40.

In his previous two races, Indulto won the Premiere Handicap on opening day at Hollywood Park and the Sierra Madre Handicap at Santa Anita. The 6-year-old gelding was a top juvenile and 3-year-old but last year failed to win a race although he placed in several stakes. He developed a reputation as a rogue but settled down after being brought West last summer to return to his earlier form in New York.

At the start of the race, Key Rulla went out in front and set a swift pace but Rising Market stayed locked on the leader coming down the chute into the main track. They were followed by Don B. and Broad Shadows.

Indulto was seventh in the early stages of the race but moved forward steadily under the handling of Don Pierce.

As the field headed into the turn, Indulto began his long drive while Rising Market shot to the front. But once they straightened out in the stretch the winner wore down rising Market with every stride and drew even at the 16th pole before pulling away.

The victory was worth $33,850 to Indulto's owner, Mrs. Edward Lasker, and increased the gelding's earnings for the year to nearly $75,000.

Indulto carried 122 pounds to 124 for Rising Market.

The Los Angeles Handicap ranks with the San Carlos at Santa Anita and the Carter Handicap at New York as legs on the spring triple crown. Rising Market won the first leg, the San Carlos, in January.

ONE SKIPPER DIES

Slow But Safe Ensenada Race

By DONNELL CULPEPPER
Staff Writer

The 2nnd annual Newport Harbor-to-Ensenada International Yacht Race, which started Thursday noon and finished Friday, was one of the slowest due to lack of proper winds, but it was one of the safest.

Only one incident marred the race and that was a real tragedy to the Voyagers Yacht Club of Newport Beach. Ross Procter, owner of the boat Elena, suffered a heart attack while en route and died before he could be brought back to land.

The fastest time was made by a catamaran, Patty-Cat II, owned and skippered by Dr. John P. Pursell (Balboa YC). The elapsed time was 23 hours, 53 minutes.

Here is the way he tabulated the corrected time results in the various classes:

OCEAN RACING CATAMARANS — 1. Auriga, Dr. Robert Cameron (South Gate YC of San Diego); 2. Foamy, Conrad Banks (Santa Barbara YC); 3. Star Trek, William Stein (Malibu YC); 4. Glass Slipper, Jan Johnson (Seal Beach YC); 5. Polynesian Concept, Buddy Ebsen (BYC); 6. Toru, Tom Sauter (Seal Beach YC). In Saturday's first handicapping results, the posted results had given the first three places to those finishing fourth, fifth and sixth.

OCEAN RACING A — 1. Sakacia, Tom Corbett (NBYC); 2. Jubilation, L. L. Hill and Hugo Santora (BYC); 3. Jacarol II, Jack Hamilton (South Shore Sailing Club).

OCEAN RACING B — 1. Redhead, Larry Malo (San Diego YC); 2. Conquest, Bill Pelly (Long Beach YC); 3. Pirate II, Merrill Adamson (California YC).

OCEAN RACING C — 1. Tanzotay II, Stan Miller (SBYC); 2. Seaplace, Gale Simpson (Alamitos Bay YC); 3. Jezebel, Charles Benten (BYC).

OCEAN RACING D — Sabateur (no information on owner and club); 2. Sundowner, Ed Sungberg (LAYC); 3. Siwanne, Sid Renkow (Del Rey YC).

OCEAN RACING E — 1. Balandra, Jerry McClaire (Lido Isle YC); 2. Valante II, Michael Hirsch (ORYC); 3. Sundown II, A. Corriveau (LAYC).

PACIFIC HANDICAP A — 1. Jinker, Clark Sweet (LBYC); 2. Millare II, Bill Fleetwood (Santa Barbara YC); 3. Necentine, William Pomeranz (Wayfarers YC).

PACIFIC HANDICAP B — 1. Night Song, Leon Cooper (LAYC); 2. Rebel Maid, David Folsom, (San Diego YC); 3. Tomahawk, Jon Arens (SSSC).

PACIFIC HANDICAP C — 1. Skaal II, Tom Armstrong (CYC); 2. Aquila, Kenneth Myers (CYC), 3. Bay Bee, John McIntire (LBYC).

PACIFIC HANDICAP D — 1. Bandit, Dick Alfrika (SLBYC); 2. Laguna, Dr. David Parker (PMYC); 3. Gloria, Harlan Gustalson (SSSC).

PACIFIC HANDICAP E — L. Te Amo, M. G. Wade (SSYC); 2. Sea Nymph, Jim Hokenson (WCC); 3. Connecticut Yankee, Dr. William Eisenberg (ORYC).

MIDGET OCEAN RACING FLEET A — 1. Avenger, Bob Crane (AYC); 2. Pooch, Leonard Hillen (Bahia Corinthian YC); 3. Till, Rex Bender (WYC).

MORE A — 1. Windhook, Hans Grellman (WCYC); 2. Scaawicious, Jim Hokanson (LAYC); 3. Ventolera, David Domanski (BCYC).

WORLD OF WINGS

By HERB SHANNON
Aerospace Editor

Cal-State Air Lines, the rapidly growing regional carrier based in Long Beach, has contracted to take over scheduled air mail and freight routes operated by Priority Air Transportation System, of San Francisco.

The new service will include mail and freight schedules between San Francisco, San Jose, Bakersfield, Las Vegas, Hollywood-Burbank and Mojave. All of the routes except the Mojave link parallel those previously served by Cal-State.

Also included in the new agreement is a freight contract operation for Eastman Kodak Company between San Francisco and Hollywood-Burbank.

Cal-State President Richard A. Dick said the Civil Aeronautics Board and the Post Office Department have approved the agreement between the two carriers.

A deal also is pending for Cal-State to acquire four Beech Super-18 aircraft operated by Priority. These will be offered for resale, according to Dick.

The Long Beach carrier last month added San Francisco and Sacramento to its route network connecting principal California cities with Las Vegas. The airline started service last Nov. 11.

TRANS WORLD AIRLINES WILL inaugurate transpacific service and its first round-the-world-link from Los Angeles on Aug. 1, under the revised authority granted by President Nixon.

The original award by the Civil Aeronautics Board under President Johnson's administration called for the airline to operate the Pacific service from Long Beach or Ontario, but this was changed to permit TWA to use terminal facilities at Los Angeles International Airport.

TWA's first westbound Pacific flight will leave Los Angeles at 9:45 p.m., arrive at Honolulu at 11:55 p.m. and continue to Guam, Okinawa, Taipei and Hong Kong. The flight will continue on around the world on the carrier's present route through Southeast Asia, the Middle East and Europe to New York.

The first eastbound global flight will depart Los Angeles at 10 a.m., operating through New York on the reverse of the above route to Hong Kong. Continuing, the airline's first daily eastbound flight across the Pacific leaves Hong Kong at 5 p.m. Aug. 3 for Taipei or Okinawa on alternate days, Guam, Honolulu and back to Los Angeles.

Other cities to be served daily on TWA's new earth-orbit service include Bangkok, Bombay, Tel Aviv, Athens and Frankfurt.

Pirelli Tires to Headquarter in Compton Industrial Center

PIRELLI Sales West, Inc., prime distributor for Pirelli tires in the Southwest, will occupy a 30,000-square-foot building in the CC&F Los Angeles Industrial Center, now under development in Compton.

The 20-year lease was announced by Christopher E. Malone Jr., Pirelli general manager, and Charles V. Kendall Jr., Cabot, Cabot & Forbes marketing manager. George Fox and Larry Parrish, of the Coldwell Banker Co., served as brokers.

Currently operating from facilities in Compton, Pirelli serves more than 150 distributors in Southern California, New Mexico, Arizona and Hawaii.

* * * *

PIRELLI, headquartered in Milan, Italy, is ranked as the 54th largest corporation outside the United States.

Widely known for its development of radial tires for racing and imported cars, the firm now manufactures radials for all standard passenger cars, and will introduce radial truck tires in the United States in the near future.

Pirelli Sales West, Inc. is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Pirelli Tire Corp., in New York.

The new sales and distribution center will be built by Aberthaw Construction Co., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Cabot, Cabot & Forbes. The site has already been graded, and construction will be completed by June 15.

Pirelli is the third firm to announce its move into the Los Angeles Industrial Center in recent weeks. Construction is already underway on an 82,000 square foot lease building for DEC Associates, and a 60,000 square foot building purchased by Standard Infant & Childrens Wear, Inc.

* * * *

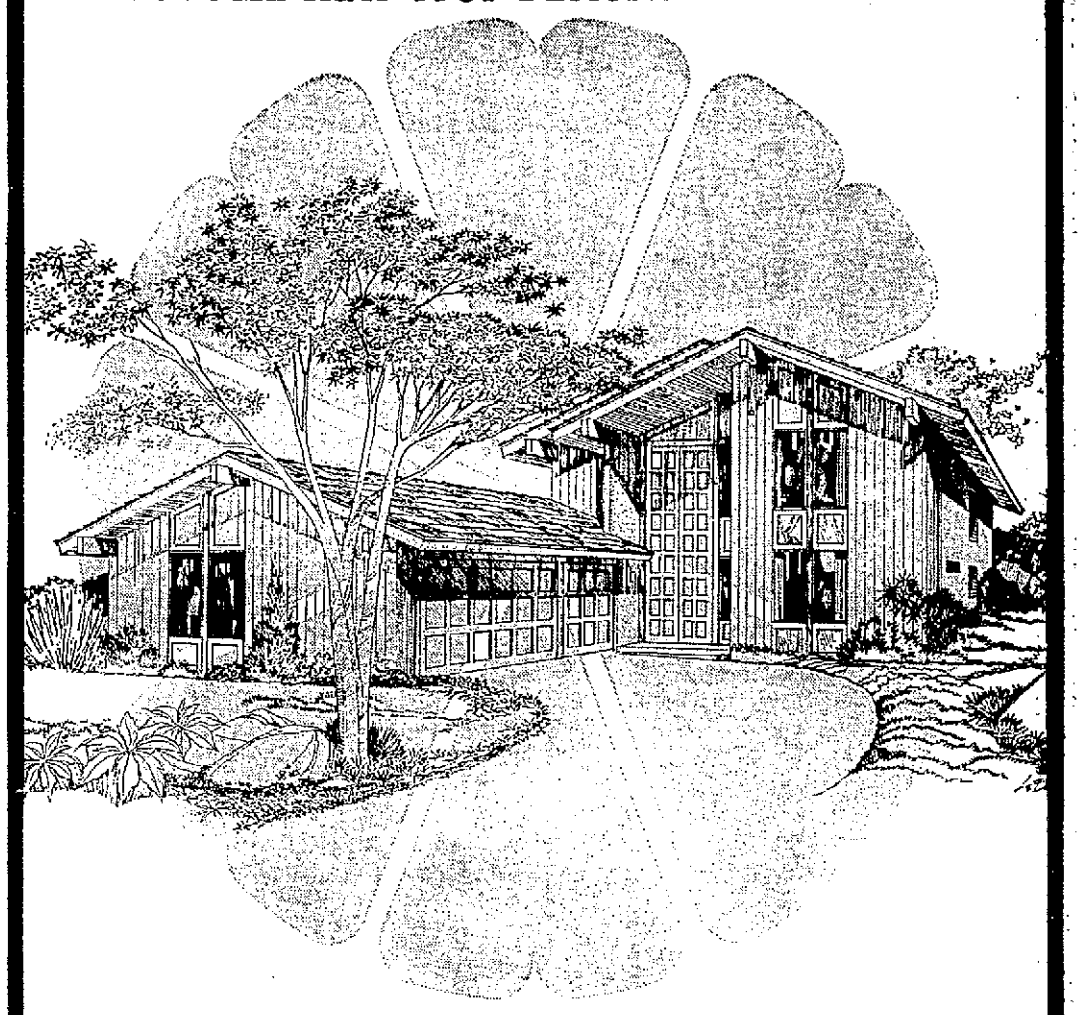

THE LOS ANGELES Industrial Center was purchased last June as a joint venture by CC&F and the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company.

The 540-acre development — one of the largest industrial complexes close to downtown Los Angeles — will be completed by 1975 and will eventually house between 75 and 100 companies.

Hayes to Address AHA Meet

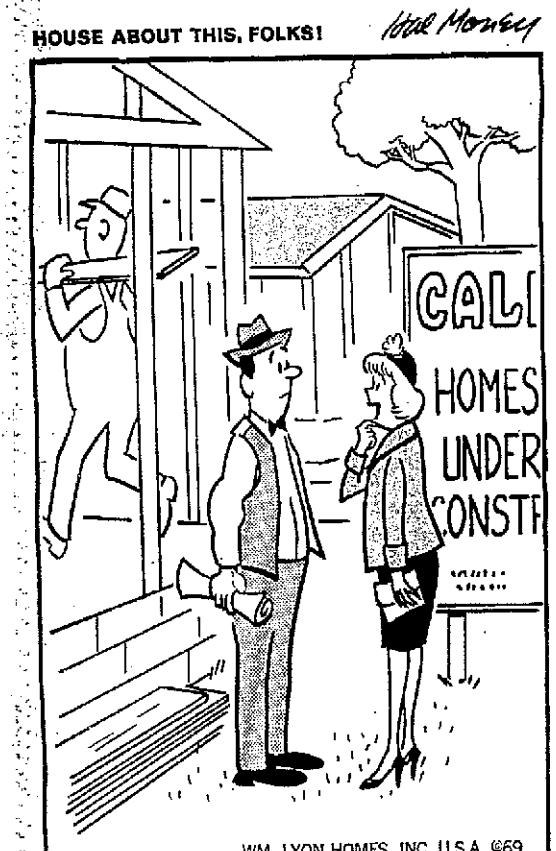

Assemblyman James A. Hayes will speak at the Apartment House Association, Long Beach-Southern Cities, members and guests' meeting at the Elks Club Thursday at 6:30 p.m.

Hayes will address the audience on the current Baggage Lien Law and legislative activities pending at Sacramento. The Assemblyman was author of the Baggage Lien Law of 1967 with amendments of 1968.

* * * *

BERNIE SPECHT, AHA President, said more than 25,000 letters with petitions have been sent to income property owners in support of Senate Bill 35, which would remove the nine-line clause in AB 272 which was passed two years ago. The present law would become effective on July 1, 1971, giving the local board unlimited authority to increase property taxes without voter approval.

According to Hornbeak this new low-priced home will allow the average salaried homeseeker to enjoy all the advantages of a luxurious new home priced under $30,000

WHAT'S YOUR PROBLEM?

Not Bad Wolf at Door, Just Ol' Zoning Board

By DON CAMPBELL

It may be quite literally true that home is either where a man hangs his hat, or where his heart lies. But just try to get a zoning board to go along with the designation of a hat rack as a "one-family residence."

MR. CAMPBELL:

I noticed that beautiful mobile home pictures right near your column in a recent issue of the paper. This reminded me of a retired couple I know who have been farming all of their lives. To retire, they sold their farm and set aside a piece of land on which to put a mobile home.

They ordered a 12 by 60 foot custom model but, when this home arrived, they were told they couldn't put it on their land due to zoning. It was the most luxury you could ever get for some $8,000.

They tell you at the zoning office, why not build a small home. Whom are they kidding? Now this couple, who cried like babies when they were told they couldn't live there, have had to leave their land that they worked so hard for so they could retire.

This is the kind of grip that our county governments have everybody in—they drive the poor into the bush to rebuild old deserted chicken coops as home until they start something as bad as the ghettos in the city.—Mrs. J. M. D.

ANSWER: It's a pretty harsh indictment, but one that certainly isn't without justification because it's a relatively rare zoning board that has updated its attitude toward this phenomenon of post-World War II America.

Today's mobile home is a far cry from the jerry-built, tin-can-like house trailers that popped up during World War II to alleviate the housing shortage and to accommodate an abnormally mobile citizenry, but the transition has apparently escaped the notice of nine out of ten zoning authorities.

As a result, the average request for zoning to permit the establishment of a mobile home park gets just about the same official reaction that one would receive if he solicited the city, or county, for permission to set up a gypsy camp complete with a fortune-telling tent and a tattooing parlor.

Fortunately, some of the zoning barriers are beginning to crumble and this particulary so in the south and southwest where so many retirees have settled down. It's a group, incidentally, that accounts for about 25 per cent of the industry's $1-billion-plus sales each year.

It is probably going to come along too late to do the retired couple mentioned by Mrs. J. M. D. much good, but I think that we will eventually see a turn-about in the official attitude toward mobile homes as their mushrooming popularity (sales up almost 150 per cent in the last six or seven years) continues. And continue it will as conventional building costs inexorably climb upward. At present, according to the latest figures, the mobile home enjoys an 85 per cent cost advantage over a conventional home. You can ignore a development like this just so long before public pressure on zoning bodies becomes impossible.

MR. CAMPBELL:

Is this so-called "indoor-outdoor" carpeting on the level? We have just had a screened patio attached to the rear of our house and the builder has suggested that we lay this carpeting over the concrete floor.

Maybe we're being awfully old-fashioned, but I don't understand how anything exposed to the weather that much is going to hold up the way the builder says it will.—T.L.P.

ANSWER: You're not being old-fashioned—the explosion in indoor-outdoor carpeting is simply so new that it all happened while you had your back turned. Chicago's Ozite Corporation brought out the first batch of carpeting less than five years ago.

Your builder isn't handing you a line, either. The carpeting—most of it made out of polypropylene olefin fiber—resists water, stains, sunlight, mildew, rotting, freezing and lasts twice as long as conventional carpeting. Significantly, too, it costs about half the price of regular carpeting, and, with several other manufacturers now getting into the act, the price differential is spreading even further.

If the stuff is okay for use around swimming pools, on diving boards and as tennis court surfacing—which it is—the beating that it will take on your patio should be child's play for it.

* * * *

Mr. Campbell:

My husband is being transferred to Puerto Rico for two years on his job. We have a house which we bought for $18,750 in 1964. Our problem is if we sell now and buy another house in 1971, what will the interest rate be, and at what price can we sell the house now? We have had a 16-by-27 foot patio and central air conditioning added and a tremendous amount of work done on the yard.

We are trying to decide whether or not to sell as we have teen-age children whom I think their Dad should be around to handle, and I don't think that I could do this alone at this point. Also, I have a very good job, and hate to leave, but believe I could acquire some type of job in Puerto Rico. I would appreciate it very much if you would try to answer this as soon as possible. — Mrs. M. A. T.

ANSWER: Whew! there are more imponderables here than one will find in a piece of modern poetry. In the first place, there is no way in the world of knowing what interest rates will be in 1971, or at what price your present house will move. How fond of this present house are you, and what assurance do you have that your husband will be transferred back to the states to the same city?

In the absence of anything really concrete, I will give you my strictly personal opinion on the matter: I think that the headaches of trying to operate as an out-of-the-country, absentee landlord far outweigh, in a negative sense, most of the financial "ifs," "ands," and "buts" that you propose.

So far, I have sold three houses that I thought I loved very much. In each case, though, the succeeding house that I bought was so good that, today, I have difficulty recalling the details of the earlier ones. I wouldn't worry about comparative 1969 and 1971 interest rates, either.

If they are higher in 1971 than they are today (a fair bet), you should be able to invest the sale price of your present house at rates that will help compensate for this.

Admittedly, it's purely personal reaction, but — in your place — I would sell the home, move to Puerto Rico with a light heart and play it by ear from that point on. Who knows? By 1971 we could, conceivably be back to 4-½ per cent interest rates!

Cuties Mark 25th Year in L.B. Game

By CHUCK MEDICK

In the fall of 1944, on the island of Guam, a large group of servicemen had an outdoor party. The enterprising Trino Palacios had an idea.

"Since there are no girls around, why not dress up some of the guys in girls' outfits and play a softball game?" said Trinio, and he did it.

Out of that gag was born the California Cuties, who 25 years later will make their only appearance of the year in Long Beach Saturday at 8 p.m. at Park Ave. Field engaging the Long Beach Fire Dept.

The success story of the Cuties has been one of good promotion. Palacios has taken his "sweet things" into the Orient, the Caribbean, Puerto Rico and every state in the union except Alaska. Last year they invaded Western Canada and were so popular that they are returning this summer for 75 games in Alberta and Manitoba.

One problem faced the "girls" when they visited the Orient. The parks weren't large enough to hold the spectators and twice Palacios had to quickly remove his team from the field for fear of losing the costumes.

Naval Station Opens Softball Slate This Week

Forty-one teams in six leagues begin play this week in Long Beach Naval Station's Special Services softball program.

Los Alamitos Naval Air Station is defending Major League champion, but the Flyers can expect rugged competition, particularly from the USS Bryce Canyon and USS Long Beach.

Pacific MineForce, 18-0 Shore League winner last year, has been advanced to major status and is the dark horse.

Other teams are USS Canberra, USS New Orleans, USS El Dorado, USS Navarro and USS Merrick.

There are six teams each in the Minor, Fleet, Bay and Afloat loops, with eight entries in the Destroyer League.

Angels to Give Free Bats Today

Bat Day, one of the most popular promotional dates of the season, is scheduled at Anaheim Stadium today when the Angels host the Kansas City Royals for the first time.

Each youngster, 12 and under, accompanied by a paying adult will receive free a Louisville Pro bat, approved for Little League play.

Gates will open at 11 a.m. and bats will be distributed as the youngsters enter the park.

Hundreds of O.C. Business Firms Profit Through NR

A total of 572 small business firms in Orange County received more than $12 million in contracts from the Autonetics Division of North American Rockwell during the 1968 fiscal year, the company reported last week.

W. F. Koehne, small business administrator for Autonetics, said the grand total of 4,523 contracts awarded by the division to small business during the year had a value of $54,976,962 and represented every state in the union.

Orange County businesses shared $12,128,866, while neighboring Los Angeles County's small businesses shared $12,128,866, orders totaling $25,224,148.

* * * *

TOTAL value of small business contracts from Autonetics throughout the state of California reached $43,761,525.

Usually firms are classified as small businesses if they employ fewer than 500 persons.

During the company's 1968 fiscal year, which ended Sept. 30, 1968, North American Rockwell's Aerospace and Systems Group, which includes Autonetics, spent $703,694,307 with 15,098 different subcontractors and suppliers representing each of the 50 states.

* * * *

OF THESE, 13,097 — or 86.7 per cent — were classified as small businesses and received contracts valued at $235,486,856, which represented 33.4 per cent of the total dollar value of all contracts.

One of the world's largest civilian research and development organizations, NR is the nation's leading independent manufacturer of automotive original equipment and the leading manufacturer of space vehicles, liquid propellant rocket engines, textile machinery and industrial gears.

It is among the largest companies in aerospace electronics and nuclear reactro development and is a major manufacturer of aircraft for business, private and agricultural customers.

Fewer Farms

California now has 39,000 farms, 5,000 fewer than a year ago, with the average size farm increased in one year from 581 to 627 acres.

Minority Groups Aided

For some time now the Standard Oil Co. of California and the Economic Development Council, Inc., of the Los Angeles Black Congress have had a joint venture — the development of privately operated businesses in the black community.

Here is how it works — in the arrangement the Development Council acts as a Chevron dealer, normally operating six stations at a time, and selects an agent manager for each station.

Standard Oil then trains these prospective independent dealers for six weeks at a Standard Station, Inc. unit, paying the trainee a full salary.

* * * *

FOLLOWING this period, designed to make each man a fully accomplished service station salesman, he is then assigned as manager of one of the Council stations.

Standard sends a member of its training panel to the station to work alongside the prospective dealer.

This intensive education continues for some time — in each case it is judged on an individual basis — long enough to assure that the prospective dealer will in fact become a successful businessman.

When a station is accepted by this new Chevron dealer, the Economic Development Council arranges with Standard for acquisition of another unit and selects another agent and the whole process begins again.

* * * *

AT THE present time, two of these stations are located in Paccoima and four are in southeast Los Angeles.

The opportunities, then, for new black businessmen are not limited to these present six, but will be extended to other enterprising hard working members of minority communities.

Standard's Retail Sales Manager R. W. Taylor emphasized this is not just a training exercise, but the "beginning of what is planned to be a long and successful relationship in mutually assisting members of minority groups to become businessmen in the fullest sense of the word."

* * * *

IN A significant effort to increase black business ownership in the ghetto area, the Sons of Watts has just taken over operation of one such modern Chevron station.

The special architecture unit has a sales potential, according to District Sales Manager R. W. Patterson, of a million gallons per year.

The station, located at 120th and Central, was completed some months ago and has been undergoing a gradual management evolution.

Talking Apartment Opens at Noon for 8-Day Showing

MODEL APARTMENT AT LUXURIOUS SOUTH HAMPTON BEGINS TALKING TO VISITORS TODAY. FURNITURE AND APPLIANCES TALK, TOO

Talking Apartment Chats Away With Right Answer

It's the Talk of the Town, as old Ted Lewis and the torch singers used to croon. And the declaration is well used in describing the unique Talking Apartment shown for the first time today with the grand opening of the South Hampton lease apartment in North Long Beach.

The innovation is this — viewers and visitors interested in a certain aspect of the layout, the furnishings, carpeting, fixtures, drapes or so forth, those who have questions, have but to ask and "the walls will answer!" Even the Ford cars out front will talk back. All this in addition to feasting the eyes on sumptious living quarters, even if only to dream.

* * * *

THE SOUTH HAMPTON Talking Apartment, at 5500 Ackerfield Ave. just east of Cherry Ave. at South Street, opens at noon today for an 8-day showing. The public is urged and invited to experience this novelty in customer convenience.

Showing Sunday through Sunday the "Talker" also will be gabbing away from 3 to 7 p.m. daily.

Heralded as the ultimate address for sophisticated adults, the all-electric, Gold Medallion complex has been thought out as a haven for young moderns. It was reasoned that there is a need in the crush of every day living for a place, sort of a hideout, for those of the same trend of mind and social desires. Therefore, there are restrictions on age levels and there are pet requirements.

The English style, $5,700,000 six-hundred-unit complex of moderately priced dwellings marks the Boise Cascade Building Company's entry into the Long Beach apartment scene. The firm has built more than 30,000 homes in California, so is no newcomer.

Work on the complex is progressing rapidly with 114 units completed and ready for the taker. Business hours at the South Hampton office, not to be confused with Talking Apartment visiting hours, are 9:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. and applications are being processed. Lucile Valek is the sales and rental agent for South Hampton.

Among the other selling points, South Hampton is located in a strategically enviable area within minutes of the Long Beach Freeway, the San Gabriel

3 Million

At the end of 1968, there were more than 3 million electrically-heated homes in the United States, according to figures compiled by the Southern California Edison Company.

Douglass Martin in Charge of BC Apartment Division

Douglass Martin, veteran Southern California construction executive, heads the newly formed Boise Cascade Building Co.'s Apartment Division.

The apartment division was created by Boise Cascade late last year to help meet the increasing demand for multifamily housing units expected during the next 10 years.

DOUGLASS MARTIN

Martin, General Manager of the Division, was formerly Vice President in charge of all construction for S. V. Hunsaker & Sons, one of the nation's largest builders. Prior to that he held a similar position with the Donald L. Bren Co. in Encino, one of the original developers of Valencia in the Saugus-Newhall area.

Martin is assisted in his work by Stan Rossi, another veteran real estate man, who serves as Marketing Manager for the Apartment Division. He joined the Boise Cascade Building Co. last year. Prior to that he served as Sales Manager for S. V. Hunsaker & Sons for 10 years.

Decorator-Furnisher Team Has Eyes on New Concepts

When a luxurious lamp or love seat, or a distinctive drape or dining suite answers questions at the Talking Apartment, it will be expounding the "Total Look" concept of the team that planned the decor and furnished the showplace that opens at noon today in North Long Beach.

That team would be Layne Bennett, master interior decorator for Edward's Fine Furniture at 1639 Artesia, and Edward Barbara, owner of the firm who are participating in the Boise Cascade Co. presentation of the new South Hampton apartment complex to the public for the next eight days.

During the showing on the two Sundays and daily, furniture, appliances, carpets, walls and the like will "answer" questions from visitors. Also, Bennett and Barbara will be on hand to field any furniture or decoration queries too tough for the "small voices."

"We have tried to create a chic, smart style on a low budget," they say. To be found in the deluxe unit used for the Talking Apartment showing, Bennett and Barbara have included most of the styles — Italian, Oriental, Spanish and Contemporary with original oil paintings by Southern California artists.

* * * *

"WE HAVE USED a piece here and a piece there as we feel the atmosphere demands, attempting to get away from the notion that a bed should have with it a huge chest of drawers and a pair of lamp tables, for instance.

"What we are after is a lived in, loved in look . . . something functional for the young moderns. For this result most of the furnishings and colors are contemporary, for contemporary means NOW," say Bennett and Barbara.

Edward Barbara of Edward's Fine Furniture has been in business for 15 years as a fimly store in the surrounding area. Of course any of the furnishings in the Talking Apartment are available at his place, or, if desired, most any demands a new occupant desires can be met, he says.

Edwards explains that his business is undergoing an upgrading to higher quality furniture by creating an atmosphere of new design — well constructed with a high fashioned look, fitting the average pocketbook. Great strides

Half and Half

Edison Electric Institute predicts that by the year 2000 there will be some 70 million electrically heated homes — nearly half of the dwelling units in the United States.

ONLY 32 HERE 10 YEARS AGO

Long Beach Now Has Over 10,500 Total-Electric Apartment Units

The Total-Electric Living concept — which will play a leading role in open house activities of the "Talking Apartment" at South Hampton beginning today — is fast becoming a trend in the Greater Long Beach area.

Wm. C. Drewry, Southern California Edison Company vice president, in making that statement, supported it with figures on growth of the total-electric Gold Medallion concept in Long Beach apartment construction.

"Ten years ago, when the Edison Company began its Medallion program in Long Beach, there were only 32 total-electric apartment units in the area," he said.

"Today, the Long Beach district has more than 10,500 Gold Medallion apartment units on company lines — and more than 2,000 of these were added in the past two years," he said.

Long Beach residents now living in total-electric apartments and homes have discovered they chose a dwelling in which electricity performs an amazing variety of tasks.

Residents know how electricity heats, air conditions, cooks, preserves food, provides lighting and entertainment, encourages hobbies and makes it easier for them to enjoy happier, fuller lives.

Total-electric living has no limits, Drewry said, adding:

"It's fully adaptable to every need, every desire and every improvement one may decide upon tomorrow, next month of even years from now."

Total-electric apartments or homes are designed according to the individual needs of the occupants. It's what's inside that counts.

A total-electric apartment or home is a series of ingenious electric living centers, featuring electric heating. These electric living areas can be simple or complex, small or large, thrifty or fabulous. They can be centers for work, dining, health, rest, recreation, entertainment or education.

For those who desire the ultimate in gracious and practical living, there's the Gold Medallion apartment or home — such as the South Hampton Apartments.

A Gold Medallion residence may be of any size, style or price, as long as it meets these four requirements:

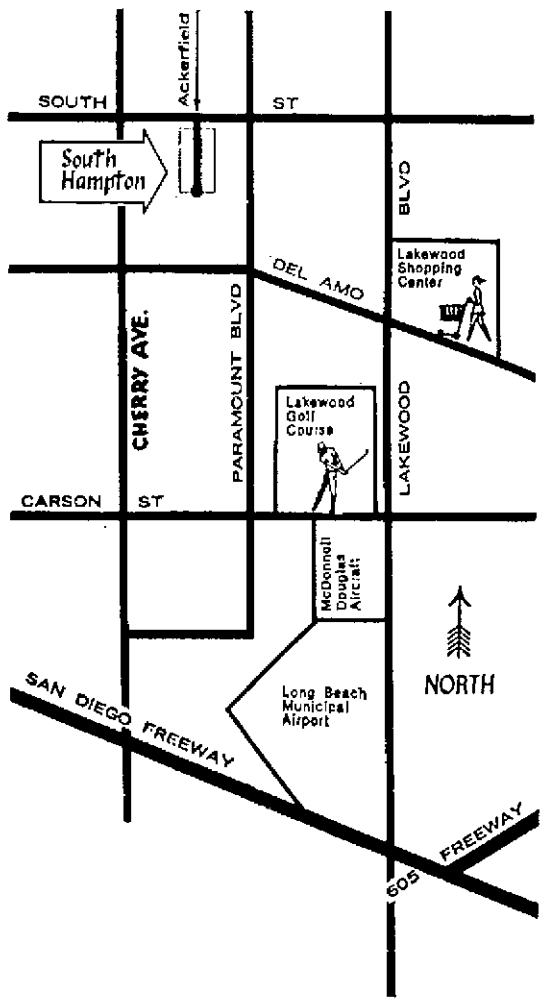

It is equipped with flameless electric home heating.

It is wired for Full Housepower. That means adequate switches, outlets and circuits designed to meet present and anticipated future needs.

That the kitchen contains modern electric cooking equipment and that at least three additional labor-saving major electrical appliances are installed.

And it has Light for Living. That means it has good lighting for work, leisure and beauty.

A Gold Medallion on an apartment or a home is a symbol of prestige because it indicates that the residence or apartment is equipped solely with electricity, the pure energy. So, Drewry points out, it is clean, quiet and in keeping with the modern and future trends in home design.

Strategic Location a Big Item

The South Hampton is strategically located and is readily accessible from the San Gabriel River Freeway, the San Diego Freeway or the Long Beach Freeway. It is just a few minutes drive from Long Beach Municipal Airport. Recreational facilities close to home include the challenging Lakewood Golf Course. The Lakewood Shopping Center is one of the most complete of its kind, offering convenient one stop shopping just a few blocks away.

Recreational facilities at the South Hampton will include a large recreational center, and heated and filtered swimming pools.

The electronically equipped apartment will be chatting with visitors for the next eight days, and will be open from noon until 7 p.m. today and from 3 p.m. until 7 p.m. Monday through Saturday. There is no admission charge for The Talking Apartment, which is located at 5500 Ackerfield Ave., just east of Cherry Ave., at South Street.

Housing Now by Computer

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — An experimental computer program is being used by a New Jersey agency to tell officials instantly if a given housing proposal is economically feasible.

Used by the New Jersey Housing Finance Agency, the computer's calculations reveal if a housing proposal would yield enough income to pay its costs and if the rental levels would be within reach of people with middle and low incomes.

Mom's a real wheeler

By DIANNE SMITH

Today's young mothers are leading an adventuresome life if DeeDee Earl of Long Beach is any example.

Her hobby prompts her husband, Leroy, to comment, "funny, you don't look like you ride a motorcyle."

She responds in kind since he shares her enthusiasm for competitive motorcycling.

Mrs. Earl (her real name is Diana) is 27 and a perky mother of three very active sons—Bobby, 8, Mark, 5, and John, 4.

Describing herself as an "over-enthused" participant in the sport, she sounds off against those persons who echo the stereotype image of "big, bad black leather jackets" for people who ride motorcycles.

She admits, however, she had a similar idea until two years ago when her husband bought a dirt bike and went hill climbing on weekends.

More or less in self-defense, Mrs. Earl started riding about a year and a half ago. "If your husband is taking off on Sundays, who wants to sit home?" she asked.

BOTH MEMBERS of the Southern California Trials Organization, the Earls compete in English trials at various locales, making it a family outing. "It's a fantastic family sport," avows Mrs. Earl, and "we've met fine, fine people."

With several trophies to prove her ability in manuevering the slow-motion obstacle course, Mrs. Earl explains the trials involve "no speed," but merely "skill and control of the bike," which is accomplished by standing up.

She points with pride to the trophies displayed in the living room of their home at 2666 Jackson St., saying "it's the first time I ever

Welfare leaders attack 'half-truths'

By ROBIN PAXTON

"Patty Newman is uninformed and outdated. She obviously has a smattering of information that makes good headlines."

The outspoken attack came from Terrazenieia Mosley, family service aid and state treasurer of the California Welfare Rights Organization.

It was in rebuttal to a speech by Mrs. Newman before the Lakewood-Long Beach Federated Republican Women in which the housewife-author, outraged by the way taxpayers' dollars are being spent on anti-poverty programs, revealed results of her own personal investigations into those areas.

"Does she know the budget?" queried Mrs. Mosley. "The state maximum doesn't even come up to a person's basic needs. A mother with five children under 13 years of age is expected to live on $328 a month.

"If they started cutting the spending surplus off the top, there might be enough to give to the poor who need it."

Mrs. Newman's public attacks (see I, P-T story, April 22) on the Zuni Indian "upgrading" program, Travelers Aid's temporary involvement in war on poverty, an AFDC Mothers Club (Aid to Families with Dependent Children) and on portions of the Economic Opportunity Act brought equally outraged reactions from others deeply involved in these programs.

HUGH McISSACS executive director of Family Service of Long Beach.

"Those kinds of statements, stemming from partial truths, are very damaging. Mrs. Newman has grossly distorted the entire welfare picture.

"I especially worry about the effects of such statements on the welfare clients. They are very sensitive about their position in society. Remarks such as Mrs. Newman's make the client feel more outcast than ever.

"This is an interdependent society. And, as the late John F. Kennedy said; 'If you cannot help

DEBUT DATES

Two firsts for 'Seven Romances'

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

Today at 5:30 p.m. in New York City's Carnegie Hall, Julian Musafia will be pianist for the Western world premiere of "Seven Romances on the Words of Alexander Blok" by Dimitri Shostakovich.

Friday at 8 p.m. the California State College, Long Beach, associate professor again will play the work in the CSLB Little Theater on the second night of a Shostakovich Festival.

Appearing with him here will be a stellar company—Marni Nixon, soprano; Gabor Rejto, cellist; and Henri Temianka, violinist.

That this latest work of Shostakovich, foremost contemporary Russian composer, is to be performed in Long Beach is a signal honor for the community and the college.

It is tribute, too, to Musafia's dedication to Shostakovich's music.

Last year, he undertook performance, for the first time in the United States, of the composer's "24 Preludes and Fugues, Op. 87." Twelve were performed then; the second 12 will be played Thursday and Friday nights, six at each program.

Another Shostakovich first for this area will be "Eleven Jewish Songs, Op. 79" for soprano which Jean Tyndall, contralto Irish Eshelman and tenor Frank Allen will sing, with Musafia accompanying, Thursday night. Musafia and Dottie Nix will play "Concertino for Two Pianos, Op. 94."

Friday night, in addition to the final six preludes and "Seven Romances," the program will include "Trio, Op. 67" performed by Temianka, Rejto and Musafia.

Only because Musafia is a persistant fellow, not easily dissuaded from his pursuit of Shostakovich's music, will Friday night's Long Beach audience be the first, outside of Moscow and New York, to hear "Seven Romances."

In his studio at his home, 441 Margo Ave., Musafia explained.

Freeway and the San Diego Freeway. So there is easy access to employment in Angeles and Orange Counties.

A one-stop shopping center is very close and importantly, the bustling Long Beach Municipal Airport is nearby. The golden miles of Southland beaches are a few miles to the south and the Lakewood Country Club is blocks away.

"The Talking Apartment feature has proven a successful and an informative innovation throughout the nation, but this is the first time it will be introduced in Los Angeles County," says Douglass Martin, Boise Cascade general manager of the apartment division.

"While many people may have been known to 'talk to the walls' of an apartment, this probably is the first time they'll have the opportunity to talk back. Many little voices are hidden at vantage points inside and outside."

At South Hampton, the Talking Apartment will be a large, three bedroom unit providing 1,200 square feet of living space. It will be $190 a month, unfurnished, and will feature a large living room, all-electric kitchen, dining room and king size master bedroom suite.

The complex will offer units with one, or two baths. The Talking Apartment has been furnished by Layne Bennett, head decorator at Edward's Fine Furniture.

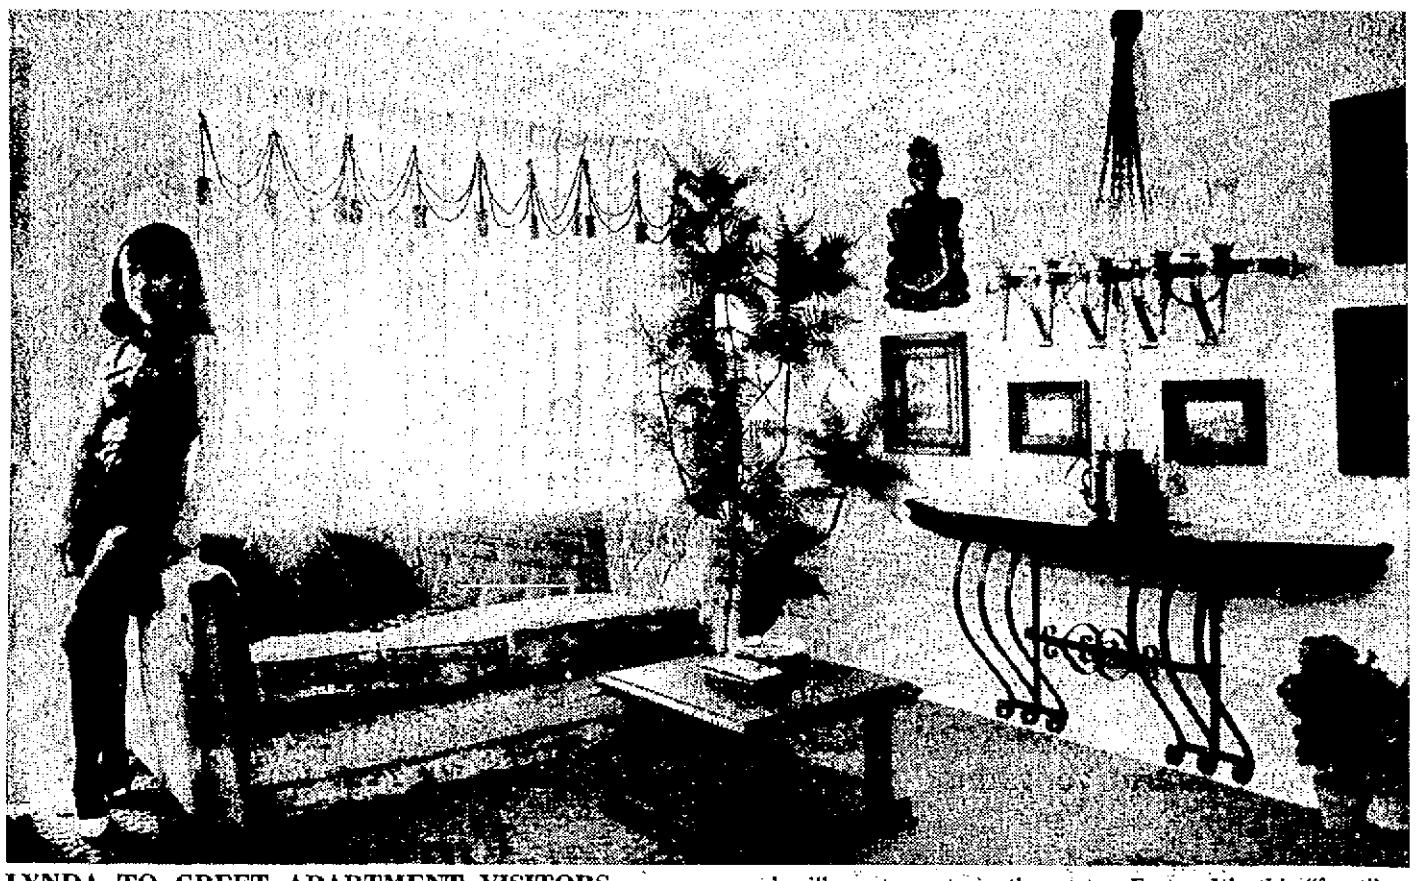

Deluxe apartments include large, walk-in closets, separate dining rooms (in some plans), custom draperies, Frigidaire dishwashers, wall-to-wall, continuous filament 100 per cent Nylon carpeting and marble top pullmans and mirrors. One, two and three bedroom plans are available.

There are laundry facilities and filtered and heated swimming pools (now ready for the plungers) and covered parking spaces for dwellers' autos.

This is an all-electric, Gold Medallion project. Custom cabinets have been done by Sawyer Cabinet Co., Sylmar. Built in and free standing appliances are from A-1 Home Appliance, Long Beach. All the paint is Old Quaker and builder's hardware in is from Midway Hardware Co. Lumber is from Sun Lumber Co.

"We are entering this key market with a quality product created to meet the needs of active moderns in the medium income bracket," Martin says.

"We have provided a feeling of spaciousness with plenty of room and recreational facilities somewhat remote from city dwelling."

LYNDA TO GREET APARTMENT VISITORS
Model Lynda Millette of Fashion House of Modeling and Photography, Glendora, is hostess for the Talking Apartment and will greet guests as they enter. Featured in this "front" room are Baily Schmitz love seats and Warfield chair from Edward's.

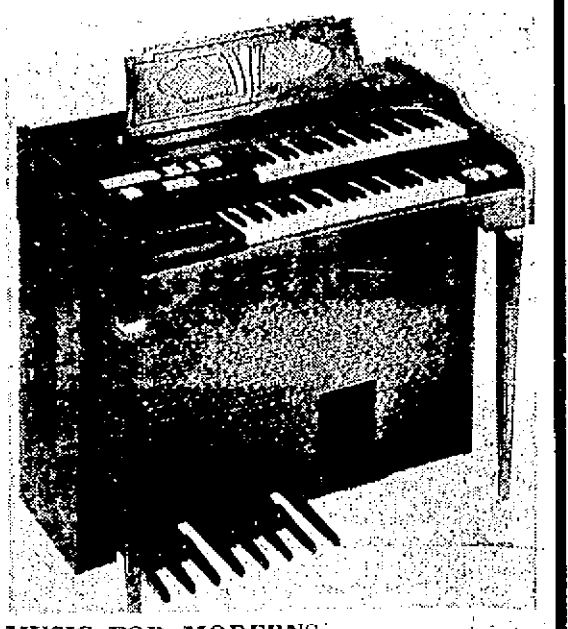

Indoor, Outdoor Living

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nearly half the homes to be built in 1969 will be designed for indoor-outdoor living, according to a spokesman for a national building materials source.

"This trend, which originated in California, now has permeated every section of the country," said H. A. Muir, of Dubuque, La., architectural consultant of Caradco Division of Scovill Manufacturing Co.

Muir attributed the rise in popularity to the fact that modern building products such as double-pane insulating glass and weatherproof patio doors assure "complete comfort indoors only inches away from extreme outdoor temperatures."

Homeowners are learning that marked progress has been made in inproving the quality of patio doors in the last few years, he said.

MUSIC FOR MODERNS
A brilliant Lowrey Holiday Deluxe organ graces the den of the Talking Apartment, being displayed by St. Aubens Pianos and Organs, and Vic Carlson's Music Shop in Lakewood.

Apartment Investment

A. G. Groesbeck, Associates Inc., financial consulatants of Beverly Hills, is acquiring the first 114 units of South Hampton Apartments in Long Beach for a group of investor clients. CMPY Management Company, a wholly owned subsidiary of Groesbeck, will manage the properties.

Design Plans

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — One method of planning the design and style of a new home is to use published stock plans, a report by Ohio State University says.

Sun Lumber Co. Motto---'Very Best'

"The Very Best in Lumber" as a motto was adopted by Sun Lumber Company management 40 years ago, relates the company's president and owner, Homer Burnaby. "Adhering to the significance of this motto has been a principal factor in the growth of the company," says Burnaby.

In 1924, the birthplace of Sun was in what is now the heart of the Beverly Hills Civic Center. In 1946, when it became apparent that this facility could no longer serve the ever growing construction industry, a new plant was built on 15 acres of industrial property in Van Nuys.

Continued volume of building soon made it evident that in order to maintain the increased volume of business, it would be necessary to handle water cargo lumber and in 1953, operations were transferred to San Pedro where it was possible to receive over the docks quantities of material necessary to continue to serve the trade.

Sun Lumber Company has yards located in Long Beach, San Pedro and many locations in Ventura County. Combined facilities include over 57 acres of ground upon which are included the main plant at Berth 122 and cargo handling at Berth 135. Building facilities are in excess of 170,000 square feet. Inventory at Berth 135 is in excess of 24,000,000 board feet.

"We are happy to be among the suppliers of the R. A. Watt Company," says Burnaby. "All our employes wish Boise Cascade success on South Hampton and all projects to follow."

Goodwill to put antiques on auction block

Looking for the unusual? Try browsing at the annual "Flea Market" sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary to Goodwill Industries.

The one-day event will feature antiques, novelty items, silverware, bottles of all sizes and shapes, china, glassware, Indian basketry and jewelry for sale between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. Friday at Goodwill Industries, 800 W. Pacific Coast Highway.

Furniture and boxed lots of leftover sale items will go on the auction block at 7:30 p.m. with auctioneer Louis Moll taking the bids.

Goal for this year's sale is $10,000 to help the Women's Auxiliary meet its pledge of $18,000 to the Goodwill program for rehabilitation of the handicapped. Last year's net was $7,600.

One of the antiques donated to the sale is a "Firelight" round iron parlor stove manufactured by the Great Western Stove Co. around the mid-1800's and used in several motion pictures before being purchased by its donor, Mrs. Cora B. White of Leisure World, in 1940.

AMONG OTHER items to be sold are a four-shelved leaded window china cabinet, a treadle sewing machine and domed and leather-bound trunks.

General chairman for the event is Mrs. Ruth Anderson, auxiliary president. Assisting her will be Mmes. S. R. Hemmi, Ruth Barham, Clifford Morgan, Wilda Lewis, Archie Tower and Ruby Williams.

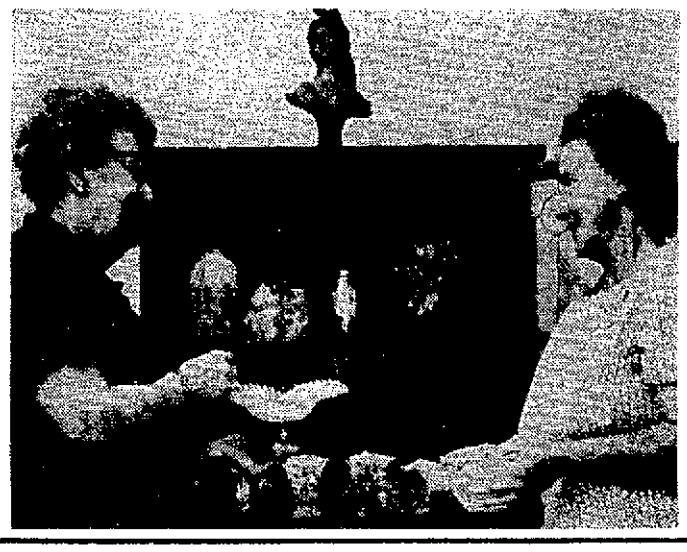

Co-chairmen are Mmes. Arthur Ebright and Myrtle Cain.

About 50 volunteer workers will assist during the sale.

Also helping with arrangements are Walter L. Case, Goodwill's executive vice president, and Jane Reynolds, executive secretary to the women's auxiliary.

WEARING a turn-of-the-century flowered silk dress, Mrs. Harold Welsh stokes the coals in her round parlor stove, circa 1900.

Staff Photos by Curt Johnson

ARRANGING display of antique glassware in leaded-window china cabinet are Ruth Anderson, chairman of Goodwill's antique auction and sale, and Mrs. Clifford Shirran.

HOME from club, Mrs. Archie Tower, still in her fuchsia satin gown, starts dinner on her 'new" gas range.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Marie J. Cook, 923 Gold Star Homes, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Goytia, 3020 Santa Fe Ave.

The bride was attired in a pink satin gown trimmed with pearls and lace train.

Mrs. Salvador Rangle was matron of honor. The bride's sister, Lani Cook, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Ellice Silverstein and Julia Martinez. Anna Marie Cook and Tori Ann Goytia were flower girls.

The bridegroom's brother, Robert Goytia, was best man. Seating guests were Lazaro La Hera, Ruber Lopez and John Olson. Ronnie Gutierrez was ring bearer.

A reception in the church hall was followed by a private reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rosario Garcia in San Pedro. After a honeymoon trip to San Francisco the couple will live in Long Beach.

The bride graduated from Polytechnic High School and attends Long Beach City College. Her husband, an alumnus of St. Anthony's High School, is serving with the U.S. Air Force.

EVERYBODY'S TALKING

About the Talking Apartment Designed And Furnished Exclusively By Edward's!

He decided to come as a barrel of laughs.

I've been on some tours in my day but this decor is the boldest blend of international diplomacy I've ever seen!

My husband's almost as dramatic as the imaginative genius utilized by Edward's in decorating this apartment.

The sofa told me Edward's can individually formulate a basic home furnishings and decorating plan that can be expanded at any time.

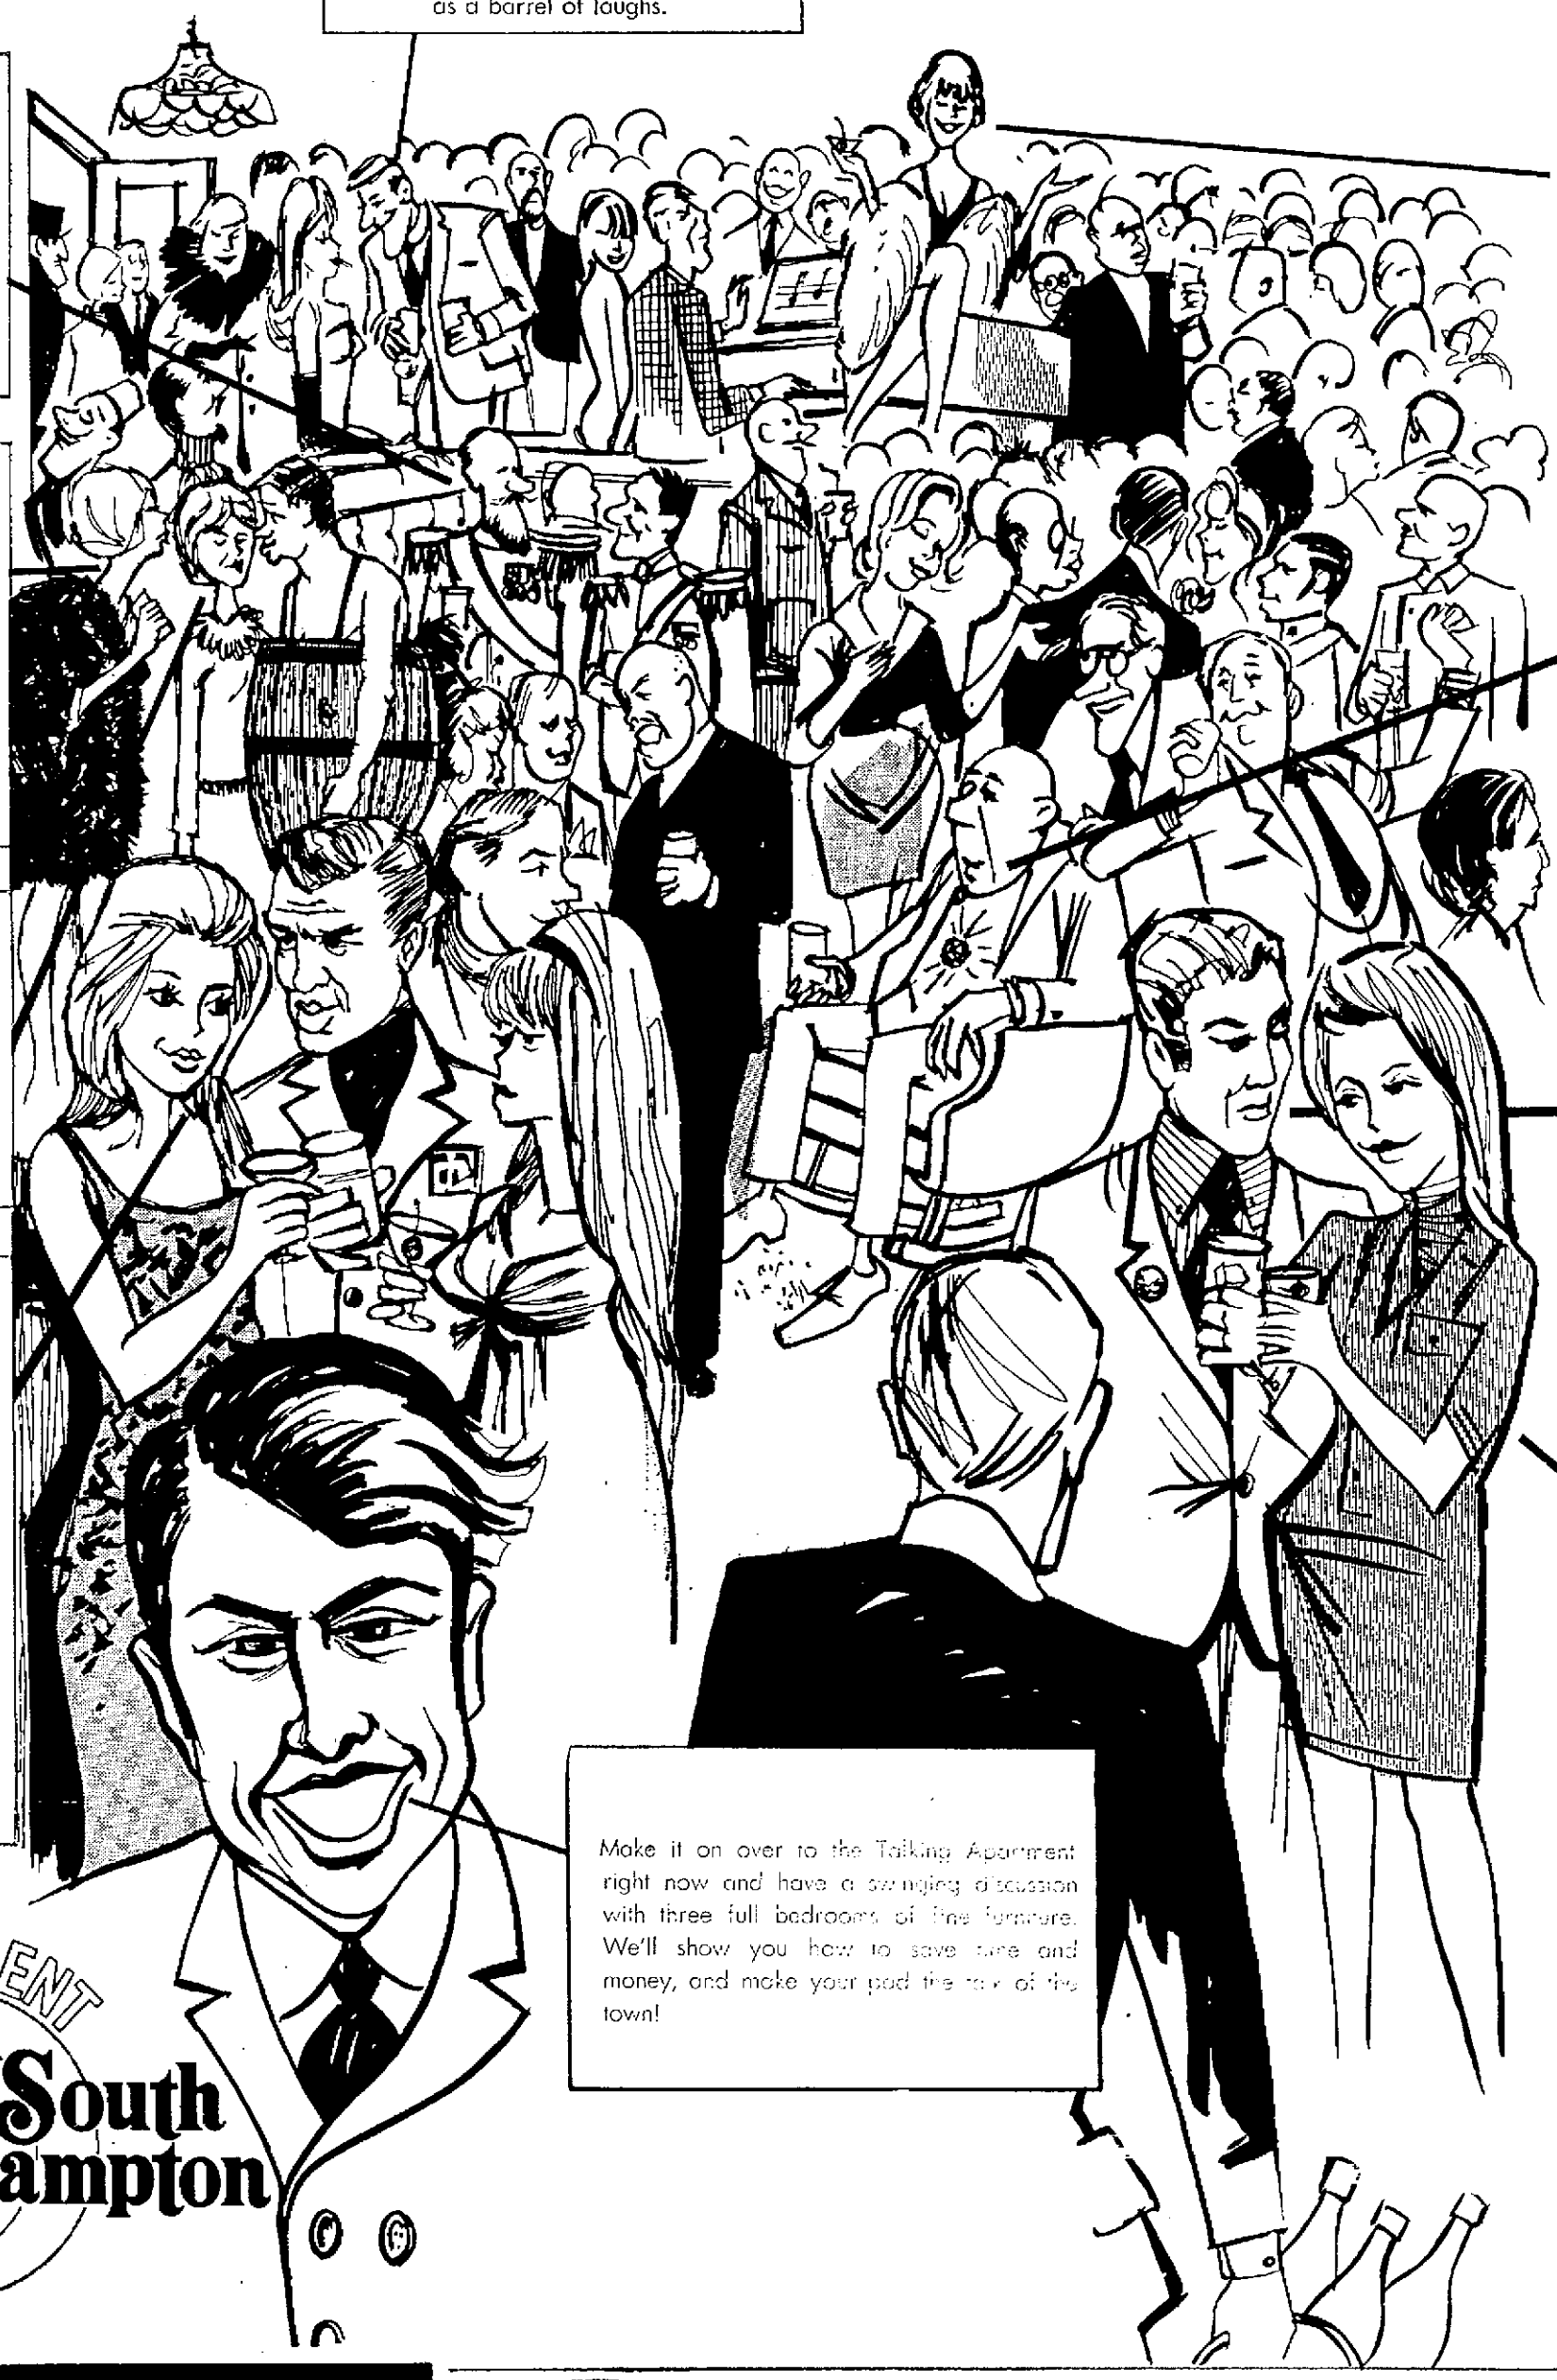

A toast! Edward's has done it again. This is the grooviest apartment ever!

This is the freshest pad I've ever been invited to. The bed just winked at me!

I just asked the loveseat to marry me.

I wonder if Edward's complimentary decorating service applies to the interior of my plane?

If I dressed as futuristic as this apartment looks I could be the first woman astronaut on the moon.

Make it on over to the Talking Apartment right now and have a swinging discussion with three full bedrooms of fine furniture. We'll show you how to save time and money, and make your pad the talk of the town!

are being made in the field, he points out. New carpeting, for example, is being made of fibers or synthetics that can't be damaged. Carpeting can be used inside or outside, and even around pools.

Layne Bennett, a certified member of A.I.D., formerly taught decorating at the Maryland Institute, Baltimore. He has had a half dozen years of design schooling, worked with William J. Sloane, New York, with department stores and has decorated homes of movie stars.

"We have tried to become NOW people," he says. We want white walls to give way to color that suits the individual home buyer." He points out how increasing shipping facilities from the East have heightened the excitement of decorating and furnishing for the Southlander.

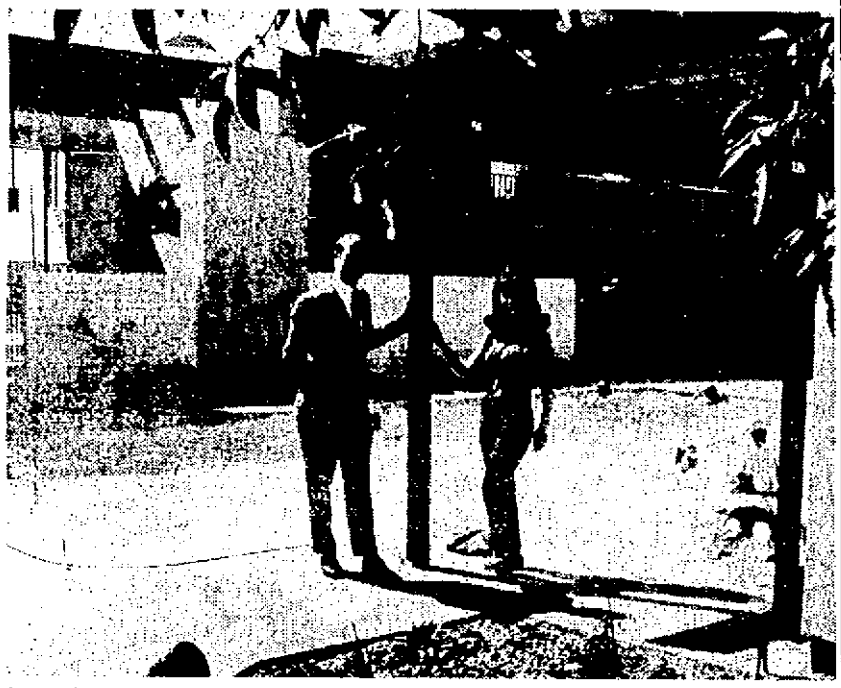

Bennett participates, and is available for decorating seminars before women's groups and such. He has taught the subject and lectured on the art.

Edward's is undergoing remodeling with the interior being done as separate and complete rooms. It is planned to soon show the 1970-71 home at the building, complete with bath and kitchen. Also Edward's is putting in a gift shop and instituting a decorating and furnishing training program for all salesmen with the company.

Gold Medallion Gaining Prestige

More and more Long Beach area families on the weekend apartment or home hunting merry-go-round are discovering the built-in electrical values of units displaying the Gold Medallion emblem.

For the uninitiated, H. G. Hanawalt, Southern California Edison Company district manager, explained the significance of the coveted emblem.

The Gold Medallion Award is part of the electric industry certification program which assures renters or buyers that the home or apartment displaying the emblem is electrically equipped to provide a lifetime of comfortable, carefree living.

The emblem is proof that everything in the home or apartment operates electrically, including the heating system.

The home or apartment provides better than average insulation to insure comfort and economy of operation for heating and cooling. Forced air ventilation is another requirement to expel damaging moisture generated from cooking, bathing and dishwashing chores.

The Gold Medallion also certifies that the electric wiring provides Full House-power; that provision has been made for proper lighting; that the kitchen contains modern electric cooling equipment; and that at least three additional labor-saving appliances are installed.

To identify the home, the Gold Medallion emblem may be displayed in one of several ways. Often it is a 3-inch gold disc affixed on or near the front entry; or it is incorporated into a doorbell illuminated push-button, or, for apartment houses, it might be a large bronze-cast plaque mounted on an exterior wall, or the circular symbol portion of the apartment house directory.

The emblem is registered in the U.S. Patent Office as a Certification mark of the National Electrical Manufacturers Association, and is awarded only by the local electric utility on the basis of approved Medallion Home Program electrical standards.

(Copies of the standards are available from your local Southern California Edison Company office.)

premiered in Moscow. I immediately wrote to individuals and publishers I know in East Europe trying to get a manuscript. None could get me the score.

"Shostakovich wrote the music for the great Russian soprano Galina Vishnevskaya; she sang it in Moscow with her husband, a fabulous cellist, Mstislav Rostropovich, performing, too.

"I learned that Music Corporation of America held the rights to the new work, but when I called them in New York I was told that opera star Anna Moffo and the Amsterdam Trio had an option until 3 p.m. March 1."

At 3:01 on March 1, Musafia phoned MCA. "Have they picked up the option?", he asked. No, he was told. "Then it's mine?"

The MCA representative agreed and promptly mailed the only available score —a photographed one of the original—to Long Beach.

Later, Musafia learned that Miss Moffo arrived immediately afterward to pick up her option. She received MCA's news with a torrent of tears and tantrums.

The CSLB professor scheduled "Seven Romances" for the Long Beach festival. To his astonishment, Rostropovich telephoned him April 11. The Russian musician and his wife, Galina, were in Minneapolis, mid-way in a tour of the United States. Shostakovich, said the caller, was insisting on a Carnegie Hall debut for his new composition.

Then Sol Hurok phoned from New York. "I have engaged Jaime Laredo as violinist," he said. "We must have you, too—you are the only pianist in America who knows the score!"

And so, with hasty rearranging of schedules and rehearsals, Musafia flew to New York Thursday morning to prepare for the Carnegie Hall debut. He will return to conduct his 5 p.m. class Monday at CSLB as usual.

Meanwhile, Miss Nixon is intensively studying her score. She will sing in Russian, as will other festival vocalists, and is being coached in the language by Josef T. Ctvrtlik, assistant professor of foreign languages at CSLB. The program will carry the English translations of the texts.

As for Musafia, he said, "When I first came from Roumania, someone told me always to be ready. Now, 20 years later, it is true. Twice in the same week I will play a premiere of Shostakovich's music. It is just from knowing the right piece at the right time!"

Time was when thin dime was a cup of coffee

By ERMA BOMBECK

It is rare that a protest captures my imagination like the one of a group of angry citizens in Illinois. They are making a stand against pay booths in public restrooms and call themselves the Paid Potty Protestors.

I read in a novel once — I think it was "Hotel" by Arthur Hailey — about a law that says one free booth had to be provided in every restroom. However, this cheap manager got around it by hiring some bum whose job it was to occupy the free booth all day, thus forcing everyone to cough up a big dime for the machines.

I never go into a public restroom but I remember the incident and I want to yell under the door, "That's a lousy way to make a living, fella."

Having no organized group until now, I have been working alone in my endeavors to stamp out paid facilities. I will go into a department store lounge and deposit one dime. When I emerge, I hold the door open with my foot until someone else enters and urge them, "Don't let the door close. Pass it along." I've missed a few planes by hostessing in restrooms, but it was worth it.

Department store lounges don't seem to be the culprits that night clubs are. One night after spending $25 for dinner, plus tips, I retired to the restroom. The booths were all rigged up like Ft. Knox. I paid the dime.

As I started to wash my hands, a form materialized at my elbow and tilted a small glass container of soap. I turned on the water all by myself, but when I turned a pair of hands was waiting with a towel. While I was drying my hands, the attendant obligingly brushed the dandruff from my shoulders, gave me a nose tissue to blot my lipstick and informed me graciously that I was dragging around a piece of toilet tissue on the heel of my shoe.

* * * *

SHE GESTURED to the perfume machine and I deposited a quarter, got a squirt of Chantilly Lace up my nostrils. When I went to leave she motioned toward a small silver shell that held big silver, plus several bills. I felt ridiculous. I had never written a check in a restroom before.

People cannot go on with the system as it is — the frustration of wandering up and down a darkened theatre aisle whispering, "You got change for a $5 bill, Mister? Tell you what. I'll trade you $5 for a dime!" The agony of sending a toddler under the booth door and telling him how to turn the handle while he is standing there flushing away, paying you no attention whatsoever.

Members of the Paid Potty Protestors, I am ready to serve. It will mark the first time, I daresay, a group of protestors ever had to wait in line to sit in.

the many who are poor, you can't save the few who are rich.'"

ESTHER SAYERS, director of Travelers Aid in Long Beach:

"The Aid to Mobile Migrants program lasted less than two years due to lack of federal funds. We never even had enough money to staff the mobile unit during week days — only evenings and weekends.

"That was a very minor part of the real function of Travelers Aid. Our major purpose is to assist newcomers or relocatees in any community who are having trouble away from home.

"We are a non-profit organization. Except for that brief attempt at poverty program participation, we never have received federal funds."

ROBERT E. LEWIS, governor of the Zuni Pueblo, Zuni, N. M.:

"We were granted $219,304 from the office of Economic Opportunity for a one-year "upgrading" program.

"As a result of the program, craftsmen have greatly increased their skills and production, and have learned the use of up-to-date equipment. In addition, the Pueblo has been able to set up its own independently-run marketing and distributing business."

CARL P. WALLACE, executive director of the Long Beach Commission on Economic Opportunities:

"It is a sad commentary when a person of Mrs. Newman's obvious intellectual background can damn programs, projects and people and still know so little about them. It is also obvious that she had done a great deal of research on the faults and problems of the projects she has never been involved in.

"Mrs. Newman cannot know the frustration that underpriviledged people share because they lack the necessary skills or training to find meaningful employment. She cannot know the disappointments and discontent of minorities who even have skills, and yet cannot find adequate employment.

"Pride returning to the face of a previously beaten man; eagerness bursting forth from a youth previously cloaked in apathy: these are the signs of success that Community Action programs look for: signs that can't be equated in terms of dollars and cents.

"Until Mrs. Newman, or any other critic, has shared in these joys and sorrows, let them cast not a stone, unless they are also prepared to assist in rebuilding meaningful programs."

New and Interesting Components Studied

When the R. A. Watt Company Inc. designs its homes, new and interesting components are studied to put together the most value, both from the standpoint of original cost and from that of economical maintenance.

South Hampton Apartments feature kitchen cabinets designed and fabricated by Sawyer Cabinet Inc. of Sylmar. The cabinets incorporate many innovations to enhance their appearance and to make them functionally appealing to the housewife.

An outstanding feature is the surfacing of the cabinets in attractive wood-grain patterns. With this surface, the need of refinishing is slight and the like-new look is maintained with the swish of a damp cloth or sponge. South Hampton Apartments chose to offer the Velvet finish with a slightly textured surface resistant to marring, fingerprints, and the usual household smudges such as crayons, grease and food spatterings.

Use of plastic in the South Hampton kitchens is in the kitchen countertops. Here again the beauty of attractive patterns and colors pleases the housewife while she enjoys the easy maintenance of a clean, smooth surface quickly and easily cleaned with a damp cloth.

won anything in my whole life. It's a great thrill. It shows I really did something."

AS AN OUTSPOKEN advocate of the sport, Mrs. Earl once wrote a letter to a "worried wife" concerned with the dangers of motorcycling. The letter appeared in a cycling magazine.

In it, she pointed out how she, too, had been concerned when her husband first took up the sport, but added, "if I had discouraged the original enthusiasm, I would have destroyed what turned out to be a wonderful family sport."

She reminded the wife that if her concern was about her husband getting badly hurt or killed, she thought "nothing about sending him off each day to work to battle hundreds of other automobiles on the highways."

Motorcycling, Mrs. Earl maintains, is "only as dangerous as the rider wishes it to be," noting that she's not out "to break a leg or my neck."

As a mother and housewife, Mrs. Earl doesn't allow herself to get bored because she believes a mother is "an individual" who must have something of her own.

HER INDIVIDUALITY extends to something the entire family can share in, even the in-laws. Her mother-in-law, Mrs. Del (Bernice) Earl, has taken up the sport, too.

The two women ride over the Dominguez Hills two mornings a week after the youngest boys go to nursery school.

The boys accompany them on all cycle outings, according to Mrs. Earl, who says she and her husband, who works for the Southern California Edison Co., believe in doing things with their sons.

"They get grubby and dirty . . . love it . . . and nobody yells at them all weekend," she said.

The oldest boy has a small Honda he rides now, while the two younger ones pedal around on their tricycles.

"Everybody has fun and comes home happy," she added, with nobody feeling like he has "sacrificed anything by going."

She claims motorcycling is a "great replacement for the tranquilizer" because it allows one "to release frustrations and tensions by concentrating on the machine."

In this way, "you blank out all the week's problems."

In a Saturday ceremony celebrated by the bride's two brothers in St. Cyprian Church nuptial vows were exchanged by Susan A. Hill and John Gary Kelly.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hill, 5242 Sandwood St., and Mrs. Jack Perry of Lakewood and the late Mr. Chris Kelly.

The bride was attired in a gown of Italian silk satin over taffeta with hand laced mantilla.

Violet Evanoff was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Shirley Lint, Mrs. Quentin Densen, Marylou Pavlock, Mary Flood, Doreen Abercrombie and Myra Misiak. The bridegroom's cousin, Khris Kelly, was flower girl.

Timothy Kelly was best man for his brother. Seating guests were Arthur Royer, Quentin Densen, John Misiak, Donald Oldenburg, the bride's brother, George Hill, and Gary Slatcher. Alfie Cebula was ring bearer.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents honored the newlyweds. Following a wedding trip to Carmel the couple will reside in Huntington Beach.

The bride graduated from St. Anthony's High School. Both attended Long Beach City College.

A 'Dream House' Talking Real Thrill to Visitors

Anyone with a desire to "hear the walls talk" will have the time of his life at the Talking Apartment in North Long Beach, which starts its eight day run today at noon.

The apartment will start chattering at The South Hampton, a new English-styled apartment complex built by the Boise Cascade Building Co.

Everyone is welcome to come "talk" to the apartment. It will answer questions promptly and completely.

The talking is not only between the visitors and the house, however. The furnishings, carpeting, kitchen appliances and even the car in the driveway will have hidden voices that will answer questions.

It will be highly desirable for many visitors to bring along "dream home" check sheets, those that show the many outstanding features they are looking for in an apartment.

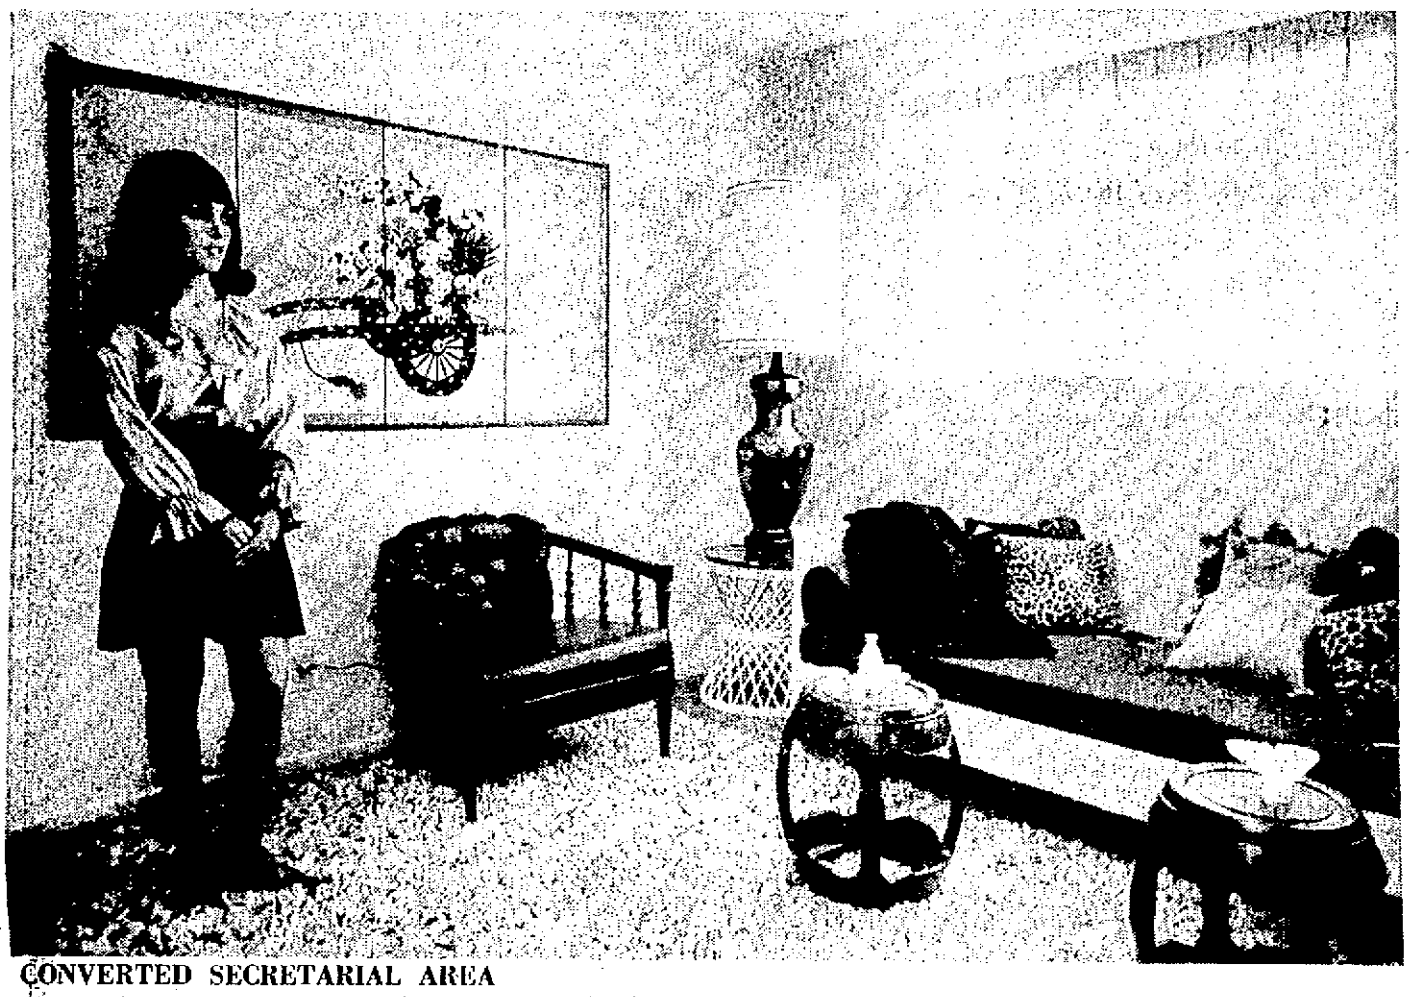

The Talking Apartment will probably have innovations, because everything that is new and modern and desirable has been included in this livable, beautiful apartment complex designed by Boise Cascade Building Co.

Not only will it have the very special features most people probably look for, but without doubt there will be found other innovations few have dreamed of. For this reason alone, it is wise to carry along a check sheet.

The voices are equipped to supply a tremendous amount of information about the products and people behind the scenes who had a part in building the showplace home.

Those wishing to know where to get a specific item, and how much it costs, can anticipate a ready answer.

The apartment is located in North Long Beach at 5500 Ackerfield Ave., just east of Cherry Ave., at South St. Ample free parking will be available adjacent to the fully landscaped model apartment area.

STILL IN THE CLOUDS over celebration of their 34th wedding anniversary is Mrs. Charles Smith. The Good Judge phoned to tell her to put away her paint brushes, he was taking her to dinner. When they arrived at International Airport, Eleanor thought perhaps they'd dine in the tower, but no such thing happened. Escorted into the American Airline Terminal, they boarded a plane and later dined in high-in-the-sky splendor at Mr. A's in San Diego.

A SILVER TROPHY recognizing her more than 50 years of service, particularly to shut-ins, is the newest in many prized possessions for Effie Christman who recently celebrated her 94th birthday. To mark the occasion, friends sent flowers, gifts and stopped by the apartment she shares with her son, Rowland, to wish her a happy day. Among them was Mrs. Marnette Peek who made the trophy presentation.

PRETTY Barbara Kolls of Torrance, bride-to-be of Dan Lungren, was introduced to her fiance's family and friends when his parents, Dr. and Mrs. John Lungren, entertained at a cocktail buffet in their Chestnut Avenue home. Convenient to their courtship is her post as personal secretary to the dean of USC's graduate school of business administration and proximity of her office to the SC's School of Law where Dan is a student.

Among the many guests were Dr. and Mrs. Leslie Irwin, parents of Mrs. Bish, her sister, Sandra Irwin, her grandmother, Mrs. Susan Stafford, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Ross, Nancy Simpson and Herbert Goldberg, Consul of Costa Rica Dr. Allen Hazelton and Mrs. Hazelton, and Mrs. Paul Frame.

Sincere Business Attitude the Key, Says Dean Jones

Hard work and an honest, sincere business attitude have been the primary factors in the continued success of Dean Jones, new owner of Glen Organ Ford, 220 S. Long Beach Blvd., Compton.

Originally from Southern California, Jones attended high school in East Los Angeles, then on to USC and service in the Navy.

Upon entering the business world, Jones was affiliated with the Chrysler factory in Salt Lake, Denver and Los Angeles.

In 1953 he began his selling career for a Plymouth dealer in his native East Los Angeles. Then on to general manager for a Dodge dealer and later a Pontiac dealer where he remained until 1960, at which time he purchased a Plymouth-Chrysler dealership in Modesto.

In 1961 it became the highest profit dealer enterprise. For the three subsequent years his dealership remained Number One as the highest penetrating truck dealership in the country. He opened the Dean Jones Leasing Company in 1963 and assumed an additional outlet, the Dollar A Day Rent A Car in San Francisco in 1967.

All subsidiary companies were consolidated in 1968 into the sale of all interests, enabling him to return to Southern California with the Glen Organ Ford dealership in Compton.

The name of the firm remained unchanged in order to reach the people through an already familiar and established facility.

Due to the attitude of fairness, as demonstrated by the fact that quality cars can be sold at a lesser profit than many other dealers, projected sales have doubled over last year.

Jones believes the key

New House Painting Process Cuts Labor Expense Sharply

NEW YORK (AP) — There's professional competition ahead for the do-it-yourself house painter; quite a switch these days when homeowners tackle just about any job in the book.

Sapolin, the 88-year-old paint manufacturer, has come up with a new system for applying its paints that cuts the cost of a professional paint job to the bone — and gets it done in as little as three to four hours for one coat.

Designed, of course, to sell Sapolin paints, the system, called Hydraposit, promises to do just that while relieving many a reluctant do-it-yourselfer of the title acquired not through choice, but financial necessity.

Utilizing an airless spray gun, the system deposits a smooth, even coating of paint 2½ times as thick as the ordinary single coat applied by brush or roller. It requires more paint than the ordinary job because of the additional thickness per coat, but takes one-tenth the labor because of the speed and ease of application. Paint goes on, under high pressure, at a rate of possibly 10 or 12 square feet per minute. Because it uses no air, "fallout" such as that from usual spray painting is minimized and extensive masking is unnecessary. Because of the additional labor involved, trim is not included except where painted the same color as the body of the house.

Sapolin, in a pilot operation last year, painted about 35,000 houses. This year the program gets under way in earnest. Operations currently are centered in the East and major population centers in the Midwest and on the West Coast. The goal is a nationwide operation, possibly through a chain of franchised contractors.

Hydraposit operators are trained and certified by Sapolin and are contacted through Sapolin paint dealers.

How does the system work? What does it cost?

Richard Eckart, president, explains:

A homeowner buys paint from a dealer at a cost of around $6.50 to $8 a gallon, the number of gallons determined by surface area of the house — about 7 gallons for one coat on an average 6 to 7 room house. The dealer recommends a contractor whose base charge for labor is $8 a gallon. Particularly difficult conditions — a hillside house, a rambling two or three-story house, any situation requiring scaffolding or considerable ladder moving, or a house surrounded by unusually heavy foliage or shrubbery, for instance, could raise this to as much as $10 a gallon but this is unusual, Eckart says. This labor charge, he says, compares with a national figure around $50 a gallon for a professional job.

Paint used is a water thinned exterior latex except for two coat jobs where a mixture of oil primer and wood preservative is applied as a first coat, the latex as a top coat.

The system is used on wooden clapboard, shakes and shingles and on asbestos shingles, stucco, cement and other masonry and metal. However, Eckart notes, special primer coats generally are necessary on the masonry and metal surfaces and severely weathered asbestos shingles, loose stucco or spackling cement require repair before painting.

Eckart says "under $100" jobs, paint and labor are possible on one-story, five-room houses for one coat on a surface prepared by the homeowner. Costs range upward depending upon the size of the house, surface preparation done by the contractor, whether one or two coats are used. A two-coat job on a wood surface carries a five-year guarantee covering paint and labor to apply it.

On an average split level, Eckart says, one coat on a surface prepared by the homeowner would cost about $145, compared with a probable figure of $400 for a professional brush job with a coating less than half the thickness. A typical two-story Colonial, with two car garage, would run about $200 for a two-coat job carrying a five-year guarantee. This would compare with, possibly, $700 to $800 for a standard two-coat brush job, he said.

For most houses, Eckart says, this means, perhaps, brushing off dirt and loose paint, some sanding, spot priming. If the homeowner does not want to handle this himself, the contractor will, employing "Hydraclean," a high pressure washing process at a cost of $30 to $45.

In this regard the service department has undergone major equipment improvements and updating technique to meet the demands of higher performance automobiles. In addition, a program of mechanic training is emphasized to improve all phases of mechanics and service.

Management selection is a primary concern of Jones. His insistence is upon experienced men who have not been associated with high pressure promotion techniques. In his own words "a dealership must be built upon integrity and fairness in order to sustain itself through the years."

'Palace' Restoration Financing Pledged

Walter S. Johnson, of San Francisco, who donated $2.3 million to the Palace of Fine Arts, says he is "arranging in my will for a million or two dollars to see that the restoration is finished properly."

Johnson, a retired businessman and financier, made the remark while opposing the installation of a statue by Spero Anargryos at the palace.

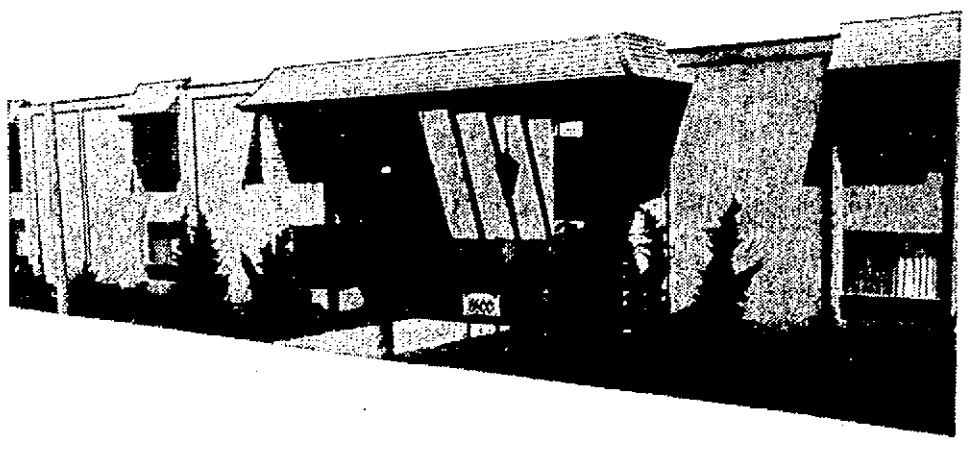

Th palace was built for the 1915 Pan Pacific Exposition. Besides the money Johnson gave for its restoration, the state has put up $2 million and the city $2.6 million.

With the restoration all but completed, the building still has no use, except to look pretty, Johnson says he favors using it as an art and science museum.

He was speaking at a meeting called by restaurant owner Victor Bergeron in behalf of Anargryos' "Sculpture for Peace," a 24-foot high, $70,000 bronze. The city art commission has disapproved it pending consultation with the sculptor.

Elegant style

If your hair is fairly long, and you're looking for a simple but elegant style that you can fix yourself, try this: Divide your hair into two sections — brush back and side hair into a high pony tail, and take the top front section, feather and spray it a little to give it some fullness, then wrap it around the rubber band holding the pony tail and fasten the piece of hair with a bobby pin underneath the pony tail. Feather and spray pony tail.

Fashion must

Long, sleeveless tunics over lightweight slacks are a spring and summer fashion must. The outfits can go for daytime or evening wear, depending on the fabric.

Dessert party

Good Sports will sponsor a dessert luncheon and card party Monday noon in the Garden Room, 909 E. Third St. The public is welcome.

What an Independent, Press-Telegram Carrier Route Has Done for Me

By TERRY AANDERUD
I, P-T Newspaperboy, Age 14

"My newspaper route has taught me a sense of responsibility and how to deal with different people."

"In the eight months I have had a route on Blackthorne, Hazelbrook, Graywood, Faculty and at the stores in the Lakewood Center, I have saved $100 in the bank and have added six new deliveries. With my checking account I was able to buy a television set and a track for my slot cars."

We salute Terry for his Bronze and Silver Awards and the one month he has towards a Gold Award. Keep up the excellent service, Terry.

A-1 Keeps Up on New Selections

Keeping "tab" with the times has created a new concept in kitchen appliance display at A-1 Home Appliance Co.

William B. Eastman, owner of A-1, has created a "mock kitchen" area in the front portion of his building with a cooking and barbeque island to make selections for a single appliance or for an entire kitchen easy work for the customer . . . Comfortably located directly behind the kitchen display is a two-lane showplace for built-in ovens, refrigerators, hooded ranges, dishwashers, washers and dryers.

Whether making individual selections, or if working with an architect, builder or contractor, the complete and beautifully organized display makes selections so much easier.

All purchases are backed up by A1's slogan, "Famous for Service."

Whether a single purchase of for an entire kitchem, you will find, quickly and economically, exactly what you need to complete your kitchen with the nation's top appliances.

'Apartment Talk' Warmly Received

The South Hampton, featuring the exclusive "Talking Apartment" in North Long Beach, has already met with an enthusiastic response from the public, notes Lucile Valek, Sales Representative for the Boise Cascade Building Co. Gold Medallion project.

The distinctively-styled apartments combine an ideal location, modestly-priced rentals and the carefree relaxed atmosphere that young adults are looking for today.

Residency at The South Hampton is limited to persons 16 years of age and older.

Under the direction of project Manager Bruce Huntley, and Construction Superintendant Bill Johnson, work has progressed steadily, despite the unprecedented winter rains.

When completed the development will comprise 600 units.

The South Hampton Apartments are available in one, two and three bedroom plans, featuring one and two baths. Deluxe appointments include large walk-in closets, separate dining rooms (in some plans), custom made draperies, Frigidaire dishwasher, wall to wall 100 per cent continuous filament nylon carpeting and marble top pullmans and mirrors.

Rentals at The South Hampton start at $140 a month.

Wide variety of exteriors is a distinguishing characteristic of The South Hampton, a $5,700,000 apartment complex now leasing in the North Long Beach area. The Gold Medallion, all electric project opens an eight day Talking Apartment promotion today.

Lose 10 Lbs. In 10 Days On New Grapefruit Diet

This is the revolutionary new grape fruit diet that everyone is suddenly talking about. Literally thousands upon thousands of copies have been passed from hand to hand in factories, plants and offices throughout the U.S. and Canada. Word of its success has spread like wildfire, because this is the one diet that really seems to work for most overweight people. A well known Toronto columnist recently praised it to the skies. He reported losing 20 pounds quickly and easily long after he despaired of ever getting down to his wartime weight of 165 pounds. All this without cutting out the occasional beer or rye. If it is followed exactly the average overweight person should lose 10 pounds in 10 days. There will be no weight loss in the first four days. But you will suddenly drop 5 pounds on the 5th day. Thereafter you will lose one pound a day until the 10th day. Then you will lose 1½ pounds every two days until you get down to your proper weight. Best of all there should be no hunger pangs. Now revised and enlarged, this new diet plan lets you stuff yourself with foods that were formerly 'forbidden' . . Such as big steaks, trimmed with fat, Southern fried chicken, rich gravies, mayonnaise, lobsters swimming in butter, bacon, fats, sausages and scrambled eggs. You can eat until you are full, until you cannot possibly eat any more. And still you should lose 10 pounds in the first ten days, plus 1½ pounds every two days thereafter until your weight is down to normal. The secret behind this new "Quick weight loss" is not generally known. Fat, it has been theorized, does not form fat. Perhaps fat fights fat. And the grapefruit juice in this new diet might act as a catalyst (the "trigger") to start the fat burning process. You stuff yourself on the permitted foods listed in the diet plan, and still lose unsightly fat and excess body fluids. When the fat and bloat are gone you will cease to lose weight, and your weight will remain controlled. A copy of this new and startlingly successful diet plan can be obtained by sending $2 to The Unconditional money-back guarantee. If after trying the diet plan you have not lost 7 pounds in the first 7 days, another 6 pounds in the next 7 days, and 1½ pounds every two days thereafter, simply return the diet plan and your $2 will be refunded promptly, and without argument. Tear out this message as a reminder. Decide now to regain the trim attractive figure of your youth, while still enjoying hearty breakfasts, lunches and dinners. Jacques Lipchitz, unchallenged as one of the great masters of contemporary sculpture, will be guest of honor today at the unveiling of his monumental bronze in The Music Center plaza at 4:30 p.m.

The 10-ton, 35-foot sculpture expresses in its title, "Peace on Earth," the fervent wish of peoples of the world. Commissioned by Lloyd E. Rigler and Lawrence E. Deutsch at a cost of $250,000, the work is one of the most significant in Southern California.

Lipchitz and his wife have come to Los Angeles for the dedication of the sculpture on which he has worked for the last three years in Piestrasanta, Italy.

Taking part in the dedication will be the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra which Alfred Wallenstein will direct in the fourth movement of Dvorak's "New World Symphony" and a selection from Handel's "Water Music."

Dr. Franklin D. Murphy, member of the board of governors of the Performing Arts Council, will be master of ceremonies. William L. Pereira will pay tribute to his fellow architect and designer of The Music Center buildings, the late Welton Becket.

Other participants will be Ernest E. Debs, chairman of the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors; Henry Dreyfuss, chairman of the art committee of the Performing Arts Council; and George London, artistic administrator of the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C. The program will be directed by composer and music director John Green.

PALOS VERDES Community Arts Association invites artists to submit paintings, sculpture, collages or graphics for its ninth annual juried show May 18 through June 29 in Palos Verdes Art Gallery, 2400 Via Campesina.

Entries may be delivered to the gallery Tuesday between 5 and 9 p.m. and Wednesday between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. Two works may be submitted by each artist at a fee of $3 each. Leonard Edmunson, Richard Haines and Robert Comara will select winners of $300, $200 and $100 awards.

THE PUBLIC is invited to a reception in Pacific Coast Club today from 2 to 5 p.m. to mark the opening of an exhibit of paintings by Evelyn Carpenter. A member of California National Watercolor Society, the artist has two paintings in the society's touring shows.

THE Y'S OWL, fine and folk art gallery sponsored by the YWCA, Sixth Street and Pacific Avenue, will mark its first anniversary with an exhibit from Wednesday through May 31. A display of paintings by Ben Messick, who teaches at the Y, will be a special feature. The public is invited to a coffee hour from 10 a.m. to noon on opening day.

PROFESSIONAL artist Margaret Cannon of Fullerton will judge 230 entries in Seal Beach Elementary School Art Show which will open Friday at 3:30 p.m. in Seal Beach Methodist Church, 148 10th St., Seal Beach. The exhibit will run through May 12.

BELLFLOWER Art Association will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at Caruthers Park, 10500 Flora Vista St., Bellflower. Demonstrator will be Kero Antoyan who was born in the highlands of Armenia during the 1914-15 Turkish massacre. His first art training was in Marseilles, France. In 1934 he came to New York to continue his art studies and since has won many awards.

The public is invited to attend this meeting.

Reception showcase for opera theater

Pacific Opera Theater will give a miniature showcase performance at an 8 p.m. champagne reception Thursday, May 15, in the Penthouse Dance Studio of Pacific Coast Club, 850 E. Ocean Blvd.

Guests of honor Alberto Bolet, conductor of Long Beach Symphony, and Nadine Connor of the Metropolitan Opera, will speak briefly.

The program will include arias and ensembles from operas by Verdi, Puccini, Mozart Bizet and Johann Strauss. Singers will be Pamela Gates, Paul Johnson, Kathleen Martin, Caroline Ognibene, Marlene Silvers and Barney Spencer.

PACIFIC OPERA THEATER is open to opera trainees who are past college or university workshop stage; singers receive instruction and are given the opportunity to perform their roles at least four times. Musical director is Edward Schick; production coordinator and co-founder with Schick is Josephine Lott.

Until May 12, invitations to the reception may be reserved by calling Mrs. John Ferguson, 1869 Litchfield Ave., between 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. or Bernice Basore, 255 Glendora Ave., between 9 a.m. and noon.

Artists: creator versus reporter

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Two of the current shows at Long Beach Museum of Art offer a vivid contrast of the artist as creator and the artist as reporter.

Arnold Mesches sketches, timely, emotion-loaded, offer one man's impressions in the Navy hearing rooms of "Pueblo" and "Sealab III" and at the Sirhan pre-trial hearings. Here, the artist's eye and pen substitute for the barred cameras. The work was done under the stress of time as well as the artist's obvious sympathy for the "under dog."

Since the sketches are topical, the seeing of them is also emotion-charged. They are caricatures, rather than art, by my definition. Mesches comes closer to art in the instances when time permitted more leisured observations of groups of spectators or reporters of "The Closed Court."

A group of sketches of Comdr. Bucher as he broke down during Rosales's testimony is fraught with pathos. A portrait drawing of Sirhan is highly romanticised, giving no hint of the self-anointed avenger.

INQUIRY INTO PUEBLO INCIDENT, MESCHES, 1969

UPSTAIRS, 15th and 16th century master prints are from a different universe. They are not only high art, they are ultimate craft. Both from the North (Schongauer, Durer, Cranach, etc.) and the Italian (Mantegna, Caracci, etc.), these are highly intellectualized. Done in the most advanced technology of their day, they are packed with the excitement of discovery — anatomy, perspective, modelling.

Mantegna was exploring the figure in its universal humanness from all aspects, with tour de force foreshortening and projection in space. The focus of art in the 15th century was just turning from God to Humanism.

Durer's three works in this show are exquisite impressions with detail so fine as to appear velvety. Early apprenticed to his goldsmith father, he had turned to art and visited Renaissance Italy, especially Venice. He had seen the great Colleoni (mounted warrior) by Verrocchio. He absorbed the anatomical knowledge of the Italians.

DURER'S "The Knight, Death and the Devil" combines Italinate monumentality with the microscopically-observed detail and Gothic religiosity of the North. His is a Christian knight out to battle evil amidst the terrible turmoil of the early Reformation when, not only the Church, but the entire social fabric, was being rent asunder.

In sum, the two kinds of work, the Renaissance prints and the Mesches quick sketches, cannot be compared. But in each series, the artist's eye is performing its function which is to give the viewer new ways of seeing.

These exhibits will continue through May 18.

Mom's a real wheeler

By DIANNE SMITH

Today's young mothers are leading an adventuresome life if DeeDee Earl of Long Beach is any example.

Her hobby prompts her husband, Leroy, to comment, "funny, you don't look like you ride a motorcyle."

She responds in kind since he shares her enthusiasm for competitive motorcycling.

Mrs. Earl (her real name is Diana) is 27 and a perky mother of three very active sons—Bobby, 8, Mark, 5, and John, 4.

Describing herself as an "over-enthused" participant in the sport, she sounds off against those persons who echo the stereotype image of "big, bad black leather jackets" for people who ride motorcycles.

She admits, however, she had a similar idea until two years ago when her husband bought a dirt bike and went hill climbing on weekends.

More or less in self-defense, Mrs. Earl started riding about a year and a half ago. "If your husband is taking off on Sundays, who wants to sit home?" she asked.

BOTH MEMBERS of the Southern California Trials Organization, the Earls compete in English trials at various locales, making it a family outing. "It's a fantastic family sport," avows Mrs. Earl, and "we've met fine, fine people."

With several trophies to prove her ability in manuevering the slow-motion obstacle course, Mrs. Earl explains the trials involve "no speed," but merely "skill and control of the bike," which is accomplished by standing up.

She points with pride to the trophies displayed in the living room of their home at 2666 Jackson St., saying "it's the first time I ever

Welfare leaders attack 'half-truths'

By ROBIN PAXTON

"Patty Newman is uninformed and outdated. She obviously has a smattering of information that makes good headlines."

The outspoken attack came from Terrazenieia Mosley, family service aid and state treasurer of the California Welfare Rights Organization.

It was in rebuttal to a speech by Mrs. Newman before the Lakewood-Long Beach Federated Republican Women in which the housewife-author, outraged by the way taxpayers' dollars are being spent on anti-poverty programs, revealed results of her own personal investigations into those areas.

"Does she know the budget?" queried Mrs. Mosley. "The state maximum doesn't even come up to a person's basic needs. A mother with five children under 13 years of age is expected to live on $328 a month.

"If they started cutting the spending surplus off the top, there might be enough to give to the poor who need it."

Mrs. Newman's public attacks (see I, P-T story, April 22) on the Zuni Indian "upgrading" program, Travelers Aid's temporary involvement in war on poverty, an AFDC Mothers Club (Aid to Families with Dependent Children) and on portions of the Economic Opportunity Act brought equally outraged reactions from others deeply involved in these programs.

HUGH McISSACS executive director of Family Service of Long Beach.

"Those kinds of statements, stemming from partial truths, are very damaging. Mrs. Newman has grossly distorted the entire welfare picture.

"I especially worry about the effects of such statements on the welfare clients. They are very sensitive about their position in society. Remarks such as Mrs. Newman's make the client feel more outcast than ever.

"This is an interdependent society. And, as the late John F. Kennedy said, 'If you cannot help

DEBUT DATES

Two firsts for 'Seven Romances'

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

Today at 5:30 p.m. in New York City's Carnegie Hall, Julien Musafia will be pianist for the Western world premiere of "Seven Romances on the Words of Alexander Blok" by Dimitri Shostakovich.

Friday at 8 p.m. the California State College, Long Beach, associate professor again will play the work in the CSLB Little Theater on the second night of a Shostakovich Festival.

Appearing with him here will be a stellar company—Marni Nixon, soprano; Gabor Rejto, cellist; and Henri Temianka, violinist.

That this latest work of Shostakovich, foremost contemporary Russian composer, is to be performed in Long Beach is a signal honor for the community and the college.

It is tribute, too, to Musafia's dedication to Shostakovich's music.

Last year, he undertook performance, for the first time in the United States, of the composer's "24 Preludes and Fugues, Op. 87." Twelve were performed then; the second 12 will be played Thursday and Friday nights, six at each program.

Another Shostakovich first for this area will be "Eleven Jewish Songs, Op. 79" for soprano which Jean Tyndall, contralto Irish Eshelman and tenor Frank Allen will sing, with Musafia accompanying, Thursday night. Musafia and Dottie Nix will play "Concertino for Two Pianos, Op. 94."

Friday night, in addition to the final six preludes and "Seven Romances," the program will include "Trio, Op. 67" performed by Temianka, Rejto and Musafia.

Only because Musafia is a persistant fellow, not easily dissuaded from his pursuit of Shostakovich's music, will Friday night's Long Beach audience be the first, outside of Moscow and New York, to hear "Seven Romances."

In his studio at his home, 441 Margo Ave., Musafia explained.

"A year ago I read in the New York Times that this newest work had been

BIKINIS AND FRAYED NERVES

Sun still reigns at Palm Springs

By FRED TAYLOR KRAFT
Travel Editor

PALM SPRINGS — By latest actual count — which was last week — this lively desert oasis had 3,928 swimming pools.

KRAFT

And last weekend, sparkling like sapphires under a gentle 82-degree sun, these little gems appeared to be holding a popularity contest.

The bikini crowd was out in force, splashing and diving and laughing, and then, at pool's edge, transforming shapely pink bodies to an envied, rich browns . . . and more than a few fiery reds.

It was a typical Spring day for what this carefully scrubbed and manicured spa of 22,000 likes to call itself "America's Foremost Desert Resort."

Palm Springs' 224 hotels — a city ordinance prohibits "motels" — were jumping, not like Easter weekend when the influx reached 85,000 (not including the hippie invasion) but with an estimated, easy-to-accommodate 35,000 to 40,000 sun seekers.

Yes, sun seekers. For, like the land of the ancient Aztecs, the sun reigns supreme. Old Sol puts in his appearance 350 days a year, declares the area's cheer section. But unlike Aztecland, it is seldom that anyone goes on the sacrificial altar. The worst you can get, the script reads, is a horrible sunburn. And, even then, only when you are most indiscreet.

* * * *

LAST WEEKEND was typical, said Tom Hanlon, who runs the show at the Convention & Visitors Bureau. Thousands showed up for the day. Others, many of whom were "regulars," wasted little time in their rooms, of which 6,300 are available in the various caravansaries. Instead, they fanned out, often at sunrise, for horseback rides, cycling, tennis, golf (take your pick of 20 fine courses) — and for poolside exercise and sun. Or for visits to the Indian canyons, hikes in the desert, a sacred Indian Springs bath, or a tramcar ride over a living canyon to snowbanks on a mountain top.

It is no exaggeration to use the superlative "gorgeous" to describe the desert as it appears right now. Lupine on the hillsides. Fields of yellow vie with sagebrush and purple sage. Desert verbena spreads a purple carpet for miles on end. Wax-like cacti blooms and scarlet tips of the ocotillo and the stately Lord's Candle add their aristocratic splendor.

To miss it would be tragic.

* * * *

MAN'S ingenuity, plus a perfect setting and an abundance of water, makes Palm Springs a byword with the knowledgeable traveler. The resort is, more than anything else, a haven from the rat race, a place to unwind without stripping a gear.

The city fathers long ago thought of many laws aimed to conserve the quiet way of life. For instance, they banned flashing, revolving or neon signs, perhaps arguing that a bikini would be much easier on tired eyes.

And after the precious panorama of a desert sunset, Palm Canyon Drive, the "main street" that boasts big name shopping salons, 17 art galleries and scores of chic boutiques, springs to subdued life with the flocculent glow of lights from each of 1,700 palm trees that line both sides of the thoroughfare for more than three miles. Don't look for a power or utility pole on Palm Canyon Drive.

* * * *

LIKE everywhere else, the saw and the hammer play a daily encore of their symphony. New subdivisions. A new mobile home court (17 dot the area at this writing). But prospective builders of high rises take heed: you cannot, in Palm Springs, cast your shadow on your neighbor's property.

Scarcely a week passes that another new pool-equipped "hotel" of from three to 300 rooms does not open its doors.

With all of this activity, the existing hotels and inns lose not a whit of their prestigious following. This includes such ritzy watering holes as the Canyon Hotel and El Mirado Hilton as well as stopping places where the open shirt-and-slacks crowd — the hoi polloi — feels at home.

Rates, naturally, are highest from December through April, the height of the winter season. Then they slip a little. As an example, at the Gene Autry Hotel (4200 E. Palm Canyon Dr.) where I enjoyed just about every amenity I could think of, daily rates for two persons start at $16-$20 during the winter season and scale down to $14-$18 the remainder of the year.

Here's a dot on the Southland map where you expect, and get, fine dining. Many of the hotels have their own restaurants. Elsewhere are posh spots featuring cuisine from all over the world.

* * * *

NO VISIT to Palm Springs is complete without a ride on the $8.1 million Aerial Tramway — not merely to be able to say you have ridden on the largest passenger-carrying tram in the world but because of the myriad unexpected thrills it provides.

During the 13½-minute, two-and-a-half-mile ride from the desert floor to the mountain station 8,516 feet above sea level, the earth slips away at a seemingly incredible rate. When you make your way to the observation platforms at the Top of the Tram, the view of Palm Springs and the entire valley — as far as the Salton Sea — is something to behold. On a very clear day, I am told, the southern view extends to the Mexican border and the eastern view almost to Arizona.

On the way up, at this time of the year, the canyon below and on both sides of the brightly-painted cable cars is alive with plant life. In fact, more than 100 species of desert flora thrive in the area, attests Patricia Moorten who with her husband "Cactus Slim" Moorten operates the fascinating Moorten's Desertland Garden on South Palm Canyon Drive. Many little desert creatures have homes here, too, not to count a reported contingent of hippies who presently are growing vegetables which they peddle to downtown food emporiums. Keen-eyed mountain goats, perched like sentinels on lofty crags, take in the whole show.

* * * *

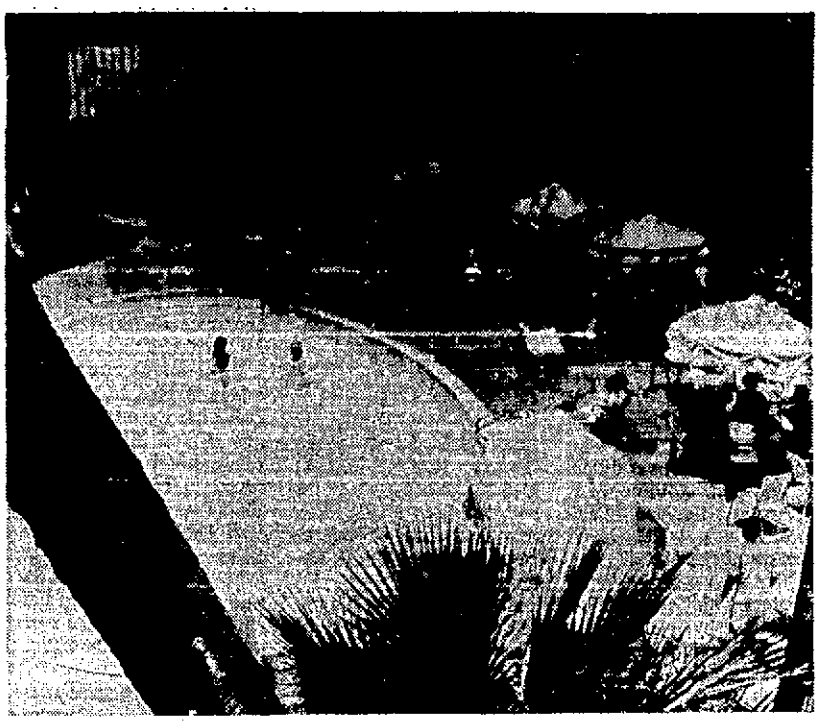

SIXTEEN inches of snow crowned the mountain station and its Alpine Chateau restaurant last Sunday. The temperature at noon was a crisp 40 degrees. In that exhilarating pine-scented air there was not so much as a whisp of smog.

(The Tram, incidentally, is open daily from 10 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. through June 30, will close Tuesdays and Wednesdays from July 1-Oct. 31.)

At the Tram's Valley Station is a comparatively new Animal Park where the ever-so-young at heart may pet deer, goats and other animals, watch brightly-plumaged birds do high-wire acts, and cheer seals and dolphins as they perform in a big pool.

* * * *

EACH OF Palm Springs' exclusive features contributes to the town's ever-widening image. Together they accounted for a 7 per cent rise in visitors during the past winter season over the same period a year ago. But with freeways and a the frantic free-for-all for the fast buck being what they are, it figures.

SWIMMING AND SUNLAZING are year-around activities at Palm Springs. At latest count there were 3,928 pools, each reinforced by an army of bikinis. (Palm Springs Convention & Visitors Bureau photos.)

Machete island

Jamaica's universal tool is the machete. Jamaicans dig with it. They chop wood with it. They cut grass, peel sugar cane and breadfruit with it. They scratch heads and pick teeth with it. The machete is often called a combolo, which ordinarily means companion or friend.

Shoot 'em up!

Fireworks and spectacular illuminations will be held on the Rhine from Braubach to Koblenz on August 9th. Dubbed "The Rhine in Flames", this annual display culminates with pyrotechnics over the Ehrenbreitstein Fortress at Koblenz.

Goodwill to put antiques on auction block

Looking for the unusual? Try browsing at the annual "Flea Market" sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary to Goodwill Industries.

The one-day event will feature antiques, novelty items, silverware, bottles of all sizes and shapes, china, glassware, Indian basketry and jewelry for sale between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. Friday at Goodwill Industries, 800 W. Pacific Coast Highway.

Furniture and boxed lots of leftover sale items will go on the auction block at 7:30 p.m. with auctioneer Louis Moll taking the bids.

Goal for this year's sale is $10,000 to help the Women's Auxiliary meet its pledge of $18,000 to the Goodwill program for rehabilitation of the handicapped. Last year's net was $7,600.

One of the antiques donated to the sale is a "Firelight" round iron parlor stove manufactured by the Great Western Stove Co. around the mid-1800's and used in several motion pictures before being purchased by its donor, Mrs. Cora B. White of Leisure World, in 1940.

AMONG OTHER items to be sold are a four-shelved leaded window china cabinet, a treadle sewing machine and domed and leather-bound trunks.

General chairman for the event is Mrs. Ruth Anderson, auxiliary president. Assisting her will be Mmes. S. R. Hemmi, Ruth Barham, Clifford Morgan, Wilda Lewis, Archie Tower and Ruby Williams.

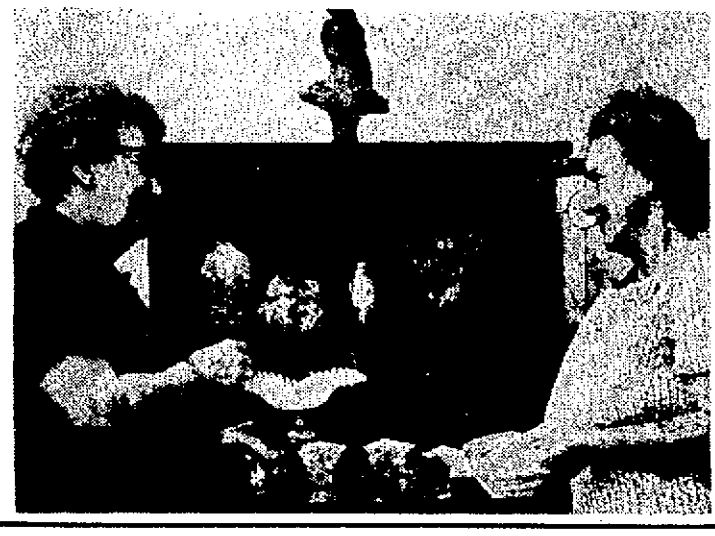

Co-chairmen are Mmes. Arthur Ebright and Myrtle Cain.

About 50 volunteer workers will assist during the sale.

Also helping with arrangements are Walter L. Case, Goodwill's executive vice president, and Jane Reynolds, executive secretary to the women's auxiliary.

HOME from club, Mrs. Archie Tower, still in her fuchsia satin gown, starts dinner on her 'new" gas range.

WEARING a turn-of-the-century flowered silk dress, Mrs. Harold Welsh stokes the coals in her round parlor stove, circa 1900.

Nuptial vows were exchanged Saturday in St. Anthony's Church by Barbara Cook and Frank Goytia.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Marie J. Cook, 923 Gold Star Homes, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Goytia, 3020 Santa Fe Ave.

The bride was attired in a pink satin gown trimmed with pearls and lace train.

Mrs. Salvador Rangle was matron of honor. The bride's sister, Lani Cook, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Ellice Silverstein and Julia Martinez. Anna Marie Cook and Tori Ann Goytia were flower girls.

The bridegroom's brother, Robert Goytia, was best man. Seating guests were Lazaro La Hera, Ruber Lopez and John Olson. Ronnie Gutierrez was ring bearer.

A reception in the church hall was followed by a private reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rosario Garcia in San Pedro. After a honeymoon trip to San Francisco the couple will live in Long Beach.

The bride graduated from Polytechnic High School and attends Long Beach City College. Her husband, an alumnus of St. Anthony's High School, is serving with the U.S. Air Force.

JEAN PIERRE HALLET, author and white blood brother of the Masai tribe in East Africa, will lead five wild animal photo safaris into Dark Continent.

White brother of Masai leads Congo safaris

By PAT MCDONNELL

If you're the type who enjoys off-beat vacations, how about a three-week Congo safari guided by a 6-foot, 5-inch white blood brother of the Masai?

Five such safaris will be conducted this summar by Belgian-born sociologist and best-selling author Jean Pierre Hallet.

Each of the three-week safaris will be limited to 20 participants in order to provide advantages and freedom of an independent tour without its prohibitive cost. No guns will be allowed . . . only cameras.

Transportation will be aboard Sabena Belgian World Airlines jets from New York via Brussels to Kinshasa (the former Leopoldville).

The Hallet tours mark the first time groups of Americans will visit the Republic of the Congo since it gained independence in June 1960. East African portion of the itinerary includes Uganda, Kenya, Tanzania and Kenya.

* * * *

THE OPPORTUNITY to meet and understand the diverse tribes inhabiting Africa will be heightened by the presence of Hallet, now a resident of Los Angeles.

The only white man ever admitted to the Bwame Secret Society, Hallet was twice decorated by Belgium's King Baudouin for his endeavors to better living conditions of primitive tribes in the Congo.

He is the author of "Congo Kitabu," named the best book of 1966 by the American Library Association, and "Animal Kitabu." His latest work, "Pygmy Kitabu," scheduled for publication in the Fall, has been predicted to raise a storm of controversy among orthodox anthropologists.

After completing his education at University of Brussels and the Sorbonne in 1948, Hallet was assigned to the Congo as an agronomist and sociologist. He learned six aboriginal languages while working with the natives on a man-to-man basis.

* * * *

IN 1955, famine threatened the people of southern Burundi and he dynamited more than seven tons of fish off the shore of Lake Tanganyika. A defective fuse exploded prematurely and he sustained severe wounds and the loss of his right hand.

Refusing to concede to a handicap, Hallet returned to the Ituri Forest, where he became the first man to teach Pygmies to cultivate the soil, read, write and build houses.

Drawing upon his years in the Congo, Hallet will introduce tour participants to the amazing traditions and ceremonies of the Batutsi (Watusi) and Bambuti Pygmies.

* * * *

IN EAST AFRICA, participants will mingle with the Kikuyu, Wakamba and Masai and come face-to-face with African wildlife in the game reserves of Uganda, Kenya and Tanzania.

Although limited to 22 days, tours have been planned so that participants will explore in depth —rather than travel through —a few select areas.

Special features include traveling through national parks and game reserves in four-passenger safari vehicles allowing for maximum viewing and photographing of game through windows and observation roof hatches.

Departure dates from New York are July 7, 21, 28, Aug. 25 and Sept. 8. Information is available from Hallet at 5630 W. 79th St., Los Angeles.

Wildflowers bloom in Yosemite area

Veritable corridors of wildflowers — especially brilliant because of the heavy precipitation of the past winter — will greet visitors to Yosemite National Park during the coming weeks.

The annual display already has begun in the foothills leading up to Yosemite and in a short time the profusion of color will spread throughout Yosemite Valley and later up to the high country. Set against a backdrop of some of the most magnificent Yosemite waterfalls in many years, the wildflowers this year will present a particularly colorful spectacle.

As the roads leave the flat San Joaquin Valley and enter the hilly areas, white meadow foam and wild clover fill the hollows and yellow mimulus mark the damp margins of short-lived streams. The yellow-white tidy tips and pink-yellow harlequin lupine are everywhere.

* * * *

ALONG THE Merced River Canyon, from Briceberg to the Arch Rock entrance station there are yet numerous redbud in bloom. Also called the Judas Tree — a rather unattractive bush for most of the year — it is at the height of its beauty in springtime. The deep-toned blue dicks toss their heads high in the breeze; the paler, duo-tone baby blue eyes cling close to the earth; the popcorn flowers shimmer silvery-white between them. Occasionally a golden poppy cup casts a flicker of light on the south and west facing canyon slopes. Within 10 days, these steeply pitched hills should be aflame with California's state flower.

Continued mild weather should bring the color parade marching up the river canyon to Yosemite Valley.

* * * *

SUPERINTENDENT Lawrence C. Hadley announced, meanwhile, resumption of all park services which were cut back last December in order to carry out reductions in personnel ordered by the Congress and imposed by the Bureau of the Budget. At that time the Visitor Center services were reduced to a five-day week, and the manning of the entrance stations was discontinued.

The Visitor Center is now operating on a seven-day schedule and, effective May 15, the entrance stations will be manned on a daily basis also. Camping by assignment, which received its initial test in Yosemite Valley during the 1968 summer season, will commence on May 25.

EASY TO REACH, TOO!

Night clubbing, skiing great at Park City, Utah

By CHARLES SUTTON

George Jessel, we're told, once described the Pink Pussycat as having "the most exciting girls in Movietown." He was referring, of course, to the obvious charms of its strippers.

It's been 10 years since I paid a visit to the Pink Pussycat, so my recollection of the girls is rather vague. But I recently happened to catch one of its alumni — a dancer named Jerri Dean — at a place called the C'est Bon, a motel-convention center in Park City, Utah. And I'm happy to say Jessel's eyesight isn't failing him. Not by any means.

If Miss Dean is any indication of the caliber of the club's dancers, they're not only exciting, they're downright sensational.

Yet what struck me about Miss Dean the night I watched her was not her alluring curves, or the sophisticated grace of her movements — all of which she combines to great sensual effect. It was the setting she was in.

* * * *

LET'S FACE IT, Park City is neither Hollywood nor New York. The C'est Bon, moreover, is neither the Pink Pussycat nor the Copacabana. And the last place you expect to see the likes of Miss Dean is in an ancient mining town in the middle of a state noted for anything but a swinging night life.

But then, you soon come to expect such incongruities — or are they contrasts? — of Park City.

In Robber Baron days, the city was a booming mining town of some 15,000 people — a polyglot population of just about every nationality imaginable, from Chinese to Basque. But today, with mining on the wane, it's a mountain hamlet of 1,600 townsfolk who, sniffing the winds of change in America, have decided to go where the latest action is: into tourism.

Travel and RESORTS

In the past six years, they're transformed the 100-year-old town into an important skiing center in the West.

* * * *

THE CITY is nestled comfortably between two large mountain ranges: the Wasatch Range and the Uinta Mountains. But it's not as inaccessible as might first appear. Air West proved that to a group of travel agents and newsmen who boarded one of its planes out of Los Angeles International Airport recently. In a matter of some three hours, we were in Park City, the bulk of our trip — 2½ hours — being spent on the flight to Salt Lake City. From Salt Lake, it was a 30 to 40-minute ride by limousine to Park City.

Mining still goes on in the town. Mining and skiing exist cheek by jowl, in fact. And where mining has died, the city fathers have wisely elected to let its ghosts live on. All of which points again, to what must surely be one of the more flagrant if charming cases of civic schizophrenia in the country.

If the city has preserved its historic quality, it has done so, moreover, without succumbing to the usual vulgarities of commercialism — so far, at any rate.

A walk down Main Street is not the usual excursion through Tourist Gulch. It's a visual evocation of the city's past, a stroll through an authentic Western mining town at the turn of the century.

* * * *

MOST OF THE store fronts are pretty much what they were in the old days, even if some of them are hoarded up. The Elks Lodge hasn't changed. And if some of the stops are selling ladies' chapeaux and antiques (which they were probably doing in the town's heyday, too), you'd hardly know it from the outside.

The street's only architectural anomaly, so far as I could tell, is the motel I stayed in, a large nondescript structure that seems to belong to no particular era or locale.

I can't say enough for its comfort, hospitality and historic atmosphere — all of which were inside. It was the outside that struck me as being out of place.

In any case, the motel was built before the city fathers decided to preserve the street's architectural uniformity and flavor with a strict new building code.

Frankly, I'd hate to see them change the style, any more than I'd like to see Miss Dean change hers.

CARDIFF'S NATIONAL MUSEUM

Where the heart of Wales is kept

By H. DENNIS-JONES

In Wales you may meet a nationally renowned poet who earns his living as a railway porter — or a gifted singer to the harp who shears sheep.

Despite modern progress, many ancient traditions live on—refreshing and delightful to non-Welsh visitors in this year of Welsh festivity, "Croeso '69".

To understand what Wales is all about, there is one essential. A visit to the National Museum, in Cardiff.

Here are the geology, wild life, plants and history of Wales, and also an art gallery and a new and developing Department of Industry.

Snowdonia, the picturesque mountain region of North Wales, can be studied in detail. So can the slate quarries of Bethesda (among the world's largest) and the slate mines nf Blaenau Ffestiniog.

* * * *

THE BOTANICAL and zoological sections give a complete view of the country's flora and fauna, including rarities like bugula, a sea animal that looks like seaweed; the Skomer vole, found only on an island off Pembrokeshire in southwest Wales; and gwyniad, a freshwater fish living only in Bala Lake in Snowdonia.

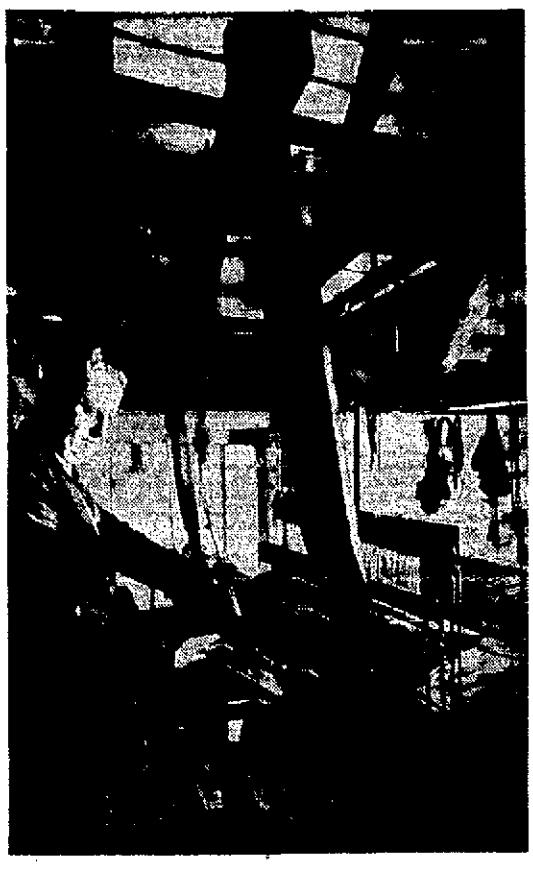

Striking exhibits include early Celtic metalwork and pottery and tiles from the works depot of the Roman XXth legion, whose base was Chester.

For life in Wales since 1550, take a five-mile ride from the centre of Cardiff to St. Fagan's Castle, formerly the home of the Earls of Plymouth. It is now a fascinating folk museum.

* * * *

AN OLD Norman castle's outer defense wall still bounds part of the property. Furniture and fittings are mostly 17th century, and give a lively idea of life in those times. The museum's most exciting exhibits are scattered around the 100-acre grounds.

They consist of old buildings of every sort, taken from their original positions and re-erected. There are farmhouses; a famous old Unitarian chapel; a woollen mill of the type which made Welsh flannel famous; a colorful Welsh gipsy caravan; a 16th century barn. Coming are a tannery from Rhayader, Radnorshire, an 18th century toll-house from Aberystwyth, and a cock-pit from Denbigh.

WEAVER DEMONSTRATES on a genuine 18th century loom at Wales' National Museum where you can buy precious hand-woven and hand-dyed scarves, blankets, skirts and hoods. (British Travel Ass'n photos.)

The 15th century farmhouse is the most primitive: smoke from the fire on a open hearth escaped through the thatch. The Cilewent farmhouse(1580) sheltered men and beasts alike, cattle and humans sharing a single entrance while horses had their own door (it is a type of 'longhouse' once common on Welsh moors.) The two-story farm from Kennixton (1630, with later additions) is far more complex, and has an elaborate wood-frame construction.

* * * *

WHILE THE museum's mill from Esgair Moel illustrates fully the almost vanished rural woollen industry, a wood-turner and a basket-maker produce and sell traditional wares on the spot.

Then there is a large and growing collection of dialect recordings, folk songs, and folk lore to keep the rest of Wales alive.

Here you will find what makes Wales, Wales.

TRAVELING WITH DELAPLANE

La Paz: Baja's barefoot capital

By STAN DELAPLANE

LA PAZ, BAJA CALIFORNIA — Here the warm, sunny desert meets the warm, blue sea. You sit barefoot on a shady, tiled porch with a bottle of tangy Mexican beer and a handful of fresh shrimp. No point in buttoning your shirt. There's no place to go and nobody to notice what you're wearing.

There's none of the ritziness of Acapulco, but there are good hotels in La Paz. Further south on the tip of the Baja peninsula, they've built some that are de luxe.

Hard to believe this land has stayed so remote sitting on the edge of California's 20 million people. Swimming is grand from miles of white sand beaches. Fishing is out of this world. There's hundreds of miles of desert where no man but Indians have set foot. Still it's only two air hours from Phoenix or Los Angeles. And less than $100 round trip.

* * * *

"We are planning to drive into Mexico, but friends told us they were bitten by gnats or mosquitoes . . ."

MOSTLY a little biter called jejene. Carry a spray can of "Off!" You find these gnats along the coast. If you are the kind that gets bitten a lot, don't get a beach hotel. Get one on higher ground. The jejene doesn't seem to be able to get altitude.

* * * *

"Could we drive down to Baja California? To La Paz?"

PEOPLE who've done it say it's the most rugged road in the world. Only passable in high cars with four-wheel drive. So desert if you wander off the road you die.

Now I don't think there's enough road down around La Paz that you want a car. Air taxi takes you down to the tip.

You can bring a car across from Mazatlan by a good, modern ferry that runs overnight a couple of times a week. But this place doesn't strike me as moving around country. It's a place to take off your shoes and let them bring what you want to you.

Not much shopping around here. This is free port country. No tax, no duty. But Baja hasn't done anything important with it.

"Will we have trouble understanding traffic laws in Mexico?"

GOING through towns you run into one-way streets, and the marking is different than ours. At corners, you look up on the side of the building. There will be an arrow pointing the direction of traffic with the word "transito" or "circulacion".

If the traffic policeman has his back or front to you stop. Side to you, go.

Holland-America Line has announced the appointment of H. (Dick) Barkhuis, formerly a district sales manager, as regional sales manager for its Western Region with headquarters in Los Angeles.

Barkhuis is married to the former Helga Schroeder. They live in Palos Verdes.

Mexican artisans show skills at expo

SAN DIEGO — Spectators at San Diego's Mexican exposition, "Fiesta 200," which last week opened for a six-month run in this city's Old Town as the highlight of the 200th anniversary of California's founding, will have an unusual opportunity to see for themselves how the ancient arts and crafts of Mexico are perpetuated by generations of families.

Visitors may watch, by the hour if they wish, skilled artisans create exquisite pieces of jewelry, or observe Indian women weaving beautiful shawls and rugs, or stand in awe as Mexican glass blowers perform feats of magic with long tubes, out of which emerge various shapes of molten glass, to become today's much-in-demand decorative items.

The exposition also will feature woodworkers taking a block of rough wood and fashioning it into a beautiful piece of furniture, or a small sculpture, or a demonstration of leather tooling by some of Mexico's top craftsmen, who will turn out such popular products as handbags, belts, saddles and sandals, before your very eyes.

Silversmiths will be seen at their meticulous jobs of making candlesticks, trays, bowls, medallions and other things typically Mexican in design.

* * * *

PAPIER MACHE figures, currently enjoying a great popularity in this country, will be made from start to finish as spectators watch and admire the dexterity with which the artisans mold the finished product.

Pottery and ceramics, long a distinctive Mexican art form, will be on exhibition as the Mexican potters go about their tasks of creating all manner of functional and decorative pieces for the home.

There will be a copper workers section where natives of Mexico will exhibit the skill handed down to them by their ancestors in the art of forging intricate gigantic platters, candelabra, vases, pitchers and bowls.

It will, in short, be a liberal education and insight into the world of Mexican creative art that has existed for hundreds of years.

DEAR ABBY

These uninvited guests really 'expected'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Every Sunday our mother serves dinner between 12:30 and 1:00. Recently, certain relatives have been coming to visit us at exactly that time. Before we know it, they have their coats off and they stand there.

Naturally, Mom asks them to stay for dinner. They have six in their family and we have seven in ours. What kills us is that they know perfectly well that we have our Sunday dinner around that time.

Abby, we are writing this for our Mom because she is such a sweet, kind-hearted person she wouldn't say anything to hurt their feelingss, but feeding SIX extra people every Sunday is getting too much for her. Can you give us a solution?

MOM'S KIDS.

DEAR KIDS: Sitting down at a table for 13 every Sunday, especially when preparations have been made for only seven, can be pretty unlucky for the hostess.

But if she's too timid to speak up, there's nothing you can do. (P.S. After a while these "unexpected" guests become expected.)

DEAR ABBY: Why are so many educated, well-bred people so sloppy about R.S.V.P. invitations?

Several of my friends have gotten married recently, and beautiful engraved "R.S.V.P." invitations were sent, and the number of responses they received was pathetic!

One of the girls had 296 acceptances, and over 400 guests showed up! (She assumed that those who didn't respond were not coming.)

Another friend of mine had to make over 100 telephone calls to find out who were planning to attend.

I simply cannot understand why people will not take a few minutes to write a short note or make a telephone call. Please print this. I have a feeling I am not alone.

APPALLED.

DEAR APPALLED: You are not alone. Those who ignore R.S.V.P. invitations are lazy, disorganized, thoughtless, or careless.

CONFIDENTIAL TO F.L., LAKE CHARLES, LA.: Your biggest problem, Madame, is that you've never had a really BIG problem. There is nothing like a toothache to make you forget about your mosquito bites.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

JULIEN MUSAFIA WITH PHOTOGRAPHED SHOSTAKOVICH SCORE
—Staff Photo by CHUCK SUNDQUIST

AFTER 20 YEARS

'Always be ready' advice pays dividends

premiered in Moscow. I immediately wrote to individuals and publishers I know in East Europe trying to get a manuscript. None could get me the score.

"Shostakovich wrote the music for the great Russian soprano Galina Vishnevskaya; she sang it in Moscow with her husband, a fabulous cellist, Mstislav Rostropovich, performing, too.

"I learned that Music Corporation of America held the rights to the new work, but when I called them in New York I was told that opera star Anna Moffo and the Amsterdam Trio had an option until 3 p.m. March 1."

At 3:01 on March 1, Musafia phoned MCA. "Have they picked up the option?", he asked. No, he was told. "Then it's mine?"

The MCA representative agreed and promptly mailed the only available score —a photographed one of the original—to Long Beach.

Later, Musafia learned that Miss Moffo arrived immediately afterward to pick up her option. She received MCA's news with a torrent of tears and tantrums.

The CSLB professor scheduled "Seven Romances" for the Long Beach festival. To his astonishment, Rostropovich telephoned him April 11. The Russian musician and his wife, Galina, were in Minneapolis, mid-way in a tour of the United States. Shostakovich, said the caller, was insisting on a Carnegie Hall debut for his new composition.

Then Sol Hurok phoned from New York. "I have engaged Jaime Laredo as violinist," he said. "We must have you, too—you are the only pianist in America who knows the score!"

And so, with hasty rearranging of schedules and rehearsals, Musafia flew to New York Thursday morning to prepare for the Carnegie Hall debut. He will return to conduct his 5 p.m. class Monday at CSLB as usual.

Meanwhile, Miss Nixon is intensively studying her score. She will sing in Russian, as will other festival vocalists, and is being coached in the language by Josef T. Civrtlik, assistant professor of foreign languages at CSLB. The program will carry the English translations of the texts.

As for Musafia, he said, "When I first came from Roumania, someone told me always to be ready. Now, 20 years later, it is true. Twice in the same week I will play a premiere of Shostakovich's music. It is just from knowing the right piece at the right time!"

Symphony soloist

Long Beach mezzo-soprano Marvelee Cariaga will be soloist with the Santa Monica Symphony Orchestra today at 8:30 p.m. in Santa Monica Civic Auditorium, Main Street and Pico Boulevard, Santa Monica. Victor Bay will conduct. Admission is free.

Wayne Newton Show due at Melody

Tickets are on sale for the Wayne Newton Show Friday through next Sunday at Melodyland Theater, Anaheim. Comedian Jackie Kahane shares billing. Newton sings and plays eight instruments; he has been performing professionally for 20 years — since he was 6 years old.

Talking Apartment Opens at Noon for 8-Day Showing

MODEL APARTMENT AT LUXURIOUS SOUTH HAMPTON BEGINS TALKING TO VISITORS TODAY. FURNITURE AND APPLIANCES TALK, TOO

Talking Apartment Chats Away With Right Answer

It's the Talk of the Town, as old Ted Lewis and the torch singers used to croon. And the declaration is well used in describing the unique Talking Apartment shown for the first time today with the grand opening of the South Hampton lease apartment in North Long Beach.

The innovation is this — viewers and visitors interested in a certain aspect of the layout, the furnishings, carpeting, fixtures, drapes or so forth, those who have questions, have but to ask and "the walls will answer!" Even the Ford cars out front will talk back. All this in addition to feasting the eyes on sumptious living quarters, even if only to dream.

THE SOUTH HAMPTON Talking Apartment, at 5500 Ackerfield Ave. just east of Cherry Ave. at South Street, opens at noon today for an 8-day showing. The public is urged and invited to experience this novelty in customer convenience.

Showing Sunday through Sunday the "Talker" also will be gabbing away from 3 to 7 p.m. daily.

Heralded as the ultimate address for sophisticated adults, the all-electric, Gold Medallion complex has been thought out as a haven for young moderns. It was reasoned that there is a need in the crush of every day living for a place, sort of a hideout, for those of the same trend of mind and social desires. Therefore, there are restrictions on age levels and there are pet requirements.

The English style, $5,700,000 six-hundred-unit complex of moderately priced dwellings marks the Boise Cascade Building Company's entry into the Long Beach apartment scene. The firm has built more than 30,000 homes in California, so is no newcomer.

Work on the complex is progressing rapidly with 114 units completed and ready for the taker. Business hours at the South Hampton office, not to be confused with Talking Apartment visiting hours, are 9:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. and applications are being processed. Lucile Valek is the sales and rental agent for South Hampton.

Among the other selling points, South Hampton is located in a strategically enviable area within minutes of the Long Beach Freeway, the San Gabriel

3 Million

At the end of 1968, there were more than 3 million electrically-heated homes in the United States, according to figures compiled by the Southern California Edison Company.

Decorator-Furnisher Team Has Eyes on New Concepts

When a luxurious lamp or love seat, or a distinctive drape or dining suite answers questions at the Talking Apartment, it will be expounding the "Total Look" concept of the team that planned the decor and furnished the showplace that opens at noon today in North Long Beach.

That team would be Layne Bennett, master interior decorator for Edward's Fine Furniture at 1639 Artesia, and Edward Barbara, owner of the firm who are participating in the Boise Cascade Co. presentation of the new South Hampton apartment complex to the public for the next eight days.

During the showing on the two Sundays and daily, furniture, appliances, carpets, walls and the like will "answer" questions from visitors. Also, Bennett and Barbara will be on hand to field any furniture or decoration queries too tough for the "small voices."

"We have tried to create a chic, smart style on a low budget," they say. To be found in the deluxe unit used for the Talking Apartment showing, Bennett and Barbara have included most of the styles — Italian, Oriental, Spanish and Contemporary with original oil paintings by Southern California artists.

"WE HAVE USED a piece here and a piece there as we feel the atmosphere demands, attempting to get away from the notion that a bed should have with it a huge chest of drawers and a pair of lamp tables, for instance.

"What we are after is a lived in, loved in look . . . something functional for the young moderns. For this result most of the furnishings and colors are contemporary, for contemporary means NOW," say Bennett and Barbara.

Edward Barbara of Edward's Fine Furniture has been in business for 15 years as a fimly store in the surrounding area. Of course any of the furnishings in the Talking Apartment are available at his place, or, if desired, most any demands a new occupant desires can be met, he says.

Edwards explains that his business is undergoing an upgrading to higher quality furniture by creating an atmosphere of new design — well constructed with a high fashioned look, fitting the average pocketbook. Great strides

Half and Half

Edison Electric Institute predicts that by the year 2000 there will be some 70 million electrically heated homes — nearly half of the dwelling units in the United States.

ONLY 32 HERE 10 YEARS AGO

Long Beach Now Has Over 10,500 Total-Electric Apartment Units

The Total-Electric Living concept — which will play a leading role in open house activities of the "Talking Apartment" at South Hampton beginning today — is fast becoming a trend in the Greater Long Beach area.

Wm. C. Drewry, Southern California Edison Company vice president, in making that statement, supported it with figures on growth of the total-electric Gold Medallion concept in Long Beach apartment construction.

"Ten years ago, when the Edison Company began its Medallion program in Long Beach, there were only 32 total-electric apartment units in the area," he said.

"Today, the Long Beach district has more than 10,500 Gold Medallion apartment units on company lines — and more than 2,000 of these were added in the past two years," he said.

Long Beach residents now living in total-electric apartments and homes have discovered they chose a dwelling in which electricity performs an amazing variety of tasks.

Residents know how electricity heats, air conditions, cooks, preserves food, provides lighting and entertainment, encourages hobbies and makes it easier for them to enjoy happier, fuller lives.

Total-electric living has no limits, Drewry said, adding:

"It's fully adaptable to every need, every desire and every improvement one may decide upon tomorrow, next month of even years from now."

Total-electric apartments or homes are designed according to the individual needs of the occupants. It's what's inside that counts.

A total-electric apartment or home is a series of ingenious electric living centers, featuring electric heating. These electric living areas can be simple or complex, small or large, thrifty or fabulous. They can be centers for work, dining, health, rest, recreation, entertainment or education.

For those who desire the ultimate in gracious and practical living, there's the Gold Medallion apartment or home — such as the South Hampton Apartments.

A Gold Medallion residence may be of any size, style or price, as long as it meets these four requirements:

It is equipped with flameless electric home heating.

It is wired for Full Housepower. That means adequate switches, outlets and circuits designed to meet present and anticipated future needs.

That the kitchen contains modern electric cooking equipment and that at least three additional labor-saving major electrical appliances are installed.

And it has Light for Living. That means it has good lighting for work, leisure and beauty.

A Gold Medallion on an apartment or a home is a symbol of prestige because it indicates that the residence or apartment is equipped solely with electricity, the pure energy. So, Drewry points out, it is clean, quiet and in keeping with the modern and future trends in home design.

Douglass Martin in Charge of BC Apartment Division

Douglass Martin, veteran Southern California construction executive, heads the newly formed Boise Cascade Building Co.'s Apartment Division.

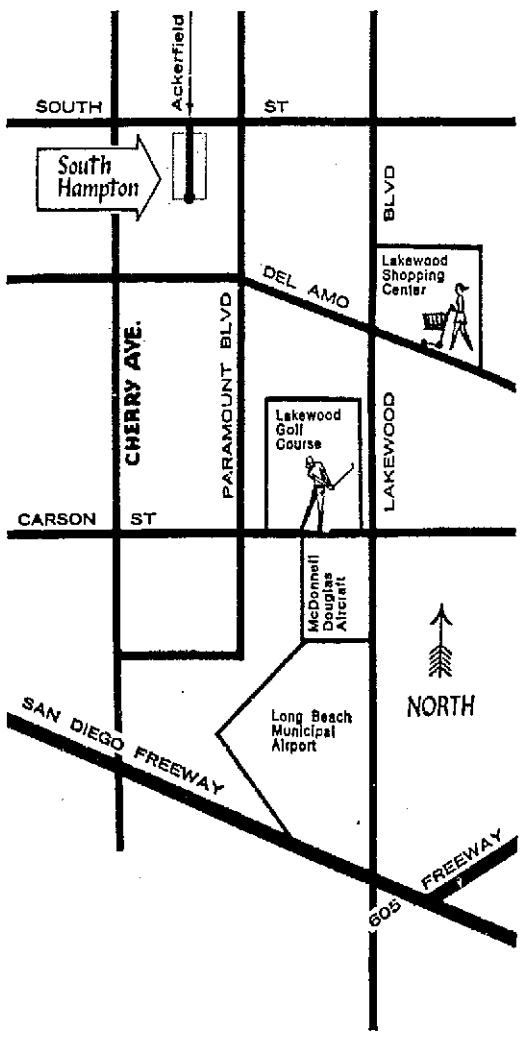

The apartment division was created by Boise Cascade late last year to help meet the increasing demand for multifamily housing units expected during the next 10 years.

DOUGLASS MARTIN

Martin, General Manager of the Division, was formerly Vice President in charge of all construction for S. V. Hunsaker & Sons, one of the nation's largest builders. Prior to that he held a similar position with the Donald L. Bren Co. in Encino, one of the original developers of Valencia in the Saugus-Newhall area.

Martin is assisted in his work by Stan Rossi, another veteran real estate man, who serves as Marketing Manager for the Apartment Division. He joined the Boise Cascade Building Co. last year. Prior to that he served as Sales Manager for S. V. Hunsaker & Sons for 10 years.

Strategic Location a Big Item

The South Hampton is strategically located and is readily accessible from the San Gabriel River Freeway, the San Diego Freeway or the Long Beach Freeway. It is just a few minutes drive from Long Beach Municipal Airport. Recreational facilities close to home include the challenging Lakewood Golf Course. The Lakewood Shopping Center is one of the most complete of its kind, offering convenient one stop shopping just a few blocks away.

Recreational facilities at the South Hampton will include a large recreational center, and heated and filtered swimming pools.

The electronically equipped apartment will be chatting with visitors for the next eight days, and will be open from noon until 7 p.m. today and from 3 p.m. until 7 p.m. Monday through Saturday. There is no admission charge for The Talking Apartment, which is located at 5500 Ackerfield Ave., just east of Cherry Ave., at South Street.

Housing Now by Computer

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — An experimental computer program is being used by a New Jersey agency to tell officials instantly if a given housing proposal is economically feasible.

Used by the New Jersey Housing Finance Agency, the computer's calculations reveal if a housing proposal would yield enough income to pay its costs and if the rental levels would be within reach of people with middle and low incomes.

Time was when thin dime was a cup of coffee

By ERMA BOMBECK

It is rare that a protest captures my imagination like the one of a group of angry citizens in Illinois. They are making a stand against pay booths in public restrooms and call themselves the Paid Potty Protestors.

I read in a novel once — I think it was "Hotel" by Arthur Halley — about a law that says one free booth had to be provided in every restroom. However, this cheap manager got around it by hiring some bum whose job it was to occupy the free booth all day, thus forcing everyone to cough up a big dime for the machines.

I never go into a public restroom but I remember the incident and I want to yell under the door, "That's a lousy way to make a living, fella."

Having no organized group until now, I have been working alone in my endeavors to stamp out paid facilities. I will go into a department store lounge and deposit one dime. When I emerge, I hold the door open with my foot until someone else enters and urge them, "Don't let the door close. Pass it along." I've missed a few planes by hostessing in restrooms, but it was worth it.

Department store lounges don't seem to be the culprits that night clubs are. One night after spending $25 for dinner, plus tips, I retired to the restroom. The booths were all rigged up like Ft. Knox. I paid the dime.

As I started to wash my hands, a form materialized at my elbow and tilted a small glass container of soap. I turned on the water all by myself, but when I turned a pair of hands was waiting with a towel. While I was drying my hands, the attendant obligingly brushed the dandruff from my shoulders, gave me a nose tissue to blot my lipstick and informed me graciously that I was dragging around a piece of toilet tissue on the heel of my shoe.

* * * *

SHE GESTURED to the perfume machine and I deposited a quarter, got a squirt of Chantilly Lace up my nostrils. When I went to leave she motioned toward a small silver shell that held big si'ver, plus several bills. I felt ridiculous. I had never written a check in a restroom before.

People cannot go on with the system as it is — the frustration of wandering up and down a darkened theatre aisle whispering, "You got change for a $5 bill, Mister? Tell you what. I'll trade you $5 for a dime!" The agony of sending a toddler under the booth door and telling him how to turn the handle while he is standing there flushing away, paying you no attention whatsoever.

Members of the Paid Potty Protestors, I am ready to serve. It will mark the first time, I daresay, a group of protestors ever had to wait in line to sit in.

the many who are poor, you can't save the few who are rich.' "

ESTHER SAYERS, director of Travelers Aid in Long Beach:

"The Aid to Mobile Migrants program lasted less than two years due to lack of federal funds. We never even had enough money to staff the mobile unit during week days — only evenings and weekends.

"That was a very minor part of the real function of Travelers Aid. Our major purpose is to assist newcomers or relocatees in any community who are having trouble away from home.

"We are a non-profit organization. Except for that brief attempt at poverty program participation, we never have received federal funds."

ROBERT E. LEWIS, governor of the Zuni Pueblo, Zuni, N. M.:

"We were granted $219,304 from the office of Economic Opportunity for a one-year "upgrading" program.

"As a result of the program, craftsmen have greatly increased their skills and production, and have learned the use of up-to-date equipment. In addition, the Pueblo has been able to set up its own independently-run marketing and distributing business."

CARL P. WALLACE, executive director of the Long Beach Commission on Economic Opportunities:

"It is a sad commentary when a person of Mrs. Newman's obvious intellectual background can damn programs, projects and people and still know so little about them. It is also obvious that she had done a great deal of research on the faults and problems of the projects she has never been involved in.

"Mrs. Newman cannot know the frustration that underpriviledged people share because they lack the necessary skills or training to find meaningful employment. She cannot know the disappointments and discontent of minorities who even have skills, and yet cannot find adequate employment.

"Pride returning to the face of a previously beaten man; eagerness bursting forth from a youth previously cloaked in apathy: these are the signs of success that Community Action programs look for: signs that can't be equated in terms of dollars and cents.

"Until Mrs. Newman, or any other critic, has shared in these joys and sorrows, let them cast not a stone, unless they are also prepared to assist in rebuilding meaningful programs."

Blue Stars to convene

Department of California, Blue Star Mothers of America, will stage its 24th annual convention May 18 through 21 at Edgewater-Hyatt House.

Mrs. Joseph Hodge will serve as convention chairman, assisted by Mrs. Norman Reilly. Both are members of North Long Beach Chapter 8.

Elected delegates from Long Beach Chapter 1 are Mrs. Maurice E. Russell, president, and Mrs. Leola Kirby with Wilma Milheisler as alternate. Other delegates from the chapter are Mmes. Cleon M. Barker, past national president; Robert Elder and James E. Urquhart, past state presidents; George Foster, department color bearer.

Mrs. Paul E. Wire, state president, will conduct all business sessions throughout the four-day conclave.

Freeway and the San Diego Freeway. So there is easy access to employment in Angeles and Orange Counties.

A one-stop shopping center is very close and importantly, the bustling Long Beach Municipal Airport is nearby. The golden miles of Southland beaches are a few miles to the south and the Lakewood Country Club is blocks away.

"The Talking Apartment feature has proven a successful and an informative innovation throughout the nation, but this is the first time it will be introduced in Los Angeles County," says Douglass Martin, Boise Cascade general manager of the apartment division.

"While many people may have been known to 'talk to the walls' of an apartment, this probably is the first time they'll have the opportunity to talk back. Many little voices are hidden at vantage points inside and outside."

At South Hampton, the Talking Apartment will be a large, three bedroom unit providing 1,200 square feet of living space. It will be $190 a month, unfurnished, and will feature a large living room, all-electric kitchen, dining room and king size master bedroom suite.

The complex will offer units with one, or two baths. The Talking Apartment has been furnished by Layne Bennett, head decorator at Edward's Fine Furniture.

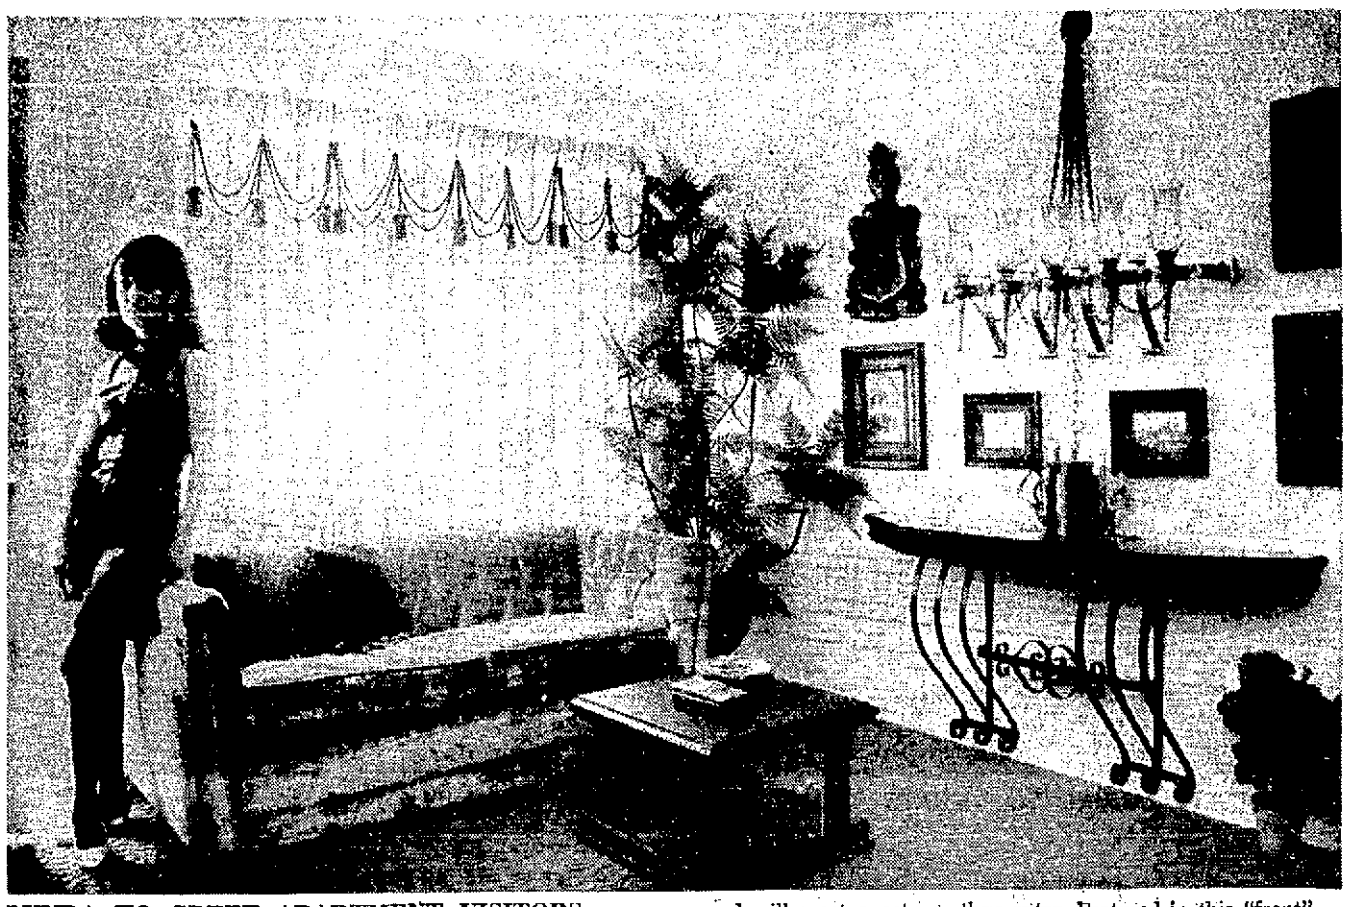

Deluxe apartments include large, walk-in closets, separate dining rooms (in some plans), custom draperies, Frigidaire dishwashers, wall-to-wall, continuous filament 100 per cent Nylon carpeting and marble top pullmans and mirrors. One, two and three bedroom plans are available.

There are laundry facilities and filtered and heated swimming pools (now ready for the plungers) and covered parking spaces for dwellers' autos.

This is an all-electric, Gold Medallion project. Custom cabinets have been done by Sawyer Cabinet Co., Sylmar. Built in and free standing appliances are from A-1 Home Appliance, Long Beach. All the paint is Old Quaker and builder's hardware in is from Midway Hardware Co. Lumber is from Sun Lumber Co.

"We are entering this key market with a quality product created to meet the needs of active moderns in the medium income bracket," Martin says.

"We have provided a feeling of spaciousness with plenty of room and recreational facilities somewhat remote from city dwelling."

LYNDA TO GREET APARTMENT VISITORS
Model Lynda Millette of Fashion House of Modeling and Photography, Glendora, is hostess for the Talking Apartment and will greet guests as they enter. Featured in this "front" room are Baily Schmitz love seats and Warfield chair from Edward's.

Indoor, Outdoor Living

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nearly half the homes to be built in 1969 will be designed for indoor-outdoor living, according to a spokesman for a national building materials source.

"This trend, which originated in California, now has permeated every section of the country," said H. A. Muir, of Dubuque, La., architectural consultant of Caradco Division of Scovill Manufacturing Co.

Muir attributed the rise in popularity to the fact that modern building products such as double-pane insulating glass and weatherproof patio doors assure "complete comfort indoors only inches away from extreme outdoor temperatures."

Homeowners are learning that marked progress has been made in inproving the quality of patio doors in the last few years, he said.

Apartment Investment

A. G. Groesbeck, Associates Inc., financial consulatants of Beverly Hills, is acquiring the first 114 units of South Hampton Apartments in Long Beach for a group of investor clients. CMPY Management Company, a wholly owned subsidiary of Groesbeck, will manage the properties.

Design Plans

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — One method of planning the design and style of a new home is to use published stock plans, a report by Ohio State University says.

MUSIC FOR MODERNS

Sun Lumber Co. Motto---'Very Best'

"The Very Best in Lumber" as a motto was adopted by Sun Lumber Company management 40 years ago, relates the company's president and owner, Homer Burnaby. "Adhering to the significance of this motto has been a principal factor in the growth of the company," says Burnaby.

In 1924, the birthplace of Sun was in what is now the heart of the Beverly Hills Civic Center. In 1946, when it became apparent that this facility could no longer serve the ever growing construction industry, a new plant was built on 15 acres of industrial property in Van Nuys.

Continued volume of building soon made it evident that in order to maintain the increased volume of business, it would be necessary to handle water cargo lumber and in 1953, operations were transferred to San Pedro where it was possible to receive over the docks quantities of material necessary to continue to serve the trade.

Sun Lumber Company has yards located in Long Beach, San Pedro and many locations in Ventura County. Combined facilities include over 57 acres of ground upon which are included the main plant at Berth 122 and cargo handling at Berth 135. Building facilities are in excess of 170,000 square feet. Inventory at Berth 135 is in excess of 24,000,000 board feet.

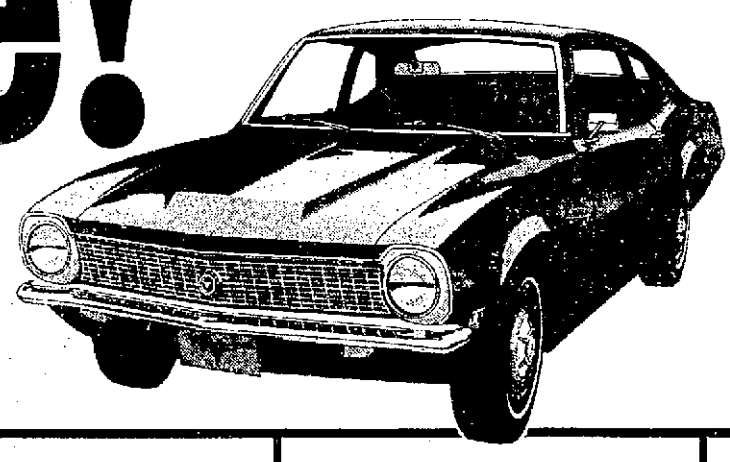

"We are happy to be among the suppliers of the R. A. Watt Company," says Burnaby. "All our employes wish Boise Cascade success on South Hampton and all projects to follow."

won anything in my whole life. It's a great thrill. It shows I really did something."

AS AN OUTSPOKEN advocate of the sport, Mrs. Earl once wrote a letter to a "worried wife" concerned with the dangers of motorcycling. The letter appeared in a cycling magazine.

In it, she pointed out how she, too, had been concerned when her husband first took up the sport, but added, "if I had discouraged the original enthusiasm, I would have destroyed what turned out to be a wonderful family sport."

She reminded the wife that if her concern was about her husband getting badly hurt or killed, she thought "nothing about sending him off each day to work to battle hundreds of other automobiles on the highways."

Motorcycling, Mrs. Earl maintains, is "only as dangerous as the rider wishes it to be," noting that she's not out "to break a leg or my neck."

As a mother and housewife, Mrs. Earl doesn't allow herself to get bored because she believes a mother is "an individual" who must have something of her own.

HER INDIVIDUALITY extends to something the entire family can share in, even the in-laws. Her mother-in-law, Mrs. Del (Bernice) Earl, has taken up the sport, too.

The two women ride over the Dominguez Hills two mornings a week after the youngest boys go to nursery school.

The boys accompany them on all cycle outings, according to Mrs. Earl, who says she and her husband, who works for the Southern California Edison Co., believe in doing things with their sons.

"They get grubby and dirty . . . love it . . . and nobody yells at them all weekend," she said.

The oldest boy has a small Honda he rides now, while the two younger ones pedal around on their tricycles.

"Everybody has fun and comes home happy," she added, with nobody feeling like he has "sacrificed anything by going."

She claims motorcycling is a "great replacement for the tranquilizer" because it allows one "to release frustrations and tensions by concentrating on the machine."

In this way, "you blank out all the week's problems."

EVERYBODY'S TALKING

About the Talking Apartment Designed And Furnished Exclusively By Edward's!

He decided to come as a barrel of laughs.

I've been on some tours in my day but this decor is the boldest blend of international diplomacy I've ever seen!

My husband's almost as dramatic as the imaginative genius utilized by Edward's in decorating this apartment.

The sofa told me Edward's can individually formulate a basic home furnishings and decorating plan that can be expanded at any time.

A toast! Edward's has done it again. This is the grooviest apartment ever!

This is the freshest pad I've ever been invited to. The bed just winked at me!

I just asked the loveseat to marry me.

I wonder if Edward's complimentary decorating service applies to the interior of my plane?

If I dressed as futuristic as this apartment looks I could be the first woman astronaut on the moon.

Make it on over to the Talking Apartment right now and have a swinging discussion with three full bedrooms of fine furniture. We'll show you how to save time and money, and make your pad the talk of the town!

SOCIAL SCENE

The only way to fly!

STILL IN THE CLOUDS over celebration of their 34th wedding anniversary is Mrs. Charles Smith. The Good Judge phoned to tell her to put away her paint brushes, he was taking her to dinner. When they arrived at International Airport, Eleanor thought perhaps they'd dine in the tower, but no such thing happened. Escorted into the American Airline Terminal, they boarded a plane and later dined in high-in-the-sky splendor at Mr. A's in San Diego.

A SILVER TROPHY recognizing her more than 50 years of service, particularly to shut-ins, is the newest in many prized possessions for Effie Christman who recently celebrated her 94th birthday. To mark the occasion, friends sent flowers, gifts and stopped by the apartment she shares with her son, Rowland, to wish her a happy day. Among them was Mrs. Marnette Peek who made the trophy presentation.

•

PRETTY Barbara Kolls of Torrance, bride-to-be of Dan Lungren, was introduced to her fiance's family and friends when his parents, Dr. and Mrs. John Lungren, entertained at a cocktail buffet in their Chestnut Avenue home. The popular young couple met at Yosemite two years ago and will marry on Aug. 2. Convenient to their courtship is her post as personal secretary to the dean of USC's graduate school of business administration and proximity of her office to the SC's School of Law where Dan is a student.

STILL in a party-giving mood, Mrs. Lundgren joined with Mrs. Robert Godwin in staging a German-themed welcome home for Mrs. Paul Woudenberg who is newly returned to Long Beach after accompanying her husband, the Rev. Mr. Woudenberg, on a year's sabbatical in that country.

THE WISTERIA had never been prettier when Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bish, and their mother, Mrs. Frank Kremel, entertained a large group of friends to show off the 20-year-old Wisteria vine which completely covers the patio of their 5274 E. Broadway home.

Among the many guests were Dr. and Mrs. Leslie Irwin, parents of Mrs. Bish, her sister, Sandra Irwin, her grandmother, Mrs. Susan Stafford, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Ross, Nancy Simpson and Herbert Goldberg, Consul of Costa Rica Dr. Allen Hazelton and Mrs. Hazelton, and Mrs. Paul Frame.

TUESDAY will find Mrs. William Glasoe soaring the polar route to Copenhagen, Denmark, where she will be met by relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gruelick. From Copenhagen, they will go to Sweden and Norway, stopping along the way at historic and scenic spots. They will arrive in Tronheim, Norway, for Norway's national celebration on May 17.

St. Matthew's sets lunch date

Spring Fashions in Motion, St. Matthew's Parish 10th annual school benefit luncheon, will be held Saturday at the Golden Sails Inn.

Parish members will model fashions furnished by Terri's Togs.

Utechts celebrate 50th year

Mr. and Mrs. Francis A. Utecht Sr. were honored on their 50th wedding anniversary with a celebration at the Long Beach Yacht Club.

Hosting the event were their sons and daughters-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Francis A. Utecht of Long Beach and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Utecht of Los Angeles.

Also helping them mark the occasion were granddaughters Lynn, Hilary and Carrie and grandson Tommy.

The senior Utechts were married in Minneapolis, Minn. on April 28, 1919 and moved to Long Beach in 1961. They presently live at 362 Santa Ana Ave.

Utecht retired in 1957 from the Chevrolet Motor Co.

Decorations followed a gold and white theme with a centerpiece of gold candles and yellow and gold flowers and ribbons.

are being made in the field, he points out. New carpeting, for example, is being made of fibers or synthetics that can't be damaged. Carpeting can be used inside or outside, and even around pools.

Layne Bennett, a certified member of A.I.D., formerly taught decorating at the Maryland Institute, Baltimore. He has had a half dozen years of design schooling, worked with William J. Sloane, New York, with department stores and has decorated homes of movie stars.

"We have tried to become NOW people," he says. We want white walls to give way to color that suits the individual home buyer." He points out how increasing shipping facilities from the East have heightened the excitement of decorating and furnishing for the Southlander.

Bennett participates, and is available for decorating seminars before women's groups and such. He has taught the subject and lectured on the art.

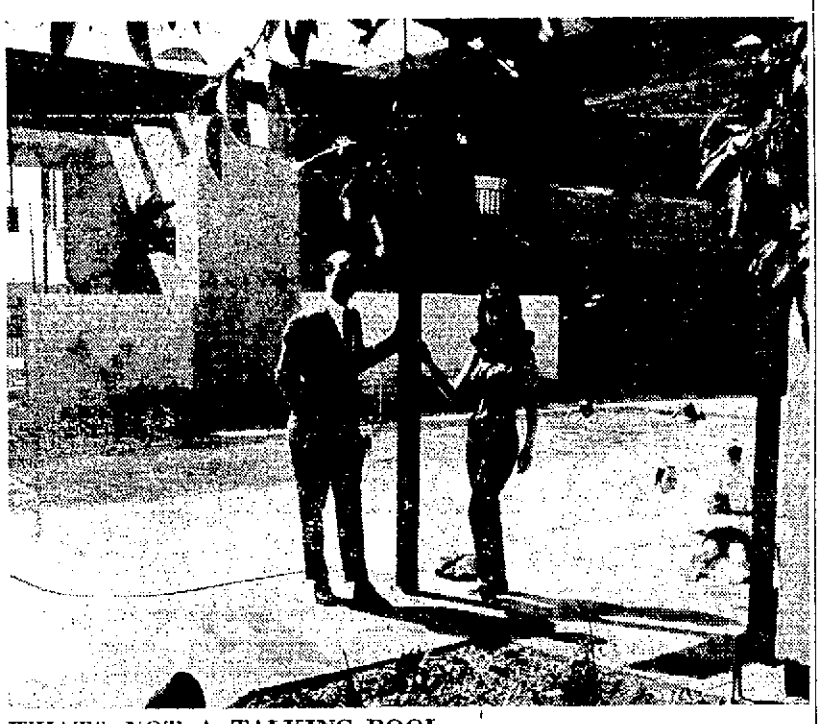

Edward's is undergoing remodeling with the interior being done as separate and complete rooms. It is planned to soon show the 1970-71 home at the building, complete with bath and kitchen. Also Edward's is putting in a gift shop and instituting a decorating and furnishing training program for all salesmen with the company.

Medallion

More than half of all new homes and apartment units constructed in Southern California Edison service territory during 1968 were of Medallion electrical standards.

Gold Medallion Gaining Prestige

More and more Long Bach area families on the weekend apartment or home hunting merry-go-round are discovering the built-in electrical values of units displaying the Gold Medallion emblem.

For the uninitiated, H. G. Hanawalt, Southern California Edison Company district manager, explained the significance of the coveted emblem.

The Gold Medallion Award is part of the electric industry certification program which assures renters or buyers that the home or apartment displaying the emblem is electrically equipped to provide a lifetime of comfortable, carefree living.

The emblem is proof that everything in the home or apartment operates electrically, including the heating system.

The home or apartment provides better than average insulation to insure comfort and economy of operation for heating and cooling. Forced air ventilation is another requirement to expel damaging moisture generated from cooking, bathing and dishwashing chores.

The Gold Medallion also certifies that the electric wiring provides Full House-power; that provision has been made for proper lighting; that the kitchen contains modern electric cooling equipment; and that at least three additional labor-saving appliances are installed.

To identify the home, the Gold Medallion emblem may be displayed in one of several ways. Often it is a 3-inch gold disc affixed on or near the front entry; or it is incorporated into a doorbell illuminated push-button, or, for apartment houses, it might be a large bronze-cast plaque mounted on an exterior wall, or the circular symbol portion of the apartment house directory.

The emblem is registered in the U.S. Patent Office as a Certification mark of the National Electrical Manufacturers Association, and is awarded only by the local electric utility on the basis of approved Medallion Home Program electrical standards.

(Copies of the standards are available from your local Southern California Edison Company office.)

"My newspaper route has taught me a sense of responsibility and how to deal with different people."

"In the eight months I have had a route on Blackthorne, Hazelbrook, Graywood, Faculty and at the stores in the Lakewood Center, I have saved $100 in the bank and have added six new deliveries. With my checking account I was able to buy a television set and a track for my slot cars."

Mrs. Joyce Steidley will be installed as president of Seal Beach Junior Women's Club during a dinner meeting Saturday in Captains' Inn.

Mrs. Steidley, who was named Woman of the Year by her club in 1966, will be joined on the board by Mmes. Jerry Rochte, Ronald Jessner, David Sloan, Carl Irwin, Ronald Puente and Ted Morris.

WIDOWS CLUB

Marg Weiss will begin her year as president of Spanish-American War Veterans Widows Club following noon luncheon Tuesday at the YWCA, 550 Pacific Ave.

Elegant style

If your hair is fairly long, and you're looking for a simple but elegant style that you can fix yourself, try this: Divide your hair into two sections — brush back and side hair into a high pony tail, and take the top front section, feather and spray it a little to give it some fullness, then wrap it around the rubber band holding the pony tail and fasten the piece of hair with a bobby pin underneath the pony tail. Feather and spray pony tail.

Fashion must

Long, sleeveless tunics over lightweight slacks are a spring and summer fashion must. The outfits can go for daytime or evening wear, depending on the fabric.

Dessert party

Good Sports will sponsor a dessert luncheon and card party Monday noon in the Garden Room, 909 E. Third St. The public is welcome.

It's tempting to look at and just as much of a joy to wear. Designed with a square-cut neckline, it keeps its cool and yours. No matter what kind of a heat wave, or humid spell, it flatly refuses to wrinkle or absorb moisture. Easy to step into, without fuss or muss, it buttons up the side. Washable by hand or machine, it drip dries ready to wear without ironing. Two side pockets are included in the skirt. Lose 10 Lbs. In 10 Days On New Grapefruit Diet

This is the revolutionary new grapefruit diet that everyone is suddenly talking about. Literally thousands upon thousands of copies have been passed from hand to hand in factories, plants and offices throughout the U.S. and Canada. Word of its success has spread like wildfire, because this is the one diet that really seems to work for most overweight people. A well known Toronto columnist recently praised it to the skies. He reported losing 20 pounds quickly and easily long after he despaired of ever getting down to his wartime weight of 165 pounds. All this without cutting out the occasional beer or rye. If it is followed exactly the average overweight person should lose 10 pounds in 10 days. There will be no weight loss in the first four days. But you will suddenly drop 5 pounds on the 5th day. Thereafter you will lose one pound a day until the 10th day. Then you will lose 1½ pounds every two days until you get down to your proper weight. Best of all there should be no hunger pangs. Now revised and enlarged, this new diet plan lets you stuff yourself with foods that were formerly 'forbidden' . . Such as big steaks, trimmed with fat, Southern fried chicken, rich gravies, mayonnaise, lobsters swimming in butter, bacon, tarts, sausages and scrambled eggs. You can eat until you are full, until you cannot possibly eat any more. And still you should lose 10 pounds in the first ten days, plus 1½ pounds every two days thereafter until your weight is down to normal. The secret behind this new "Quick weight loss" is not generally known. Fat, it has been theorized, does not form fat. Perhaps fat fights fat. And the grapefruit juice in this new diet might act as a catalyst (the "trigger") to start the fat burning process. You snuff yourself on the permitted foods listed in the diet plan, and still lose unsightly fat and excess body fluids. When the fat and bloat are gone you will cease to lose weight, and your weight will remain controlled. A copy of this new and startlingly successful diet plan can be obtained by sending $2 to The

Unconditional money-back guarantee. If after trying the diet plan you have not lost 7 pounds in the first 7 days, another 6 pounds in the next 7 days, and 1½ pounds every two days thereafter, simply return the diet plan and your $2 will be refunded promptly, and without arguments. Tear out this message, as a reminder. Decide now to regain the trim attractive figure of your youth, while still enjoying hearty breakfasts, lunches and dinners. New and Interesting Components Studied

When the R. A. Watt Company Inc. designs its homes, new and interesting components are studied to put together the most value, both from the standpoint of original cost and from that of economical maintenance.

South Hampton Apartments feature kitchen cabinets designed and fabricated by Sawyer Cabinet Inc. of Sylmar. The cabinets incorporate many innovations to enhance their appearance and to make them functionally appealing to the housewife.

An outstanding feature is the surfacing of the cabinets in attractive wood-grain patterns. With this surface, the need of refinishing is slight and the like-new look is maintained with the swish of a damp cloth or sponge. South Hampton Apartments chose to offer the Velvet finish with a slightly textured surface resistant to marring, fingerprints, and the usual household smudges such as crayons, grease and food spatterings.

Use of plastic in the South Hampton kitchens is in the kitchen countertops. Here again the beauty of attractive patterns and colors pleases the housewife while she enjoys the easy maintenance of a clean, smooth surface quickly and easily cleaned with a damp cloth.

'CHRIST ENTHRONED WITH THE VIRGIN,' SCHONGAUER, 15TH CENTURY

Artists: creator versus reporter

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Two of the current shows at Long Beach Museum of Art offer a vivid contrast of the artist as creator and the artist as reporter.

Arnold Mesches sketches, timely, emotion-loaded, offer one man's impressions in the Navy hearing rooms of "Pueblo" and "Sealab III" and at the Sirhan pre-trial hearings. Here, the artist's eye and pen substitute for the barred cameras. The work was done under the stress of time as well as the artist's obvious sympathy for the "under dog."

Since the sketches are topical, the seeing of them is also emotion-charged. They are caricatures, rather than art, by my definition. Mesches comes closer to art in the instances when time permitted more leisured observations of groups of spectators or reporters of "The Closed Court."

A group of sketches of Comdr. Bucher as he broke down during Rosales's testimony is frought with pathos. A portrait drawing of Sirhan is highly romanticised, giving no hint of the self-anointed avenger.

INQUIRY INTO PUEBLO INCIDENT, MESCHES, 1969

UPSTAIRS, 15th and 16th century master prints are from a different universe. They are not only high art, they are ultimate craft. Both from the North (Schongauer, Durer, Cranach, etc.) and the Italian (Mantegna, Caracci, etc.), these are highly intellectualized. Done in the most advanced technology of their day, they are packed with the excitement of discovery — anatomy, perspective, modelling.

Mantegna was exploring the figure in its universal humanness from all aspects, with tour de force foreshortening and projection in space. The focus of art in the 15th century was just turning from God to Humanism.

Durer's three works in this show are exquisite impressions with detail so fine as to appear velvety. Early apprenticed to his goldsmith father, he had turned to art and visited Renaissance Italy, especially Venice. He had seen the great Colleoni (mounted warrior) by Verrocchio. He absorbed the anatomical knowledge of the Italians.

DURER'S "The Knight, Death and the Devil" combines Italinate monumentality with the microscopically-observed detail and Gothic religiosity of the North. His is a Christian knight out to battle evil amidst the terrible turmoil of the early Reformation when, not only the Church, but the entire social fabric, was being rent asunder.

In sum, the two kinds of work, the Renaissance prints and the Mesches quick sketches, cannot be compared. But in each series, the artist's eye is performing its function which is to give the viewer new ways of seeing.

These exhibits will continue through May 18.

'PEACE ON EARTH'

Lipchitz dedication

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

Jacques Lipchitz, unchallenged as one of the great masters of contemporary sculpture, will be guest of honor today at the unveiling of his monumental bronze in The Music Center plaza at 4:30 p.m.

The 10-ton, 35-foot sculpture expresses in its title, "Peace on Earth," the fervent wish of peoples of the world. Commissioned by Lloyd E. Rigler and Lawrence E. Deutsch at a cost of $250,000, the work is one of the most significant in Southern California.

Lipchitz and his wife have come to Los Angeles for the dedication of the sculpture on which he has worked for the last three years in Piestrasanta, Italy.

Taking part in the dedication will be the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra which Alfred Wallenstein will direct in the fourth movement of Dvorak's "New World Symphony" and a selection from Handel's "Water Music."

Dr. Franklin D. Murphy, member of the board of governors of the Performing Arts Council, will be master of ceremonies. William L. Pereira will pay tribute to his fellow architect and designer of The Music Center buildings, the late Welton Becket.

Other participants will be Ernest E. Debs, chairman of the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors; Henry Dreyfuss, chairman of the art committee of the Performing Arts Council; and George London, artistic administrator of the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C. The program will be directed by composer and music director John Green.

A 'Dream House' Talking Real Thrill to Visitors

Anyone with a desire to "hear the walls talk" will have the time of his life at the Talking Apartment in North Long Beach, which starts its eight day run today at noon.

The apartment will start chattering at The South Hampton, a new English-styled apartment complex built by the Boise Cascade Building Co.

Everyone is welcome to come "talk" to the apartment. It will answer questions promptly and completely.

The talking is not only between the visitors and the house, however. The furnishings, carpeting, kitchen appliances and even the car in the driveway will have hidden voices that will answer questions.

It will be highly desirable for many visitors to bring along "dream home" check sheets, those that show the many outstanding features they are looking for in an apartment.

The Talking Apartment will probably have innovations, because everything that is new and modern and desirable has been included in this livable, beautiful apartment complex designed by Boise Cascade Building Co.

Not only will it have the very special features most people probably look for, but without doubt there will be found other innovations few have dreamed of. For this reason alone, it is wise to carry along a check sheet.

The voices are equipped to supply a tremendous amount of information about the products and people behind the scenes who had a part in building the showplace home.

Those wishing to know where to get a specific item, and how much it costs, can anticipate a ready answer.

The apartment is located in North Long Beach at 5500 Ackerfield Ave., just east of Cherry Ave., at South St. Ample free parking will be available adjacent to the fully landscaped model apartment area.

CONVERTED SECRETARIAL AREA

BIKINIS AND FRAYED NERVES

Sun still reigns at Palm Springs

By FRED TAYLOR KRAFT
Travel Editor

PALM SPRINGS — By latest actual count — which was last week — this lively desert oasis had 3,928 swimming pools.

KRAFT

And last weekend, sparkling like sapphires under a gentle 82-degree sun, these little gems appeared to be holding a popularity contest.

The bikini crowd was out in force, splashing and diving and laughing, and then, at pool's edge, transforming shapely pink bodies to an envied, rich browns . . . and more than a few fiery reds.

It was a typical Spring day for what this carefully scrubbed and manicured spa of 22,000 likes to call itself "America's Foremost Desert Resort."

Palm Springs' 224 hotels — a city ordinance prohibits "motels" — were jumping, not like Easter weekend when the influx reached 85,000 (not including the hippie invasion) but with an estimated, easy-to-accommodate 35,000 to 40,000 sun seekers.

Yes, sun seekers. For, like the land of the ancient Aztecs, the sun reigns supreme. Old Sol puts in his appearance 350 days a year, declares the area's cheer section. But unlike Aztecland, it is seldom that anyone goes on the sacrificial altar. The worst you can get, the script reads, is a horrible sunburn. And, even then, only when you are most indiscreet.

* * * *

LAST WEEKEND was typical, said Tom Hanlon, who runs the show at the Convention & Visitors Bureau. Thousands showed up for the day. Others, many of whom were "regulars," wasted little time in their rooms, of which 6,300 are available in the various caravansaries. Instead, they fanned out, often at sunrise, for horseback rides, cycling, tennis, golf (take your pick of 20 fine courses) — and for poolside exercise and sun. Or for visits to the Indian canyons, hikes in the desert, a sacred Indian Springs bath, or a tramcar ride over a living canyon to snowbanks on a mountain top.

It is no exaggeration to use the superlative "gorgeous" to describe the desert as it appears right now. Lupine on the hillsides. Fields of yellow vie with sagebrush and purple sage. Desert verbena spreads a purple carpet for miles on end. Wax-like cacti blooms and scarlet tips of the ocotillo and the stately Lord's Candle add their aristocratic splendor.

To miss it would be tragic.

* * * *

MAN'S ingenuity, plus a perfect setting and an abundance of water, makes Palm Springs a byword with the knowledgeable traveler. The resort is, more than anything else, a haven from the rat race, a place to unwind without stripping a gear.

The city fathers long ago thought of many laws aimed to conserve the quiet way of life. For instance, they banned flashing, revolving or neon signs, perhaps arguing that a bikini would be much easier on tired eyes.

And after the precious panorama of a desert sunset, Palm Canyon Drive, the "main street" that boasts big name shopping salons, 17 art galleries and scores of chic boutiques, springs to subdued life with the flocculent glow of lights from each of 1,700 palm trees that line both sides of the thoroughfare for more than three miles. Don't look for a power or utility pole on Palm Canyon Drive.

* * * *

LIKE everywhere else, the saw and the hammer play a daily encore of their symphony. New subdivisions. A new mobile home court (17 dot the area at this writing). But prospective builders of high rises take heed: you cannot, in Palm Springs, cast your shadow on your neighbor's property.

Scarcely a week passes that another new pool-equipped "hotel" of from three to 300 rooms does not open its doors.

With all of this activity, the existing hotels and inns lose not a whit of their prestigious following. This includes such ritzy watering holes as the Canyon Hotel and El Mirado Hilton as well as stopping places where the open shirt-and-slacks crowd — the hoi polloi — feels at home.

Rates, naturally, are highest from December through April, the height of the winter season. Then they slip a little. As an example, at the Gene Autry Hotel (4200 E. Palm Canyon Dr.) where I enjoyed just about every amenity I could think of, daily rates for two persons start at $16-$20 during the winter season and scale down to $14-$18 the remainder of the year.

Here's a dot on the Southland map where you expect, and get, fine dining. Many of the hotels have their own restaurants. Elsewhere are posh spots featuring cuisine from all over the world.

* * * *

NO VISIT to Palm Springs is complete without a ride on the $8.1 million Aerial Tramway — not merely to be able to say you have ridden on the largest passenger-carrying tram in the world but because of the myriad unexpected thrills it provides.

During the 13½-minute, two-and-a-half-mile ride from the desert floor to the mountain station 8,516 feet above sea level, the earth slips away at a seemingly incredible rate. When you make your way to the observation platforms at the Top of the Tram, the view of Palm Springs and the entire valley — as far as the Salton Sea — is something to behold. On a very clear day, I am told, the southern view extends to the Mexican border and the eastern view almost to Arizona.

On the way up, at this time of the year, the canyon below and on both sides of the brightly-painted cable cars is alive with plant life. In fact, more than 100 species of desert flora thrive in the area, attests Patricia Moorten who with her husband "Cactus Slim" Moorten operates the fascinating Moorten's Desertland Garden on South Palm Canyon Drive. Many little desert creatures have homes here, too, not to count a reported contingent of hippies who presently are growing vegetables which they peddle to downtown food emporiums. Keen-eyed mountain goats, perched like sentinels on lofty crags, take in the whole show.

* * * *

SIXTEEN inches of snow crowned the mountain station and its Alpine Chateau restaurant last Sunday. The temperature at noon was a crisp 40 degrees. In that exhilarating pine-scented air there was not so much as a whisp of smog.

(The Tram, incidentally, is open daily from 10 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. through June 30, will close Tuesdays and Wednesdays from July 1-Oct. 31.)

At the Tram's Valley Station is a comparatively new Animal Park where the ever-so-young at heart may pet deer, goats and other animals, watch brightly-plumaged birds do high-wire acts, and cheer seals and dolphins as they perform in a big pool.

* * * *

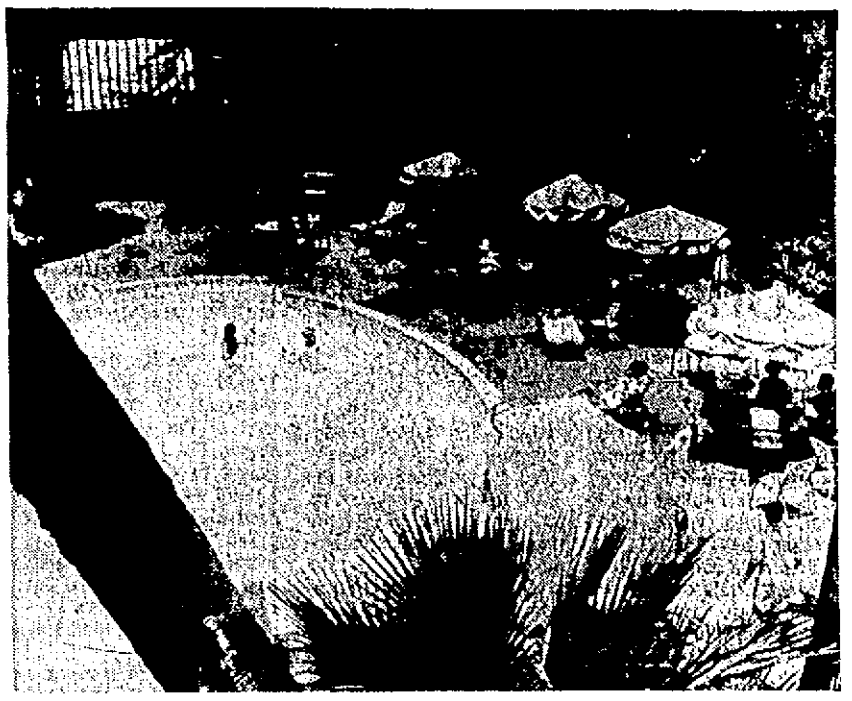

EACH OF Palm Springs' exclusive features contributes to the town's ever-widening image. Together they accounted for a 7 per cent rise in visitors during the past winter season over the same period a year ago. But with freeways and a the frantic free-for-all for the fast buck being what they are, it figures.

Machete island

Jamaica's universal tool is the machete. Jamaicans dig with it. They chop wood with it. They cut grass, peel sugar cane and breadfruit with it. They scratch heads and pick teeth with it. The machete is often called a comboló, which ordinarily means companion or friend.

Shoot 'em up!

Fireworks and spectacular illuminations will be held on the Rhine from Braubach to Koblenz on August 9th. Dubbed "The Rhine in Flames", this annual display culminates with pyrotechnics over the Ehrenbreitstein Fortress at Koblenz.

SWIMMING AND SUNLAZING are year-around activities at Palm Springs. At latest count there were 3,928 pools, each reinforced by an army of bikinis. (Palm Springs Convention & Visitors Bureau photos.)

OWNER OF GLEN ORGAN FORD

Sincere Business Attitude the Key, Says Dean Jones

Hard work and an honest, sincere business attitude have been the primary factors in the continued success of Dean Jones, new owner of Glen Organ Ford, 220 S. Long Beach Blvd., Compton.

Originally from Southern California, Jones attended high school in East Los Angeles, then on to USC and service in the Navy.

Upon entering the business world, Jones was affiliated with the Chrysler factory in Salt Lake, Denver and Los Angeles.

In 1953 he began his selling career for a Plymouth dealer in his native East Los Angeles. Then on to general manager for a Dodge dealer and later a Pontiac dealer where he remained until 1960, at which time he purchased a Plymouth-Chrysler dealership in Modesto.

In 1961 it became the highest profit dealer enterprise. For the three subsequent years his dealership remained Number One as the highest penetrating truck dealership in the country. He opened the Dean Jones Leasing Company in 1963 and assumed an additional outlet, the Dollar A Day Rent A Car in San Francisco in 1967.

All subsidiary companies were consolidated in 1968 into the sale of all interests, enabling him to return to Southern Clifornia with the Glen Organ Ford dealership in Compton.

The name of the firm remained unchanged in order to reach the people through an already familiar and established facility.

Due to the attitude of fairness, as demonstrated by the fact that quality cars can be sold at a lesser profit than many other dealers, projected sales have doubled over last year.

Jones believes the key

JEAN PIERRE HALLET, author and white blood brother of the Masai tribe in East Africa, will lead five wild animal photo safaris into Dark Continent.

White brother of Masai leads Congo safaris

By PAT MCDONNELL

If you're the type who enjoys off-beat vacations, how about a three-week Congo safari guided by a 6-foot, 5-inch white blood brother of the Masai?

Five such safaris will be conducted this summar by Belgian-born sociologist and best-selling author Jean Pierre Hallet.

Each of the three-week safaris will be limited to 20 participants in order to provide advantages and freedom of an independent tour without its prohibitive cost. No guns will be allowed . . . only cameras.

Transportation will be aboard Sabena Belgian World Airlines jets from New York via Brussels to Kinshasa (the former Leopoldville).

The Hallet tours mark the first time groups of Americans will visit the Republic of the Congo since it gained independence in June 1960. East African portion of the itinerary includes Uganda, Kenya, Tanzania and Kenya.

* * * *

THE OPPORTUNITY to meet and understand the diverse tribes inhabiting Africa will be heightened by the presence of Hallet, now a resident of Los Angeles.

The only white man ever admitted to the Bwame Secret Society, Hallet was twice decorated by Belgium's King Baudouin for his endeavors to better living conditions of primitive tribes in the Congo.

He is the author of "Congo Kitabu," named the best book of 1966 by the American Library Association, and "Animal Kitabu." His latest work, "Pygmy Kitabu," scheduled for publication in the Fall, has been predicted to raise a storm of controversy among orthodox anthropologists.

After completing his education at University of Brussels and the Sorbonne in 1948, Hallet was assigned to the Congo as an agronomist and sociologist. He learned six aboriginal languages while working with the natives on a man-to-man basis.

* * * *

IN 1955, famine threatened the people of southern Burundi and he dynamited more than seven tons of fish off the shore of Lake Tanganyika. A defective fuse exploded prematurely and he sustained severe wounds and the loss of his right hand.

Refusing to concede to a handicap, Hallet returned to the Ituri Forest, where he became the first man to teach Pygmies to cultivate the soil, read, write and build houses.

Drawing upon his years in the Congo, Hallet will introduce tour participants to the amazing traditions and ceremonies of the Batutsi (Watusi) and Bambuti Pygmies.

* * * *

IN EAST AFRICA, participants will mingle with the Kikuyu, Wakamba and Masai and come face-to-face with African wildlife in the game reserves of Uganda, Kenya and Tanzania.

Although limited to 22 days, tours have been planned so that participants will explore in depth —rather than travel through —a few select areas.

Special features include traveling through national parks and game reserves in four-passenger safari vehicles allowing for maximum viewing and photographing of game through windows and observation roof hatches.

Departure dates from New York are July 7, 21, 28, Aug. 25 and Sept. 8. Information is available from Hallet at 5630 W. 79th St., Los Angeles.

Wildflowers bloom in Yosemite area

Veritable corridors of wildflowers — especially brilliant because of the heavy precipitation of the past winter — will greet visitors to Yosemite National Park during the coming weeks.

The annual display already has begun in the foothills leading up to Yosemite and in a short time the profusion of color will spread throughout Yosemite Valley and later up to the high country. Set against a backdrop of some of the most magnificent Yosemite waterfalls in many years, the wildflowers this year will present a particularly colorful spectacle.

As the roads leave the flat San Joaquin Valley and enter the hilly areas, white meadow foam and wild clover fill the hollows and yellow mimulus mark the damp margins of short-lived streams. The yellow-white tidy tips and pink-yellow harlequin lupine are everywhere.

* * * *

ALONG THE Merced River Canyon, from Briceberg to the Arch Rock entrance station there are yet numerous redbud in bloom. Also called the Judas Tree — a rather unattractive bush for most of the year — it is at the height of its beauty in springtime. The deep-toned blue dicks toss their heads high in the breeze; the paler, duo-tone baby blue eyes cling close to the earth; the popcorn flowers shimmer silvery-white between them. Occasionally a golden poppy cup casts a flicker of light on the south and west facing canyon slopes. Within 10 days, these steeply pitched hills should be aflame with California's state flower.

Continued mild weather should bring the color parade marching up the river canyon to Yosemite Valley.

* * * *

SUPERINTENDENT Lawrence C. Hadley announced, meanwhile, resumption of all park services which were cut back last December in order to carry out reductions in personnel ordered by the Congress and imposed by the Bureau of the Budget. At that time the Visitor Center services were reduced to a five-day week, and the manning of the entrance stations was discontinued.

The Visitor Center is now operating on a seven-day schedule and, effective May 15, the entrance stations will be manned on a daily basis also. Camping by assignment, which received its initial test in Yosemite Valley during the 1968 summer season, will commence on May 25.

Travel and RESORTS

George Jessel, we're told, once described the Pink Pussycat as having "the most exciting girls in Movietown." He was referring, of course, to the obvious charms of its strippers.

It's been 10 years since I paid a visit to the Pink Pussycat, so my recollection of the girls is rather vague. But I recently happened to catch one of its alumni — a dancer named Jerri Dean — at a place called the C'est Bon, a motel-convention center in Park City, Utah. And I'm happy to say Jessel's eyesight isn't failing him. Not by any means.

If Miss Dean is any indication of the caliber of the club's dancers, they're not only exciting, they're downright sensational.

Yet what struck me about Miss Dean the night I watched her was not her alluring curves, or the sophisticated grace of her movements — all of which she combines to great sensual effect. It was the setting she was in.

* * * *

LET'S FACE IT, Park City is neither Hollywood nor New York. The C'est Bon, moreover, is neither the Pink Pussycat nor the Copacabana. And the last place you expect to see the likes of Miss Dean is in an ancient mining town in the middle of a state noted for anything but a swinging night life.

But then, you soon come to expect such incongruities — or are they contrasts? — of Park City.

In Robber Baron days, the city was a booming mining town of some 15,000 people — a polyglot population of just about every nationality imaginable, from Chinese to Basque. But today, with mining on the wane, it's a mountain hamlet of 1,600 townsfolk who, sniffing the winds of change in America, have decided to go where the latest action is: into tourism.

In the past six years, they're transformed the 100-year-old town into an important skiing center in the West.

* * * *

THE CITY is nestled comfortably between two large mountain ranges: the Wasatch Range and the Uinta Mountains. But it's not as inaccessible as might first appear. Air West proved that to a group of travel agents and newsmen who boarded one of its planes out of Los Angeles International Airport recently. In a matter of some three hours, we were in Park City, the bulk of our trip — 2½ hours — being spent on the flight to Salt Lake City. From Salt Lake, it was a 30 to 40-minute ride by limousine to Park City.

Mining still goes on in the town. Mining and skiing exist cheek by jowl, in fact. And where mining has died, the city fathers have wisely elected to let its ghosts live on. All of which points again, to what must surely be one of the more flagrant if charming cases of civic schizophrenia in the country.

If the city has preserved its historic quality, it has done so, moreover, without succumbing to the usual vulgarities of commercialism — so far, at any rate.

A walk down Main Street is not the usual excursion through Tourist Gulch. It's a visual evocation of the city's past, a stroll through an authentic Western mining town at the turn of the century.

* * * *

MOST OF THE store fronts are pretty much what they were in the old days, even if some of them are boarded up. The Elks Lodge hasn't changed. And if some of the stops are selling ladies' chapeaux and antiques (which they were probably doing in the town's heyday, too), you'd hardly know it from the outside.

The street's only architectural anomaly, so far as I could tell, is the motel I stayed in, a large nondescript structure that seems to belong to no particular era or locale.

I can't say enough for its comfort, hospitality and historic atmosphere — all of which were inside. It was the outside that struck me as being out of place.

In any case, the motel was built before the city fathers decided to preserve the street's architectural uniformity and flavor with a strict new building code.

Frankly, I'd hate to see them change the style, any more than I'd like to see Miss Dean change hers.

New House Painting Process Cuts Labor Expense Sharply

NEW YORK (AP) — There's professional competition ahead for the do-it-yourself house painter; quite a switch these days when homeowners tackle just about any job in the book.

Sapolin, the 88-year-old paint manufacturer, has come up with a new system for applying its paints that cuts the cost of a professional paint job to the bone — and gets it done in as little as three to four hours for one coat.

Designed, of course, to sell Sapolin paints, the system, called Hydraposit, promises to do just that while relieving many a reluctant do-it-yourselfer of the title acquired not through choice, but financial necessity.

Utilizing an airless spray gun, the system deposits a smooth, even coating of paint 2½ times as thick as the ordinary single coat applied by brush or roller. It requires more paint than the ordinary job because of the additional thickness per coat, but takes one-tenth the labor because of the speed and ease of application. Paint goes on, under high pressure, at a rate of possibly 10 or 12 square feet per minute. Because it uses no air, "fallout" such as that from usual spray painting is minimized and extensive masking is unnecessary. Because of the additional labor involved, trim is not included except where painted the same color as the body of the house.

Sapolin, in a pilot operation last year, painted about 35,000 houses. This year the program gets under way in earnest. Operations currently are centered in the East and major population centers in the Midwest and on the West Coast. The goal is a nationwide operation, possibly through a chain of franchised contractors.

Hydraposit operators are trained and certified by Sapolin and are contacted through Sapolin paint dealers.

How does the system work? What does it cost?

Richard Eckart, president, explains:

A homeowner buys paint from a dealer at a cost of around $6.50 to $8 a gallon, the number of gallons determined by surface area of the house — about 7 gallons for one coat on an average 6 to 7 room house. The dealer recommends a contractor whose base charge for labor is $8 a gallon. Particularly difficult conditions — a hillside house, a rambling two or three-story house, any situation requiring scaffolding or considerable ladder moving, or a house surrounded by unusually heavy foliage or shrubbery, for instance, could raise this to as much as $10 a gallon but this is unusual, Eckart says. This labor charge, he says, compares with a national figure around $50 a gallon for a professional job.

Paint used is a water thinned exterior latex except for two coat jobs where a mixture of oil primer and wood preservative is applied as a first coat, the latex as a top coat.

The system is used on wooden clapboard, shakes and shingles and on asbestos shingles, stucco, cement and other masonry and metal. However, Eckart notes, special primer coats generally are necessary on the masonry and metal surfaces and severely weathered asbestos shingles, loose stucco or spackling cement require repair before painting.

Eckart says "under $100" jobs, paint and labor are possible on one-story, five-room houses for one coat on a surface prepared by the homeowner. Costs range upward depending upon the size of the house, surface preparation done by the contractor, whether one or two coats are used. A two-coat job on a wood surface carries a five-year guarantee covering paint and labor to apply it.

On an average split level, Eckart says, one coat on a surface prepared by the homeowner would cost about $145, compared with a probable figure of $400 for a professional brush job with a coating less than half the thickness. A typical two-story Colonial, with two car garage, would run about $200 for a two-coat job carrying a five-year guarantee. This would compare with, possibly, $700 to $800 for a standard two-coat brush job, he said.

For most houses, Eckart says, this means, perhaps, brushing off dirt and loose paint, some sanding, spot priming. If the homeowner does not want to handle this himself, the contractor will, employing "Hydraclean," a high pressure washing process at a cost of $30 to $45.

factor has been satisfied service after sales. In this regard the service department has undergone major equipment improvements and updating technique to meet the demands of higher performance automobiles. In addition, a program of mechanic training is emphasized to improve all phases of mechanics and service.

Management selection is a primary concern of Jones. His insistence is upon experienced men who have not been associated with high pressure promotion techniques. In his own words "a dealership must be built upon integrity and fairness in order to sustain itself through the years."

Jones is certainly very excited about the new Maverick and believes that Ford Motor Company has made the most economical, safe and reasonably priced car in the industry.

'Palace' Restoration Financing Pledged

Walter S. Johnson, of San Francisco, who donated $2.3 million to the Palace of Fine Arts, says he is "arranging in my will for a million or two dollars to see that the restoration is finished properly."

Johnson, a retired businessman and financier, made the remark while opposing the installation of a statue by Spero Anargryos at the palace.

Th palace was built for the 1915 Pan Pacific Exposition. Besides the money Johnson gave for its restoration, the state has put up $2 million and the city $2.6 million.

With the restoration all but completed, the building still has no use, except to look pretty. Johnson says he favors using it as an art and science museum.

He was speaking at a meeting called by restaurant owner Victor Bergeron in behalf of Anargryos' "Sculpture for Peace," a 24-foot high, $70,000 bronze. The city art commission has disapproved it pending consultation with the sculptor.

CARDIFF'S NATIONAL MUSEUM

Where the heart of Wales is kept

By H. DENNIS-JONES

In Wales you may meet a nationally renowned poet who earns his living as a railway porter — or a gifted singer to the harp who shears sheep.

Despite modern progress, many ancient traditions live on—refreshing and delightful to non-Welsh visitors in this year of Welsh festivity, "Croeso '69".

To understand what Wales is all about, there is one essential. A visit to the National Museum, in Cardiff.

Here are the geology, wild life, plants and history of Wales, and also an art gallery and a new and developing Department of Industry.

Snowdonia, the picturesque mountain region of North Wales, can be studied in detail. So can the slate quarries of Bethesda (among the world's largest) and the slate mines of Blaenau Ffestiniog.

* * * *

THE BOTANICAL and zoological sections give a complete view of the country's flora and fauna, including rarities like bugula, a sea animal that looks like seaweed; the Skomer vole, found only on an island off Pembrokeshire in southwest Wales; and gwyniad, a freshwater fish living only in Bala Lake in Snowdonia.

Striking exhibits include early Celtic metalwork and pottery and tiles from the works depot of the Roman XXth legion, whose base was Chester.

For life in Wales since 1550, take a five-mile ride from the centre of Cardiff to St. Fagan's Castle, formerly the home of the Earls of Plymouth. It is now a fascinating folk museum.

* * * *

AN OLD Norman castle's outer defense wall still bounds part of the property. Furniture and fittings are mostly 17th century, and give a lively idea of life in those times. The museum's most exciting exhibits are scattered around the 100-acre grounds.

They consist of old buildings of every sort, taken from their original positions and re-erected. There are farmhouses; a famous old Unitarian chapel; a woollen mill of the type which made Welsh flannel famous; a colorful Welsh gipsy caravan; a 16th century barn. Coming are a tannery from Rhayader, Radnorshire, an 18th century toll-house from Aberystwyth, and a cock-pit from Denbigh.

The 15th century farmhouse is the most primitive: smoke from the fire on a open hearth escaped through the thatch. The Cilewent farmhouse(1580) sheltered men and beasts alike, cattle and humans sharing a single entrance while horses had their own door (it is a type of 'longhouse' once common on Welsh moors.) The two-story farm from Kennixton (1630, with later additions) is far more complex, and has an elaborate wood-frame construction.

* * * *

WHILE THE museum's mill from Esgair Moel illustrates fully the almost vanished rural woollen industry, a wood-turner and a basket-maker produce and sell traditional wares on the spot.

Then there is a large and growing collection of dialect recordings, folk songs, and folk lore to keep the rest of Wales alive.

Here you will find what makes Wales, Wales.

WEAVER DEMONSTRATES on a genuine 18th century loom at Wales' National Museum where you can buy precious hand-woven and hand-dyed scarves, blankets, skirts and hoods. (British Travel Ass'n photos.)

TRAVELING WITH DELAPLANE

La Paz: Baja's barefoot capital

By STAN DELAPLANE

LA PAZ, BAJA CALIFORNIA — Here the warm, sunny desert meets the warm, blue sea. You sit barefoot on a shady, tiled porch with a bottle of tangy Mexican beer and a handful of fresh shrimp. No point in buttoning your shirt. There's no place to go and nobody to notice what you're wearing.

There's none of the ritziness of Acapulco, but there are good hotels in La Paz. Further south on the tip of the Baja peninsula, they've built some that are de luxe.

Hard to believe this land has stayed so remote sitting on the edge of California's 20 million people. Swimming is grand from miles of white sand beaches. Fishing is out of this world. There's hundreds of miles of desert where no man but Indians have set foot. Still it's only two air hours from Phoenix or Los Angeles. And less than $100 round trip.

* * * *

"We are planning to drive into Mexico, but friends told us they were bitten by gnats or mosquitoes . . ."

MOSTLY a little biter called jejene. Carry a spray can of "Off!" You find these gnats along the coast. If you are the kind that gets bitten a lot, don't get a beach hotel. Get one on higher ground. The jejene doesn't seem to be able to get altitude.

* * * *

"Could we drive down to Baja California? To La Paz?"

PEOPLE who've done it say it's the most rugged road in the world. Only passable in high cars with four-wheel drive. So desert if you wander off the road you die.

Now I don't think there's enough road down around La Paz that you want a car. Air taxi takes you down to the tip.

You can bring a car across from Mazatlan by a good, modern ferry that runs overnight a couple of times a week. But this place doesn't strike me as moving around country. It's a place to take off your shoes and let them bring what you want to you.

Not much shopping around here. This is free port country. No tax, no duty. But Baja hasn't done anything important with it.

* * * *

"Will we have trouble understanding traffic laws in Mexico?"

GOING through towns you run into one-way streets, and the marking is different than ours. At corners, you look up on the side of the building. There will be an arrow pointing the direction of traffic with the word "transito" or "circulacion".

If the traffic policeman has his back or front to you stop. Side to you, go.

Holland-America Line has announced the appointment of H. (Dick) Barkhuis, formerly a district sales manager, as regional sales manager for its Western Region with headquarters in Los Angeles.

Barkhuis is married to the former Helga Schroeder. They live in Palos Verdes.

Mexican artisans show skills at expo

SAN DIEGO — Spectators at San Diego's Mexican exposition, "Fiesta 200," which last week opened for a six-month run in this city's Old Town as the highlight of the 200th anniversary of California's founding, will have an unusual opportunity to see for themselves how the ancient arts and crafts of Mexico are perpetuated by generations of families.

Visitors may watch, by the hour if they wish, skilled artisans create exquisite pieces of jewelry, or observe Indian women weaving beautiful shawls and rugs, or stand in awe as Mexican glass blowers perform feats of magic with long tubes, out of which emerge various shapes of molten glass, to become today's much-in-demand decorative items.

The exposition also will feature woodworkers taking a block of rough wood and fashioning it into a beautiful piece of furniture, or a small sculpture, or a demonstration of leather tooling by some of Mexico's top craftsmen, who will turn out such popular products as handbags, belts, saddles and sandals, before your very eyes.

Silversmiths will be seen at their meticulous jobs of making candlesticks, trays, bowls, medallions and other things typically Mexican in design.

* * * *

PAPIER MACHE figures, currently enjoying a great popularity in this country, will be made from start to finish as spectators watch and admire the dexterity with which the artisans mold the finished product.

Pottery and ceramics, long a distinctive Mexican art form, will be on exhibition as the Mexican potters go about their tasks of creating all manner of functional and decorative pieces for the home.

There will be a copper workers section where natives of Mexico will exhibit the skill handed down to them by their ancestors in the art of forging intricate gigantic platters, candelabra, vases, pitchers and bowls.

It will, in short, be a liberal education and insight into the world of Mexican creative art that has existed for hundreds of years.

A-1 Keeps Up on New Selections

Keeping "tab" with the times has created a new concept in kitchen appliance display at A-1 Home Appliance Co.

William B. Eastman, owner of A-1, has created a "mock kitchen" area in the front portion of his building with a cooking and barbeque island to make selections for a single appliance or for an entire kitchen easy work for the customer . . . Comfortably located directly behind the kitchen display is a two-lane showplace for built-in ovens, refrigerators, hooded ranges, dishwashers, washers and dryers.

Whether making individual selections, or if working with an architect, builder or contractor, the complete and beautifully organized display makes selections so much easier.

All purchases are backed up by Al's slogan, "Famous for Service."

Whether a single purchase of for an entire kitchem, you will find, quickly and economically, exactly what you need to complete your kitchen with the nation's top appliances.

'Apartment Talk' Warmly Received

The South Hampton, featuring the exclusive "Talking Apartment" in North Long Beach, has already met with an enthusiastic response from the public, notes Lucile Valek, Sales Representative for the Boise Cascade Building Co. Gold Medallion project.

The distinctively-styled apartments combine an ideal location, modestly-priced rentals and the carefree relaxed atmosphere that young adults are looking for today.

Residency at The South Hampton is limited to persons 16 years of age and older.

Under the direction of project Manager Bruce Huntley, and Construction Superintendant Bill Johnson, work has progressed steadily despite the unprecedented winter rains.

When completed the development will comprise 600 units.

The South Hampton Apartments are available in one, two and three bedroom plans, featuring one and two baths. Deluxe appointments include large walk-in closets, separate dining rooms (in some plans), custom made draperies, Frigidaire dishwasher, wall to wall 100 per cent continuous filament nylon carpeting and marble top pullmans and mirrors.

Rentals at The South Hampton start at $140 a month.

Wide variety of exteriors is a distinguishing characteristic of The South Hampton, a $5,700,000 apartment complex now leasing in the North Long Beach area. The Gold Medallion, all electric project opens an eight day Talking Apartment promotion today.

Satellite

A giant communications satellite proposed by Hughes Aircraft Co. to meet the global communications explosion of the 1970s will carry nearly 6,000 two-way telephone calls or 12 color television programs simultaneously.

Appliances

The majority of households in this country have at least ten different electrical appliances — refrigerator, radio, television, vacuum cleaner, clothes washer, toaster, steam iron, coffeemaker, mixer, and frying pan.

DEAR ABBY

These uninvited guests really 'expected'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Every Sunday our mother serves dinner between 12:30 and 1:00. Recently, certain relatives have been coming to visit us at exactly that time. Before we know it, they have their coats off and they stand there.

Naturally, Mom asks them to stay for dinner. They have six in their family and we have seven in ours. What kills us is that they know perfectly well that we have our Sunday dinner around that time.

Abby, we are writing this for our Mom because she is such a sweet, kind-hearted person she wouldn't say anything to hurt their feelings, but feeding SIX extra people every Sunday is getting too much for her. Can you give us a solution? MOM'S KIDS.

DEAR KIDS: Sitting down at a table for 13 every Sunday, especially when preparations have been made for only seven, can be pretty unlucky for the hostess.

But if she's too timid to speak up, there's nothing you can do. (P.S. After a while these "unexpected" guests become expected.)

DEAR ABBY: Why are so many educated, well-bred people so sloppy about R.S.V.P. invitations?

Several of my friends have gotten married recently, and beautiful engraved "R.S.V.P." invitations were sent, and the number of responses they received was pathetic!

One of the girls had 296 acceptances, and over 400 guests showed up! (She assumed that those who didn't respond were not coming.)

Another friend of mine had to make over 100 telephone calls to find out who were planning to attend.

I simply cannot understand why people will not take a few minutes to write a short note or make a telephone call. Please print this. I have a feeling I am not alone. APPALLED.

DEAR APPALLED: You are not alone. Those who ignore R.S.V.P. invitations are lazy, disorganized, thoughtless, or careless.

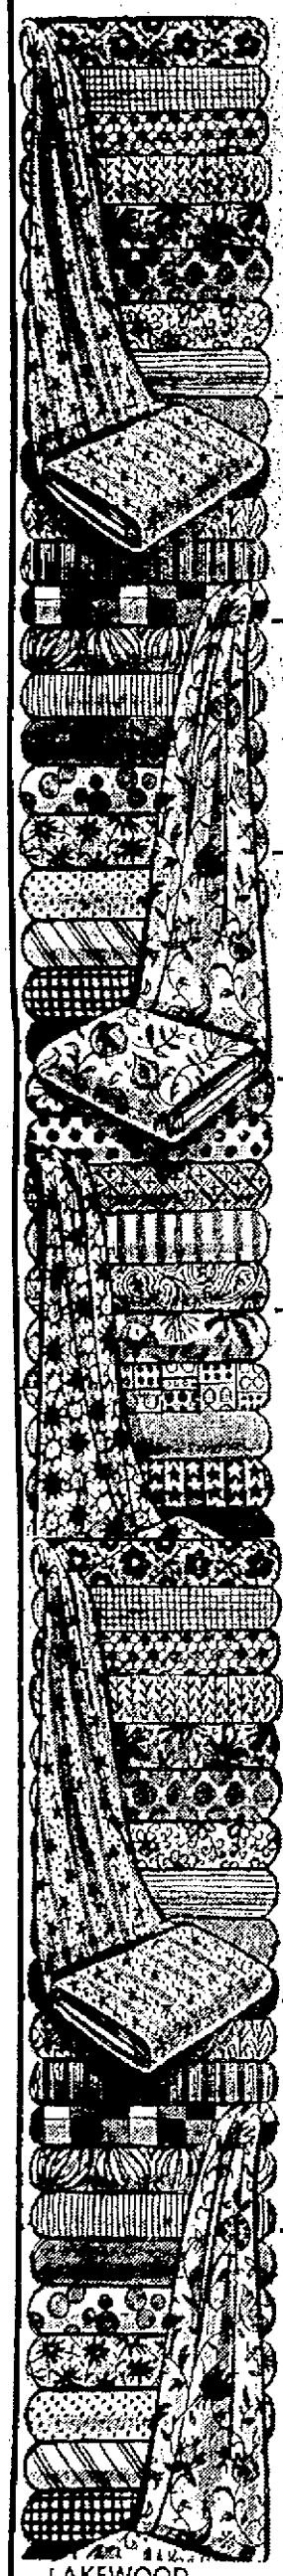

CONFIDENTIAL TO F.L., LAKE CHARLES, LA.: Your biggest problem, Madame, is that you've never had a really BIG problem. There is nothing like a toothache to make you forget about your mosquito bites.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Kitty Hawk To Paris

"Kitty Hawk to Paris: The Heroic Years," which traces the history of aviation and the men who made it from the Wright Brothers to Charles Lindbergh's epic flight across the Atlantic in 1927, will be aired at 9 p.m. Thursday, Ch. 7, ABC-TV.

The show, produced by award-winning John Secondari and directed by Helen Jean Rogers, begins with the historic first flight by Wilbur and Orville Wright in December, 1903 when their 12 horsepower engine carried them 852 feet in 59 seconds.

It also covers the following year when aviation was considered entertainment and only the most far visioned of these flight pioneers even considered flying as a means of transportation.

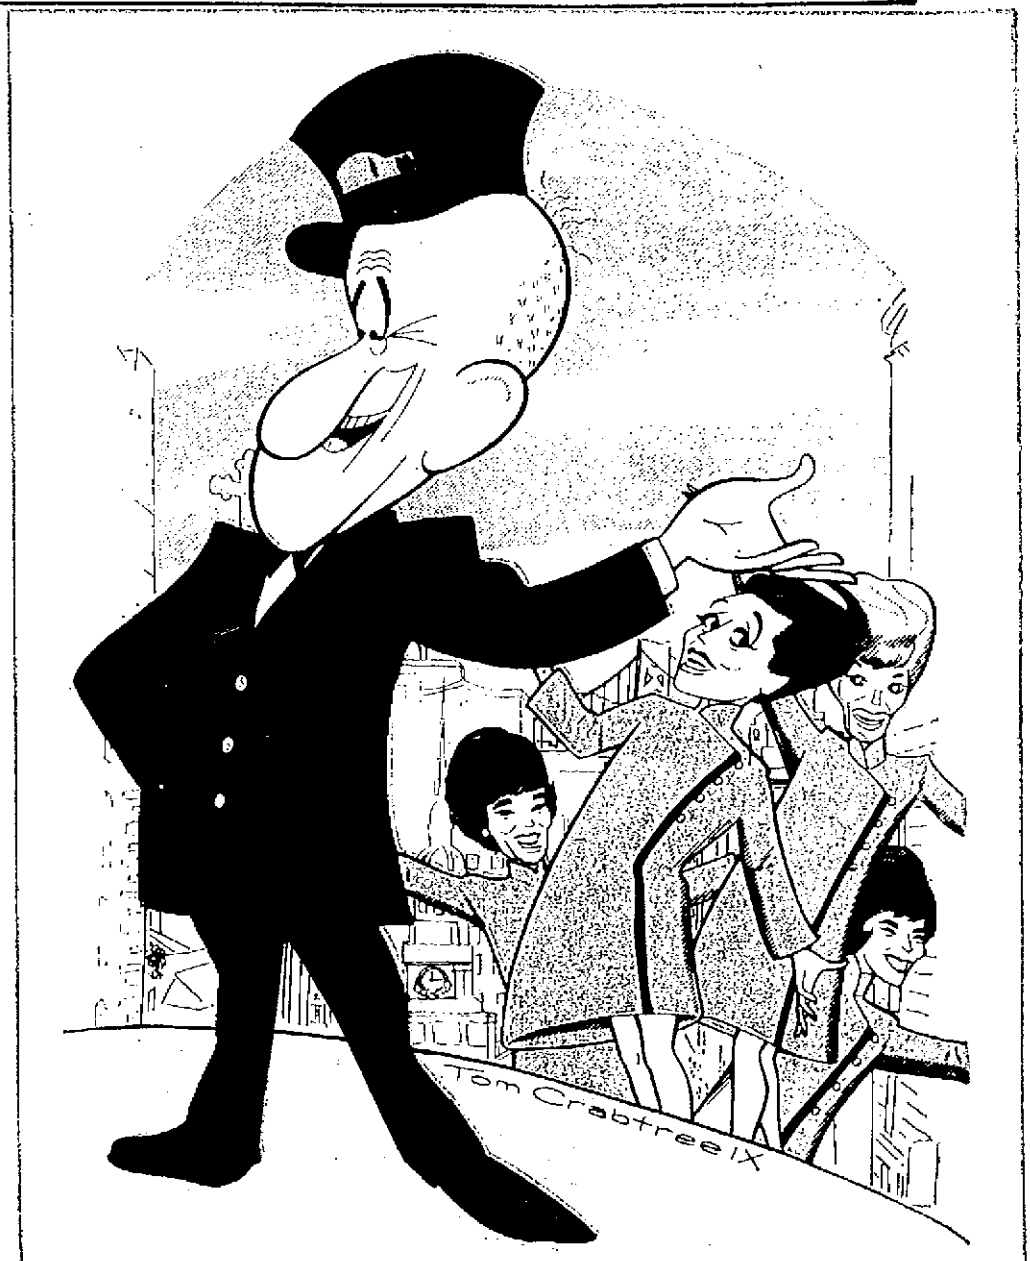

The 24-year span between the first flight and Lindbergh's 3,600 mile solo flight from Roosevelt Field, Long Island from where he took off into an overcast sky and landed some 33 hours and 39 minutes later at Le Bourget Field outside Paris, are examined through the eyes of the men who contributed to this new age.

THE LENNONS . . . Peggy, Janet, Dianne, Kathy (from left).

The Lennon Sisters

Preview of Fall Show With Durante

"The Lennon Sisters Show," a preview of the 1969-70 season series starring the singing group, will be presented at 10 p.m., Tuesday, Ch. 7.

The comedy-variety show has the same entertainment values that will be seen on the Lennons' new fall series, "Jimmy Durante Presents the Lennon Sisters," will showcase the Lennons and feature Durante. In addition to major guest stars, the program will include a regularly scheduled country and western segment and a musical tribute to a selected city.

Guesting with the Lennons on the Tuesday special will be Durante, singer Bobby Goldsboro and the singing-performing group, Hines, Hines and Dad.

KATHY, Dianne, Peggy and Janet, who grew up before the eyes of ABC viewers on "The Lawrence Welk Show," open the special with a mod medley of "Up, Up and Away," "Don't Sleep in the Subway, Darlin'," "Goin' Out of My Head," "The Look of Love," "Sunny" and "Eleanor Rigby." The sisters then sing "A Little Lennon Tale" about each other.

Durante makes the scene to sing "As Time Goes By," and then, as the Electric Nose and the Hankies, he and the sisters team on a rock and roll version of "Inka Dinka Do."

SINGER Bobby Goldsboro then joins the show with his hit rendition of "Honey," and he and the Lennons follow with "Little Green Apples."

In a living room set, the attractive Lennons answer questions they have received from their fans. They sing "Love Is a Very Light Thing," dedicated to Janet's baby, offer a medley of songs with "remember" in the titles and reminisce about their early experiences and their first steps in learning to harmonize.

The Lennon Sisters

Preview of Fall Show With Durante

"The Lennon Sisters Show," a preview of the 1969-70 season series starring the singing group, will be presented at 10 p.m., Tuesday, Ch. 7.

The comedy-variety show has the same entertainment values that will be seen on the Lennons' new fall series, "Jimmy Durante Presents the Lennon Sisters," will showcase the Lennons and feature Durante. In addition to major guest stars, the program will include a regularly scheduled country and western segment and a musical tribute to a selected city.

Guesting with the Lennons on the Tuesday special will be Durante, singer Bobby Goldsboro and the singing-performing group, Hines, Hines and Dad.

KATHY, Dianne, Peggy and Janet, who grew up before the eyes of ABC viewers on "The Lawrence Welk Show," open the special with a mod medley of "Up, Up and Away," "Don't Sleep in the Subway, Darlin'," "Goin' Out of My Head," "The Look of Love," "Sunny" and "Eleanor Rigby." The sisters then sing "A Little Lennon Tale" about each other.

Durante makes the scene to sing "As Time Goes By," and then, as the Electric Nose and the Hankies, he and the sisters team on a rock and roll version of "Inka Dinka Do."

SINGER Bobby Goldsboro then joins the show with his hit rendition of "Honey," and he and the Lennons follow with "Little Green Apples."

GRAHAM KERR has an unique approach to cooking, aside from the always handy glass of wine, on "The Galloping Gourmet," at 11 a.m., Monday through Friday, Ch. 7.

H. Andrew Williams

Presents His Magic Lantern Show Company

Optical illusions and special effects highlight an hour of music by Andy Williams, Aretha Franklin, Roger Miller and Sergio Mendes and Brasil '66 in "H. Andrew Williams' Magic Lantern Show Company,, to be colorcast at 10 p.m., Sunday, Ch. 4.

An Andy Williams vocal quartet (four Andys), the Andy Williams Dancers (also four Andys) and a unique display of motorcycle mischief by Miller, who literally crawls up the walls on two wheels, are included in the grab bag of special effects created by television techniques utilizing mirrors, split screens, multiple projection and the Chroma Key process permitting insertion of several pictures into a single setting.

Also featured visually are a postage stamp-sized Miller projected on Andy's coat, a slow motion dance highlighted by trailing images and the unnerving tendency of all stars to walk into and out of scenes projected on a motion picture screen.

As chief guide and movie projector, Andy opens the special singing his latest release, "Happy Heart." Introducing his guests, he joins Aretha to duet "Think," Mendes for "Mas Que Nada" and Miller in "King of the road."

Aretha solos "Chain of Fools" and "You Send Me" and she and Andy duet "Gentle on My Mind." Miller sings "Little Green Apples" and joins Andy to duet "In the Summertime."

While Andy conducts a travelogue focusing on Equatorial jungles, Mendes and Brasil '66 present "Fool on the Hill," then Andy joins in for "Like a Lover" and a medley of "One Note Samba" and "Spanish Flea."

Other Andy songs: "Here, There and Everywhere," "This Guy's in Love with You," "For Once in My Life" and "My Way."

CRITICS' CORNER

FELICIANO! VERY SPECIAL, aired April 27, Ch. 4.

Jose Feliciano, the young Puerto Rican entertainer who crashed into the public's consciousness with his distinctive interpretation of "The Star Spangled Banner" during last year's World Series, demonstrated his all-around musical talents.

. . . The star sang, played guitar and switched briefly to other instruments. Since Jose has been blind since birth, there were certain problems with mobility and those casual cue-card exchanges of banter between numbers. The former was solved magnificently by permitting him to remain seated through most of the show, surrounded by such attractive talent as Andy Williams, Dionne Warwick and Glen Campbell.

A guitar duet with Campbell was a highlight of the hour. The latter problem was handled even better — they just didn't have those painful exchanges.

It was beautifully produced and a visual treat . . .

—Cynthia Lowry, AP

THE SPRING THING, aired April 28, Ch. 4.

Gossamer thin in content, but sheer fun in viewing, this latest special to take the place of "Laugh-In" on Monday nights over NBC came in like a warm zephyr and went out as a languid lamb. Co-hosted by a strangely compatible couple, Noel Harrison and Bobbie Gentry, the hour offered little that was new or different, yet managed to use all the techniques innovated in the past season or so to keep a modern look and a pace which never broke the spring-time strolling stride . . .

—Bob Hull, Hollywood Reporter

WILLIAM WINDOM and Alexandra Hay (rear) and William Shatner and Maria Tucci are four of characters trapped in a business office in a power blackout.

Shadow Game

"Shadow Game," an original drama by Loring Mandel, will air as the fourth CBS Playhouse show of the season at 9:30 p.m., Wednesday, Ch. 2.

The drama centers on a group of people trapped in a business office during a power blackout, centering on Saul Novick (played by Daniel Massey, son of actor Raymond Massey, and through him motivations of others are explored.

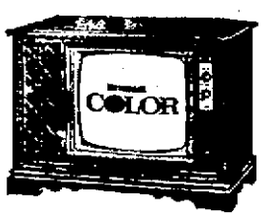

DANIEL MASSEY and Carol Rossen play business colleagues who find out about each other during power blackout.

WALDO WATERMAN, of San Diego, who at 74 is the senior commercially licensed pilot in the U.S., sits in the pilot's seat of his pusher type aircraft which he designed and built.

Kitty Hawk To Paris

FOR FIVE YEARS following the first flight by the Wright Brothers they tried to interest the government in their invention. Washington was not interested.

In 1908 Wilbur Wright took the plane to Europe where he received several governmental offers which were very attractive. Suddenly the U.S. Government was interested and President Roosevelt instructed the Army to test the plane.

The test was a success. The Wright Brothers had shown the way. Others followed such as Glenn Curtiss who built a series of airplanes. In Europe Bleriot, Farman, Santos Dumont all took to the air.

Designs changed rapidly. By 1909 air speed had reached 43 miles per hour and soon ladies and even President Roosevelt tried flying. He thought it was bully.

SOON BARNSTORMING and flying circus troops began to sweep the nation. Parachute jumping was one way to get into aviation. Among the early jumpers were the team of Charles Lindbergh and Bud Gurney.

Probably circus flying produced the best pilots who ever lived, men who were totally at home in the air, whether in a parachute, or a plane, or even walking on a wing or swinging from a trapeze suspended from the landing gear. The program covers the exploits of these men and the fragile airplanes with which they made their assaults.

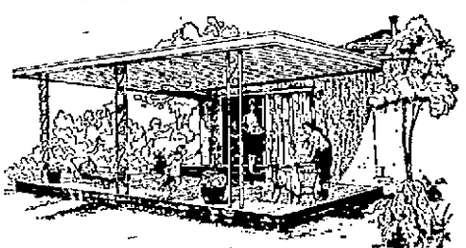

Most of them self taught, even those who fought in World War I, like vetren film director William Wellman who joined the Lafayette Flying Corps, an outgrowth of Lafayette Escadrille, in order to fly.

"We learned by the Bleriot method," he recalled. "They told us what to do and then we got into a plane and tried to do it. A lot of boys were killed trying to learn," Wellman recalls.

Kitty Hawk To Paris

FOR FIVE YEARS following the first flight by the Wright Brothers they tried to interest the government in their invention. Washington was not interested.

In 1908 Wilbur Wright took the plane to Europe where he received several governmental offers which were very attractive. Suddenly the U.S. Government was intersted and President Roosevelt instructed the Army to test the plane.

The test was a success. The Wright Brothers had shown the way. Others followed such as Glenn Curtiss who built a series of airplanes. In Europe Bleriot, Farman, Santos Dumont all took to the air.

Designs changed rapidly. By 1909 air speed had reached 43 miles per hour and soon ladies and even President Roosevelt tried flying. He thought it was bully.

SOON BARNSTORMING and flying circus troops began to sweep the nation. Parachute jumping was one way to get into aviation. Among the early jumpers were the team of Charles Lindbergh and Bud Gurney.

Probably circus flying produced the best pilots who ever lived, men who were totally at home in the air, whether in a parachute, or a plane, or even walking on a wing or swinging from a trapeze suspended from the landing gear. The program covers the exploits of these men and the fragile airplanes with which they made their assaults.

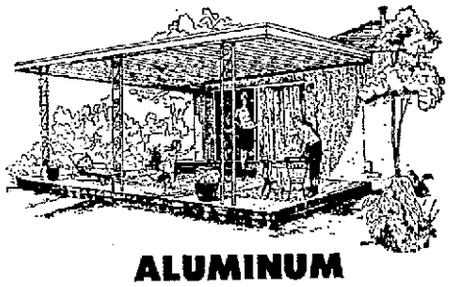

Most of them self taught, even those who fought in World War I, like vetren film director William Wellman who joined the Lafayette Flying Corps, an outgrowth of Lafayette Escadrille, in order to fly.

"We learned by the Bleriot method," he recalled. "They told us what to do and then we got into a plane and tried to do it. A lot of boys were killed trying to learn," Wellman recalls.

The Art and the Commerce

Peter Graves Finds There's a Bit of Both in 'M:I'

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press International

Ask the star of a television series if he is making time and making money instead of honing his craft in less financially rewarding endeavors such as little theater.

I aked Peter Graves of "Mission: Impossible" and his candor was refreshing.

Most series stars bleat that their shows are "challenging."

GRAVES grinned broadly and said: "there's a certain amount of truth in what one of our directors said on the set this season. He told me, 'When I first started in this business I thought it was an art. It took me several years to discover I was in commerce.'

"The fact is that being in a series is more than making money and marking time. The whole idea is to make something popular — which doesn't necessarily mean it's good. But often the two go together. I think popularity and quality are combined on our show."

Naturally, Graves would rather be starring in explosively important motion pictures, as would co-stars Barbara Bain and Martin Landau.

"But great movie scripts don't come along every day," Graves said.

"IF YOU are dedicated to fine things and want to sit on the fence waiting for them, you could wait for the rest of your life. The alternative is to keep working and seeking.

"All actors like to work. If you can't play 'Hamlet,' then you do the 'Beverly Hillbillies' if that's all you're offered.

"From time to time I've done things I'm not proud of. But there are practical considerations like paying the rent and feeding your family. And afterwards you put it behind you."

THIS YEAR Graves will star in Italy in a new movie, "Five-Man Army."

It may not make the world forget "Gone With The Wind," but Graves would like to continue to do at least one film a year while the series remains on the air.

"We're fortunate on our show because each of the actors plays at least two characters every week," he said. "Often we're called upon to portray three or four.

PETER GRAVES

"I'm not saying this is a great challenge. But it does prevent us from being type-cast.

"Is it art? In a sense, yes," Graves concluded with a wink. "But it is also commerce."

The Art and the Commerce

Peter Graves Finds There's a Bit of Both in 'M:I'

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press International

Ask the star of a television series if he is making time and making money instead of honing his craft in less financially rewarding endeavors such as little theater.

I asked Peter Graves of "Mission: Impossible" and his candor was refreshing.

Most series stars bleat that their shows are "challenging."

GRAVES grinned broadly and said: "there's a certain amount of truth in what one of our directors said on the set this season. He told me, 'When I first started in this business I thought it was an art. It took me several years to discover I was in commerce.'

"The fact is that being in a series is more than making money and marking time. The whole idea is to make something popular — which doesn't necessarily mean it's good. But often the two go together. I think popularity and quality are combined on our show."

Naturally, Graves would rather be starring in explosively important motion pictures, as would co-stars Barbara Bain and Martin Landau.

"But great movie scripts don't come along every day," Graves said.

"IF YOU are dedicated to fine things and want to sit on the fence waiting for them, you could wait for the rest of your life. The alternative is to keep working and seeking.

"All actors like to work. If you can't play 'Hamlet,' then you do the 'Beverly Hillbillies' if that's all you're offered.

"From time to time I've done things I'm not proud of. But there are practical considerations like paying the rent and feeding your family. And afterwards you put it behind you."

The Doris Day Show

It Will Need More Than Doris Day to Succeed

By RICK DU BROW
United Press International

The movie industry learned some time ago that no longer can you put an established star in a film and automatically guarantee a boxoffice profit.

Audiences have changed. They are demanding. In Hollywood today, in most cases, the story — the script — comes first, and then the director, and then the stars.

Surely there are stars who are still good bets to draw audiences, but even these performers know that the quality of a script and a director will affect their careers.

IF YOU approach a star nowadays to appear in a film, the odds are that the first question he will ask of you is who is directing. With the answer to this, he will have a pretty good idea of the quality of the project.

Television audiences are generally less demanding than movie audiences. It was not so in video's early days, when television sets were more expensive and were bought first by affluent citizens, and when the mass-oriented approach was not yet definite because there was no nationwide hookup.

When the mass approach came, television carved out for itself a basically conservative, stay-at-home, older, money-spending, easily satisfied audience. Old favorites filled the screen. Stories and directors became vehicles by which the stars continued to draw the people.

MODERNITY is suddenly imposing itself on television, and the urban-oriented young people are beginning to make a big change, some of which is already showing in programming. But the fact is that most programming is still dominated by the star system. It is not being unkind to say that television is simply, for the most part, that much behind movies because of the long-established mass approach on a safe basis.

DORIS DAY

Otherwise, how can one imagine the existence of something like CBS-TV'S Doris Day series?. It has been up and down in the ratings in its first year, not yet fulfilling the big hit status the network expected of it. The chances are, however, that it will build in popularity and be a long-run attraction.

But this is not the point. What is the point is that the Doris Day Show has nothing but Doris Day. The thinking was that all you have to do is put on this fantastically successful and popular lady and— boom — you've got a smash hit. There's a lesson in the fact that it hasn't panned out that way yet.

MISS DAY, whether one likes her performing or not, is a gifted and talented lady who has worked hard at her profession and learned a lot, and shows it as she progresses from one move to another. On television, however, she has no stories to speak of. There is little or no character development. The directing is rudimentary. The lady is simply expected to pull off a miracle by just showing up.

This is surprising coming from CBS-TV, which developed the situation comedy into a fine commercial technique. The network, for instance, also has "Mayberry RFD." which is an offshoot of the old Andy Griffith series — and it is doing very well Just because many of the episodes have simple, human values, and also because the long-run development of the characters makes them surprisingly believable.

Doris Day was and is a big star, but she is only human, and it would seem not only gallant but commercially wise to stock her future shows with believable stories instead of far-fetched ones, and with well - rounded characters rather than caricatures of human beings.

Plan Now for a Sturdy All Year Liken "Patio Room"

Likens ever popular all-year aluminum "patio room." Strong, cool aluminum roof combined with fiberglass screen and brick wall make for a durable year-round structure. Removable "cello glass" windows can be added during cooler months to make this addition truly a den, family or all year play room. Call GE 3-0946 for a Free Estimate at any time you desire.

Probably no home-improvement project has such wide appeal as installing an outdoor patio. It can add much to family (and guests) pleasure.

Distinctive types of patios are featured through the quality designs provided by T. H. Liken and Sons. Curved patios, screened-in's, and many, many other distinctive designs are offered by the 22-year-old firm that has adhered to ethical business practices and prices during their many years of service to Long Beach and surrounding area homeowners.

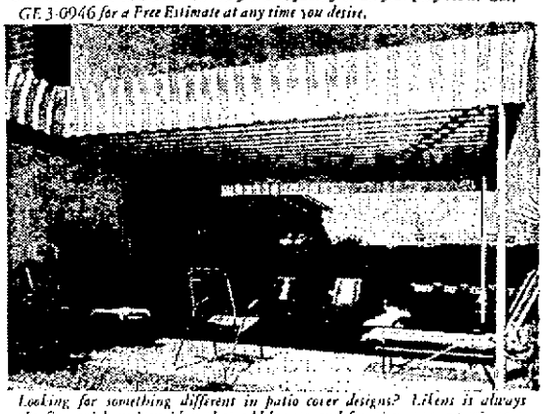

Likens are craftsmen in their field. They design each patio cover with the architectural plan of the house in mind.

Another service offered by the popular company is reflecting industrial and commercial buildings. Old buildings take on a fresh, sparkling

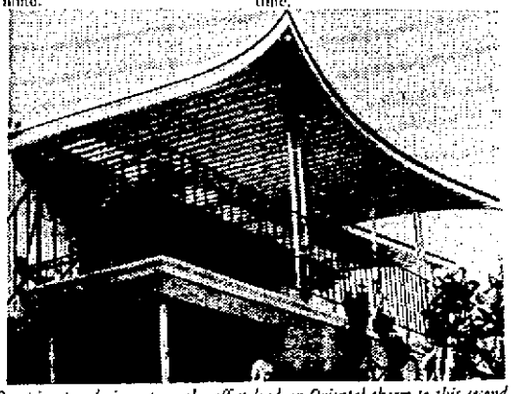

Patio construction is augmented with complete service in aluminum awnings, screen enclosures, cement work and brick planters. All work carries a complete guarantee.

Likens staff of experts are well trained to plan, design and carry through on any home, commercial or industrial improvement project.

Free estimates are available at all times. A call to GE 3-0946 will bring a representative at your selected time.

Looking for something different in patio cover designs? Likens is always the first with unique ideas that add beauty and function to your patio area. Upright valance, design is continued along back of home to eliminate the "tacked on look" so prevalent in most patios. All furniture and accessories were "color keyed" to match patio roof.

Sweeping panels in a two color effect lend an Oriental charm to this second story balcony. Alternating panels of translucent plexi-glass allows light to filter through, but holds back heat rays. Total concept is further enhanced by decorative scroll railing, Oriental shrubbery and statuary.

Unusual Prize Winning Designs

Know the company, know the product, know the guarantee. These are the three most important phases when planning a patio, carport or other aluminum structure, according to T. H. Liken and Sons, patio and aluminum building contractors serving the Southland for 22 years.

The award winning company (winners of the National Flexalum Design Award) have combined their designing skills with the finest in materials to establish an outstanding reputation for quality workmanship. All work is bonded and guaranteed.

Liken notes that nothing can match their Flexalum patio cover. Custom work, unique construction . . . no nuts, bolts or screws to mar the beauty of a Liken patio.

Exceptional quality is provided through the extra strength of top quality spring-tempered aluminum panels. Likens features all aluminum concealed I-beam construction. Two coats of baked enamel that does away with waxing.

If desired, special skylight panels can be alternated with aluminum panels allowing a limited amount of light to filter through. The customer has a choice of a multitude of colors to choose from, plus cello-glass removable windows to make your patio an all-year room.

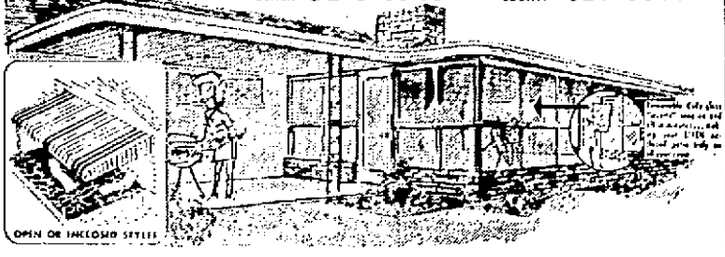

Original designs and solving of unusual problems are a specialty of Likens. A complete staff of experts are always available to aid with any aluminum-structure design.

Riddle of the Mayan Cave

"Riddle of the Mayan Cave," an ABC News special produced in association with the Explorers Club — organization of scientist-explorers — will be presented at 7:30 p.m., Friday, Ch. 7.

The program will trace the efforts of an Explorers Club team of 10 men and one woman to unlock the mysteries of a once thriving culture through examination of a labyrinth of caves in the Guatamalan highlands believed to have been used in ceremonial rites by the Mayans who flourished from 300 to 900 AD.

Members of the expedition are shown in areas never visited by modern man, their meetings with contemporary Mayans who incorporate into their Catholic worship traces of their ancestrial rituals, and the finding of massive underground stairways, altar hearths and human remains several thousand years old.

Included are scenes of the magnificent cave architecture, subterranean galleries of startling natural beauty formed over a period of 10,000 years by the dripping of mineral saturated water from cave walls and ceilings.

When the expedition was completed the researchers had, in fact, mapped and explored 21 caves, three of them never before entered by modern man. And the expedition objective — to determine if the ancient Mayans had used the caves for religious rites — had been fulfilled.

The team was composed of persons skilled in speleology or spelunking (cave exploring), biology, geology, and archeology. One of the two medical doctors on the expedition served as physician for the group. The expedition leader was Russell Gurnee, noted cave explorer.

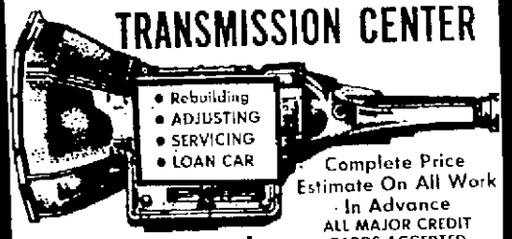

STORY OF an Explorers Club expedition to trace the ancient Mayan civilization is told in "Riddle of the Mayan Cave."

Rod McKuen: The Loner

One Man Show for Singer, Composer, Poet

Rod McKuen — singer, recording artist, composer, concert performer and best-selling poet — sings nearly a dozen of his own songs on his first one-man show to be colorcast at 8:30 p.m., Saturday, Ch. 4.

"Rod McKuen: The Loner" finds Rod reciting just one of his famous poems, all of which reflect childhood memories and contemporary observations and dwell on such themes as lost love, loneliness and empty rooms. "A Cat Named Sloopy" ends with the lines: "Perhaps she's been.. the only human thing.. that ever gave back love to me."

THE BALANCE and bulk of the colorcast is McKuen and his music; McKuen singing his songs and sounding, in his own words, "like a man who's been gargling with steel wool."

The best-selling "If You Go Away" (for which McKuen wrote the English lyrics to French chansonnier (Jacques Brel's music), "Kaleidoscope" and "The Complete Madame Butterfly" (in 30 seconds) are among the songs, many of them McKuen poems set to music, which Rod wraps in his familiar warm whisper.

Other featured numbers are "The World I Used to Know," "The Loner," "I've Been to Town," "Trashy," "Merci Beaucoup" and a medley embracing the title songs of three of his books - turned - records, "Stanyan Street," "Lonesome Cities" and "Listen to the Warm."

THE NUMBERS were selected from nearly 1,000 songs which Rod has written and which have been etched on more than 40 million records by almost every leading artist.

McKuen himself has recorded more than 30 albums of his own material, and in early April he received his first gold album, representing more than $1 million in sales, for "The Sea," which he wrote in collaboration with Anita Kerr.

As a poet, McKuen last year had three books listed among the 10 best-selling nonfiction works in the nation, with "Listen to the Warm," "Lonesome Cities" and "Stanyan Street and Other Sorrows" selling a combined total of nearly one million volumes.

Rod McKuen: The Loner

One Man Show for Singer, Composer, Poet

Rod McKuen — singer, recording artist, composer, concert performer and best-selling poet — sings nearly a dozen of his own songs on his first one-man show to be colorcast at 8:30 p.m., Saturday, Ch. 4.

"Rod McKuen: The Loner" finds Rod reciting just one of his famous poems, all of which reflect childhood memories and contemporary observations and dwell on such themes as lost love, loneliness and empty rooms. "A Cat Named Sloopy" ends with the lines: "Perhaps she's been.. the only human thing.. that ever gave back love to me."

THE BALANCE and bulk of the colorcast is McKuen and his music; McKuen singing his songs and sounding, in his own words, "like a man who's been gargling with steel wool."

The best-selling "If You Go Away" (for which McKuen wrote the English lyrics to French chansonnier (Jacques Brel's music), "Kaleidoscope" and "The Complete Madame Butterfly" (in 30 seconds) are among the songs, many of them McKuen poems set to music, which Rod wraps in his familiar warm whisper.

Other featured numbers are "The World I Used to Know," "The Loner," "I've Been to Town," "Trashy," "Merci Beaucoup" and a medley embracing the title songs of three of his books - turned - records, "Stanyan Street," "Lonesome Cities" and "Listen to the Warm."

THE NUMBERS were selected from nearly 1,000 songs which Rod has written and which have been etched on more than 40 million records by almost every leading artist.

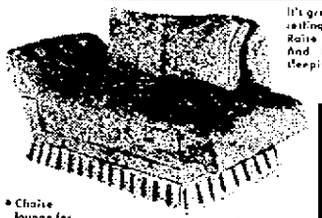

McKuen himself has recorded more than 30 albums of his own material, and in early April he received his first gold album, representing more than $1 million in sales, for "The Sea," which he wrote in collaboration with Anita Kerr.

As a poet, McKuen last year had three books listed among the 10 best-selling nonfiction works in the nation, with "Listen to the Warm," "Lonesome Cities" and "Stanyan Street and Other Sorrows" selling a combined total of nearly one million volumes.

DON CHASTAIN

TIM MATHESON

TV NOTEBOOK

DON CHASTAIN has been cast to play the sportswriting husband of Debbie Reynolds on the NBC Television Network's "The Debbie Reynolds Show," during the 1969-70 season. Chastain has co-starred in the Broadway stage productions of "No Strings" and "Superman."

ARTHUR TREACHER, Merv Griffin's 75-year-old Tonto, is making such unexpectedly speedy recovery from major surgery to correct a circulatory defect that he may return to the syndicated show before Griffin makes his big move to CBS in mid-August.

DAVID HARTMAN, the lanky addition to "The Virginian" cast for the past couple of seasons, will stable his horse in September in favor of a more contemporary role in NBC's "The Bold Ones." Hartman still has not used his baritone singing voice for television although he has sung on the Broadway stage.

Actor Tim Matheson has been signed a regular on "The Virginian" and will be introduced in the premiere episode of the series' eighth season this September. He will portray a young itinerant cowboy, Jim Horn, who arrives at Shiloh and stays as one of the wranglers.

ABC EXECUTIVES have been talking series with the Smothers Brothers and while it is unlikely they will turn up on that network by September, there is a chance they may bob up as a midseason replacement series.

THE NUMBER of U.S. households equipped with color television increased to 20,560,000 equivalent to 35.4 per cent of TV households, during the first quarter of this year, the National Broadcasting Company estimated. The total represents an increase of 5,270,000 (34.5 per cent) over the April 1, 1968 figure. The Jan. 1, 1965 figure was 2,810,000 (5.3 per cent).

"We estimate that the number of color sets in use exceeds the number of color homes by over 2 million," Mr. Cooper announced. "Many of these 'extra' sets are located in multi-color-set households. A growing number have been installed in hotels, hospitals, offices, schools, and other public places, providing a bonus color audience to television advertisers."

DAVID HARTMAN, the lanky addition to "The Virginian" cast for the past couple of seasons, will stable his horse in September in favor of a more contemporary role in NBC's "The Bold Ones." Hartman still has not used his baritone singing voice for television although he has sung on the Broadway stage.

Actor Tim Matheson has been signed a regular on "The Virginian" and will be introduced in the premiere episode of the series' eighth season this September. He will portray a young itinerant cowboy, Jim Horn, who arrives at Shiloh and stays as one of the wranglers.

ABC EXECUTIVES have been talking series with the Smothers Brothers and while it is unlikely they will turn up on that network by September, there is a chance they may bob up as a midseason replacement series.

THE NUMBER of U.S. households equipped with color television increased to 20,560,000 equivalent to 35.4 per cent of TV households, during the first-quarter of this year, the National Broadcasting Company estimated. The total represents an increase of 5,270,000 (34.5 per cent) over the April 1, 1968 figure. The Jan. 1, 1965 figure was 2,810,000 (5.3 per cent).

"We estimate that the number of color sets in use exceeds the number of color homes by over 2 million," Mr. Cooper announced. "Many of these 'extra' sets are located in multi-color-set households. A growing number have been installed in hotels, hospitals, offices, schools, and other public places, providing a bonus color audience to television advertisers."

MUSIC HALL, aired Wednesday, Ch. 4.

"Music Hall," the NBC series that turns out a variety special weekly, summer and winter, moved its base Wednesday night to England.

The stars, British comedians Peter Cook and Dudley Moore, relied heavily on slapstick — breakaway furniture and such — and droll accents for laughs.

The London studio audience responded with inordinate laughter, so the British sense of humor may be a bit more elementary than American. But then, one problem of the U.S. viewer was to get one's ear adjusted to the accent-Cockney now, Scottish in the next sketch — and by the time one started to understand, the sketch was all but over.

The studio audience, too, roared at a sketch early in the show in which a pair of comedy villains threatened guest star Anne Bancroft with dreadful treatment if she refused to pay them protection money — and they seemed to find it absolutely delicious when she dropped them through a trap door in her living room floor.

COMPATIBILITY CHARACTER ANALYSIS

Answer the following questions spontaneously and indicate your reaction in the box after each question ranging on a scale from "no" to "yes." If your answer to a particular question is positively NO, put a mark in the extreme left box. If a qualified no, mark the box second from the left, if it is neither a yes or no, box "?." If a qualified yes . . . the box second from right and if positively YES, mark the box on the extreme right and so on through the 50 questions.

37	I would want a mate who is warm, affectionate and responsive.
38	Sex is acceptable in its place, but people should not give in to their lustful impulses.
39	Married couples should treat sex seriously and never playfully or erotically.
40	The ability to be affectionate toward a loved one is an important part of marital success.
41	I would like a mate who attends church regularly.
42	I would like my children to begin religious training at early age and continue as long as possible.
43	I believe that God answers prayers.
44	Children should be allowed to choose their own religious and moral beliefs.
45	I believe in the existence of a Supreme Being.
46	Regular church attendance enhances stable and wholesome family life.
47	In the event of personal or marital problems, the first person I'd consult would be a clergyman.

Glad You Asked That!

By Hy Gardner

Do you have a question about a famous person? Send it to Hy Gardner, Southland Magazine, P. O. Box 2505, New York, N. Y. 10017. Gardner will answer as many questions as he can in his column, but is unable to send personal replies.

Q. WHY, DO YOU suppose, with all the medals he'd been decorated with, that Gen. Eisenhower was buried with only three, including one of the least important, the Legion of Merit?" — M. McMahon, Nashville, Tenn.

A. Because Ike was a sentimentalist and this was one of the first medals he won after graduating from West Point.

Q. Have the Barry Goldwaters really got a dog with a gold front tooth? — Mrs. H. R., Scottsboro, Ark.

A. Cyclone II did sport such an unusual tooth; it startled you the first time the pup smiled a welcome. A sad postscript from Mrs. Goldwater reports: "Cyclone II had a great habit of chasing cars and biting at the tires. One day he caught one, so he is not with us any more. I don't think we will get another dog because you get so attached to them that when you lose them the grief is too much."

Q. What famous comedian said: "There's one advantage to growing old and saving your money. Then you can be honest and tell ANYONE what you really think about him?" — Adele Marsh, Los Angeles.

A. A philosopher named Julius Marx, also known as Groucho.

Q. Can you find out if it's true that TV-nightclub insulter Don Rickles pulled some of his smart stuff when the "Pueblo" crew caught his act at the Sahara in Las Vegas? — Bernard Bennett, Syracuse, N.Y.

A. Untrue, exclaims Rickles. "I kidded myself, not those great guys. I recalled my Navy hitch with the PT service in WW2, saying it was a lot rougher than theirs. I used to keep telling my skipper 'I tell jokes and do impressions and sing a few songs,' and he kept saying 'Just keep firing at the beach, kid, at those guys with the funny teeth!' "

Q. What ever happened to that drunk and belligerent actor who played the role of "Dillinger" in a movie, then thought that's who he was, even fighting cops?" — D.B. Oakland.

A. Lawrence Tierney finally sobered up and wised up. He got a job moving furniture to build himself up physically. Mickey Spillane just signed him to play the heavy in "The Delta Factor," observing: "Anyone who overcomes his alcoholic cancer deserves a break — and I'm giving one to Larry."

Tiny Tim and Kim Novak.

Q. Did Tiny Tim date Kim Novak when she was in Miami Beach taping a show for Jackie Gleason and he was the $60,000 star of the Fontainebleau? Also, which has the longer hair? — Carolyn Parqueth, Hasbrouck Heights, N.J.

A. To answer your Kim-and-Tim query . . . the only female Tiny Buckingham Tim (that IS his middle name) dated was his mother. He gave both her and his dad a Florida vacation as a Christmas gift. To further put the lie to romance rumors, if you look at the photograph appearing with this column you'll notice that Tiny didn't even dare to hold Kim's hands — he held his own. About the longest hairdo — I think you'll agree it's a tie.

Q. Is it true that Roslyn Kind got a recording contract only because she's Barbra Streisand's half-sister? — R.B., Sacramento.

A. "I'm NOT trading on Barbra's name," Roslyn snapped. "RCA-Victor bought me AFTER hearing my audition record — BEFORE they were aware who I was. If you'll notice there's nothing printed on the album, 'Give Me You,' that makes any reference to Barbra. Same with my nightclub contracts; a clause forbids using the relationship in my billing or advertising. Having the same mother does open some doors a crack," she concluded, "but those same doors can slam in your face if you don't deliver!"

Q. Didn't Jacqueline lose her U.S. citizenship when she married Onassis?" — F.M.W., Ridgewood, N.Y.

A. No. An immigration regulation dated Sept. 22, 1922, specifies that American women who marry foreigners do not forfeit their citizenship.

Glad You Asked That!

By Hy Gardner

Do you have a question about a famous person? Send it to Hy Gardner, Southland Magazine, P. O. Box 2505, New York, N. Y. 10017. Gardner will answer as many questions as he can in his column, but is unable to send personal replies.

Q. WHY, DO YOU suppose, with all the medals he'd been decorated with, that Gen. Eisenhower was buried with only three, including one of the least important, the Legion of Merit?" — M. McMahon, Nashville, Tenn.

A. Because Ike was a sentimentalist and this was one of the first medals he won after graduating from West Point.

Q. Have the Barry Goldwaters really got a dog with a gold front tooth? — Mrs. H. R., Scottsboro, Ark.

A. Cyclone II did sport such an unusual tooth; it startled you the first time the pup smiled a welcome. A sad postscript from Mrs. Goldwater reports: "Cyclone II had a great habit of chasing cars and biting at the tires. One day he caught one, so he is not with us any more. I don't think we will get another dog because you get so attached to them that when you lose them the grief is too much."

Q. What famous comedian said: "There's one advantage to growing old and saving your money. Then you can be honest and tell ANYONE what you really think about him?" — Adele Marsh, Los Angeles.

A. A philosopher named Julius Marx, also known as Groucho.

Q. Can you find out if it's true that TV-nightclub insulter Don Rickles pulled some of his smart stuff when the "Pueblo" crew caught his act at the Sahara in Las Vegas? — Bernard Bennett, Syracuse, N.Y.

A. Untrue, exclaims Rickles. "I kidded myself, not those great guys. I recalled my Navy hitch with the PT service in WW2, saying it was a lot rougher than theirs. I used to keep telling my skipper 'I tell jokes and do impressions and sing a few songs,' and he kept saying 'Just keep firing at the beach, kid, at those guys with the funny teeth!'"

Q. What ever happened to that drunk and belligerent actor who played the role of "Dillinger" in a movie, then thought that's who he was, even fighting cops?" — D.B. Oakland.

A. Lawrence Tierney finally sobered up and wised up. He got a job moving furniture to build himself up physically. Mickey Spillane just signed him to play the heavy in "The Delta Factor," observing: "Anyone who overcomes his alcoholic cancer deserves a break — and I'm giving one to Larry."

Tiny Tim and Kim Novak.

Q. Did Tiny Tim date Kim Novak when she was in Miami Beach taping a show for Jackie Gleason and he was the $60,000 star of the Fontainebleau? Also, which has the longer hair? — Carolyn Parqueth, Hasbrouck Heights, N.J.

A. To answer your Kim-and-Tim query . . . the only female Tiny Buckingham Tim (that IS his middle name) dated was his mother. He gave both her and his dad a Florida vacation as a Christmas gift. To further put the lie to romance rumors, if you look at the photograph appearing with this column you'll notice that Tiny didn't even dare to hold Kim's hands — he held his own. About the longest hairdo — I think you'll agree it's a tie.

Q. Is it true that Roslyn Kind got a recording contract only because she's Barbra Streisand's half-sister? — R.B., Sacramento.

A. "I'm NOT trading on Barbra's name," Roslyn snapped. "RCA-Victor bought me AFTER hearing my audition record — BEFORE they were aware who I was. If you'll notice there's nothing printed on the album, 'Give Me You,' that makes any reference to Barbra. Same with my nightclub contracts; a clause forbids using the relationship in my billing or advertising. Having the same mother does open some doors a crack," she concluded, "but those same doors can slam in your face if you don't deliver!"

Q. Didn't Jacqueline lose her U.S. citizenship when she married Onassis?" — F.M.W., Ridgewood, N.Y.

A. No. An immigration regulation dated Sept. 22, 1922, specifies that American women who marry foreigners do not forfeit their citizenship.

Fiberglas, a product of Owens-Corning, brings to TEX-COTE its great strength, its wonderful insulating properties, its resistance to time, weather and chemical attack.

PROVEN OVER THE YEARS

THE WELLS REPORT

ERIN in Rossmoor

By Bob Wells

THE ROOM WAS PLEASANT but not particularly distinctive. The carpet was dark and warm, designed to rebuff coffee stains and give up cookie crumbs easily. The furniture was upholstered in durable, easily cleaned, green naugahyde. There was a gas log burning cozily in the big fireplace. It was a parish meeting room at St. Hedwig's in Rossmoor, but it might as easily been a meeting room in any Lutheran, Baptist or Unitarian church in Southern California.

There was nothing, either, to particularly distinguish the man speaking. He had been quiet during most of the meeting, sitting back in his armchair against the wall and listening to the discussion. He was gray-haired, about 55, but beneath the coat of his dark suit was the swollen chest that betrays the long fight with emphysema.

"I was arrested in December of 1938," he was saying — and the words flowed in soft, liquid, Irish syllables — "and I was released in July of 1945. During that time I was never brought before a court or formally charged. Of course, they used the war as an excuse.

"The police came for me about 3 a.m. They hammered on the door and when I opened it, I saw there were about a half-dozen of them. There were others surrounding the house. I got dressed and they walked me the half-block to the police barracks in Belfast.

"They accused me under the Special Powers Act of having committed or of being about to commit a crime against the peace."

SEAN McCARDLE PAUSED for breath, and the others in the room nodded their assent at his words. Most of the people in the room had been born in Northern Ireland. They had fled to America to escape the political and economic persecution that was their lot as Catholics in the six counties of Northern Ireland. But they hadn't forgotten and now they were trying to do something about it.

They had formed ERIN — Equal Rights in Northern Ireland — to attempt to rally public opinion in America for equal voting and housing and job rights for the Catholic minority in Ulster and against gerrymandering by the Protestant majority and against the hated Special Powers Act that permits arrest without warrant, imprisonment without trial, punishment by flogging, interference with private property and press censorship and suppression.

A few months ago, when ERIN was first formed, its founders envisioned a five-year campaign of education to bring the moral weight of the American public to bear on the problem. But the situation in North Ireland would not wait for them. The increasing resentment of the Catholic minority and the increasing religious bigotry of the Scotch-Irish followers of the Rev. Ian Paisley has combined to produce a series of confrontations that threatens civil war.

THE CONFLICT is not new. It dates back to 1690 when the Scotch Protestants of William of Orange defeated the Catholic Irish at the Battle of the Boyne and settled in Northern Ireland to become the Scotch-Irish. When the rest of Ireland won its freedom from Britain in the 1920s, the six counties with a Protestant majority were partitioned off and remained a part of the United Kingdom.

The Orangemen still celebrate the Twelfth of July, the anniversary of Boyne, and still sing the Boyne Water airs ("Oh, up to our knees in Catholic blood and up to our knees in slaughter").

There are only half a million Catholics in the six counties compared to a million Protestants. Despite their majority, the Orangemen take no chances on any dilution of their political power.

"There is only room in Northern Ireland for one political party," is how then Premier Viscount Brookeborough explained it in 1961. Carrying this thought into the economic sphere, another Orangeman, Senator Barnhill, declared in 1963: "Charity begins at home and if we are going to employ people we should employ Unionists."

Newspapers occasionally carry advertisements such as: "WANTED— reliable cook, Protestant (Christian preferred)." At the meeting at St. Hedwig's, I was requested by an M.D. to please not use his name in any story about ERIN. His family was still in business in Coleraine, County Londonderry, and would be subject to economic reprisals.

ONE OF THE THINGS THAT angers the Catholics most is the Unionist control of housing. Sixty per cent of the population of North Ireland lives in public housing. It is the local governments that control and allot this housing.

Voting for city councils and similar local governments is restricted to heads of households and their wives. Since the Unionists control public housing they make sure that they hold down the number of Catholic heads of households by denying them housing. There is a Catholic member of the Belfast City Council who lives in his father's house and cannot even vote for himself.

Catholics long have been agitating for a reform of the voting laws along the American "one man, one vote" principle. To control this agitation, the Unionists have utilized the Special Powers Act.

Sean McCardle joined the Irish Republican Army as a boy of 16 in Belfast. He was 24 when he was imprisoned under the Special Powers Act.

"My future sister-in-law was also imprisoned — at the age of 15," he recalls. "And in the roundup that got me there was an old man of 80 arrested — the leader of Clan Nagael from County Tyrone — and his three sons.

"WE POLITICAL PRISONERS WERE distinguished from the 'locals' or criminals. We were allowed to wear our own clothes. We weren't compelled to work and were allowed to run our own educational programs. At first we were allowed visits by members of our immediate family. Then, one day, as representative of the political prisoners, I was called in and told that no more family visits would be permitted.

"On Christmas Day, 1939, we mutinied over the ban on family visits. We seized the jail and burned some cellblocks. We held some warders hostages, but they weren't harmed. The government used police, firemen and British military to break the mutiny. It was the firemen with their high-pressure hoses that finally did it.

"They blasted us head over heels and left us to lay in the icy water in the icy night. That was the beginning of my bronchial trouble that ended in emphysema. Many prisoners died later from pneumonia and other ailments contracted that night.

"But they shortly raised the ban on family visitations. Funny. Many of the prisoners had relatives serving with the British armed forces in the war. It was a common sight to see men in British military uniform visiting the prisoners.

"WHILE I WAS in prison, Tom Williams was hung for an IRA attack in which a policeman was killed. We were attending Mass, when the word was passed to the Orangemen outside the prison. We could hear their cheers of celebration.

But McCardle thinks the IRA is dying. There is a new political sophistication among young Catholics that is more effective, he thinks — and a new and growing tolerance among young Protestants.

Dr. Francis McCauley, chairman of ERIN, agrees. The struggle is not a religious one, he says, but a struggle for equal rights for all Irishmen.

Jeff Hathcock (center), director of movie being made by college students, chats with actors Art Perkins (left) and Don Robinson on location.

The movie is being filmed at the Tropico Gold Mine near Rosamond. In this court scene, Don Robinson is cross-examined by Art Perkins.

COLLEGE STUDENTS MAKING A FULL-LENGTH FILM

'See You in the Movies!'

By Frank Taylor

WARM DESERT sunshine beat down on the weathered buildings and dusty streets where a director was giving final instructions to his cast. As he stalked back and forth his voice sounded loud in the quiet setting. Nearby a cameraman waited patiently for the action to begin. A Hollywood sound stage? Not at all. A California State College at Long Beach cast and crew were hard at work on a feature-length movie in the desert north of Los Angeles.

It was one of the most unusual groups of movie makers ever to invade the regions near Rosamond, where the Tropico Gold Mine is located. The cast had paid up to $35 each for the privilege of being in the film and driving from Long Beach to spend weekends in the hot sun creating a movie that the students hoped to finance for less than $1,000.

What the students lacked in knowledge and money, they made up for in determination and energy. The script called for an expensive outdoor set with buildings and other frontier props. After a search of several weeks, the Tropico site was selected. Bubbling with enthusiasm, the Long Beach students asked and received permission to use the ghost town for several months — free.

"When people find out what we are trying to do," Larry Hedman, the finance director, told me, "they bend over backwards to help us. Mr. and Mrs. Settle, the owners of Tropico, were happy to let us use their place for filming. Mrs. Settle said it was nice to see young people doing something constructive with their time instead of rioting and causing trouble." At 23, Hedman sounded like a Wall Street banker, instead of a student.

Hedman's friend, Stuart Boss, 21, who acts as the production manager, cited another example of strangers helping out. "We needed horses for a scene. I went to a few ranches near the mine and asked how much it would cost to rent horses. The owners were so enthusiastic about our movie they refused to take money. So that saved our budget a lot. People believe in our movie just like we do," Boss said earnestly.

The collegians' movie is titled "The Three Sided Coin" and is expected to run 90 minutes, which, in the vernacular of the movie studios, means a full-length production. When I suggested this was an ambitious undertaking on $1,000, Janet Walker, 22, of Long Beach pointed out: "Sure, it isn't much, but we make everything ourselves."

Part of the script requires leg irons for three of the actors. Using surplus metal and chain from a hardware store, the crew came up with irons that are nearly perfect replicas of the real thing. Costumes caused the students even longer hours of hard work. "Everybody pitched in and helped us find things in the Goodwill and Salvation Army stores. Other things — like long dresses — we made," Mara Ponzurick, 17, pointed out.

The prime mover of the film project, Jeff Hathcock, 24, holds the dual title of producer and director. He put in $75, like other members of the board of directors, who establish policy. Obviously sure of himself, Hathcock instills confidence in his actors. Like a Hollywood director, Hathcock was everywhere at once.

Checking camera angles here, and giving actors last-minute coaching or conferring with cinematographer Don Adams, 21, Hathcock was intent on the job at hand. When he could finally spare a few minutes for an interview, Hathcock told of his dreams for the film.

"We plan to enter the movie in a student art festival. After that we aren't sure, but we hope to sell it commercially to television or theaters. There is a chance it might be sent to the armed services, but we haven't explored that very much yet."

"I think it will turn into something really big," Vikkie Amador, 18, of Whittier interjected. "If everyone really tries, and I think they are, we are going to be proud of this movie." At the time of my visit Miss Amador had racked up six round trips to Rosamond for shooting sessions after initially contributing $35 for a starring role. Is she sorry? Not a bit. "We believe in the movie and we don't care how long it takes, we want to do it right," Miss Amador said firmly.

Lori Ponzurick, 19, of Long Beach, another member of the cast, had made five trips to Tropico. "It's going more slowly than I thought," Miss Ponzurick admitted, "but I'm not worried. I play a widow that one of the outlaws falls in love with. It looks good so far — I'm glad I decided to be in the movie." In addition to her acting chores, Miss Ponzurick doubles as a script supervisor. For crowd scenes, she changes her shawl and acts as an extra to fill out the cast.

Mary Whidden, a Torrance housewife, is in the cast. Art Perkins, also of Torrance, signed on as the lawyer who tries three bandits. During the week, Perkins works for the Harbor Commission. In his late 40s, Perkins is the oldest member of the group. "At least he can shave," a young actor said with a grin, rubbing his smooth jaw.

He Shoots the Stars

Hollywood photographer Bud Fraker with pictures of star actresses.

AUDREY HEPBURN FLIPPED the scarlet velvet cape about her shoulders and smiled slowly and wistfully. What was she thinking about?

Click. Miss Hepburn wiped the perspiration from her forehead and waited for top Hollywood photographer Bud Fraker to suggest her next pose.

For over 30 years Fraker has been relied upon by famous entertainers to make them look good. Today, Fraker, a quiet-spoken, white-haired photographer, operates one of the largest photographic businesses and has a portrait client list that includes such stars as Yul Brynner, Jerry Lewis, Marlon Brando, Patti Page, Doris Day, Arlene Dahl, Mitzi Gaynor, Audie Murphy and Samantha Eggar.

At the Academy Awards ceremony, again, it is Bud Fraker, hired by the Academy year after year, that the stars turn to for a record of their moment of glory.

And whether it's in his own hushed studio or amid the flurry of the Oscar hubbub, somehow he has satisfied the spoiled egos of Hollywood's finest for three decades. Along the way, Fraker has acquired a treasury of tips for picture subjects and for amateur photographers. Although there are many special Fraker techniques, lighting, variety, make-up and psychological setting are the chief keys to his success.

Getting both men and women to use make-up for pictures is almost a crusade with Fraker. Doris Day once insisted that he let all her freckles show in a portrait, wanting "a natural All-American look." Although he warned her about possible results, Doris refused any make-up to cover her freckles. According to Bud, the final photos looked "like she had the worst case of the measles you've ever seen."

Fraker recommends a full professional photographic make-up. Some subjects won't cooperate, but he insists upon a dark lipstick in all cases. Men get a quick three-part make-up of skin conditioning cream to hold color, a bronzer and a covertone that is like a powder to take off skin shine. Surprisingly, men are less apt to object than women — as long as he promises no one will know any make-up was used.

Variety is another key to his results. Fraker stresses achieving different looks with changes in clothing, hair styles and poses.

Although he never demands that a subject wear a particular type of outfit, Fraker suggests subjects bring in eight or ten items of clothing so that he can choose a variety of necklines that best suit a particular face. Men are asked to bring clothes ranging from sportswear to a business suit for different looks in the final shots.

One young actress, that he refuses to name, took him too seriously when he asked that she "bring a number of her dresses for the sitting." Unloading her closets, she brought her entire wardrobe, including some three dozen dresses.

"She could barely make it in the door with the load of clothing. I guess that's one of the hazards of this business," Fraker said with a smile as he recalled the incident.

Some photographers avoid jewelry in portraits, but Fraker likes to use a watch or earring or unusual ring as a center of interest in a picture.

He also suggests the line of hair be varied by such changes as the overall line, the absence of a part, then a left or a right part and other changes to find the most flattering lines. He pushes hair about in a sitting and tries for three or four different lines.

"Don't have a haircut or a session at the beauty shop on the day of a photographic sitting," he advises, adding "there's no surer way to look unnatural and too perfect. And steer clear of high-fashion styles that can date a picture too quickly."

He always has music playing in his gallery and he will vary the music to fit the subject. "Music makes people relax and I can work better with it as it sets a mood for me. I recommend music for sittings or even for a snapshot series because it helps nonprofessional subjects settle into more relaxed poses."

He suggests a shoulder always be angled to the camera and claims that when subject are posed straight on, the results are like police mug shots or passport photos. To find good poses, he lets the subject move about until a pleasing pose occurs. Then he quickly holds the action and gets his picture.

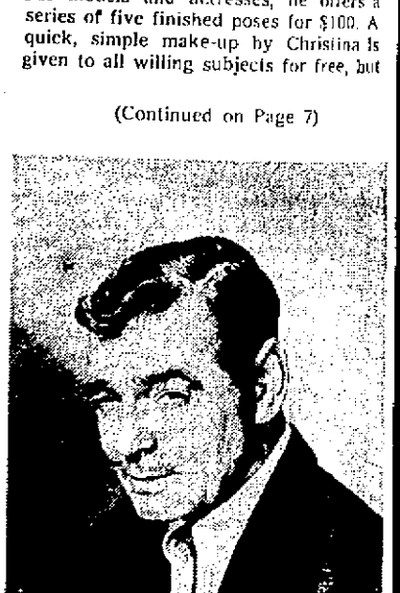

Don't look for portrait bargains, Fraker suggests, and he adds that you get what you pay for. Charges for his portrait work depend upon the number of finished poses. For six finished shots, which can take him as long as three hours to catch, he charges $150. For models and actresses, he offers a series of five finished poses for $100. A quick, simple make-up by Christina is given to all willing subjects for free, but an elaborate professional make-up for a man or a woman costs $7.50.

Entry to Bud Fraker Photography is through a carmine and pink reception room presided over by a chic receptionist who doubles in make-up and boutique sales. The front three rooms of the 25,000-square-foot property sports showcases of quality jewelry, custom clothes and hairgoods and make-up for men and women.

The rear gallery where Fraker works is a quiet room large enough to be a barn. Tucked off to the side is Fraker's private office in a tiny alcove that contrasts with the other quarters in its size and simplicity. It is from this simple setting that Fraker runs a complex four-fold business: a boutique and make-up laboratory; a beauty salon; a multiple printing business; his photographic gallery for portrait and commercial accounts; and a sound stage in the rear leased to the television series "Star Trek" for their fan mail work. The property was formerly a record producing factory.

How did Fraker become a top entertainment photographer? He literally parked his way into photography. His older brother, Bill Fraker, had been director of still photography at Columbia Studios for 17 years, but he frowned on having his younger brother in the Hollywood industry, refusing to act as his sponsor with the studio union.

Bud enrolled at Los Angeles Junior College and got a job as a parking lot attendant at a lot across the street from Columbia Studios. It took four months until he wore his brother down. His first job, in 1935, was as a print dryer on a part-time basis. In spite of his brother's pessimism, Bud managed to be promoted to an eight-hour day equally divided between drying prints and working as a studio messenger "taking an executive's kids shoes to the shoemaker or running for coffee."

By the end of the year, Fraker had inched his way to a full day's work as print dryer and then moved to jobs in all phases of studio portraits. "The only thing I didn't do was retouching," he comments.

When his brother died in 1935, Bud became the gallery assistant to the new director, John Reed. The title meant he did all jobs ranging from setting up props to moving lights to soothing celebrity subjects to processing film. For the next seven years, Bud worked under 12 different photographers employed by the studio for still portrait work. Each man had a specialty and Fraker claims he learned a lot from one man "who was a harebrained horse player, both what not to do, and how to lose at the races." Others taught him about fashion and portrait techniques in what can only be called "on-the-job" training.

When Fraker's boss, the late "Whitey" Schaeffer, moved to Paramount Studios as the new head of still photography, he asked Fraker to come along as gallery assistant. In 1943, Fraker became Paramount's chief publicity photographer to shoot pictures of stars signing their contracts.

From 1950-1960, Fraker directed Paramount's still photography department and doubled as head of their film laboratory. Although Fraker recommends on-the-job training, he points out that the large studios no longer maintain full-time still galleries.

"Times changed. Television changed everything," he points out. Deciding to set up his own business when he saw the impact of television upon the studio cash registers, Fraker opened his own portrait studio. He shot some advertising pictures and some pre-show photographs for television series like the Pat O'Brien show. He waited for business, but it was slow in coming. He hired and fired three salesmen before he found Christina, who now is his partner in a make-up lab and boutique shop.

"And that's how I got where I am today," he sums it up. "Next question?"

What tips would he give especially to amateur photographers? "One of the toughest jobs is to pose nonprofessionals who have no idea what looks good in a finished picture. The best answer I have found is to get them moving and shoot away."

Some subjects, he points out, are deathly afraid of studo portrait cameras or anything too professional-looking. Fraker relies upon a 35mm camera whenever he shoots Samantha Eggar, who can't sit still for a formal portrait. He takes hundreds of pictures and checks later for the few good ones among the dross. Amateurs who don't have the patience or expertise to patiently pose a subject would be best advised to snap away and choose later from contact sheets of all their work.

Set the mood for any photo session, he advises. "I talk about anything to fill the air with words and distract the subjects," he says, but he never tells jokes or comes on strong with fake cheer.

For extreme cases when the person is too stiff and frightened, Fraker resorts to an old photographer's trick. Pretending to take pictures, without using any film, he lets the subject hear the clicks of the camera. He pretends to shoot away until the subject has relaxed enough for him to actually shoot. It's a trick amateur hobbyists could borrow.

Both sides of the face are always shot by Fraker in a picture series. He believes that the right side is the "best side" for 90 per cent of his subjects. "But you can't tell until you shoot both sides of the face," he advises. People don't look the same when shot from both sides, but he likes three-quarter shots. Amateur photographers and potential subjects should try for shots of both sides of the face, he advises.

Summing it up, Fraker advocates photographers and subjects to follow his seven tips: Aim for wide variety in poses; vary clothing and hairstyle, if possible; use proper photographic make-up for men and women; make use of adequate retouching; have the right light for corrective work; aim for a relaxed mood; be careful to angle the body into pleasing lines in a pose.

ment is hardly the sort of thing that would impress the pros, but it is compact and, best of all, paid for. Despite all their cost cutting, the students have found no way yet to cut lab costs. Film costs $5 per 100 feet and work prints run almost $10 per 100 feet. Added to this are other lab costs such as sound dubbing and background music.

Hathcock fears the cost of the movie may reach or exceed $2,000, whereas the group had originally hoped to make it for under $1,000. Where the additional money is coming from is indefinite, but, like his cast and crew, Hathcock is sure it will come. One of the adults watching the students at work said: "These kids have got guts. You have to admire them for doing this whole thing on less than a shoestring."

Another man in the crowd asked if the students were making an "underground" movie. This brought a lightning-quick rebuttal from a member of the cast. "This is no cheap nudie-type picture. It is a serious attempt to prove we can be creative on our own initiative. We aren't saying, 'Hollywood, here we are, come discover us.' We expect to show them what we are capable of doing first — on our own."

It is the hope of the students that someone will see the work they are doing and offer to back a more ambitious effort — one in which the actors will get paid, rather than the other way around. "A few of the kids want to go into serious acting and other fields in the movie industry," one of the girls said. "The first thing agents want today is a sample of film work you have done. That can be tough if you are just starting out.

"So with this we can borrow a print any time we need it and take the film clips of our work to studios or agents who might be interested in giving us a break."

None of the students I spoke with felt that his time and efforts were being wasted. And, after watching the young movie makers at work for two days in the hot climate of the Mojave Desert, I came away convinced they will achieve their goals. They are determined to carve places for themselves in the Hollywood world of glamour and excitement, even if they have to go to the desert to do it.

ment is hardly the sort of thing that would impress the pros, but it is compact and, best of all, paid for. Despite all their cost cutting, the students have found no way yet to cut lab costs. Film costs $5 per 100 feet and work prints run almost $10 per 100 feet. Added to this are other lab costs such as sound dubbing and background music.

Hathcock fears the cost of the movie may reach or exceed $2,000, whereas the group had originally hoped to make it for under $1,000. Where the additional money is coming from is indefinite, but, like his cast and crew, Hathcock is sure it will come. One of the adults watching the students at work said: "These kids have got guts. You have to admire them for doing this whole thing on less than a shoestring."

Another man in the crowd asked if the students were making an "underground" movie. This brought a lightning-quick rebuttal from a member of the cast. "This is no cheap nudie-type picture. It is a serious attempt to prove we can be creative on our own initiative. We aren't saying, 'Hollywood, here we are, come discover us.' We expect to show them what we are capable of doing first -- on our own."

It is the hope of the students that someone will see the work they are doing and offer to back a more ambitious effort — one in which the actors will get paid, rather than the other way around. "A few of the kids want to go into serious acting and other fields in the movie industry," one of the girls said. "The first thing agents want today is a sample of film work you have done. That can be tough if you are just starting out.

"So with this we can borrow a print any time we need it and take the film clips of our work to studios or agents who might be interested in giving us a break."

None of the students I spoke with felt that his time and efforts were being wasted. And, after watching the young movie makers at work for two days in the hot climate of the Mojave Desert, I came away convinced they will achieve their goals. They are determined to carve places for themselves in the Hollywood world of glamour and excitement, even if they have to go to the desert to do it.

Cinematographer Don Adams waits with camera for "Action!" call by director.

Progress - - Who Needs It?

By Mark Clutter

IN AN AGE in which most businesses are devoted to automation, scientific efficiency and a bigger margin of profits, a college-trained, ambitious young Long Beach man is betting his prosperous future on a policy of opposition to change in all of its forms.

"Why change anything that works all right?" is the philosophy of John White, the third generation manager of a business that has become an institution to many thousands of Southland men.

White, 25, is the partner and grandson of Joe Jost. To those who remember Joe, that's all the introduction he needs.

The institution is Joe Jost's, 2803 E. Anaheim St., Long Beach. It deals in pool, snooker, tobacco, sandwiches, eggs and Eastside on draught. And that's about all it offers.

Joe established his place in 1924 — and that's the way it is today. Well, almost. The erosion of time changes even the most conservative institutions.

The first change came when Jost moved two or three doors down the street. The decision, made shortly after he opened for business, was a wise one; the building survived the earthquake undamaged.

The second major change came with Repeal. Jost held strictly to the Prohibition law in spite of temptations. The brew was near beer, less than ½ per cent alcohol. (It may be that some customers "doctored" their beer under the table, but that wasn't Jost's business.) Real beer has been flowing in floods since the early 1930s.

John White, partner-manager of Joe Jost's serves John Gibson and Louis Terra with "Joe's Special" sandwiches, eggs and beer.

Formerly Jost's had an open front for the sale of root beer to people on the sidewalk. There was also a barbershop; its lavatory remains because it is a good place to crack eggs.

There is a color TV which does much to increase the sale of beer during big games and fights.

Little else has changed. The booths and the bar date back to 1924. The old-fashioned cupboards contain old-fashioned chewing and smoking tobaccos because Jost's customers, many of whom are young in years, tend to have old-fashioned tastes.

The pool tables, built in 1912 to withstand the passage of centuries, are the heavy, old-fashioned kind. These are not pretty pastel tables for family togetherness. They are constantly in use. Table No. 1 is reserved for the old regulars.

The statistics of groceries tell dramatically the popularity of Joe Jost's. "We depend on low markup and large volume," White said. "We sell 35 to 40 dozen pickled eggs a day. We sell 900 sandwiches on Saturdays and 650 on weekdays. We use 200 barrels of beer a month."

The prices are unbeatable. A Joe's Special — a smoked sausage, a slice of cheese, a pickle and mustard on rye — is 30 cents. A 20-ounce schooner is 35 cents. An egg pickled in brine and spices, served

Interior BOUTIQUE

By Ellen Krec

NO ONE CAN ANSWER the question: "What is tasteful?" to my satisfaction. I don't know about yours.

Is taste a true reflection of your life style, previous experiences or just plain financial entrapment?

Hopping on the bandwagon of change in home furnishings fashion may mean a dented budget and a constant look into the next fad.

Perhaps a good careful study of what you like and what you like being surrounded by might be the starting place.

Do you want your home to reflect the window of a shop complete with cliche furniture? Have you gathered enough courage to cut down your old end tables to serve as coffee tables in place of buying the new one you really can't afford?

Are you afraid of paint? Why not add color to that old table instead of polish? So the wood is good — you can always remove the paint in the next round of decorating!

Actually one of the more outrageous changes takes place when the time comes to decide whether to carpet or not carpet the floor.

After years of hardwood floors every aching muscle called for carpeting and, typical of a new fashion, it became a status symbol . . . not necessarily quality, but sheer coverage. Everything but father was carpeted . . . closets, both water and storage, were neatly topped with carpeting and when the first bloom of furry floor covering wore off, you had years to wait for a reasonable change.

So help me, I have even seen lawns carpeted!

So there you are, not waxing each week but checking feet each day, chasing the dog, screaming at the children and giving serious thought to the Oriental way of removing shoes at the door.

The truth comes with the newest gimmick for cleaning carpets. A cookie cutter which removes the spot and carpet which you may replace with a clean circle of carpeting. I can visualize a mad dash across the kitchen floor when all the little circles fly out leaving the kitchen looking like one big Swiss cheese!

I feel carpeting has a positive place in a home. For sheer elegance when desired, in the bedroom where it feels nice to the feet in the early morning hours . . . but let's talk about wood.

You may not realize it, but that hardwood floor you neatly covered up may be a treasure you wish to unearth one day.

Did you know that a good hardwood floor expert is a rarity? Within a few years the experts in the Los Angeles area have decreased from nearly 2,000 to less than 200. And if that isn't enough to make you think, the availability of good hardwood is lessening all the time. Even with the reforesting processes, it takes a good many years before a tree is old enough to become a floor.

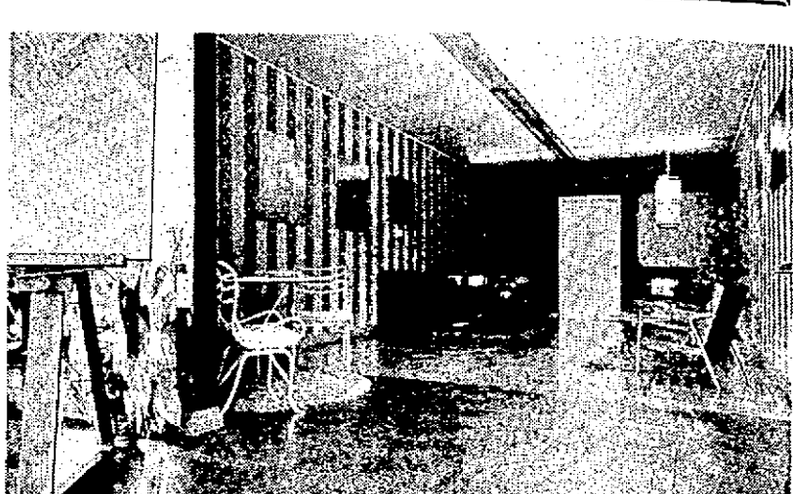

We recently came to the conclusion that the dining floor, fair hardwood variety . . . wasn't enhanced by a nearly-always-stained rug. If we had a Lazarus underneath to eat the crumbs, it might help, but we have to settle for an overfed beagle, so the rug was constantly in need of care.

John Sutton, a local floor expert and a rare treasure, I might add, took a look at our floor, darkened it slightly, pegged and grooved it, added innumerable coats of wax and we have an underfoot sculpture.

But if you don't happen to have a hardwood floor, there is always the Wood Mosaic Corp. which supplies warm, beautifully grained parquetry for just any old floor.

In a visit to the Los Angeles showroom with factory representative Wayne Shrodes, I saw floors pretty enough to be table tops and, in fact, some of them were!

The wood mosaic is too

Q Can you recommend a product for cleaning my rugs and carpets?

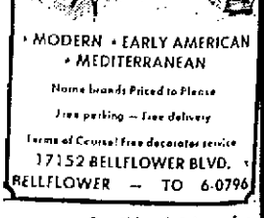

A No! RCI does not endorse products.

Don't try to wash or shampoo rugs yourself. Many of the preparations sold for this purpose cannot be removed from the floor covering - residues remain and may cause re-soiling and many damage colors, even the fabric. There is great danger in over-wetting, a frequent cause of delayed-action browning stains. Remember your RCI professional rug and upholstery cleaner is an expert and can help you with all your carpet and upholstery problems. RC RUG CLEANERS INSTITUTE of CALIFORNIA INCORPORATED

Q Can you recommend a product for cleaning my rugs and carpets?

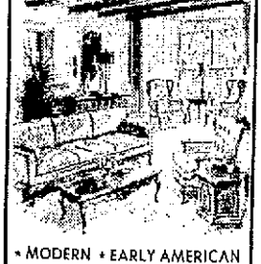

A No! RCI does not endorse products.

Don't try to wash or shampoo rugs yourself. Many of the preparations sold for this purpose cannot be removed from the floor covering - residues remain and may cause re-soiling and many damage colors, even the fabric. There is great danger in over-wetting, a frequent cause of delayed-action browning stains. Remember your RCI professional rug and upholstery cleaner is an expert and can help you with all your carpet and upholstery problems. Send your questions to RCI Box A9359, Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram, Long Beach 90801 is a frequent pastime.

The functional kitchen complicated to install to call it a self-project, but there are still qualified persons who will do it for you.

Wood floors have always graced the finest structures and, among the first credits, was King Solomon's temple in 950 B.C. All the great houses and palaces have stately wood floors and some you can view today include Versailles, Monticello and nearby Huntington Library, along with innumerable offices and, finally, Elvis Presley's foyer!

The patterns are varied and individual with geometric designs forming any variety of shapes and your very own trademark or coat of arms.

And to quote Thomas Jefferson in reference to the beauty of the flooring at Monticello: "After nearly 70 years of use and abuse," he wrote, "a half-hour's dusting will make it compare favorably with the handsomest tessellated floor."

Just in case your dictionary isn't as convenient as mine, tessellated is stone mosaic.

Among the more beautiful patterns is a lovely, sombre antique. Brittany is the name of the mosaic and it is hand finished to give maximum traffic with minimum care. Scratches will only add to the beauty and the darker the better.

Cost of the floors range from about $2 a square foot to about $10, depending on your selection.

The floors can be installed over slabs but should be done professionally since an allowance must be made for moisture. Moisture raises the wood grain — that's the reason hardwood floor owners are always instructed never to wash a wood floor.

Walnut, cherry, varieties of oak, rosewood, teak, mahogany and ash combine grain and burl to form the pattern.

You will soon have to grow your own walnut; according to the wood man, it is fast disappearing.

The new floor will allow you to use that old Oriental rug long in storage or de-moth the animal skin your husband treasures, or even fringe a square of the old carpeting. Better still, nothing but "a half-hour's dusting" and an occasional coat of wax.

If you wish to view the floors, Shrodes says you're welcome to look, but the purchasing must be done through a retailer.

Teens in Action

The Joy of Being Tall

D'ANN CARLSON IS A GIRL with high ideals. At 5 feet 10, she towers over many of her classmates at California State College at Fullerton where she is a math major. Knowing firsthand the needs of tall teen-agers, she helped organize the Tall Teens of Orange County club. When not working with the club, 19-year-old D'Ann resides with her family at 11881 Easy Way, Garden Grove.

Her views:

—Before Tall Teens was organized, there were many tall clubs for adults, but there was no club for tall teen-agers, and they often need a club the most. Tall teen-agers need a place where they can go and literally see eye to eye with other people.

—The tall club has given me a sense of pride in being tall. Before the club was organized, I used to stoop to make myself shorter. Now I try to make myself taller, especially when I dance with a 6 feet 9 guy.

—The social activities of the club enable girls to meet boys whose height corresponds with theirs. At school dances, for some strange reason, the short boys would always want to dance with the tall girls and vice versa. I think most tall girls get upset when they see a 4-foot coed dancing with a basketball player.

—Because the club has enabled me to meet other young people who are my height, it has helped me psychologically. When I was younger, people called me Amazon, but there is no name calling in the Tall Teens.

—The public is becoming more aware of the needs of tall people. There are more tall clothing shops now, but the clothes are usually more expensive. Even with the tall shops, it is hard to get clothes to fit properly. Long sleeve blouses and capris are always too short, and a mini skirt becomes a mini mini on a tall girl.

—Industry is now making some products with tall people in mind such as longer beds, but there are still many things which are too small such as the seats in airplanes, theaters and schools.

—Another disadvantage are the head rests in cars. The law says that all new cars must have head rests for safety, but to a tall person they are a nuisance. Instead of a head rest they give you a sore neck.

—In spite of the disadvantages of my height, I would rather be tall than short. At least I can always see at parades, and for boys, height is an advantage in any sport.

—Tall people seem to get better service when they are in a store or a restaurant, and people seem to be more polite to you. When tall people walk down the street, people move over to let you by.

—I think my height will be an advantage if I decide to become a teacher because a tall teacher would have more authority, especially with young children.

—One of the nicest things about being tall is that you never have to worry about getting lost in a crowd.

—Carolyn Hayes

Burgers Can Be Topped

By Mildred K. Flanary

Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

OLD FAVORITES in new combinations — beefburgers, plain or fancy — feature fruit and vegetables that are appealing any time and merit special consideration for their savory goodness.

Beefburgers, plain or fancy, start with one pound of ground beef seasoned with a teaspoon of salt and one-eighth teaspoon of pepper. Form three to four patties out of a pound, depending upon size desired. Broil, panbroil or panfry the patties, then serve with one of these handsome toppings.

Each recipe yields approximately three-fourths cup. Allow two to three tablespoons topping for each beefburger.

GUACAMOLE

Mash one large ripe avocado (about ¾ cup). Stir in 1½ teaspoons lemon juice, 1½ teaspoons grated onion, ¼ teaspoon salt and 6 drops hot pepper sauce. Spoon onto beefburgers and top with peeled tomato pieces.

BLUE CHEESE

Mix 1-3 cup crumbled blue cheese with 2-3 cup dairy sour cream and 2 tablespoons thinly sliced green onion. Place green pepper ring on each beefburger and fill center with blue cheese mixture. Top with additional finely sliced green onion, if desired.

FESTIVE OLIVE

Combine 1-3 cup sliced stuffed green olives, cut in half, 1-3 cup sliced pitted ripe olives, cut in half, 3 tablespoons mayonnaise and 3 tablespoons dairy sour cream. Mix lightly. Spoon onto beefburgers.

MUSHROOM-PEPPER

Combine 1 jar (2½ ounces) sliced mushrooms and 1 tablespoon butter and cook slowly in a saucepan until all liquid evaporates. Stir in 1 tablespoon sliced green onion and ½ cup sweet pepper relish. Mix well. Spoon onto beefburgers.

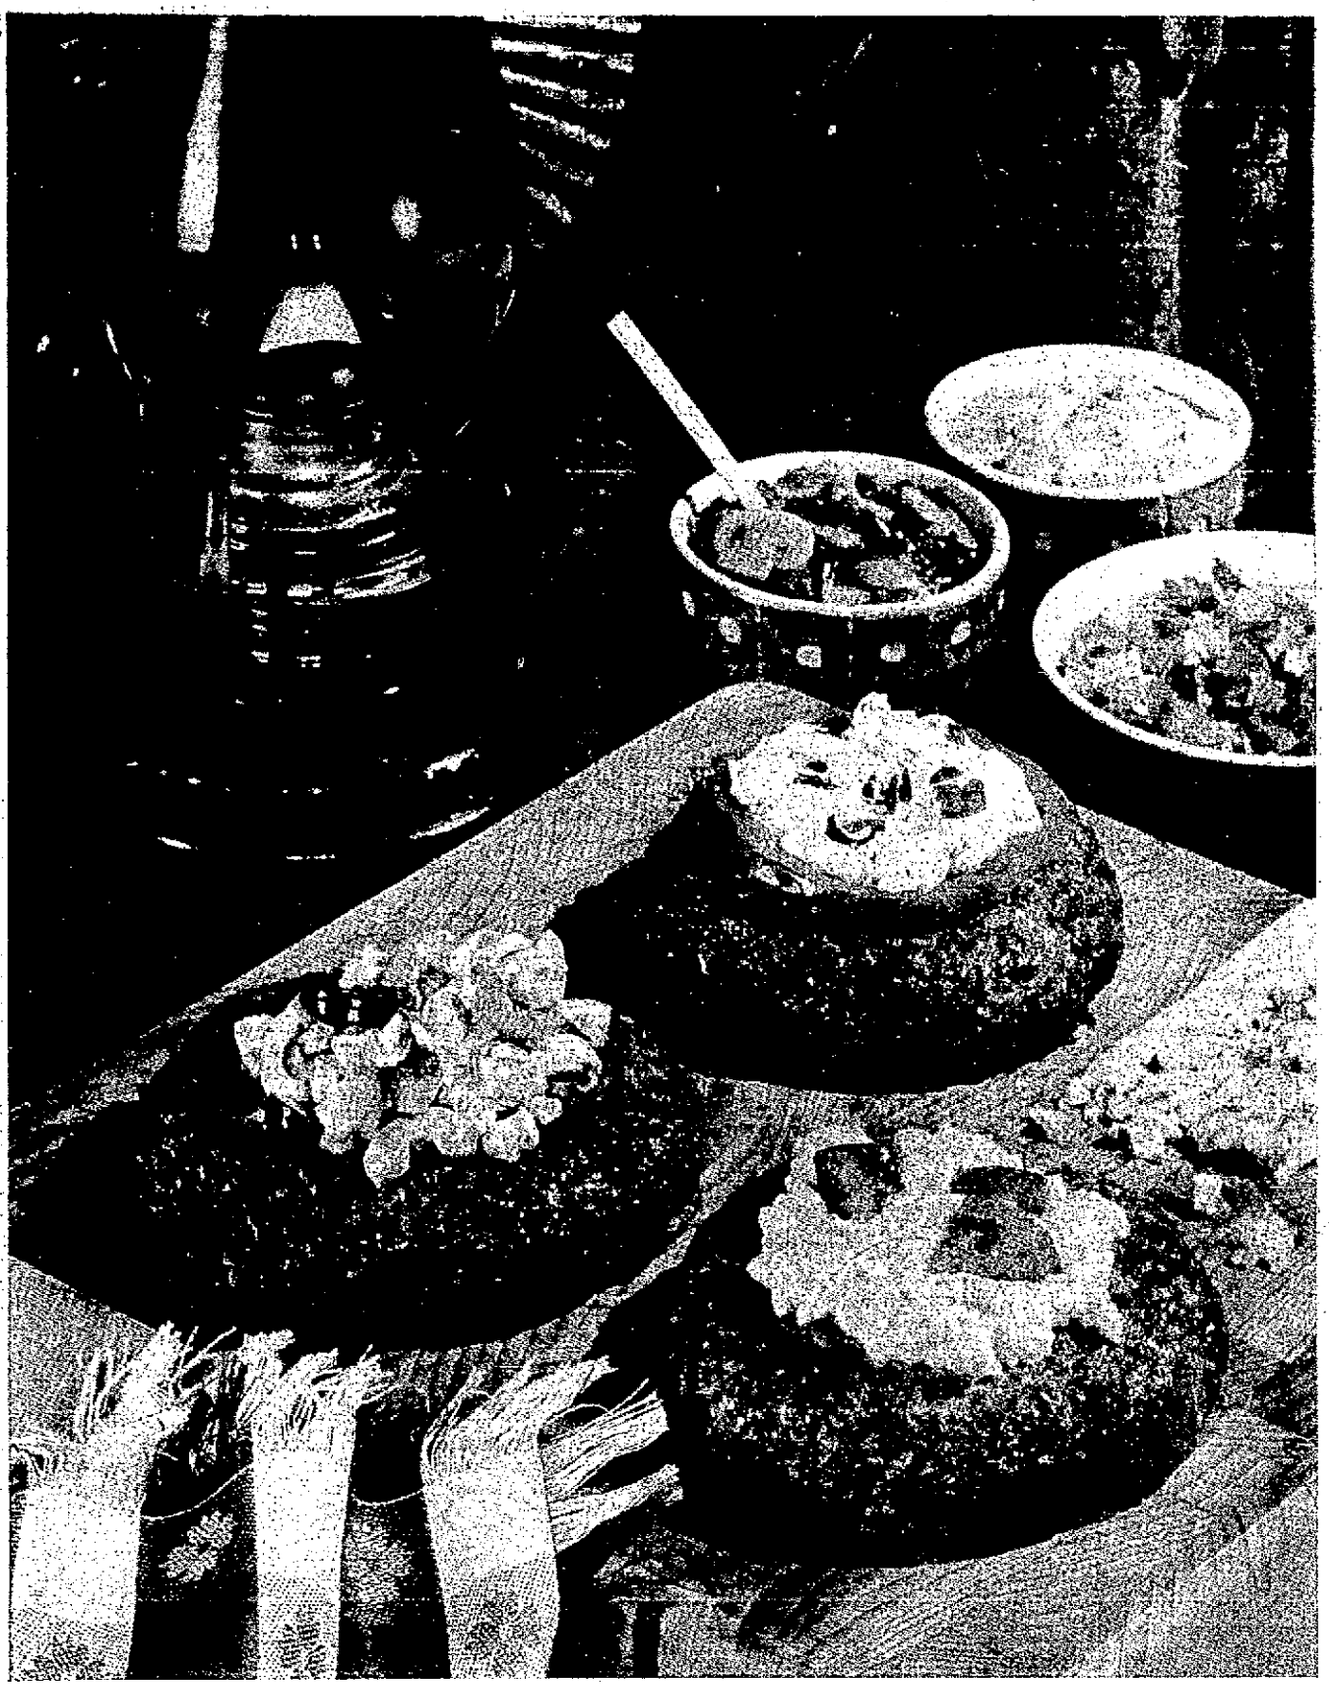

CREAMY MUSTARD

Combine ¼ cup prepared mustard, ½ cup mayonnaise and 1 tablespoon very thinly sliced onion. Mix well. Spoon onto beefburgers.

A. H. MARTIN of Long Beach has the secret of the good, long life. He says: "Retire early and enjoy it!"

He spent many years with the Long Beach Unified School District where his scholarly career began as a science instructor and progressed through the administrative division of the schools to principal of Lincoln, Burnett and Adams Elementary Schools, Jefferson Junior High School and, on retirement in 1956, he was serving as principal of Woodrow Wilson High School.

Before the death of his wife, Martin lived in the Lakewood area, but felt a home was unnecessary for a man without a family.

An apartment became the interim solution since it was, in reality, only a place to stay between trips.

"I loved every day of my teaching years," says Martin. "But I really wanted to see the world while I could appreciate it."

In the past 13 years every continent and most countries have been included in the itinerary of the intrepid wanderer.

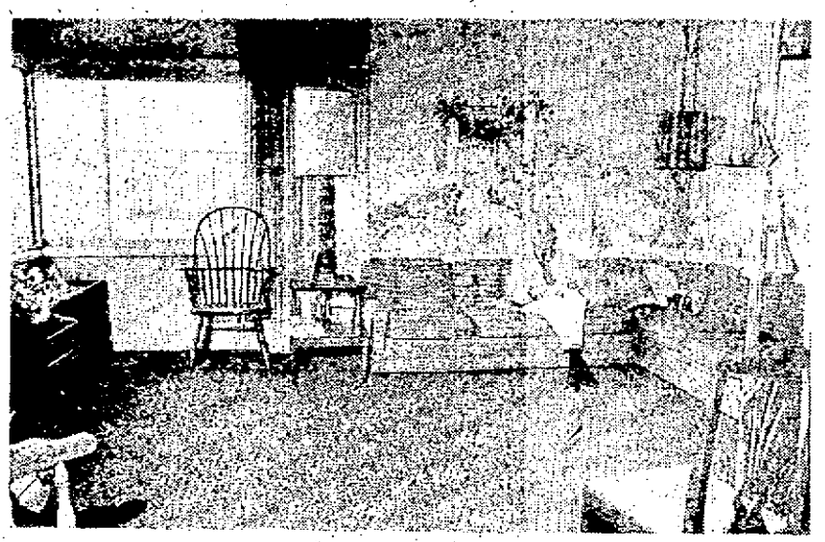

This year's trip has been postponed until his duties as president of the Long Beach Division of the National Retired Teachers Association are completed.

Martin admits he likes any mode of travel as long as there are people involved. However, he says, "flying has a tendency because of its swiftness to remove you from contact.

"To go to far places," he continues, "you should take a long time."

Among his favorite journeys was a jaunt by river boat up the Congo to Stanleyville, then a long drive to Kenya and Zanzibar.

Bus is another favorite way of travel and usually leads to more excitement than discomfort. The exception was a boat-bus combination which ended for lunch at the French Congo, where an order of a cheese sandwich and a drink brought a tab of $8! Protestations were turned away and Martin felt $4 was adequate for a cheese sandwich in any part of the world. So he settled for that and left for the boat. Before the boat could leave, a policeman arrived with the suggestion that he pay the balance. Martin resigned himself to the overpayment and was on his way.

A. H. Martin has apartment full of travel memories.

"I never tire of travel although it is hard work," says Martin, who offers several tips for comfortable traveling.

Among his suggestions are for Americans not to throw their weight around. No one really cares how much money you have or what you are accustomed to. Showoffs cause the greatest difficulty in any country.

Travel isn't as expensive as living at home if you are independent. Martin always handles his own lodgings and food and finds them usually reasonable. He recommends travel brochures from each country or a good travel book.

For several months in Austria, Germany and Spain, he kept a close check on his budget and found he was living well on $5 each day.

The language is no deterrent to travel, although German and some Spanish are among his assets.

Carry a minimum of equipment and do not collect too many things you must carry. Martin can and has toured the world with only one suitcase, to the amazement of his friends.

Two safaris — one African and the other Guatemalan — proved exciting, although the Latin American safari was more colorful.

Iron Curtain countries were simplified by guides and Russia was most interesting. Martin found the information he had received was unfounded. He was able to visit freely and, "like home," was free to come and go. The only restricted photographs were of defense installations.

People everywhere are interested in America and how we live, according to Martin. Although the Russians were friendly, they were not as lighthearted and gay as people in some of the other countries.

Martin has covered so many areas of the world that when he is home his hobby is the wall-to-wall map he began some years ago. The map is illustrated and lines tell the story of the untiring traveler.

A fortunate purchase gave Martin the home base he suddenly felt the need for — an own-your-own apartment almost within reach of the oil islands with a sweeping view of the harbor and the Queen Mary "I never did have the opportunity to sail on."

The compact five-room-and-balcony apartment is "just the place to store things between travels."

Even the purchase was made during a trip to Mexico. Martin saw the apartment several times and made an offer which was accepted while he was in Oaxaca.

The comfortable home was partially decorated but additional suitable furnishings were skillfully added to create a home where entertaining friends

Early American dining area contains world accents.

A highlight of the master bedroom is the hand-woven rug from the Kashmir Valley. Silk paintings and watercolors from the Orient add to the exotic appearance of the room.

"I don't spend as much time as most people think in the corner window with the wide view," says Martin. "I guess I didn't know how busy retirement could be!

"My travel notes are complete with the hope that one day I shall write a book," says Martin. "I guess that goes down with looking forward to the time when I can dabble more in sketching."

Until he re-retires, Martin will continue to pack at a moment's notice and head for the nearest airport, harbor or station to continue looking and learning.

WORKSHOP

It Beats Jogging

By Steve Ellingson

TODAY the rocking chair has assumed a new role. It's a working piece of furniture. It has moved into the business office as well as the living room, the bedroom, the family room, and even into the kitchen.

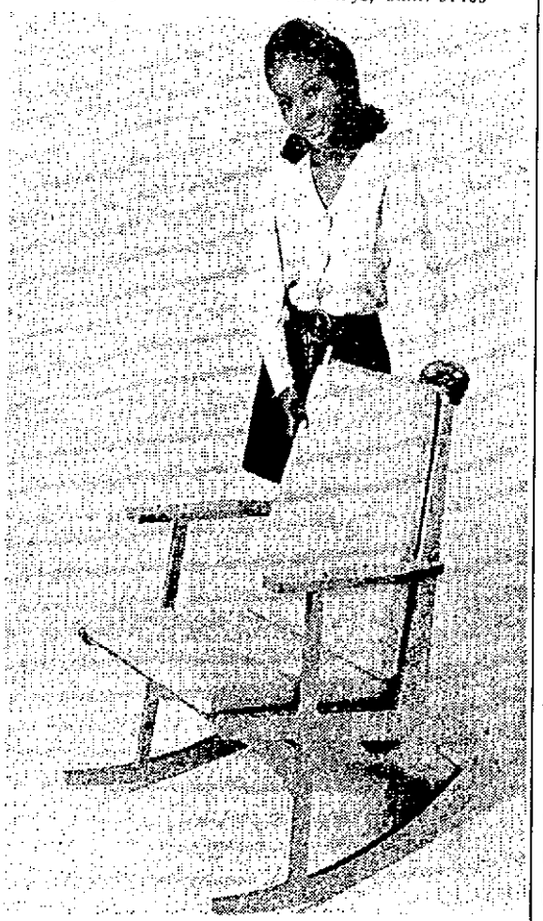

There must be something to this rocking. What makes a rocker so therapeutic? It is a scientific fact that the shifting of weight in the action of rocking provides gentle exercise, assists circulation, and reduces fatigue.

Dr. Carl D. Martz, president of the Indiana Rehabilitation Association, reports that rocking provides about half of the exercise of walking or cycling, and less than a third of that of horseback riding. Yet, because of the longer duration, the total muscular exercise can be greater.

Since the rocking chair is such a rewarding piece of furniture, we have decided that this should be our project for today. It's pictured here with Gloria Calomee of NBC's "Days of Our Lives" series. Here is a chair that's a good mixer, and will blend with any decor from Early American to Modern.

To obtain the easy-to-follow, full-size rocking chair pattern number 345, send $1 (add 25 cents per pattern for airmail delivery) by currency, check or money order to:

Yosemite: It's More Than the 'Valley'

By Pat Holmes

Pioneer Yosemite History Center in Yosemite National Park. Ranger Patrol cabin is on left and Wells Fargo office on right.

—Photos by PAT HOLMES

TO MANY VISITORS of Yosemite National Park, "the valley" is Yosemite.

To others, who take the time to drive through the park, it extends from the Tioga Road and Tuolumne Meadows to Wawona and the Pioneer Yosemite History Center.

And the History Center is more than just a collection of "old buildings." The structures are history, the early history of Yosemite — a way of life that's gone.

Visitors may wander around the center the year round, but the buildings and audio-visual unit are open only in June, July and August.

Park your car in the parking lot, bring your camera and pass through the gate into another century.

Peer into the blacksmith shop which was moved to Yosemite from the H. Clay Daulton Ranch in Madera. The rope-worn posts to which horses were tied for shoeing were originally ties from an old railroad.

Across the way is the wagon shed. Here there are stages, wagons, buckboards — horse-drawn vehicles that were used in the park or on nearby ranches.

Stroll over to the wagon shop. Push the buttons at different exhibits and see if you can identify the parts of a stage or the shoes worn by various kinds of animals. Some other exhibits are "Hold-up," "Stages to Yosemite" and "Horse Snowshoes."

Before you leave, stop and buy a copy of the Wawona Hayburner (10 cents) which tells about the buildings and contains a map of the center.

Back of the shop, wander through and examine the mine machinery of the Great Sierra Consolidated Silver Co. This mine was about 10,000 feet up a mountain without a road leading to it. The machinery was delivered to Lundy across the mountain. According to a newspaper (The Homer Mining Index, Lundy, March 4, 1882), the machinery was put on special sleds along with food and bedding. About 12 men using two mules, rope and double block and tackle dragged it up the mountain. It took two months in mid-winter through snow and windstorms in zero temperatures to move the eight tons of machinery about nine miles.

Cross the South Fork of the Merced River to the rest of the History Center by way of the old covered bridge, the only such bridge in the National Park system.

On the right is the stone jail. It was built in the Old Village in Yosemite Valley when the State of California governed "the valley." The Wawona Hayburner tells how two automobile thieves broke out of this jail. They soon found out that the mortar holding the stones together was soft. Using a rod from a cot, they removed rock from near the doorway and crawled out. They were recaptured. One of them remarked that it was so easy to get out that they waited until after breakfast to leave.

To prevent such happenings again, lengths of iron chains were fastened to large horseshoes which were imbedded in two of the corners. Prisoners could then be chained by the legs!

This Wells Fargo building, next to the jail, was a kind of Union Station. It served the stage lines, railroads, Wells Fargo and the company which strung the telephone line over the mountain. There are telegraph instruments set up on the table and crow's feet battery jars which provided electricity. And, of course, a Wells Fargo safe. The building is furnished just as it was in 1913 when it was used as an office and home for the agent.

Walk on to the Ranger Patrol Cabin. Here, examine the saddles and notice the sapling bed and the old wood cook stove. In the early days when rangers did all the patrolling on horseback, cabins like this one were spaced at intervals of about a day's ride apart in the park.

The cavalry building at the far end of the center was Yosemite Park's first park headquarters. It was built by the Army at Wawona when it patrolled some of the national parks before we had a National Park Service.

Across the way is the Homestead Cabin. It is unusual in that it is two stories. It was built in 1879 by Jeremiah Hodgon in Aspen Valley. After looking at the furnishings circa late 1800's — in the parlor and leanto kitchen — go outside and climb the stairs to the sleeping quarters.

Stop at the Hope Cabin, the audio-visual center, and watch the showing of early Yosemite history. Next store is the Pioneer Cabin built in 1876 by George Anderson, who made iron eyebolts which he drove into cracks into the back side of Half Dome. And before you leave the center, see a display of the works of many Yosemite artists in the Jorgenson Cabin.

You may decide that Yosemite's history is as fascinating as its scenery.

Dream Vacation

Everyone has a fabled city or a magic land he hopes someday to visit.

The love affair of Irma Taylor, 232 Bennett St., Long Beach, with Angkor Wat began long ago in a Long Beach movie house.

Since then she has visited the Orient twice but was prevented from making her journey into the Cambodian jungle.

Other winning essays will be published in future weeks. Winners' checks of $10 will be mailed to them. An additional $30 check will go to the writer of the essay judged best of all. The entry deadline has passed.

By IRMA TAYLOR

WHEN I WAS a young teacher a travel film in a long-deceased theater on Fourth and Pine in Long Beach grabbed me.

Angkor Wat — that largest of all temples, hidden for centuries in a Cambodian jungle. Magic spot!

The ancient temple was mysteriously abandoned by its highly civilized builders, and for 600 years jungle growth tore apart and ruined the surrounding city. Fortunately the strangling vines could not cross a wide moat to reach the temple. About a hundred years ago an amazed Frenchman discovered the desolate ruins.

I have made two earnest attempts to visit Angkor but failed each time. I want to marvel at the five huge lotus-shaped towers. As I walk down the long corridors I want to study the exquisite relief carvings of the Vishnu legend. Travel folders say native girls in rich costumes do authentic dances for tourists.

For a round-the-world tour in the depression year 1937 I paid (imagine) just $500 for tourist class. My crossing from Southampton was booked on the Queen Mary. I happened to be in Peking in July when the Japanese took the city. After a week as a refugee in the American Embassy compound, and not able to go on to Shanghai by air, rail, or ship, I returned to America.

On my second trip to the Orient I tried to get a plane from Hong Kong to Saigon. No seats available for two weeks. So again I was so near and yet so far from the lodestone.

Third try coming up. May the Dream Trip come true!

Dream Vacation

Everyone has a fabled city or a magic land he hopes someday to visit.

The love affair of Irma Taylor, 232 Bennett St., Long Beach, with Angkor Wat began long ago in a Long Beach movie house.

Since then she has visited the Orient twice but was prevented from making her journey into the Cambodian jungle.

Other winning essays will be published in future weeks. Winners' checks of $10 will be mailed to them. An additional $30 check will go to the writer of the essay judged best of all. The entry deadline has passed.

By IRMA TAYLOR

WHEN I WAS a young teacher a travel film in a long-deceased theater on Fourth and Pine in Long Beach grabbed me.

Angkor Wat — that largest of all temples, hidden for centuries in a Cambodian jungle. Magic spot!

The ancient temple was mysteriously abandoned by its highly civilized builders, and for 600 years jungle growth tore apart and ruined the surrounding city. Fortunately the strangling vines could not cross a wide moat to reach the temple. About a hundred years ago an amazed Frenchman discovered the desolate ruins.

I have made two earnest attempts to visit Angkor but failed each time. I want to marvel at the five huge lotus-shaped towers. As I walk down the long corridors I want to study the exquisite relief carvings of the Vishnu legend. Travel folders say native girls in rich costumes do authentic dances for tourists.

For a round-the-world tour in the depression year 1937 I paid (imagine) just $500 for tourist class. My crossing from Southampton was booked on the Queen Mary. I happened to be in Peking in July when the Japanese took the city. After a week as a refugee in the American Embassy compound, and not able to go on to Shanghai by air, rail, or ship, I returned to America.

On my second trip to the Orient I tried to get a plane from Hong Kong to Saigon. No seats available for two weeks. So again I was so near and yet so far from the lodestone.

Third try coming up. May the Dream Trip come true!

Too Young to Ski

By Charles Sutton

SKIING enthusiasts never seem to tire of telling us that we're never too old to learn how to ski. What they never point out, however, is that many of us are in fact too young to learn.

Emmett Watson, a writer and middle-aged ski buff, and certainly one of skiing's best salesmen, tells about a 67-year-old woman, for example, who looks forward to each year's snowfall with "glowing anticipation."

He also mentions Dr. Merritt Stiles, president of the U.S. Ski Association. Dr. Stiles, says Watson, writing in a recent issue of Seattle Magazine, "was a tottering beginner at 55, and now, in his 60s, skis gracefully and well."

All of which set me to wondering the other day whether I wasn't a bit premature in giving up my boyhood passion for stickball in order to take up skiing. After all, I'm only 41, and a mere stripling compared to Dr. Stiles, not to mention Watson's indomitable 67 - year - old woman.

It seems to me I'm too young to be mounting a pair of skis and racing down a powdery slope in quest of some dubious ecstasy that must surely be a sign of advancing years. Besides, I really don't relish all those broken bones.

And yet, there I was last month, looking rather like a pregnant kangaroo, what will all the junk stowed in the belly pocket of my borrowed parka, trying manfully to stay upright as my skis carried me across the charted wastes of Sun Valley, Idaho.

"You're doing great," my instructor had said at one point. He was a rather small, ruddy-faced man who seemed to take a wry delight in praising me at my most inept moments — which were most of the time. The rest of them were spent, wisely enough, standing still.

For a few seconds, though, in the first innocent flush of takeoff, I could feel the free-falling looseness that sky divers must experience as they plunge toward earth before pulling their ripcords — that delicious freedom, that sensual thrill, of unfettered motion. And I grinned to myself. I was sailing on a cloud of snow. Better yet, I was about to go flying without wings.

But I'm afraid my exultation didn't last long. No sooner had my spirit begun to soar than I was brought quickly back to earth by my skis.

The nettlesome sticks had given me trouble from the start. I had already taken several spills on account of them. And now, apparently, they decided to go their own way.

I'm afraid all I could do was take a deep breath and brace myself for the inevitable.

My instructor had been standing back of me a ways, and I heard what I thought was a long groan as he watched me accelerate. Earlier, on the beginner's slope, he had jokingly said I reminded him of Jean-Claude Killy. I laughed.

"And you remind me of Bronco Nagurski," I replied.

Now, as I raced downhill, I could hear him yelling: "Use the snowplow, use the snowplow!"

The snowplow, in case you're not a skiing aficionado, is a maneuver in which the skier turns his toes inward so that his skis actually take on the V-shaped appearance of a plow. It's designed to slow you down.

But I'm afraid I could no more form a snowplow at the speed I was going than do a double somersault. I must have been traveling all of 20 miles an hour. Besides, my skis were in full and undisputed command.

By this time, my instructor's voice had been all but drowned out by the distance between us. And the last thing I heard him yell was: "Sit down, sit down!"

Thinking he meant that I should assume a squatting position, I half crouched as I sped down the hill. But the maneuver only accelerated my descent.

Great gods of speed, but was I going fast! I'm sure it was 35 miles an hour, at least.

Even the great Killy couldn't have caught me. And, frankly, I wish he had been around to try. For heaven knows I needed help at that moment. But since he wasn't, and since my instructor was now some distance behind me, I could only think how nice it would be if I had a steering wheel and a brake.

The thought evidently communicated itself to my knees, because they suddenly started shaking like a pair of electric carving knives gone amuck.

With the wind nipping viciously at my face, I tried bravely to recall who it was who said, "We have nothing to fear but fear itself." And I remembered it was Franklin D. Roosevelt, bless his soul.

But it was too late to invoke the memory of FDR. I was tumbling head over heels. Or was it arms over heels. Or perhaps knees over elbows.

Probably all three. Anyway, it was one helluva fall.

The next thing I remember, I was sprawled out in the snow, my hair and face wet and cold with mush, and my gloves dripping water. Somehow I managed to arrange myself in a sitting position. If nothing else, I seemed to have a talent for sitting up after a fall.

"Don't move," I heard my instructor bark. "Stay where you are!"

"Are you ok?" he asked.

"As far as I know, I am. I don't think I broke anything," I said.

Thereafter he didn't say much. But I'm sure he was thinking that I was really too young for skiing, that I needed a few years yet. Like Dr. Stiles, for instance.

Anyway, I unbuckled my skis and walked silently the rest of the way down.

When I got to the lodge, one of my companions asked me how I liked skiing. "It's great, isn't it?" he said enthusiastically.

"Oh, it's not bad," I replied casually. "But it'll never beat stickball."

MEDICINE AND YOU

Coffee Can Make You Get Fatter

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical-Science Editor

IT'S TRUE that black coffee has no calories. Even so, it may accent hunger to cause the overeating a dieter wants to avoid, warns Dr. Richard S. Koch, osteopathic physician of Olympia, Wash. In a report to the Georgia Osteopathic Medical Association, Dr. Koch said that it may stimulate the secretion of hydrochloric acid to provoke hunger pangs.

HOWARD UNIVERSITY doctors warn that taking nutmeg for kicks can be dangerous—perhaps even fatal.

In a report in the Journal of the National Medical Association, Drs. Ernest Y. Williams and Fred West say that reactions can include abdominal and chest pain, delirium, dizziness, shortness of breath and fear of death. They cite the case of a 23-year-old man who required four days of hospitalized care to recover from drinking a mixture of nutmeg, grapefruit juice and ginger ale.

APPEARANCE of red and painful nodules on the legs—a condition called erythema nodosum—may be a clue to the existence of ulcerative colitis, Mayo Clinic physicians say.

The skin disorder is sometimes seen in patients with rheumatic fever, drug allergies and other ailments. So when other causes have been ruled out, the examining physician should consider colitis, the doctors say in a report in Southern Medical Journal.

The doctors cite several instances where patients with erythema nodosum had ulcerative colitis.

THE NATION'S dermatologists (skin specialists) are starting an ambitious program aimed at "total mobilization of all of the intelligence of dermatology in one unified effort" to conquer disability due to skin disease. The program will encompass research, education and patient care itself.

MALARIA CONTINUES as the most serious disease among American troops in Vietnam, reports the Army's surgeon general, Leonard D. Heaton.

Even so, the malaria rate decreased significantly in Vietnam in the past year, according to a report in U.S. Medicine.

Meanwhile, field trials are slated in Vietnam for a derivative of the drug dapsone. Gen. Heaton says the drug already has been able to prevent falciparum malaria when administered once a week to volunteers. Dapsone itself must be given daily.

The new drug, if it proves successful, could result in "substantial relief" of administrative and logistical problems relating to drug administration, Gen. Heaton says.

A BERKELEY psychiatrist takes exception to the publicity given to the potential dangers of Chemical Mace, a spray used by police to control unruly persons.

The psychiatrist, Dr. Yehuda Sherman, says in a report in California's Health, a publication of the State Department of Public Health:

"Although this particular product, Chemical Mace, has been in wide use since it was first introduced over three years ago in August 1965, there has yet to appear a single documented case of its causing any permanent injury to a human being."

AND THERE'S THE REPORT of the anxious male patient who told the doctor, "I'm sweating blood."

Sure enough, there was matted hair in the armpit, a condition that appeared to be a blood clot.

Dr. Raymond Greene of London, reporting in The Lancet, says he sent the matted specimen to a famous pathologist. The report: presence of a bacterium known as Bacillus prodigiosus.

Pigmented strains of this microorganism have been known to produce pigment in such profusion in the lung that sputum is stained the exact color of blood.

Another micro-organism, Micrococcus castellani, has also been known to cause bloody sweat, the report says.

A 37-YEAR-OLD white woman has been finding purplish spots on her pillowcase about three times a week when she awakes in the morning. So begins a case report in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Two medical specialists say the condition is probably secretion of colored sweat on the face during sleep. The disorder is known as chromidrosis, or excretion of colored sweat.

One of the specialists, Dr. Milan Jirka of Charles University in Prague, says the condition is frequently seen in young women as a result of emotional stress. Prevention of the stress may be helpful in treatment, the doctor says.

Bixby Green
aparts

There's one thing about apartment hunting; you shop long enough, and pretty soon they all begin to look alike. Not quite enough room. Not quite enough privacy. Not quite right.

So much for apartments altogether. Bixby Green is something else again. Something special.

Bixby Green is a European idea. You've probably seen pictures of suburban town house colonies outside such cities as Stockholm, Paris and Amsterdam. Well, that gives you a good idea of what Bixby Green is like. Picture it:

Handsome structures within six acres of landscaped beauty. In effect, a village insulated from the rest of the community. Tree-lined walkways lead to the pool, the putting green and the other little out-of-the-way places that make a village a village. And you'll have two parking spaces. Both will probably be in the underground parking area. (At Bixby Green, cars are out of sight. Literally.)

The suites are worthy of the name. Each is a two-story plan, with as many as three bedrooms upstairs. The master bedroom, with its separate bath and dressing area, would put any apartment to shame. The downstairs plan goes from entry-hallway to step-down living room to private garden patio. The all-electric kitchen opens to the dining room. Central air-conditioning, luxurious carpeting, floor-to-ceiling drapes, total sound proofing and your own washer-dryer are just some of Bixby Green's features. Don't expect to find them in other apartments.

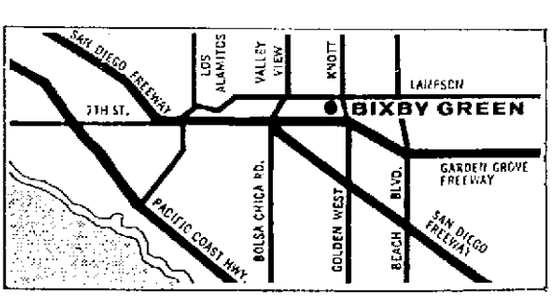

Another thing: Bixby Green is an adult community. And for families with children 16 years and older. It's quiet here. Yet you're moments from the beaches, marinas, golf courses and other fun places of Orange County.

You could say that Bixby Green is altogether apart.

And you will, when you see it.

CHERRY, English, represents a forefather who owned a cherry orchard. William Chery, or Cherry, was listed on tax records in 1443. The Cherry shield is silver, emblazoned with three red rings. Cherry may alternately be based on the archaic Anglo-French word "cheri" meaning "beloved one."

KOPP, German, evolved from "Kop," a nickname formed from the middle syllable of the baptismal name Jakobus meaning "supplanter." The Kopp armorial shield is black, centered with a rampant gold griffin, a lion-eagle combination.

The Birth and Death of Hemingway

HE CAME into this world at 8 in the morning, on July 21, 1899, in the Chicago suburb of Oak Park. He weighed in for life's battle at 9½ pounds, and was 23 inches tall. He had thick black hair and dark blue eyes. His voice, Carlos Baker tells us in "Ernest Hemingway: A Life Story" (Scribner's, $10), "from the first sounded remarkably masculine."

"The robins," Ernest's mother wrote, "sang their sweetest songs to welcome the little stranger into this beautiful world."

"All through his first winter, the child was placid, well-behaved," biographer Baker writes.

On Sunday morning, July 2, 1961, Hemingway, not quite 62, awoke early. He had just two days before returned to his place in Ketchum, Idaho, from a second stay at the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn. He had been suffering from kidney, liver and other organic ailments, from depression and delusions (a fear of cancer, and delusions of persecution among them).

A few months before, his wife, Mary, had found him, near the gun rack in their living room, with a shotgun in his hands, and only his doctor had been able to persuade him to hand over the weapon. There had been two threats of suicide.

On the Sunday morning in July, Hemingway was wearing the same red bathrobe ("the emperor's robe," as he called it), as he had on that day in April.

His wife, says Baker, "had locked all the guns in the storage room in the basement." The keys, Hemingway knew, were above the kitchen sink.

"He tiptoed down the basement stairs and unlocked the storage room. It smelled as dank as a grave. He chose a double-barreled Boss shotgun with a tight choke. He had used it for years for pigeon-shooting . . .

"He crossed the living room to the front foyer, a shrinelike entryway five feet by seven . . . He slipped in two shells, lowered the gun butt carefully to the floor, leaned forward, pressed the twin barrels against his forehead just above the eyebrows, and tripped both triggers."

Just as Carlos Baker's "Hemingway: The Writer as Artist" was the first full-length critical study of Hemingway's work, his "Ernest Hemingway: A Life Story," is as of this moment, the definitive biography of the man, and the first to really separate the myths from the realities.

Boy Quixote

CITY BOY: The Adventures of Herbie Bookbinder. By Herman Wouk. Doubleday. $5.95.

Herbie is a fat little Jewish boy who lives in the Bronx. It may be that his life, like Tom Sawyer's, is immortal. Herbie is the very essence of boy—funny, sad, lovable, a hero and a fall guy. Wouk "tells it like it is" in the seventh grade.

This is the twentieth anniversary edition of a novel with a strange history. At first the book was a dismal flop financially. Nobody read it. Four years later another publisher brought it out again. Since then it has enjoyed steady success. It has gone through several printings and has been translated into 11 languages.

"If I have a favorite creation, to this day, it is the fat little hero, Herbie Bookbinder," Wouk says. That is high praise because Wouk's distinguished novels are filled with wonderful characters.

It is a delight to read a novel without Freudian implications, social protest, filth and deviate behaviur. The Bookbinders and others are very much like the plain, decent, hard-working people up and down the street. Herbie has the very real problems of being a boy.

"City Boy" avoids the cutey-pie writing that mars so many books about children. The novel does resemble "Tom Sawyer." It is also a juvenile "Don Quixote." Herbie goes from adventure to adventure with touching gallantry.

This book is for the young of heart. It is written for adults, but I believe it would fascinate children. If you happen to know a Herbie, find out what he thinks of it.—Mark Clutter.

K. C. Family

MR. BRIDGE. By Evan S. Connell Jr. Knopf, $5.95.

Vignettes of family life in Kansas City are centered around busy, conservative, Republican Mr. Bridge, a rising attorney just arriving in affluence from an early life of economic stringency.

In fact, Mr. Bridge is a bit stodgy, but his family is not — and neither is Mr. Connell's pen. Oh, Mrs. Bridge is a bit pale and naive, just what Mr. Bridge has made her with overprotection. But Ruth, the eldest daugher; Carolyn, son Douglas and Harriett, the colored maid, bring brightness that throws off sparks when it collides with the solidity of Mr. Bridge's careful reign over his brood. Theirs is the modern view of the late 1930s; his is that of the club car, financial news, hotel luncheon circle.

The author takes the family through high school, into college, except for Ruth who takes off for New York and the Bohemian life. He also goes along with Mr. and Mrs. Bridge on a visit to Europe, cut short by Hitler and his invasion of Poland. Then it's back to Kansas City, and a jolting encounter with Julia, his office girl Friday.

In fact, life holds many shocks that jar Mr. Bridge to his heels. Some of them are humorous, some dramatic, some pragmatic, some pathetic, but none of them dull, except as life itself is sometimes dull.

This is a book that is fun to read. Those who know Mr. Connell's "Mrs. Bridge," published in 1959, have some idea of what to expect. — George Serviss.

The Speed Game

THEY CALL ME MISTER 500. By Andy Granatelli. Regency, $6.95.

This is race car promoter Granatelli's personal, no-holds-barred story of how it really is to drive — and crash — at the Speedway, of how it really is to build better cars and then have them outlawed by the United States Auto Club.

It's also a rather unnecessary history of the three fighting Italian brothers who really didn't live through any worse Depression than did others.

But, overlooking Granatelli's repeated pats on his brothers' backs — and his own—his unpasteurized tale of speed from the Utah Salt Flats to Indianapolis is a gripping account.

The sound you hear at the book's end is the now almost forgotten whine of the outlawed Novi and the whoosh of the also outlawed Granatelli turbine car. And the sad sigh you hear is Granatelli's.—Bill Shelton.

Servant of Mankind

By Eleanor Avery Price

AS MAN pulled up out of the muck of ignorance, he ceased being a wanderer and began settling down. This required capturing animals to keep his family in food. So began the pastoral age, and with it a real use for specialized dogs.

Numerous herding dogs gradually evolved, each fashioned according to its environment. Then with the march of civilization, herders gathered together to brag about their dogs, and eventually the breeds were even further specialized.

In Germany, the breeds were combined into a single shepherd dog that could work well under any condition. There was much work yet to be done, and toward the end of 1889, Rittmeister (Cavalry Captain) Max Emil Friedrich von Stephanitz set about in earnest to standardize the German Shepherd Dog. Realizing that the pastoral era was almost over in many places, he wanted a strong, sound, dependable dog to serve in other roles such as the government or police agents might offer.

With Arthur Meyer, Stephanitz founded the first German Shepherd Dog club, the Verein Fur Deutsche Schaferhunde, a club that eventually drew 30,000 members, making it the largest club devoted to one breed of dog. The standard drawn up for the breed stressed utility and intelligence. That the dog proved beautiful as well may have been incidental.

The German Shepherd Dog has had his ups and downs since then, and even today there are pitiful puppy factories. But dedicated fanciers have stood by their beloved dog, and today, in all the world, there is no better dog than a good, well-bred German Shepherd Dog. He is servant of all mankind. His acts of courage, his mercy missions, his members devoted to patiently guiding the blind cannot be calculated in numbers. Well bred, well trained, considered a part of the family, he makes a splendid pet and home guard.

Pictured today with this article are two fine German Shepherd Dogs — Ch. RayOBee's Evening In Gold (right) who at this writing is the dam of a fine litter of puppies, and Goldie's daughter by another breeding, RayOBee's Angelique. Owner Barbara Fopma stands behind Angel, handler Vickie Allen stands behind Goldie. Center is a judge.

ON SUNDAY, May 11, German Shepherd Dog Club of Long Beach will conduct its match at Thompson Park (formerly Caughran) on Bellflower Boulevard, just north of Rosecrans, in Bellflower. Puppies from 3 months and up are eligible, but no dogs with "points" please. There will also be obedience. Be there early.

Today, Hollywood Dog Obedience Club is holding its trial at North Hollywood Park.

National Be Kind to Animals Week starts today. If you can adopt a pet from the animal shelter, by all means do so. Then take good care of it.

With Arthur Meyer, Stephanitz founded the first German Shepherd Dog club, the Verein Fur Deutsche Schaferhunde, a club that eventually drew 30,000 members, making it the largest club devoted to one breed of dog. The standard drawn up for the breed stressed utility and intelligence. That the dog proved beautiful as well may have been incidental.

The German Shepherd Dog has had his ups and downs since then, and even today there are pitiful puppy factories. But dedicated fanciers have stood by their beloved dog, and today, in all the world, there is no better dog than a good, well-bred German Shepherd Dog. He is servant of all mankind. His acts of courage, his mercy missions, his members devoted to patiently guiding the blind cannot be calculated in numbers. Well bred, well trained, considered a part of the family, he makes a splendid pet and home guard.

Pictured today with this article are two fine German Shepherd Dogs — Ch. RayOBee's Evening In Gold (right) who at this writing is the dam of a fine litter of puppies, and Goldie's daughter by another breeding, RayOBee's Angelique. Owner Barbara Fopma stands behind Angel, handler Vickie Allen stands behind Goldie. Center is a judge.

ON SUNDAY, May 11, German Shepherd Dog Club of Long Beach will conduct its match at Thompson Park (formerly Caughran) on Bellflower Boulevard, just north of Rosecrans, in Bellflower. Puppies from 3 months and up are eligible, but no dogs with "points" please. There will also be obedience. Be there early.

Today, Hollywood Dog Obedience Club is holding its trial at North Hollywood Park.

MISS RULE: Please inform us on GREGURICH. — A.G., Long Beach.

GREGURICH, Slavic, is from Yugoslavia and Poland, and indicates "Son of Gregory." The ancient Greek source of Gregory was Gregorios, meaning "Watchful one; a guardian."

MISS RULE: Kindly explain ALSTON. — C.A., Long Beach.

ALSTON, English, is from the Anglo Saxon 11th century phrase "Athels-tun," describing "noble one's farm-estate." Cambridge records of 1273 list Henry and Robert Alston, remote progenitors. The Alston shield is blue, decorated with 10 gold stars, and accompanied with the motto "Immotus" meaning "Immoveable."

MISS RULE: Please give data on HAAS. — R.H., Long Beach.

HAAS, German, is from the 11th century hero name Haazo meaning "combatant and battler." Haas also traces to the old German "Haas" meaning "rabbit," adopted by a forefather from a shop-sign picturing a leaping rabbit. The Haas shield from German Silesia is blue, emblazoned with a white rampant rabbit.

with hot yellow peppers and pretzel sticks, is 10 cents. Pool often costs $1 an hour; at Jost's it is 30 cents.

Who eats at Jost's?

"Almost every kind of person," said White. "Where else could you see a lady in mink sitting beside a mechanic in greasy coveralls? I think our customers enjoy the equality that exists here."

Jost's, however, is mostly a man's place. Women make up less than 5 per cent of the customers. The men are of all classes. Millionaires jostle elbows with men who may be spending their last 30 cents for a sandwich.

"We have our regulars, men who for years have had a special, an egg and a schooner for lunch every day," White said. "Many of our old customers, those who knew Joe back in the 1920s, are dying, but we keep replacing them with younger men. The business is steadily growing.

"We have an amazing number of out-of-town customers. Men who live in Burbank and Pasadena drop in when they are in these parts. We never advertise except in programs for charity events. It's all word of mouth."

The employes of Jost's tend to resist change too. Wally Askew, who managed the poolroom for 27 years, died not long ago. John Bolis was bartender 25 years before he retired.

You won't find Joe Jost's in the phone book. There's no time to answer the questions of the wives of beer-drinking, pool-playing husbands.

And you won't find any kids in the poolroom. It's too hard to make sure teen-agers aren't violating the law by sneaking gulps of beer. Also, youthful exuberance can throw a regular off his game.

"We do our best to keep out hustlers, too," White said. "Our poolroom is for the pleasure of gentlemen."

Running a place like Jost's requires manual dexterity, especially on Saturdays. The men at the steam table slice sausages with worn, razor-sharp knives. The taps run steady streams.

"Some people have trouble shelling boiled eggs," White said. "We can shell six dozen in three minutes, six seconds." The shelled eggs are pickled overnight.

Joe Jost, 79, lives in retirement in Desert Hot Springs, but he comes to Long Beach frequently, especially now that he is a great-grandfather. The Whites have two children, Jeffrey, 2, and Jenifer, 2 months.

Joseph S. Jost — "Joe Jr." — White's uncle, is also retired. He lives in Central Point, Ore. He is 50. He formerly managed Jost's. The three men are partners.

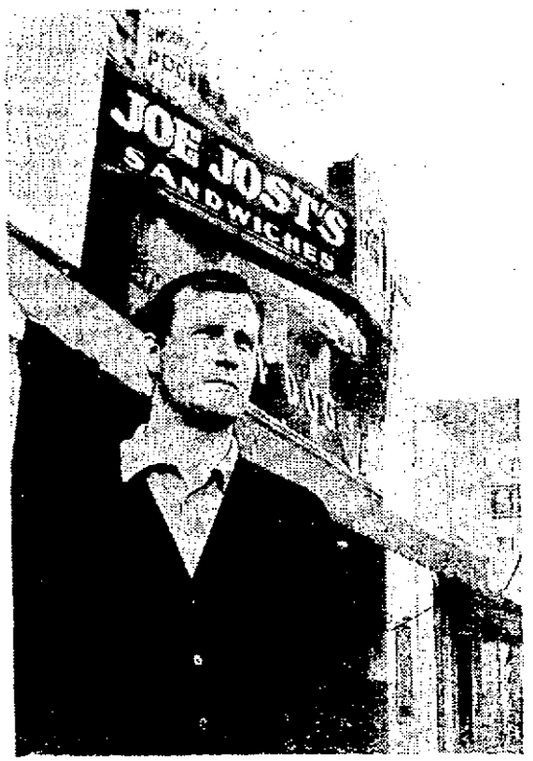

White, a physical education graduate of Western Illinois University, plans to make Jost's his career. "I wasn't sure for awhile," he said, "but I have found that I enjoy this work. I meet all kinds of interesting people and I am involved in their problems."

He hasn't departed from his career of athletics and coaching as much as one might think. He coaches Little League baseball and Pop Warner football. He plays golf, City League basketball and softball. And Jost's is a favorite hangout for athletes and sports fans. Members of the Rams are frequent customers. Jost's sponsors bowling and City League basketball and softball.

A story at Jost's is that the Health Department made them clean the antlers for the first time since 1924.

"This isn't true," said White. "We clean the antlers regularly. But they did recommend that we dispose of one deer's head."

Change is inevitable. Automation may catch up with Joe Jost's in 2069.

Partner-manager John White stands proudly in front of unchanging Joe Jost's.

GERIL MULLER
Art in Ice
Caricature by Larry La Voie

"AN incredible person. . ."

That's what people who really know him say about Geril Muller, host at the distinguished, award-winning Chez Cary restaurant, 571 S. Main St. in the city of Orange.

Handsome as a continental ambassador or a Broadway leading man, Geril is a gifted interior decorator as well as a connoisseur of the finest in dining pleasures. He designed many of Chez Cary's blue and gold velvet decorative effects which reflect the grandeur and opulence of a modern European chateau or castle.

Geril, of Scandinavian descent, has an intimate knowledge of what is required in the painstaking preparation and serving of haute cuisine. Aware that this is an art, he has staffed his establishment with talented chefs, captains and waiters whose cultural backgrounds are as diversified as the United Nations.

Geril's versatility even extends to the difficult art of ice carving. Recently Chez Cary was chosen for a party marking a couple's 25th wedding anniversary. The large table was graced with silver candelabra, imported crystal and china, patterns of flowers and greenery and linen napkins folded to stand upright like candles. In the center of the table, shimmering under the lights, was a huge "A" (for anniversary) which Geril carved from ice.

Last year, Charles Ritz — legendary owner of the Ritz hotels in Paris and London — dined at Chez Cary and described it as "the finest continental restaurant in America, equal to nearly any in the world." That was a high compliment indeed, because Monsieur Ritz is renowned for his standards of elegance.

Closed Sundays, Chez Cary serves luncheon from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.; dinner from 6 p.m. The elaborate menus are a la carte, emphasizing continental and American creations and magnificent vintages. Among the entrees: poached filet of sole, roast rack of lamb, stuffed lobster, roast duckling with orange sauce, chicken in burgundy sauce, choice steaks and chateaubriands. Other enchantments include imaginative hors d'oeuvres, soups, salads and unusual desserts. Each day two different plats du jour dishes are offered, $5.50 to $7.50.

WHITE HOUSE DAYS: IKE WITH MOOS AND SON.

Q. General Eisenhower's most quoted and memorable statement as 34th President of the United States was the warning in his farewell address about the growing might of the U.S. military-industrial complex. Who wrote that statement for Eisenhower? — Robert Jenkins, St. Paul, Minn.

A. It was written by Dr. Malcolm Moos, then professor of political science at Johns Hopkins University and now president of the University of Minnesota. Dr. Moos was one of President Eisenhower's major speech writers and it was he who wrote the major portion of Eisenhower's farewell address.

Q. I have read in the press that Adm. Hyman Rickover is one of the most abrasive men in the U.S. Navy. True or false? — Fred Whitaker, Norfolk, Va.

A. Rickover is not known in the Navy for his tact, warmth, or friendliness. He is capable, however, of exercising these virtues in front of Congressional committees whose members recognize him as the brilliant father of our nuclear-powered Navy.

Q. How old are screen stars Katharine Hepburn and Myrna Loy?—Evelyn Rhodes, Asheville, N.C.

A. Miss Hepburn is hitting 60, Miss Loy 64.

Q. I understand that several leading California industrialists have offered Sen. George Murphy a top job if he will only retire in 1970 and let Ronald Reagan succeed him. What's the story? — Ed Davenport, Sacramento, Calif.

A. Murphy claims he has no intention of retiring, plans to run for a second six-year term, will probably face Congressman John V. Tunney, son of boxing champion Gene Tunney, in the 1970 senatorial race.

Q. Where does the title Splendor in the Grass come from?—Marie West, Worcester, Mass.

A. From Wordsworth's Ode on Intimations of Immortality:

"Though nothing can bring back the hour
Of splendor in the grass, of glory in the flower . . ."

ANDY AND CLAUDINE

Q. Isn't it a fact that Andy Williams' wife, Claudine, and Herb Alpert of the Tijuana Brass have eyes for each other to the extent that it has caused their marriages to be shaky?—B. C., VAFB, Calif.

A. The Williams and Alpert marriages are currently on firm ground.

Q. Does the U.S. government pay Cuba $30,000 in ransom for the return of every hijacked plane?—William Vann, Chatom, Ala.

A. No. Each airline with a hijacked plane pays Cuba approximately $1500 for landing fees, oil, kerosene, maintenance, food for passengers, etc. It is not ransom, merely payment for services rendered.

Q. How many times was the late President John F. Kennedy married? Also was the late President Eisenhower a member of Jehovah's Witnesses?—A. T., Abilene, Kan.

A. Kennedy was married only once. Late in life President Eisenhower was baptized in the Presbyterian faith. His mother, originally a member of the River Brethren, later became a member of Jehovah's Witnesses—a sect strongly opposed to war and denying the authority of the government in matters of conscience.

McCARTHY, DAUGHTER AND WIFE

Q. Why is Sen. Eugene McCarthy now called "Mack the Knife?"—Ron Wolff, Madison, Wis.

A. Some non-admirers consider McCarthy one of the most charmingly ruthless men in the U.S. Senate. Among these there are some who refer to him with bitterness as "Mack the Knife." Many of his admirers, however, refer to him as "Mack the Magnificent."

Q. This is the 200th anniversary of Napoleon's birth, and I wonder if the whole truth has ever been told about him. Isn't it true that he lost the battle of Waterloo because of his hemorrhoids? Isn't it also true that he suffered from infantile genital organs? — L. Masters, St. Louis, Mo.

A. Napoleon suffered most of his life from constipation and hemorrhoids. According to British historian Colin Cross, on 16 June 1815 he was on the verge of victory at Waterloo, having forced Wellington into a most vulnerable position. That night Napoleon came down with an acute attack of inflamed hemorrhoids and delayed his drive against the British, affording Wellington a chance to retreat and regroup his forces and eventually win.

At 40 Napoleon began to be affected by a pituitary dysfunction, which brought on Froelich's Disease with debilitating effects upon his sex glands. After his death, physicians who conducted the post-mortem examination on the island of St. Helena observed that Napoleon's reproductive organs had shrunk.

Q. Michael Landon who plays Little Joe Cartwright in Bonanza*—how much does Landon earn per TV episode?—Frieda Harcourt, Wash., D.C.*

A. Ten years ago Landon was signed for Bonanza at $1250 a week. Today he receives $13,000 per episode, next year will receive $14,000.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Is capital punishment on the way out in the United States? Since 1935, the peak year for executions, with 199, the figure has steadily waned. Twenty-one criminals were executed in 1963; 15 in 1964; 1 in 1966; 2 in 1967; none in 1968. Here is the day-by-day account of the last week of the last man to be executed in the U.S.

Luis José Monge may not rank among the most celebrated murderers of history, but as the months go by his name takes on increasing significance in the annals of U.S. crime. For Monge, at this writing, is the last man in the United States to have been executed. He died in the gas chamber of Colorado State Penitentiary at 8:20 p.m. on June 2, 1967. In the nearly two years since, not a single criminal has been put to death in this country—although some 475 are now under sentence of death.

Monge's crime was hideous. On June 28, 1963, he murdered his pregnant wife and three of their seven children as they slept. Then he called the police. Appalled by his own crime, he made no effort to save himself, pleaded guilty, refused to appeal. He could hardly wait to go to the gas chamber—a gleaming, blue-gray structure that, when its door is open, looks like an upended bathtub, and in which cyanide pellets are dropped into a small acid vat to produce lethal vapors.

For three and a half years, Luis Monge occupied Cell No. 5 in Death Row, one floor below the gas chamber. There are six such cells altogether, and four of the others were already occupied by condemned prisoners when Monge arrived. These men are still there, all technically awaiting death. From talking to these prisoners, to the warden, the deputy warden, the chaplain, the guards and other prison personnel, PARADE has reconstructed the story of Monge's last week.

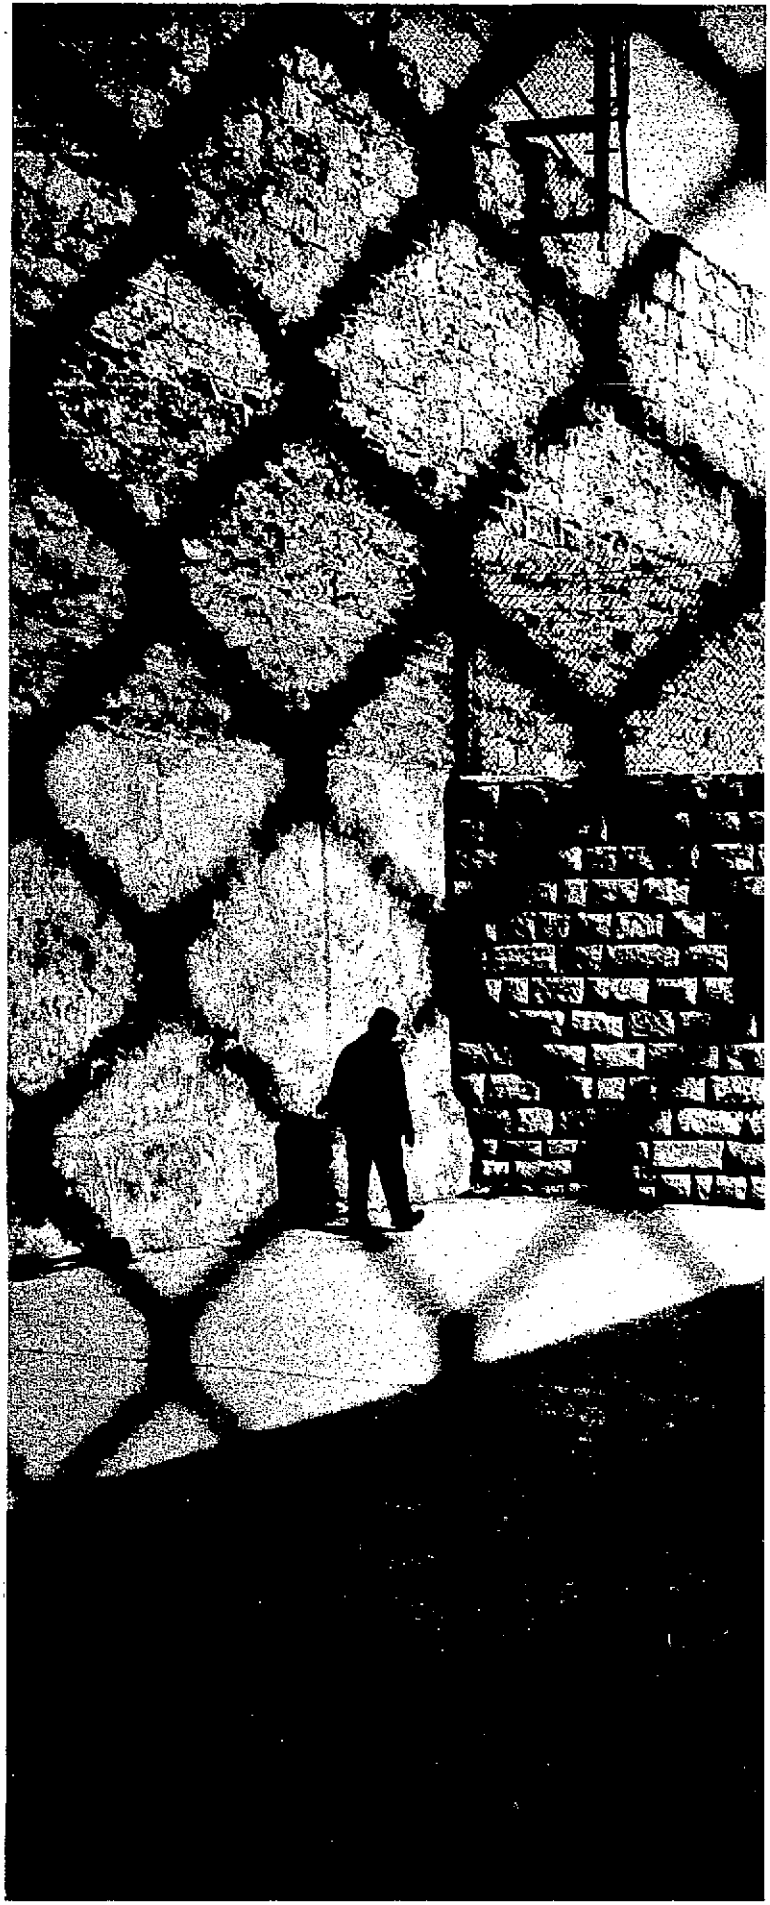

Seven-Day Countdown

SATURDAY, MAY 27, 1967: At Colorado State Prison, unlike other penal establishments, there is little difference in daily routine between the last week and any other—no extra precautions are taken, although some extra privileges are granted. The idea is to make the condemned man's final days as "normal" and as "comfortable" as any others. Breakfast is eaten by each prisoner alone in his cell at 7 a.m., but the two other meals he is permitted to take at a wooden table in the corridor with the other Death Row inmates. The food is dished out into metal trays. Each man has a metal dessert spoon; no other utensil is permitted. Recalls Sgt. Lloyd McGinnis, block officer at the time: "We carried on the usual conversations with Monge, just like normal. We never let on it was his last week. But he didn't speak or chatter away as much as usual. He knew the score and when he was going to go upstairs."

Monge never knew that on that Saturday, one week before his trip "upstairs," the prison officials held a dress rehearsal of his execution. Explains Deputy Warden Fred Wyse: "We don't have executions that often, so we have to do this to refresh our memories." For the dry run, all the essential participants—except Monge—were present, including Warden Wayne K. Patterson. The practice session, including the dropping of the pellets into the sulphuric acid solution and the emission of the fatal gas, took about 15 minutes. The first time the chamber was ever tested, years before, prison officials used a live pig for the "dry run."

SUNDAY, MAY 28: Sunday is chapel day in prison. Death Row inmates are customarily not allowed to attend services in the chapel, located in another building; instead they are visited by a clergyman in their cells. Monge, however, agitated so persistently for the privilege that he was finally permitted to attend services on Sunday mornings for the last six months of his life.

The prison chaplain then was a Benedictine priest, Father Justin McKernan, who has since retired. Now 71, Father McKernan remembers Monge's last visit to chapel very clearly. "He lined up for confession with everybody else," he said. "And that last Sunday he publicly professed his faith. Monge is the eleventh man I've escorted to the death chamber. We give a man who's going to die a little extra attention. The last week, I visited him twice a day. I sat in his cell with him while he'd recite all his prayers. Many times that week, he said he was sorry for what he had done, and was willing to take his punishment. He said over and over again, he didn't want a reprieve. I have no doubt that his soul has been saved. He was a domineering, headstrong and stubborn man, yet he had his soft and lovable side. He wanted forgiveness, and his family gave that."

That final Sunday also marked Monge's farewell to his relatives. As a prisoner about to die he was permitted a "last supper" with members of his family, held in the visiting room of the prison hospital. About a dozen kinfolk came to bid farewell to Monge, some from as far away as New York City. Among them were a son and two daughters who had been in the house the night he committed the murders. The family members were escorted by Lt. E. D. McDaniel, whom Monge liked best among his guards.

"It was a real big feed," McDaniel recalls. The menu, selected by Monge, included tossed salad, corn on the cob, fried chicken, French fried potatoes, ice cream, and fresh strawberries. The meal lasted from noon to 4 p.m. Urged by some of his family to seek a last-minute reprieve, Monge told them: "This is my time; I'm ready to die. And I don't want any of you to attend my funeral or to claim my body."

■ MONDAY, MAY 29: The excitement of Sunday was replaced by the grim weekday routine of Death Row. Most Death Row inmates like to sleep during the day and stay up most of the night, but Monge preferred to pass his days with his hobby of making little picture frames out of cigarette pack tinfoil. Monge didn't smoke, but the other four men of Death Row gave him their empty cigarette packs to work with. On his walls he had put up tinfoil-framed pictures of the children he'd killed—but not of his wife—and he also gave out empty frames to his relatives at the Sunday feast as his last gift.

The inmate in the cell next to Monge was leaving that day for Denver, where a court appeal in his own case was to be heard. "Luis knew he wasn't going to see me any more," says this prisoner—who is still occupying the same cell—"so he gave me some underwear shorts and T-shirts. He also returned one of the plants I had given him. Then he went back to weaving those picture frames. One thing I remember about him is how he was always cleaning his floor for dust. He had asthma and he complained a lot about the dust bothering him."

■ TUESDAY, MAY 30: Laundry day. Like the rest of Death Row, Monge stripped to his skin while the block officer searched and counted the clothing that was going out for washing. Then he put on another set of prison apparel and wrote some letters. He worked on a jigsaw puzzle (another hobby) and when it was finished glued it together on a piece of cardboard.

That day the doctors gave Monge his final psychiatric examination and concluded, as they had before, that he was sane. Monge also visited Deputy Warden Wyse in his office, thanked him for permitting the Sunday family dinner, and wondered what was going to happen to his four remaining children. He also told Wyse he didn't want to talk to any newspapermen, though many requests to interview him had been made. When he got back to his cell, an inmate-barber came to give him a short haircut. Purpose: to prevent cyanide gas from settling in the hair during the execution, endangering the guards who would come in to remove the body.

■ WEDNESDAY, MAY 31: A surprise visit to Monge from his eldest son, who brought along his fiancee. The meeting took place in the hospital waiting room. Monge was calm when he returned to his cell. Remembers the condemned man in Cell No. 1: "He had told us all he wasn't going to fight any more. We knew it was set for Friday night, but we never said anything to him about it. On Death Row we're a different kind of people. We just don't believe we're going to go upstairs. We always hope for a reprieve, or a new trial, or something. I been here nine years and I've never felt the way Monge did. I never want to go."

warden's office to make a final phone call to his brother in New York. He returned to a bare cell, for he had given away the family pictures to his son, and nearly all his personal effects to the other men on the Row. He gave his wristwatch to the newest man, in No. 2. Monge had received the watch from another Death Row inmate on the way to execution, when he was the newest man. He wrote a few final letters, and prayed in his cell with Father McKernan.

Officer C. S. Hays came on the graveyard shift at 11 p.m., one hour before Monge's last day was to begin. "He slept pretty good that last night," Hays remembers. "He got up not long before I went off duty, about 6:20 or 6:30 a.m. I told him 'Good morning, Monge.' You always address inmates by their last name and they always call us 'Mister.' Monge said, 'Well, I guess I won't be seeing you no more, Mr. Hays, so I'll say good-bye.' I couldn't hardly answer him. I just mumbled 'I guess so' and I walked off. I didn't wish him luck. What kind of luck can you wish a guy who's going to be executed in a few hours? I was glad I wasn't going to be there when he went upstairs."

■ FRIDAY, JUNE 2: On this day, the day that Monge was to die at 8 p.m., the prisoner in Cell No. 1 celebrated his birthday. Monge attended the party arranged by the Death Row inmates, had soda pop and candy, and for a present brought a dozen cigars. He also ate his regular breakfast and lunch, although, the other inmates remember, he passed up supper at 5 p.m., merely taking some coffee. Tension kept mounting all day, though everybody tried to act in a normal manner. Father McKernan gave Monge the last sacraments in his cell at 9:30 a.m., spent several hours with him during the afternoon, then left before returning for the final visit. Monge had asked that Lieutenant McDaniel be assigned to him, so McDaniel spent the entire last day with him, though he didn't relish the job. Monge's cell was left open; he was free to remain inside or wander the Death Row corridor.

Before 6 p.m. he went from cell to cell, saying his good-byes. One man, slated to be the next to go, had just received a two-week stay of execution and Monge congratulated him. Recalls McDaniel: "Around 6 o'clock it really started to get quiet in there. We started talking less—nobody knew what to really say or do. Once in a while I'd see one of the inmates looking at his watch. When Father Justin came back around 7, I knew it was getting close."

Warden Patterson, after spending the afternoon at the prison, had gone home to eat dinner with his wife. He left word that if a message from the governor's office arrived he was to be notified immediately. But no word of a reprieve came and at 7:25 p.m. he was back at the prison. Warden Patterson, although he is opposed personally to capital punishment on moral grounds and had never performed an execution, was determined to pull the gas chamber lever that drops the fatal pellets himself, rather than delegating the job to someone else. ing my duty," he says.

The warden remembers that the night of June 2 was a "dismal night for an execution." It was raining, and there was thunder and lightning. Monge's case had been widely covered in the press, and two sodden anti-capital-punishment pickets marched in the storm outside the gates.

When Warden Patterson arrived he went to his office and called Deputy Warden Wyse who was already upstairs at the gas chamber to make certain the preparations were completed. Patterson and Wyse synchronized their watches. It was 7:42 p.m. Then Patterson went to Monge's cell, where the condemned man was sitting waiting with Father McKernan. When the warden arrived, Monge rose and walked out to meet him, followed by the priest. Patterson put his hand on his arm to stop him and said: "Mr. Monge, first I must read you this statement." It was the first time since Monge had been on Death Row that he had been addressed as "Mister." The "statement" was the official death warrant of the State of Colorado. Then the warden concluded: "Good-bye, and God bless you."

Witnesses and reporters

In the meantime, unknown to Monge, others were also on their way to the execution chamber. Besides prison officials, the execution detail, and the official witnesses required by law—a total of 31 persons—19 press reporters had come to the prison. Windows at the rear of the gas chamber would enable viewers to watch Monge die, while outlets for an electrocardiogram would permit the cessation of his heart action to be charted exactly.

Toward the death room marched Monge, the warden in front of him, the chaplain behind. Monge was wearing bluish-gray prison pants, a gray prison shirt, and cloth shoes. He wore no socks.

As he passed his cellmates on Death Row, Monge had a final salute for each. "Take it easy," he said to the man in No. 3, and waved. To No. 2, who had just gotten the reprieve, he waved and called "Good luck." To No. 1, who kept his eyes on the television set, he also said "Good luck." Recalls this prisoner: "I said 'Good luck, good-bye' and kept on watching television. I just had to act that way. The minute he walked outside there was a feeling of loss, like we'd lost a part of ourself."

Once out of Death Row, Monge and his escort began climbing a ramp that led upstairs to the execution chamber. Monge was walking so quickly that he kept bumping into the warden, who had to slow him down.

At 7:58 they reached a preparation cell, where Monge was told to strip and put on a clean pair of white shorts and a new pair of cloth slippers—the garments in which he would meet death. After doing so, he turned to the warden and said: "Thank you for your kindness. I hate to be the one to cause you your first execution."

Two physicians, Dr. Gene Townsend and Dr. John Ralston, enter the cell and fasten electrocardiogram electrodes to Monge's arms and legs and daub on a white ointment-like preparation. Monge cannot resist a last jest and says with a sly smile: "One thing I'd like to know from you, doctor. Will that gas in there be bad for my asthma?" Dr. Townsend, though shaken, manages to reply: "Not for long."

Rosary around wrist

Warden Patterson looks at his watch and says: "Ready." It is a few seconds after 8 p.m. Monge gets up from his chair and, unassisted, enters the large execution room in the middle of which, its door open, stands the gleaming gas chamber. There are perhaps 20 people gathered in the execution room. Their eyes are on Monge but he strides past them unseeing and walks straight into the gas chamber and sits down in the white metal chair. Two guards squeeze into the chamber with him; they blindfold him and strap him in with leather belts across his chest and legs. Father McKernan fastens a rosary around his right wrist.

In turn, Warden Patterson and Deputy Warden Wyse enter the chamber for a last word of farewell. Then Father McKernan, who will be the last person to speak to Luis Monge, steps in. "Are you ready, Luis?" he asks. Monge replies: "Yes." "Are you sorry for all your sins?" he asks. "Yes, Father," is the answer. The chaplain steps out, takes his place toward the rear of the execution room, and begins to recite the prayers for the dying.

The door of the gas chamber now is clanged shut, and sealed tightly by the turning of a wheel. At 8:04? p.m. Warden Patterson takes a deep breath and pulls down the lever that drops the cyanide pills into the acid. This makes a clanging noise, and several witnesses jump. Fifty-three seconds later, at 8:05 p.m., Dr. Townsend observes gas vapors appearing in the chamber. He keeps a log on a letter-size white sheet:

Prisoner unconscious—8:09
Heart stopped—8:20
Prisoner pronounced dead—8:20

'He's gone'

Dr. Townsend tells the warden: "That's it, he's gone." Everyone starts to leave except a six-man crew that has been detailed to clear the chamber and remove Monge's body. This was not done until 8:58 p.m., when the last vestiges of gas had been cleared by the exhaust valves. Monge's body was removed on a wheeled stretcher cart and taken down the ramp. The cart made a lot of noise, and the prisoners on Death Row could hear it plainly as it clattered past the entranceway to their area.

In his office, the captain of the night shift removed one name from the prison roster.

When Warden Patterson arrived he went to his office and called Deputy Warden Wyse who was already upstairs at the gas chamber to make certain the preparations were completed. Patterson and Wyse synchronized their watches. It was 7:42 p.m. Then Patterson went to Monge's cell, where the condemned man was sitting waiting with Father McKernan. When the warden arrived, Monge rose and walked out to meet him, followed by the priest. Patterson put his hand on his arm to stop him and said: "Mr. Monge, first I must read you this statement." It was the first time since Monge had been on Death Row that he had been addressed as "Mister." The "statement" was the official death warrant of the State of Colorado. Then the warden concluded: "Good-bye, and God bless you."

Witnesses and reporters

In the meantime, unknown to Monge, others were also on their way to the execution chamber. Besides prison officials, the execution detail, and the official witnesses required by law—a total of 31 persons—19 press reporters had come to the prison. Windows at the rear of the gas chamber would enable viewers to watch Monge die, while outlets for an electrocardiogram would permit the cessation of his heart action to be charted exactly.

Toward the death room marched Monge, the warden in front of him, the chaplain behind. Monge was wearing bluish-gray prison pants, a gray prison shirt, and cloth shoes. He wore no socks.

As he passed his cellmates on Death Row, Monge had a final salute for each. "Take it easy," he said to the man in No. 3, and waved. To No. 2, who had just gotten the reprieve, he waved and called "Good luck." To No. 1, who kept his eyes on the television set, he also said "Good luck." Recalls this prisoner: "I said 'Good luck, good-bye' and kept on watching television. I just had to act that way. The minute he walked outside there was a feeling of loss, like we'd lost a part of ourself."

Once out of Death Row, Monge and his escort began climbing a ramp that led upstairs to the execution chamber. Monge was walking so quickly that he kept bumping into the warden, who had to slow him down.

At 7:58 they reached a preparation cell, where Monge was told to strip and put on a clean pair of white shorts and a new pair of cloth slippers—the garments in which he would meet death. After doing so, he turned to the warden and said: "Thank you for your kindness. I hate to be the one to cause you your first execution."

Two physicians, Dr. Gene Townsend and Dr. John Ralston, enter the cell and fasten electrocardiogram electrodes to Monge's arms and legs and daub on a white ointment-like preparation. Monge cannot resist a last jest and says with a sly smile: "One thing I'd like to know from you, doctor. Will that gas in there be bad for my asthma?" Dr. Townsend, though shaken, manages to reply: "Not for long."

Rosary around wrist

Warden Patterson looks at his watch and says: "Ready." It is a few seconds after 8 p.m. Monge gets up from his chair and, unassisted, enters the large execution room in the middle of which, its door open, stands the gleaming gas chamber. There are perhaps 20 people gathered in the execution room. Their eyes are on Monge but he strides past them unseeing and walks straight into the gas chamber and sits down in the white metal chair. Two guards squeeze into the chamber with him; they blindfold him and strap him in with leather belts across his chest and legs. Father McKernan fastens a rosary around his right wrist.

In turn, Warden Patterson and Deputy Warden Wyse enter the chamber for a last word of farewell. Then Father McKernan, who will be the last person to speak to Luis Monge, steps in. "Are you ready, Luis?" he asks. Monge replies: "Yes." "Are you sorry for all your sins?" he asks. "Yes, Father," is the answer. The chaplain steps out, takes his place toward the rear of the execution room, and begins to recite the prayers for the dying.

The door of the gas chamber now is clanged shut, and sealed tightly by the turning of a wheel. At 8:047 p.m. Warden Patterson takes a deep breath and pulls down the lever that drops the cyanide pills into the acid. This makes a clanging noise, and several witnesses jump. Fifty-three seconds later, at 8:05 p.m., Dr. Townsend observes gas vapors appearing in the chamber. He keeps a log on a letter-size white sheet:

Prisoner unconscious—8:09
Heart stopped—8:20
Prisoner pronounced dead—8:20

'He's gone'

Dr. Townsend tells the warden: "That's it, he's gone." Everyone starts to leave except a six-man crew that has been detailed to clear the chamber and remove Monge's body. This was not done until 8:58 p.m., when the last vestiges of gas had been cleared by the exhaust valves. Monge's body was removed on a wheeled stretcher cart and taken down the ramp. The cart made a lot of noise, and the prisoners on Death Row could hear it plainly as it clattered past the entranceway to their area.

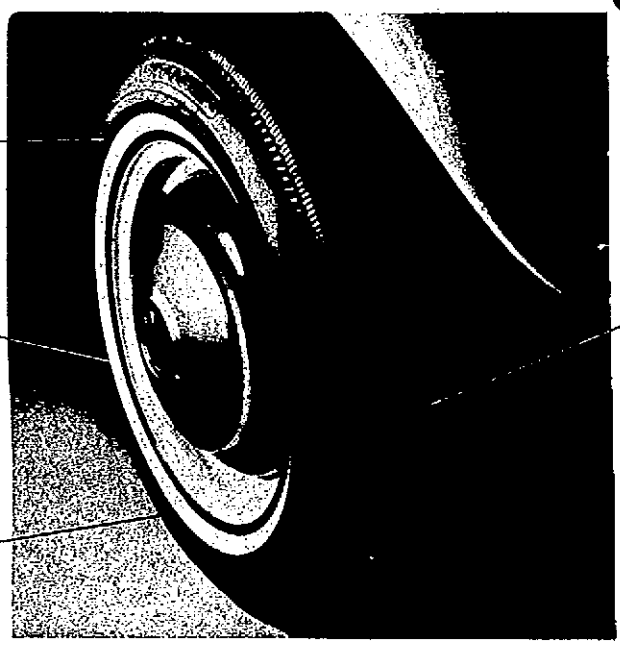

In his office, the captain of the night shift removed one name from the prison roster.

Hair Styles Bring Back the '30's

BY ROSALIND MASSOW
PARADE WOMEN'S EDITOR

Fashion decrees curls, and pretty young things look prettier when faces are framed in masses of soft curled hair.

■ If you're looking for a new way to wear your hair this summer, be fashionable and pick a curled look. Softer hairdos, reminiscent of the '30's, some shown here, are back in vogue. Even short styles, like that worn by model on today's cover, have ends that swirl up. Her soft cap look, cut and set by hairdresser Hugh Harrison, is combed toward the face in fetching feathery wisps. Hair is worn longer on the neck to mid-nape, and then curled at the ends in soft ringlets. Swimmers will find this an easy-to-manage hairdo. It's simple to set with the new hair set tape which holds wet wisps and curls securely in place while hair dries. Although short hair is easy to groom, mid and longer lengths offer a greater variety of prettier looks this summer. The soft pageboy, for instance, enjoying a fashion rerun for modern day misses, is quite appealing, but if that's not your look, there are other styles likely to please. Some of the curly gimmicks coming up include fluffed-out curls which pop out from a straight, center part, corkscrew curls, wispy tendrils, and cascades of ringlets. Just remember, this summer is the season to curl it.

Fluffy side curls pop out from smooth center part to give fresh look. Base permanent keeps curls looking perky.

Hamlet hairdo with mid-crown bangs, is dressed up with cascade of curls.

New version of pageboy is soft, feminine, with crown section pulled back, and fluffed.

Cover hairdo set with Scotch Hair Set Tape, other styles from Toni Hair Center, and R. Keith for Intercoiffure America. Leon Buchheit shoulder-length fall.

A Spaghetti Dish That's Super

by Beth Merriman
PARADE FOOD EDITOR

Spaghetti New Orleans is a dish to remember when you want to wow your guests. The velvet-smooth sauce, subtly flavored, could be the work of a great chef. When crisp coral shrimp and sliced mushrooms are added and then tossed with thin spaghetti al dente, it takes on the glamor of an exquisite dish featured by a renowned restaurant.

Keep the rest of your menu on the light side. Begin with clear consommé, celery curls and black olives. Accompany spaghetti with a green salad, sesame bread sticks and sliced tomatoes with vinaigrette dressing. End with a dessert of honeydew melon, lime wedges and a mixture of sugar and powdered ginger.

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES ABOUT THIS COLUMN.

BROKEN HEARTS Can man die of a broken heart? Can he grieve himself to death? A three-man research team, reporting in the British Medical Journal, says that 213 of a group of 4486 widowers they studied died within six months of their wives' deaths.

This confirms the long-held belief that men who have recently lost their wives are more likely to die than married men in their own age-group.

Dr. C. Murray Parkes of London's Tavistock Institute of Human Relations writes: "To most of us death from a 'broken heart' is a figure of speech, yet the term reflects a bygone belief that grief could kill through the heart."

Widowers in the Parkes study showed a startling increase in deaths from heart disease, jumping by 66% from the normally expected figure. All the widowers were age 55 or over.

The British research team suggests that bereavement is an aggravating factor in increasing coronary heart disease.

"If the findings of this study are typical," the report states, "we must conclude that nearly 5% of widowers over 55 die within six months of the death of their wives, and that nearly half of these deaths are from heart disease.

"Research is needed to discover whether widowers under 55 and widows are similarly at risk, and to determine what intervention is possible to minimize the risk."

SHARP JAPANESE Japanese businessmen are on the ball these days. They not only sell merchandise to both sides in the Vietnamese war, but they are wasting little time in determining what they can do to rebuild Vietnam at war's end.

According to a postwar reconstruction plan worked out for the South Vietnamese by David Lilienthal, it will cost more than $2.6 billion to repair war damage and get the country going again. The Japanese believe that reconstruction will start with agricultural development, road repair, the erection of a communications network, and the introduction of modern machinery, most of which Uncle Sam will probably pay for.

A seven-man Japanese mission recently toured South Vietnam to determine how Japan could get in on the ground floor of the reconstruction program. No doubt the Japanese will also attempt to rebuild Hanoi and North Vietnam.

QUIET GARBAGE CANS The Citizens for a Quieter City, Inc., have inspired the development of a garbage can that won't jolt everyone awake at 6 a.m. when the garbage collector throws it emptied on the street, or the neighborhood dogs knock it down. For their effort at making life more livable, the organization was awarded one of the 12 first annual environmental design awards from the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

The galvanized steel garbage can, which is sound-deadened, was developed by James H. Botsford, noise control engineer at Bethlehem Steel Corporation. Unlike its clanging brothers, this garbage can responds to a kick or a toss with merely a dull thump.

AUTEC Ever hear of the Anglo-American Atlantic Undersea Test and Evaluation Center in the Bahamas?

That is one reason why a fleet of Russian trawlers, including many spy ships, has been cruising off our South Atlantic coast.

AUTEC was completed in 1966 after five years of work at a cost to the U.S. of $90 million. It is a top secret naval installation for the testing of new types of torpedoes, anti-submarine missiles, and various detection devices.

Great Britain let us use the Bahamas for this joint venture of sorts because, according to Desmond Wettern, veteran British naval correspondent, "There are no comparable testing facilities around Britain which would be free from the attention of Russian intelligence ships."

AUTEC apparently provides ideal testing sites for new underwater weapons such as the Ikara, an anti-sub missile designed by the Australians.

FREE LOADERS Italian film producers who release their own films have launched a major campaign against free loaders, of whom there are thousands in Italy.

In that country all war wounded, all deputies and senators, all civilians wounded in World War I and World War II get free tickets to the movies. The following privileged classes also may enter theaters without charge:

Police authorities, military police, customs officials, film control officers, tax inspectors, government officials on various entertainment committees, in fact almost anyone who can talk his way in.

ROOM FOR ONE MORE: JAPANESE 'PUSHERS' AT WORK.

COMMUTER CROWDS Japan recently hired 506 additional "pushers" to help crowd passengers into Tokyo commuter cars. This raises the number of pushers to 2577. These men stand on the train stations, and shove the passengers into the trains as the doors begin to close.

Almost 800 of the pushers are college students, qualified because of their skill in judo, karate, or football.

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES ABOUT THIS COLUMN.

BROKEN HEARTS Can man die of a broken heart? Can he grieve himself to death? A three-man research team, reporting in the British Medical Journal, says that 213 of a group of 4486 widowers they studied died within six months of their wives' deaths.

This confirms the long-held belief that men who have recently lost their wives are more likely to die than married men in their own age-group.

Dr. C. Murray Parkes of London's Tavistock Institute of Human Relations writes: "To most of us death from a 'broken heart' is a figure of speech, yet the term reflects a bygone belief that grief could kill through the heart."

Widowers in the Parkes study showed a startling increase in deaths from heart disease, jumping by 66% from the normally expected figure. All the widowers were age 55 or over.

The British research team suggests that bereavement is an aggravating factor in increasing coronary heart disease.

"If the findings of this study are typical," the report states, "we must conclude that nearly 5% of widowers over 55 die within six months of the death of their wives, and that nearly half of these deaths are from heart disease.

"Research is needed to discover whether widowers under 55 and widows are similarly at risk, and to determine what intervention is possible to minimize the risk."

SHARP JAPANESE Japanese businessmen are on the ball these days. They not only sell merchandise to both sides in the Vietnamese war, but they are wasting little time in determining what they can do to rebuild Vietnam at war's end.

According to a postwar reconstruction plan worked out for the South Vietnamese by David Lilienthal, it will cost more than $2.6 billion to repair war damage and get the country going again. The Japanese believe that reconstruction will start with agricultural development, road repair, the erection of a communications network, and the introduction of modern machinery, most of which Uncle Sam will probably pay for.

A seven-man Japanese mission recently toured South Vietnam to determine how Japan could get in on the ground floor of the reconstruction program. No doubt the Japanese will also attempt to rebuild Hanoi and North Vietnam.

QUIET GARBAGE CANS The Citizens for a Quieter City, Inc., have inspired the development of a garbage can that won't jolt everyone awake at 6 a.m. when the garbage collector throws it emptied on the street, or the neighborhood dogs knock it down. The galvanized steel garbage can, which is sound-deadened, was developed by James H. Botsford, noise control engineer at Bethlehem Steel Corporation. Unlike its clanging brothers, this garbage can responds to a kick or a toss with merely a dull thump.

CRIME BOOKLET The average U.S. citizen in many communities lives in fear of becoming a victim of crime.

A free booklet--entitled Crime Can Be Stopped--Here's How!--explores the problem in some depth. It tells how to protect your home against burglars, what to do if attacked by a criminal, how to prevent your children from being molested, and how to prevent the theft of your automobile among other helpful hints.

The booklet is available from Crime Prevention, Los Angeles Police Department, Box 471, Los Angeles, Calif. 90053.

DIVORCE RUSSIAN STYLE In the Soviet Union, a couple without children, who agree they want a divorce, can get one simply, quickly, and easily without going through the courts. All they need do is to apply at the local registry office.

This is one of the provisions of the 1968 Russian marriage law designed to increase the birthrate, which, of late, has hit a new low.

By making it easy for childless couples to obtain a divorce, the government intends to encourage second marriages which bear fruit.

UNDERWATER ATOMS One of the reasons the U.S. is dragging its feet about signing a treaty forbidding the testing of nuclear bombs on the sea floor is that several friendly nations want to build new harbors.

Australia, for example, would like to erect the world's first nuclear-made harbor at Cape Keraudren on its northwest coast.

The Aussie engineers say that five 200-kiloton blasts, spaced about 1000 feet apart and 800 feet deep will pile up harbor walls of about 300 feet on which docks could be erected. Nuclear explosive devices could also help in the erection of new canals through Panama and Nicaragua.

Teacher's Twin Blessings

Mrs. Hepner smiles over the twins. She reports that on the average they're better behaved than her one-of-a-kind boys and girls.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

Mrs. Mollie C. Hepner, kindergarten teacher at Howard Elementary School, sometimes gets the feeling that her classroom routine would be a lot simpler if she only had to see double once. As it is now, she is forced to see double four times over.

This is a way of saying that the gracious Mrs. Hepner has no less than four sets of twins on her hands. For a further complication, in two of the sets the first names are identical—James and John.

"I love them all," says Mrs. Hepner, "but it can get a little unnerving to call two boys and have four come running."

Visitors to the school, watching Mrs. Hepner in action amidst her sea of twins, are reminded of that old saying from sports—"You can't tell the players without a scorecard." Only in this case the scorecard is in her head. She explains:

"The most difficult to tell are the Whiteheads—James and John. They're identical but gradually I figured out that one is just a little bit prettier than the other. As for the Dunn twins, Nina and Tina, one is much more mischievous than the other—that's my clue there.

"Then come the Tankersley twins—they're easy. James has darker hair than John. And, finally, we come to Lloyd and Lawrence Gauss. They're identical, too, but if you look closely you'll see that Lloyd's features are just a little bit more pronounced."

One thing that puzzles Mrs. Hepner but also, of course, delights her, is that she has fewer behavior problems with the twins than with the one-of-a-kind youngsters. She also notes that in each set of twins, the two are exceedingly fond of each other.

They're also very considerate of other people when the problem of identification arises. "Early in the year," recalls Mrs. Hepner, "when I was beside myself trying to sort out John and James Whitehead, one of them said to me: 'That's all right, teacher, don't worry. Our mother still gets us mixed up sometimes.'"

Four sets of twins to sort out—St. Louis kindergarten teacher Mollie Hepner has the problem. One set told her even their mother gets them mixed up.

A NEW CAR

Riding in a wheelchair

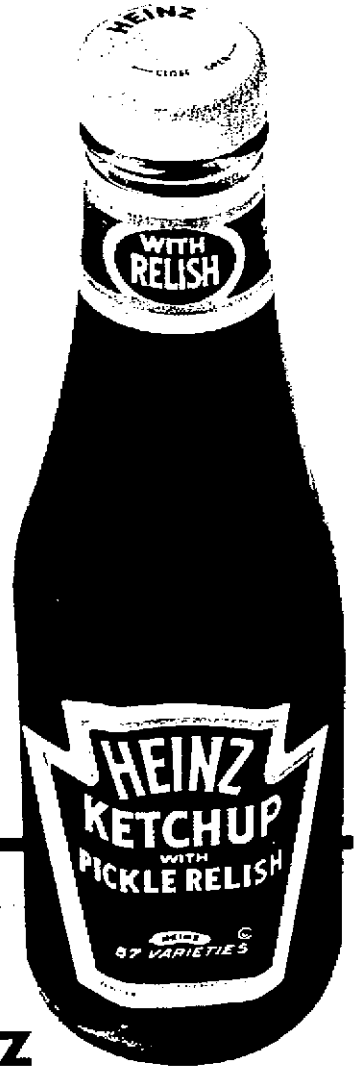

■ A family car for the handicapped—that is the most unusual new model to emerge from the recent Chicago Auto Show. It's estimated that a million Americans spend their days in wheelchairs. For them, taking a car ride means being lifted out of the chair and wrestled into the rear seat. Now, thanks to extra room, wider doors and special hinges of the new vehicle—built by Checker and dubbed "Medicar"—the wheelchair rides easily up a ramp right into the car, with the occupant still in it. Moreover, there's enough room in the rear for regular passengers, enabling families with a handicapped member to travel comfortably.

Stretcher can also be wheeled into vehicle with special doors and hinges.

A Classroom Where the Action Is

BY JOHN G. ROGERS

Visiting the White House: U.S. kids at one-week school in Washington being met by Bud Wilkinson, President Nixon's special aide on youth matters.

WASHINGTON, D.C.

The 17-year-old high school student from Pennsylvania spoke accusingly to the Secret Service agent: "Why do you let the President of the United States get himself into positions of danger?" The agent defended the guardians of the Chief Executive: "We can ask the President to avoid potential danger but we can't force him. After all, he's the head man."

The 16-year-old student from California pointed a finger at the Ambassador from Mexico and demanded: "What qualifications do you have to be ambassador to the United States?" The ambassador smiled diplomatically and ticked off his education, background and experience.

The student from Texas threw a challenge at Bud Wilkinson, President Nixon's special aide on youth matters: "Describe my generation in one sentence." Wilkinson, the onetime top-ranked football coach, came right back: "Your generation is the most idealistic we've ever had, least concerned with material gain and the strongest motivated for social change toward a more just society."

These face-to-face encounters were only three out of thousands that occurred recently in Washington during a four-week session of a new experimental school called The Presidential Classroom for Young Americans. Congressmen, senators, Cabinet members, administrators, newsmen, NASA experts, judges —all these and many more from the vast spectrum of official Washington appeared before more than 1200 high school seniors brought together in successive groups from all 50 states. They spoke to the youngsters and then submitted to questions—many of them pretty rough. Each group of kids had this close-up experience, including many field trips, for one week. When it was over most were convinced they had an appreciation of their federal government that you simply can't get back home in the textbooks.

"This has been tremendous," says Bob German, 17, of Canton, Ohio. "A chance to ask questions of the big shots and try to pin 'em down. You ought to see some of 'em wiggle. Government never interested me before this but this was headlines come to life."

And from Norma Cates, 18, of Balko, Okla.: "This is the best way to learn — to reach out and touch the real thing. In Oklahoma nothing much ever happens but here I've been right in the middle of the whole process of our government."

And Derrel Bryan, 18, of Wauchula, Fla.: "I thought we were in for some sort of brainwash on how great the government was. But it didn't go that way at all. They showed us the whole works and left it to us to decide. I saw some good stuff, some pretty crummy."

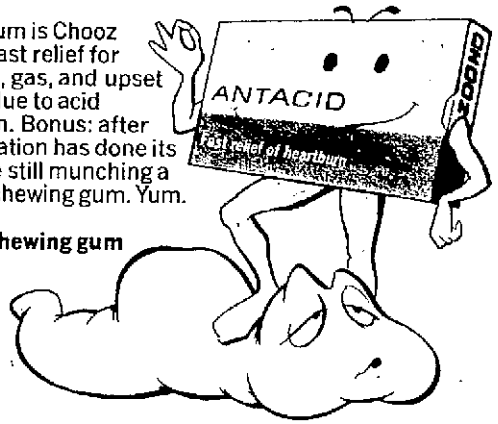

Wanted: lively students

The Presidential Classroom for Young Americans grew out of a White House projects office. Funded at the outset by federal money, it sent invitations to more than 34,000 public, private and parochial high schools, asking each to create some sort of competition to nominate a student for the Classroom. In general, the nominees were accepted on a first-come, first-served basis and they were not expected to be just A students or class presidents. The Washington experiment wanted lively, concerned boys and girls interested in government. When the first class of 350 arrived in Washington, there was glamor on hand to greet them. Dean of men was Bill Toomey, the 30-year-old Santa Barbara, Calif., educator who beat the world's best last year in Mexico City to win the Olympic decathalon. And the dean of women was pretty, blonde Rene Carpenter, wife of Scott Carpenter, the former astronaut-aquanaut.

"Tuition for each student was $200 and that covered everything—room, board and school," reports Gary Allison, former White House adviser and Classroom chairman. "And each student paid his fare to Washington and back. Generally, though, each student was

STOP SMOKING

Here's How!
by Al Tyll

Known as the "magician" of trick water skiing, Al Tyll (rhymes with "will") is a many-time winner of National, Masters and North American Championships in trick skiing.

Believe me, trick water skiing and smoking just don't go together—not if you want to stay on top. Having been the champion trick skier for many years, I couldn't afford to get hooked on the habit. I remembered reading about Bantron, got some and started using it. Thanks to Bantron, I stopped smoking completely in 5 days. It didn't affect my taste for food or anything else. I haven't smoked in a year and a half.

I've learned that clinical evidence has established that Bantron is more than 80% effective in helping chronic chain smokers give up smoking completely. Extensive research work at a great American University has shown that 4 out of 5 people who had a desire to stop smoking were able to do so within one week with the help of Bantron.

Even those who didn't stop completely cut down drastically.

And the Bantron way is so easy and pleasant! Bantron does not affect your taste, is not habit forming. It acts as a substitute for the nicotine in your system, curbs your desire for tobacco.

Try Bantron. You will be amazed at the results you get. It's so safe when taken as directed that you can get it at all drug stores without a prescription. Also available in Canada.

AGE SPOTS*

FADE THEM OUT

*Weathered brown spots on the surface of your hands and face tell the world you're getting old—perhaps before you really are. Fade them away with ESOTERICA, that medicated cream that breaks up masses of pigment on the skin, helps make hands look white and young again. Equally effective on the face, neck and arms. Not a cover-up. Acts in the skin—not on it. Fragrant, greaseless base for softening, lubricating skin as it clears up those blemishes. If you have these age-revealing brown spots, blotches, or if you want clearer, lighter skin, use ESOTERICA. At your favorite drug and toiletry counter. $2.00.

'adopted' by a service club or business house in his home community and all expenses were paid for him."

Classroom headquarters was the Washington Hilton which cleared off almost its entire third floor for the students and set up for them such services as dining hall and infirmary. The kids were thrown together three and four to a room with a maximum mix.

"We put East with West and rich with poor and North with South," says Allison, "and it must have been a good idea because there wasn't any trouble, but there were endless bull sessions and much enlightenment. You should see how fast strange kids became friends. As each group departed at the end of its week, there was much exchanging of addresses, promises to visit, and so on."

But the main thing was the constant exposure to government, including the chance to argue and criticize. Gov. Ronald Reagan of California—though not a federal man he appeared on one program—hit a storm when he opposed lowering voting age to 18. He contended that to add partisan politics to the already chaotic scene on many college campuses would be the ultimate disruption.

The Jordanian spokesman survived tough criticism on the Israeli issue. The Mexican Ambassador was raked over as too soft on Castro's Cuba. One student complained about the speaker from the Russian embassy: "Why didn't he act human just once? We resented him and his memorized, parrotlike answers." A boy of few words looked at the Senate in action and pronounced, "Inadequate!" Another said sternly: "I'm shocked over what the State Department doesn't know about certain situations."

But it wasn't all criticism. Several students agreed, for example, after talking to their congressmen, that they'd never before appreciated how legislators can get caught in the middle between pressure groups.

Protect that President

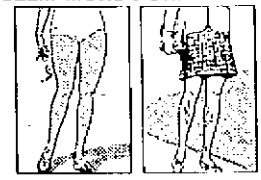

Secret Service agent John W. Warner Jr. was a revealing speaker in throwing light on how recent assassinations affect the national climate. In 1968, he disclosed, no fewer than 300 persons were committed to mental hospitals for examination because they showed what seemed to be undue interest in the President and his moves.

In the final assessment of the first year of The Presidential Classroom, a consistent lament was that so few students can be accommodated. Next year it's planned to raise the capacity to around 2000 but even that is a sorry figure to represent our more than 34,000 high schools. However, the adults who ran the 1969 pilot project believe they've hit on a most valuable medium of education.

"Take the kids out of the classroom for a bit and send them where the action is," says Gary Allison. "We know they learned a great deal here. Why not other trips? New York, Chicago, Canada, California, their state capitals—there's no end of possibilities."

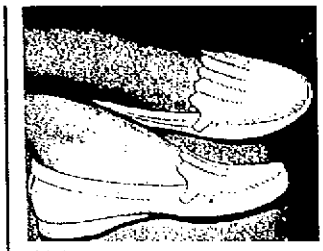

It's an engaging concept—putting the school on the road for a while—and the enthusiasm of this year's Presidential Classroom students is a strong plus in its favor.

Tests By Doctors Prove It Possible To Shrink Painful Hemorrhoids

And Promptly Stop The Itching, Relieve Pain In Most Cases.

A scientific research institute has discovered a medication which has the ability, in most cases—to actually shrink hemorrhoids and to promptly stop the burning itch and relieve pain.

In case after case, the sufferer first notices relief from itching and pain. Then painful swelling of the inflamed hemorrhoids is gently reduced.

Tests conducted on hundreds of patients by doctors in New York City, in Washington, D.C. and at a Midwest Medical Center proved this so.

The secret is Preparation H®. There is no other formula for the treatment of hemorrhoids like Preparation H. In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids – Preparation H lubricates, soothes irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection.

Just ask for Preparation H Ointment or Preparation H Suppositories. No prescription is needed.

STOP SMOKING

Here's How!
by Al Tyll

Known as the "magician" of trick water skiing, Al Tyll (rhymes with "will") is a many-time winner of National, Masters and North American Championships in trick skiing.

Believe me, trick water skiing and smoking just don't go together—not if you want to stay on top. Having been the champion trick skier for many years, I couldn't afford to get hooked on the habit. I remembered reading about Bantron, got some and started using it. Thanks to Bantron, I stopped smoking completely in 5 days. It didn't affect my taste for food or anything else. I haven't smoked in a year and a half.

I've learned that clinical evidence has established that Bantron is more than 80% effective in helping chronic chain smokers give up smoking completely. Extensive research work at a great American University has shown that 4 out of 5 people who had a desire to stop smoking were able to do so within one week with the help of Bantron.

Even those who didn't stop completely cut down drastically.

And the Bantron way is so easy and pleasant! Bantron does not affect your taste, is not habit forming. It acts as a substitute for the nicotine in your system, curbs your desire for tobacco.

Try Bantron. You will be amazed at the results you get. It's so safe when taken as directed that you can get it at all drug stores without a prescription. Also available in Canada.

My Favorite Jokes

by Stanley Myron Handelman

EDITOR'S NOTE: After Stanley Myron Handelman's first performance as a guest last summer for NBC-TV's Dean Martin Presents the Golddiggers, he was signed as a regular. He has also been a frequent guest on The Dean Martin Show. And now Stanley will be a regular in the new summer edition of the Golddiggers starting in July.

A native of Brooklyn, N.Y., Handelman worked at many odd jobs, plus ten summers at Catskill resorts, before turning to making a living as a comedian. He worked Greenwich Village coffee houses and went on to do 30 appearances on The Merv Griffin Show, which led to the Martin summer series.

Herewith some of Stanley's favorite jokes:

The other day a crook went into a big department store, rushed up to the information counter, pulled out a gun and shouted, "Is this a stickup?"

Three turtles packed a picnic lunch and were walking out into the woods when they spied three cans of beer. "Well," said the first one. "I can't go home for the can opener. I'm 750 years old."

"Oh," said the second one. "Then I can't go either. I'm 430. It's up to you, kid. You're only 360."

So the third one said, "Ah, gee. Everybody's always picking on me," and he went back to get the can opener.

About seven years went by and the second turtle said, "I think we should start eating. I mean the kid isn't back yet and I'm getting hungry."

"No," said the first turtle. "That wouldn't be fair. Let's wait."

So another 11 years went by and the second turtle said, I'm starving."

The first turtle said, "I think you're right. Let's eat."

Suddenly the third turtle jumped out from behind a bush and said, "I heard you and just for that I ain't goin'."

There was once a man who scrimped and saved all his life. Everything he bought had to be a bargain. Finally he couldn't stand it any longer. He got a gun, went into an exclusive men's store and snarled, "Give me a suit." So the salesman brought out a $250 cashmere suit. The man looked at it and said, "Don't you have anything cheaper?"

A drunk walked into a bakery at midnight and said. "Do you have any stale rolls?" "Yes," said the proprieter. "I think we have a few."

"Well, it serves you right," said the drunk. "You should have sold them this morning."

A woman met her friend in the street and said, "How is your husband?"

"Oh," said the friend. "My husband died last month. He had a stroke."

"Really," said the woman. "Was it serious?"

An old woman was going on a tour of an art museum and the guide was pointing out a painting of some street beggars in Rome. "Look at that," said the woman. "They don't have what to eat. But for a portrait they got plenty of money."

...AND THE PIRATES

by GEORGE WUNDER

ZUZY CLAIMS TO BE HAPPY IN HER NEW CAREER AS A MEMBER OF CHAPPIE KHAN'S TRIBE.

CIGARS, GENTLEMEN?

FIRST RATE CHOW, KHAN. SUSPECT I'LL ENJOY HANGING AROUND YOUR PLACE UNTIL ZUZY REALIZES THAT HAULING WATER FOR YOUR ANIMALS ISN'T AS, AHEM, RELEVANT TO THE REAL WORLD AS SHE THOUGHT.

IT MAY TAKE A WHILE, MR. CUE. I INTEND TO MAKE YOUR DAUGHTER SO SICK OF MY TRIBE'S PRIMITIVE LIFE THAT SHE'LL BE ECSTATIC TO SEE THE LAST OF ME— PERMANENTLY!

YOU MAY LIKE TO RIDE WHILE YOU'RE HERE. CARE TO LOOK OVER MY SADDLE PONIES?

SURE...COMING, DRUMMOND?

OH, NO, THANKS. HORSES AND I HAVE A MUTUAL NONAGGRESSION PACT.

SUIT YOURSELF... LET'S GO, KHAN.

THEN FYFFE READS THE NOTE ZUZY SLIPPED TO HIM WHILE REMOVING THE DINNER PLATES.

Make excuse to meet me by your helicopter. Urgent. Ziggy Cue

UH, JUST CHECKING TO MAKE SURE NO FEROCIOUS BEASTS ARE BEDDING DOWN IN MY BIG BIRD.

PSSST! HERE!

MISTER, PLEASE! DON'T BELIEVE A WORD I'VE BEEN SAYING! YOU'VE GOT TO GET ME AWAY FROM THIS DREADFUL PLACE BEFORE I GO OUT OF MY SKULL!
